CLARKSTON, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1934

Retired Bank President Clarkston Girl Attends Hospital Tag Day COMMENT

AND CRITICISM

We want to tell the 1934 Consumer what lies ahead. In 1949, following an extensive investigation patterned along the lines of General Motors Customer Research, the world's 20 largest corporations got together on a life-term instalment program for goods and ser-They offered each subscriber complete equipment for living-food, clothing, a home, an auto, a plane, television, and a world-travel ticket good on all trains and boats—all for a flat monthly payment. In 1953 they threw in a life and disability insurance policy. In 1959 they added medical service complete.

At the close of business in 1966 there were 556,432,000 customers on the books of the Life, Liberty & Happiness Company:

Then a queer thing happened. Governments bceame rapidly obsolete. Politics died out. The bread lines in outlying districts were full of exaldermen and impoverished states men. People had everything they wanted. They felt secure from birth to death. Whenever they needed new shoes or a new car or a week-end ticket to Afghanistan, they called up the Service Station of the Life, Liberty & Happiness Company.

So there wasn't a live political issue left. Just a lot of laboratory problems. 'There still were flies in the summer time, and mosquitoes too The winters were too cold up north and the summers too hot down south At the end of 1969, an agreement was reached whereby the asylums of the country filled all political offices with harmless nuts suffering from delusions of grandeur. Uniforms and brass bands were , furnished, Paper and ink for proclamations were available at all hours of day and night. And all the asylums were closed up. One keeper in each city hall and State capitol had to be maintained, just to be sure that nobody took the inmates seriously.

Then, on July 4, 1981, the last fly swatter on earth was publicly burned on the Century of Progress Grounds in Chicago. Long before then, the last flea, bedbug, cockroach, beetle, mite, and other pest had been conquered. With politics and insects removed, the human race at last began to progress, in a Big Way. Wars ended. So did sickness. So did food World's Fair at Chicago. shortage.

Wednesday evening, when L. J. Chamberlain called the organization meeting to order for the start of the 1984 football-season a good attendance of prospective players was present as well as those who, realizing the good a strong football team can do for Clarkston, were interested and present to show that they were willing to support and encourage the team.

Edward Lee Porritt was elected manager, replacing Ward Dunston who, being burdened with the duties of township clerk, was unable to serve this season. The captain will be appointed after a practice or two, and all players have turned out for oractice.

The 1934 schedule for this year is as follows:

Sept. 30th-Keego Harbor at Clarkston.

Oct. 7th-Open date. Oct. 14th-Clarkston at Pontiac.

Oct. 21st-C. C. C. Camp at Clarkton.

Oct. 28th-Clarkston at Huron Gardens.

Nov. 4th-Clarkston at Keego Harhor Nov. 11th Open date.

Nov. 18th-Pontiac at Clarkston. The team expects to accept an invitation to play the Michigan Prison ceam on the open date set for Nov. 11. Last year's game was enjoyed by the players, and apparently this game was also enjoyed by the prison team as their invitation to play was received even before the organization meeting

While more players will probably join the squad later on in the season, the group now consists of E. L. Porritt, Tom Parnell, Joe Sarvis, L. Sarvis, Nelson Clark, B. Chamberlain, Marvin Porritt, Harvey Porritt, Clyde Morris, Bob Gehrig, Leslie Denton, Bill Reese, Jack Crosdale, Bob Miller, Dick Seeterlin, Stan Irish, T. Ferguson, Allan Cross, Jack Crosdale.

Early in 1960 everybody realized that long-distance transportation, except for pleasure, would soon cease. Each populated area was producing its own food, clothing, and other necessities in tremendous excess of local needs.

This local self-sufficiency came about through three revolutionary inventions, all anticipated around the mid-twentieth century. First, there was the small electric power unit, which, perfected around 1957, made useless the colossal super-power systems of earlier times. Generators photoelectric and generators electrochemical, some as small as alarm clocks, were turned out by the tens of millions. Power was made wherever and whenever needed. In 1965 the average American family was using 25,000 Kilowatt-hours every year or about 40 times as much as in 1934. With it, they heated and cooled their homes, regulated the humidity of air, grew their fancy winter vegetables, cured themselves of 'colds, healed all ordinary bruises and cuts, and operated their television.

The second invention was the local control of climate. From the air conditioning of homes and factories, first popularized in your day, engineers and scientists worked steadily toward and sciencists worked sciencing toward air conditioning of entire cities from central plants. This became univer-sal around 1988. Long before then, though, Alonzo G. Miffin, the eminent Guatemalan climatologist, obtained funds to build bis first super-wind trap around Winnipeg. This extended about 20 miles around the northern and western limits of that city. It was one mile high and twelve wheel tiers deep. The wind was slowed until it reached its present amazing down from 50 miles per hour to ten record of 5,000,000,000 souls. as it filtered through this trap; and its pressures were all converted into ized life for the average man was the dered 500 miles of the super-wind trap and set it up around Moscow, which at once became the most pop-ular winter resort in Europe and Asia. By 1997, 89,000 miles of the traps were in service; and 6,000,000 square miles of sub-arctic lands hitherto too cold for crops and comfort became thickly populated and fertile. The world population began to rise again, Railroad taxes-$7,829,198 in 1933-34-go directly toward the education of those youngsters.

Railroad taxes are the bulwark of our primary school fund. But now those tax payments are in danger.

Unfair, inequitable competition, particularly from unregulated trucks, has so cut into the railroads' income that their tax payments have become a problem. If this situation continues those tax payments inevitably must stop.

To the extent that the railroads are destroyed as a source of tax revenue the payments they now make will have to fall upon the citizen.*

Can he afford, then, to permit the job of transportation to be shifted largely from a tax-yielding agency-the railroadto a tax-consuming form of transport? Is he ready to take on this added tax burden?

The railroad problem is deplorable, but not beyond remedy. It can be solved within our legislatures.

Our next Michigan legislature should see that motor trucks.

and buses are taxed to meet fully the costs to the public which their operation entails; that they submit to regulations comparable with those governing the railroads, and, in addition, that they contribute equitably to the general expense of government.

Michigan and the "3R's" need the railroads. And the railroads need constructive legislation. It is only fair that they be given at least an equal chance.

economics child care specialist of Michigan State College, Parents' worry about their children is bad both for the parent and the children. Worry is hard on the worrier, but it is even harder on those near him, Mrs. Lynde believes. It is not, it has aroused considerable com-particularly difficult for a sensitive ment, both for and against, and many child who responds to the atmosphere he feels around him. He will immediately take on the state of tension, by the parent.

The effects of these emotional experiences are quite often shown throughout the child's whole life. Since worry is a form of fear, a child whose father or mother is worried becomes afraid of people and of situations. The strain of this childhood worry is apt to make an adult with whom individuals dislike to work or play.

Worry can be overcome by looking for the fear which causes it and then removing the reason for the fear. For instance, instead of showing fear of a child's lack of progress in school by worry, which is apparent in nagfollowing the last fire, the preceding ging, fault-finding, and obvious disappointment, Mrs. Lynde suggests steps to get rid of the worry. A talk with the teacher may give a clue to the child's difficulty. Too little rest may result in the child's inattention to school work. The lack of a hot lunch at noon may result in the child's indifference to his duties. Possibly a physical examination is needed to determine whether bad eyesight or hearing is making learning difficult. Knowing what causes a difficulty always will lead to ways of overcoming it.

There is much speculation as to hether the post office officials were in earnest or joking about a "Santa Claus" stamp for Christmas mail, inasmuch as the "Mother's Day" stamp was such a great success. Serious or prospective designs have been worked out with "Santa Claus" the central figure with traditional holly wreath apprehension or fear which is shown, and such a stamp in red and green would add much to the gayety of the Christmas mail.
