COMMENT ORITIOISM

About the twentieth of October. 1918, at Mesyes Höspital Center, A. F. F., all of the officers of the four- the game. On the same play Tucker en base hospitals were ordered to jeadquarters.

A brigadier general from the First Army was there to give us some instructions. Speaking as nonchalantly as if he were describing some surgical operation he told us the end of the war was near. "Day after tomorrow we start a drive that will not stop until the enemy is conquered. On that day we will throw into battle on all fronts a certain number of men. A specified number of men will be killed that day and a certain number (I forget the figures but he named them all) will be wounded. The drive will continue until the men are used up and immediately replaced with fresh ones. Three days after the drive starts you will receive one thousand wounded men and each day thereafter you will receive another thousand until the war is endd." That is exactly what happened. On November 13th every ward, nurses' quarters, Red Cross hut, and available place was full to twice our regular capacity.

My big moment was the realization of the horrid necessity of deliberately sending men to their doom when they knew the number to be sacrificed.—FRED CALLAWAY, M. D., Marysville, Ohio.

For some years, the Campbell-Richmond Post No. 63, of the American Legion has given an Armistice dance. We doubt if the News, the hometown booster, would be stretching the truth about this famous event if we called it an institution. This year, as in the past, the committee is attempting to provide even better amusement. Certainly it is the event you have been waiting for, so we will be seeing you.

Athletic News

On Friday Clarkston High Schoo wamped Keego Harbor's football leven by a 31-0 score.

Tucker proved to be the outstandng ball carrier on the field. Early the first quarter Tucker broke through the left side of the line and raced for a touchdown, the first of was good for yardage all afternoon scoring two other touchdowns on well executed runs. Clarkston's line opened well, and the ball covering in the backfield had Keego on the run all afternoon. Several times Tucker was through and away on long runs Lefore the defense knew where the ball was.

Holsema, Keego's star ball carrier and defensive back, had a bad afternoon as the Clarkston backs had been instructed to watch his one-Kand ball carrying. As a result, he lost the ball frequently as the local backs caused him to fumble or "stole" the ball. Yost's activities along that line were more than evident as he took the ball from Holsema as he came through the line, and turned the play into a nice gain for Clarkston. Holsema's troubles on defense are shown by the score of the game.

Mrs. Olive Smith Is Hostess to Maccabees

Mrs. John Mackillop

On Wednesday afternoon the Maccabees met at the home of Mrs. Olive Smith in Pontiac.

A pot-luck dinner was served at one o'clock. As this was an open meeting there was an exceptionally good attendance. A short business meeting was held and the usual grab bag created much fun. In the afternoon three tables of 500 were in play with the awards going to Mrs. Lionel Waterbury and Mrs. Myrtle Yost.

The next meeting which will be held on Thursday, Nov. 21st; will be at the home of Mrs. John Mackillop and each member is requested to invite one guest.

Husbands Are Guests of Chorus on Monday Eve

Last Monday evening about fifty gathered at the school and enjoyed the co-operative dinner given by the Community Chorus. The husbands were guests and helped to make it one large family gathering. The members of the chorus have made plans to have dinner at the school once a month and in this way they get better acquainted with each other and many suggestions that might be helpful to the chorus are discussed and besides it makes a pleasanter evening and a truer spirit of friendliness seems to prevail.

Friends Entertained At Green Acres

The Next Meeting to Be With Mrs. Durand Ogden Is Hostess

Last Saturday Mrs. Durand Ogder

entertained twenty of her friends a a one o'clock luncheon and afternoon bridge at Green Acres. The guests were seated at two din ing tables which were made attractive with very dainty place cards and centerpieces of fruit.

In the afternoon five tables of bridge were in play in the spacious living-room in which Michigan Holly and Chrysanthemums were used in profusion. The awards for the afternoon went to Mrs. A. F. Butters, Mrs. F. E. Davies and Mrs. Leonard of Detroit, Mrs. Foster of Detroit, a former resident of Clarkston, was among the guests.

Mrs. Ogden, who was gowned in an afternoon gown of black velvet, made a very pleasing hostess.

Ruth Belitz Entertains At Costume Party

Even as late as Saturday night the Hallowe'en spirit was prevalent in Clarkston when Ruth Belitz entertained a number of her friends at a masquerade party at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Green, on N. Holcomb St.

All the little guests were quite sure the ghosts walked on that night because on arriving at the Green home, as they approached the door, it slowly opened in a rather mysterious manner and they entered to be greeted by their young hostess, Ruth. Has Friendly Dinner The rooms were decorated in orange and black colors, corn stalks, Jack o' lanterns, lighted ghosts and anything that would, in any conceivable manner, suggest Hallowe'en.

During the evening many games were played and many stunts were performed and of course the usual treasure hunt was indulged in and these young folk had heaps of fun.

At the close of a jolly evening, dainty refreshments were served.

The guests included Doris Reynnells, Betty Ash, Betty Beach, Mazie Wompole, Phyllis Walter, Betty Drake, Elaine Waterbury, Barbara Andrews, Marion Chamberlain, Mada Houser and Marjorie Dickman.

Ernest Coleman Fatally Injured

Burial Was in Holly on Wednesday

Automobile fatalities in Michigan Sunday, at the beginning of only the second week of an intensive safety campaign, numbered 23. Of this number, one victim was well known in this community, having been born and brought up in Groveland town ship. He was Ernest Coleman, 49 years old, of Drayton Plains. Another was Harry Drewett, 64 years old, of Flint, who by a peculiar chain of circumstances, had just been visiting at the Coleman home with his brother, Fred Drewett, also of Flint, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Coleman. Both were struck by cars on the Dixie Highway, at spots only a few feet apart and with but an hour intervening. The Drewetts had been visiting in Clarkston at the home of Albert Gundry, when it was suggested that before returning to Flint they drive down to Drayton Plains and see the Coleman family. Harry Drewett was instantly killed as he was crossing the street just On Thursday evening a great before they were planning to leave many friends of Miss Margaret for home. He was walking behind his brother and Mr. Coleman when struck by a car driven by Lloyd M. Cameron, 21 years old, of Pontiac, who was returning home with his honeymoon trip.

Coleman's death was also instaning. The car that struck him is alleged by witnesses to have been going at an excessive rate of speed. and the driver. Edward F. Dysarz.

The Home Demonstration group held its first meeting in the church Jess Gunter, phone 893-F31, Drayton basement last Wednesday, October 30th. The business meeting was held in the morning at 10:30. At noon a delicious pot luck dinner was served to twenty-five members. At 1:30 p. m. the lesson on protein, calcium, phosphorus and iron and Vitamins A, B, C, D, and G was given by one of the leaders, Mrs. Frank Jones. Mr. Emil Koop, the other leader, made and demonstrated several different salads such as the Michigan Salad, Brown Susan Salad, Tomato and Cottage Cheese Salad, and American Cheese Salad. The next meeting will be held in the church on December 18th, and the lesson will be on Meal Planning.

The members of the Clothing group also held their meeting on this same date and the officers of that group were chosen as follows: Mrs. Percy Nichols, chairman; Mrs. Strubler, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. Basil Thompson and Mrs. John Alander, leaders.

FEATURE OF THE NEW FORD MEASURES UP TO THE STANDARD OF ITS V·8 ENGINE

THEY ride with greater safety in the new Ford for 1936. It's not so much that V-8 engine power and pick-up whisk them clear of traffic tangles - although this, too, helps make the new Ford a safer as well as a more thrilling car to drive. But it's mainly because every feature of the new Ford measures up to the standard of V-8 engine quality. The Ford Motor Company was not satisfied with putting an engine from the luxury class into a car selling as low as $510. It insisted that everything else be in keeping with the fine-car safety, as well as roominess and comfort.

Your neighborhood Ford dealer invites you to check critically and in detail the Ford's many luxury-class features.

In the Public Interest

Every business exists by catering, directly or indirectly, to the public. The dealings of some are limited to a small group; but a business such as the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, which caters to every one, which keeps an important product available to all at any hour of the day or night, can be truly said to be .. engaged in public service.

Those conducting such a business assume an obligation which does not apply to every business; the very fact that telephone service vitally affects the public welfare, and is of daily importance in the social and business life of Michigan, places a serious responsibility upon the Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

In accepting that responsibility, the Michigan Bell Telephone Company established the following principle as its fundamental policy: To supply the people of Michigan with the best possible telephone service at the least possible cost that will maintain existing standards and assure the improvements of the future.

This is not a mere theoretical motto. It is a plain statement of the permanent policy that governs this company's activities. Its importance is shown by the improvements which a faithful observance of that policy has produced in the service.

These improvements, revealed by accurate daily records, include a greater proportion of out-of-town calls completed while the subscriber holds the line; faster repair service; better equipment; increased speed and accuracy in handling local calls; unfailing courtesy; a steady decrease in "out-of-order" reports.

Such tangible, continued progress did not come by chance; it did not "just happen." It grew directly out of a sincere desire to serve the public well; out of the belief that the only policy which can work to the permanent advantage of any business is the policy that works in the interest of the public.

MICHIGAN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

The Bad Dream

By GERTRUDE you BERNUTH

IT WAS a stormy winter night. The wind blew a gale, the rain came down in torrents, and Cynthia Blake was all alone in the Long Island house.

Cynthia didn't like being alone, and on a night such as this she hated it. Especially since it had recently been in all the papers that David had gotten: a fifty thousand dollar executor's fee from the Dodge estate. That made her nervous. But she lighted at log fire and settled down beside it with fier book, hoping against hope that the time would pass quickly. David would be home by 11':30' anyhow.

Eight o'clock, nine o'clock-surely that clock must be slow! -ten o'clockand the telephone rang. Cynthia sprang to answer it.

"I'd like to speak to Mrs. David Blake." It was a man's voice, businesslike, yet rather suave.

"This is Mrs. Blake," said Cynthia. "Oh! Well, Mrs. Blake, I'm afraid L have some disturbing news for you."

"Yes?" said Cynthia, striving hard for self-control. Something had happened to David! "What is it?" she asked faintly.

"Er-Mr. Blake has had an accident." Cynthia gave one cry of anguish and then forced hereaif to listen.

"Mr. Blake was on his way home in a taxi, and his car skidded on Queensboro bridge. I happened to be driving by and stopped to see what had hapgened. Mr. Blake isn't seriously hurt, but they insisted upon taking him to Bellevne for examination and treatment. His one worry seemed to be about his wife, so I told him that I'd phone you. In fact, I told him that I'd gladly take you in to Bellevue, if you cared to go,

"Oh, would you? That's awfully kind of you!" cried Cynthia. Her one wish was to get to David, darling David. That was all that counted.

"How soon can you be ready, Mrs. Blnke?" asked the voice.

"In five minutes! Oh you're sure that my husband's not hadly hurt?" she implored. "You're telling me the truth, aren't you?"

"Mr. Blake is not badly hurt. He may have a broken rib or two, but-

"Come on, come on, cut it out," broke in a rough voice. "We ain't go much . . ." then silence, as if a hand had been suddenly placed over the mouthpiece. Then:

"That was some one who wants this booth, Mrs. Blake. I'll be there inside of fifteen minutes. Good-by."

As Cynthia put the receiver back on the hook, she was puzzled. Her fear about David seemed to have vanished. She began to be her usual cool-headed self. That other voice, so rough and snarling. "Come on, come on, cut it out. We-"

Cynthia raced upstairs to the exten sion phone beside her bed.

"Pennsylvania-6-3500," speaking into the mouth piece again. "Hello, bello, is this the Bar associa-Is Mr. Blake there this evening-Mr. David Blake? He was to be in

"Yes, Mr. Blake is here. He's in room 510. I'll connect you with him if you wish. "If you please," said Cynthia.

"Mr. Blake, please," said the voice And then David's voice saying hello. "Dave is that you?"

"Certainly it's I. What's up?" "And are you all right?"

"All right? Of course I'm all right What's the matter with you? I'm just starting for home.'

"O. K." said Cynthia, and bung up the receiver.

"Operator, I want the police," she said, taking down the receiver again. "I'll connect you," said the operator. Her voice sounded excited.

"Police station, One Hundred and ninth precinct. What is it?" asked a man's voice.

said Cynthia. "This is "Officer." Mrs. David Blake, at 20 Weybridge road, Bayside, Long Island. I have just had a phone call from a stranger who tells me that my husband has had an automobile accident and wants me to come to him in Believue hospital. The man sald he would be here in fifteen minutes to take me to my hushand. I have since located my hus band by telephoning and he's perfectly all right. But I thought, if the man comes, I'd like to have the police." "Humph! A snatch! We'll have some one there inside of three minutes, lady. Don't be scared. Take it easy. Cynthia hung up the receiver with fingers that trembled. That was that. Now what? She sat tense listening for sounds outside, and finally heard a car coming up the road. Which is it, she wondered, the 'snatcher' or the police? She shivered a little

Just then the telephone rang again. "This is Dave again," said her husband's voice. "I'm phoning from the Long Island station. Is anything wrong out there? I'm worried."

Suddenly Cynthia heard a commotion outside, and a shot rang out. "'S all right, I dropped him," shouted a voice. "Where's the other one? Did he get away?"

"He won't get far. I blew his front tire, and the other boys are just coming up the road. They'll get him."
"Cynthia!" shouled David. "Is any thing the matter? You're acting awfully queer. Why did you call me at the Bar association?" "Oh, I fell asleep by the fire and had a bad dream," said Cynthia. "Tell you about it when you get home."

Waterford School

First Grade

We have a new pupil this week, Richard Templeton from Wisner

School in Pontiac. The goblins and witches were all out last week. We had a nice time at our Hallowe'en party on Friday afternoon. The fourth and fifth grades dressed in their costumes visited us. Come again.

Charlotte Taylor is beginning elocution lessons this week at school. Mrs. Oscar Schmidt is the teacher.

Third Grade

Mary Edelen and Jean Barber have both moved to Pontiac and are attending school there.

Ronald Poloskey, who has been absent several weeks due to a broken leg, is home from the hospital and expects to return to school soon.

Edward Randau's side won the spelling contest and they were enter- furnish room for more seats. There tained at a Hallowe'en party by Jean are now 94 pupils seated in this Barber's group.

Fourth and Fifth Grades

We are busy gathering pictures for our Art envelopes and making book covers for our Weekly Readers.

The fourth and fifth grades are paving a contest in spelling. Jean Girst's side is ahead in the fourth grade and Nancy Kelly's in the fifth Whyoma McEvers has been very ill with the "Flu" for the past week. We hope she is better soon.

High School Room

The sixth grade is studying Great Britain in Geography. The seventh and eighth grade English classes are making English notebooks and are studying poems. The sixth grade English class is studying debating. Three new pupils entered the ninth grade recently: Laura Blain, Donna Young and Ruth Gilbert.

Lorraine Coons entertained several of her friends at her home at Williams Lake with a "weenie roast" Friday evening.

We are glad to welcome Harold MacFarland to our school again, after an absence of three weeks. He was absent due to an injured knee.

Waterford speed-ball team played Donaldson, Tuesday. The score was 7-5 in favor of Donaldson.

Because of the increase in the number of pupils, it was necessary to remove the stage in the auditorium to

Clarkston School News (Concluded from page one) DORIS MORGAN AND VIOLET COY ARE HOSTESSES AT A PA-JAMA PARTY, Friday, Nov. 1.

Doris Morgan and Violet Coy entertained the E. R. N. Girls at the home of Doris Morgan. The evening was spent playing cards and dancing. Light refreshments were served. An enjoyable evening was had by all. The E. R. N. members are Inez Coleman, Hilda Barnett, Genevieve Beardslee, June Dunston, Violet Coy, Mildred Butters, Doris Morgan and Marion Yost.

Session Room Ejaculations! During a short assembly held Monday morning, prizes were awarded to hose who sold two or more subscripns in the salesmanship contest.

My, but Vivian and Hamilton (Arjur Newman Junior, Folksies) cerinly do have a lot to say to each ther first hour-maybe it's brotherly and sisterly love.

This year's Hallowe'en was pretty hard on the boys. Another cripple; Kenny Skarritt (Skippy, to us).

King and Charles are our two bestest toe-dancers! Yes sir, we came around a corner and caught them light-footing it gracefully down you corridor, at such a ripping gate, so as to make any dance instructor yearn for their presence in his classes. They were on their way, it seems, to partake of their noon-day meal.

Vi has added a new touch to the Coiffure. Pretty ritzy, but I betcha she was scared when she took the final clip, snip, er sumpthin'.

Betty Williams, a little Freshman coquette, appeared at their masquerade party as no other than the noted personage-MAE WEST!!! Did she make a hit or did she make a hit! Bright idea for next year's football season! Why doesn't Mr. Waters obtain the girls' cooperation in seeing that the football heroes get in by 9:30—bet the rule would be enforced 100%; what about it?

Hammy has been suffering from "Housemaids' Knee" for the past week, he is slowly recovering from the injury.

Why was Gerald Davies so odorous, Monday morning? Better learn to swim before next Hallowee'n, Jerry! A romance has sprung up over a minnow sign on Church Street! Couldn't ya' find a more romantic rendezvous than that, Runt?

Did everyone see "Shipmates Forever" being shown at the Oakland, this week? If you get the opportunity to see it, don't miss it! It was the type of picture that gets you down or up. Anyway it arouses National spirit and brings out the "Yankee in you". What could be more thrilling than to see the U.S. battle fleet in formation, sea planes maneuvering above, and our own U. S. navy band playing the National Anthem. Yes sir, it makes you want to go right out and join the navy. Takes something like this where service to our country and sportsmanship play important roles, to make you want to go out and shout to the whole wide world that you live in the good old U.S.A.

Oh, I believe in miracles, honestly I do-an' you will too after ya' get a load of this!

I hear that a certain little Sophomore lad (his name was mentioned in this column last week) isn't very pleased with the romance which is flourishing between Tucker and that cute little Junior girl. Ya see he used to be in Tucker's place ya' know, so that's the reason for the grudge-er sumpthin'. Maybe we will have a triangle affair yet. M. B. What are you so sad about, honey bunch?

D. H. Oh, darling, I was just thinking this will be our last evening together until tomorrow night.

By AMY CAMPBELL ©. McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

T WAS the glamorous night of their rediscovery. They had been interrupted in the garden and so were dancing again, two people who invited ador-ing eyes for their youth and meantness for each other.

He was vowing that this time it must not be too beautiful to last with this woman who had been his wife.

He found himself mistaken in the thought that he had remembered how vivid; how utterly desirable she could be. Her gown, shimmering in the old

There was still that look of intercepted flight in her eyes. No one, nothing, had taken that away. It was so peculiarly hers he wanted it to stay

"At this instant, in a way that had once been most marked between them their thoughts met contrariwise.

"This time you must clip my wings," she said with veiled rapture. He hesitated. It was still difficult to touch the past lightly. "You said they were powerless before." He spoke as if it were some thing he must now have only dreamed. "I go over and over the things I said. How can you still care?" "How could I not care? You are unconquerable in my heart." He appeared to be viewing mentally something lovely and quite apart from them

He was recalled by the bafflement in her eyes and remembered instantly how she used to say she never really knew what was back of his eyes when he looked away like that. Again there was her old demand in the glance she gave him, saying so plainly that she must know. It had the old effect of producing helpless sileuce on his part. This would not do.

He looked down at her in tender. anxious concern.

"Out in the garden you said . . she hesitated as if savoring something he might, under pressure, repeat.

There was a slight groping slience

"Say it again," she pleaded. This was very great condescension from her. His very amazement made him powerless now to break a silence so seemingly imposed by some cautious angel,

Oh now I know," she said, a gentleness breaking over the rebellion in her eyes as she looked up into his. "You always told in little continual ways. The big moments were very rare. Very waited for." "Always wait, Tawny Lily," he begged, his voice rough with rushing tenderness. "So much can only be lived and looked."

People were watching them intently. It was the first time they had met since they parted. He saw that she was swiftly, cleverly, appraising what she read in eyes everywhere as they moved effortlessly through the crowds. Finally she said, "They think they are seeing an attempt to play with you again." "'All the world may stare-'" he quoted with contagious sufficiency. The misted meaning in her eyes made him forget to go on. Instantly, thrillingly, she took him off guard by continuing what he supposed she would have forgotten. "'You and I are bound together

There was suddenly a look of appalled surrender in her eyes before incredibly, her precious, proud head bowed swiftly on his shoulder. He was unprepared for the tears crowding under her lashes, as he guarded this, his great moment of pride, and hers of such complete surrender, by guiding her towards the garden again. Secure in the dimness blurred with white cherry blossoms, she said:

"I'll never do that again. I've shocked even myself. Now there will be nothing piquant about me for you ever any more.

"It's wonderful to have you say things you don't mean when you shouldn't mean them," he told her gravely.

"I had to tell you." "And I had to know!" He was thinking that she had always really been for him. She confirmed this with her

He drew a branch of white blossoms down-around her shoulders and then startled with the effect, looked at her intently.

"There will always be a bough waiting for the sweetest wild wings in the world. Only remember your way home.

my dearl" "And you would star it with flowers for mel I can see that in your eyes. Eyen after saying I was already too tired and frail to be windblown or streamline. That I should be yours." With one hand he held the blossoms closer about them and with the other drew a sprig across her eyes for a moment to vell the sweetness there while he made a secret petition that it might always stay. "There was one white petal fell on your hair as you kissed me. It is still there," she told him with a queer little sort of reverence. "They would all fall on you if you were to kiss me-again," he promised. "Red hair needs exquisite care. Let's prolong the process by letting the years make it white." "In just such a way?"

Ladies' Aid Met Wednesday

The Ladies' Aid of the Clarkston Methodist church met at the church on Wednesday for an all day meeting. There was a small attendance but the ladies kept busy sewing aprons. At noon a pot-luck lunch was served and the ladies enjoyed visiting.

In the afternoon a short business meeting was held and a "Kalico Karnival" and chicken dinner were planned for December 6th.
