COMMENT AND CRITICISM

1935, you have had a busy year.

Santa Claus, having made his rounds, can now take a six months nap, then start getting ready for next year. . . . we say this advisedly. At least six months ago I expressed a wish, perhaps without hope . . . and a dear sister-in-law (one of his helpers) . . . heard heeded . . . and am I happy.

"Man's inhumanity to man . . ." after existing for years is now making money for a movie company. About a month ago I finished reading Adam Bede. Perhaps the part that interested me the most was the stern English Law that was in effect in that period. Its mention of a "Convict Ship" sends the shivers up and down one's spine. A few years ago it was my opportunity to go thru the only "Convict Ship" in existence. And now when the movie "Muthy on the Bounty" comes to the Holly Theatre (two free ads but it will do the readers more good) DON'T MISS IT. This tale was published by a book of the month club a few years ago and was a great seller. It is an historical tale of life at sea under the rule of Great Britain in the not far distant past.

They tell me that the year fast approaching will be the greatest year in the history of autograph hunting. And if you cannot write your name you are just as well off as the one who can, because all the hunter will want will be your mark. You will be asked to place your mark in front of names for every office from the lowest to the office of President of these United States.

A national publication predicts the reelection of President Roosevelt because of the things the president has done to help the working man and the past evident desire of the stand-patters to do nothing for the said working man. On the other hand perhaps the G. O. P. is waking up . . . at least in Michigan the Republicans elected a man pledged to give more help to people than the present administration ever thought of.

And 1936 is predicted as the year that will see the passage of the so-called bonus payment. One of our Senators, one James Couzens, may be even forced to see some wisdom in forgetting, at least till after election, his desire to keep down the taxes on his immense fortune made in the land he adopted and may be so bold as to promise to vote for the payment. Anyway Jimmie will have to hurdle some huge obstacles before he gets a passport to Washington for a few more years.

AND SUDDEN DEATH
The usual horrible accident at Christmas time has occurred. A bus with twelve passengers drives thru an opened bridge . . . and the first man to come to the surface comes up nearly decapitated.

1936, what now?

Beattie Bros. Encourage Safety

A Safety Calendar Given to Each Family

Beattie Bros. Motor Sales is doing its bit towards the safety campaign. They have prepared in calendar form a reminder for the children to "Play Safe". The picture on the calendar is a reproduction in full color from the original painting by Adelaide Hiebel. More than seven thousand children are killed and more than a quarter of a million are injured by automobiles in America every year. Beattie Bros. say "Let us all—children and autodriviers too, resolve to 'Play Safe' all through the New Year and then it will truly be A Happy New Year for us all."

There is a "Play Safe" calendar waiting for every family in Clarkston at Beattie Bros. Motor Sales.

Playing Safe
Traffic's pretty heavy, Sis,
We've got to watch our step.
Speedy racing cars like this
Are just chock full of pep.
I've put a STOP sign on the tree
And a red light on the rear,
To make it safe for you and me
To travel without fear.

Autos smash up kids like us
Seems like they don't care,
But we'll obey the Safety Rules
'Cause each must do his share.

NOVEMBER REPORT OF HERD TESTER

Shows Davisburg Man With Leading Individual Cow

Following is the November report of the Oakland County Dairy Herd Improvement Association:

The principal object of a Dairy Herd Improvement Association is to aid its members in becoming better dairymen, which in turn brings greater dairy profits.

During the month of November, the association operating in Oakland County had on test twenty-three herds composed of 755 cows. The average production per association cow for the thirty day period was 504 pounds of milk and 21.87 pounds of butter-fat. There were 17 cows or 2.2% producing in excess of 50 pounds of butter-fat, and a like number producing in excess of 1250 pounds of milk.

Twenty unprofitable cows were culled from herds of the Association members during the month.

With few exceptions, the members are feeding according to the tester's suggestions.

For the fourth consecutive month, O. C. Farmer's herd of Purebred and Grade Guernseys led the Association with an average of 617 pounds of milk and 30.05 pounds of butter-fat.

Mrs. A. G. Wilson, Dr. L. F. Cobb, Middleton's Dairy and Wm. H. Gallagher own the other leading herds of the month.

Dr. McKinney, of Davisburg, owns the leading individual cow of the month, a grade Holstein with 1635 pounds of milk and 73.5 pounds of butter-fat.

Mrs. A. C. Wilson, of Rochester, owns the high cow in the four year old class, a Registered Guernsey with 1281 pounds of milk and 68.7 pounds of butter-fat.

Bert Williamson, of Rochester, owns the second cow in the mature class, a grade Guernsey, with 1125 pounds of milk and 65.2 pounds of butter-fat.

O. C. Farmer, of Pontiac; Schoenberger Brothers, of New Hudson; H. R. Hodges, of Rochester; Bruce Lessiter, of Clarkston; and Longly & Whybrew, of Farmington, are owners of other outstanding cows in the different age classes.

HIGHWAY PROGRAM REFLECTS CREDIT

Michigan Record for '35 Stands High in Nation

The state highway department this week closed out a calendar year crammed with activities that reflected Michigan's leadership in the recovery program.

More than $18,000,000 worth of projects were either constructed or placed under contract during the year. State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner inaugurated the first highway relief program in the United States including the biggest grade separation program in Michigan's history. The most comprehensive transportation survey ever undertaken in Michigan was launched the latter part of the year. The state highway department increased its cash position over a million dollars. A $1,395,945 oil aggregate construction program on 224 miles of gravel trunklines was started in cooperation with the works progress administration. Major advances were made in the tourist highway movement. Traffic on the state-owned ferries at the Straits of Mackinac reached an all time peak.

More than 693 miles of highways were improved or were under contract for improvements in 79 counties. This mileage included 178 miles of concrete pavement costing $6,001,966; twenty-five miles of concrete pavement widening, $525,000; 63 miles of bituminous concrete pavement, $874,800; twenty-six bridges, $504,993; 28 grade separations, $2,810,409; fifteen miles of landscaping, $104,375; and fifty miles of gravel construction, $1,100,000.

President Roosevelt early last summer approved a $20,600,000 highway relief program for Michigan, the first to be approved in the country. This program was launched Aug. 1 and nine-tenths of it was under contract by the end of the year, a record unmatched by any other state. The program embraced $7,600,000 in Federal Aid projects, $3,800,000 of which was state funds; $6,700,000 for grade separations at railroad crossings; and $6,700,000 in works relief road projects, most of which were confined to grading operations.

Except for the state's $3,800,000 contribution, all construction was financed with Federal funds. With three-fifths of all state highway revenues returned directly to the counties, state funds for construction were virtually limited to this one item.

The department's transportation survey was launched in three phases—an inventory of every mile of the 85,000 miles of roads in Michigan, a statewide traffic count at 6,000 contemplated stations; and a fiscal study of the entire road system of the state.

The year brought extensive shoreline construction. It found the inauguration of a unique tourist service in the opening of the tourist lodge and information station on US-12 near New Buffalo, a clearing house of information on Michigan's tourist attractions and the first lodge of its kind in the country.

LAST PICTURE OF FAMOUS HUMORIST

To Be Shown at Holly Theatre December 26, 27, 28

Will Rogers' last—and greatest—picture, "In Old Kentucky", comes Thursday to the Holly Theatre.

Adapted from the play whose humor, sunny romance and tingling horse-race drama have made it a favorite of three generations of Americans, "In Old Kentucky" stars Rogers in a role that presents his rich down-to-earth character in its most lovable light.

Sam Hellman, famous humorist, and Gladys Lehman adapted the play to the screen in a modernized form, but preserved all of its drama and its rich comedy of character and incident.

In the picture, Rogers enacts a shrewd and genial trainer of horses, whose homely philosophy and keen wit sets right all the troubles of the impulsive people about him.

Russell Hardie and Dorothy Wilson play the romantic youngsters of "In Old Kentucky". She is the daughter of old Charles Sellon who is feuding with Charles Richman. Although his daughter fights to win Hardie for herself, it is Rogers' shrewd aid that finally brings the boy to Miss Wilson. Rogers' able assistant in the picture is Bill Robinson, the tap dancing genius, who teaches the comedian enough of his foot artistry to win a handsome widow, and thus provides one of the comedy punches of the picture.

Although "In Old Kentucky" is full of humor and drama in the feud situations and the wrangle with the crazy rain-maker, it reserves its great thrill for the pounding climax in which racing thoroughbreds pound down the stretch carrying romance and drama in their saddle.

Louise Henry, Alan Dinehart, Esther Dale and Etienne Girardot are the principal supporting players in "In Old Kentucky", which was directed by George Marshall.

"Frisco Kid" Warner Bros.' thrilling tale of the glamorous Barbary Coast of old San Francisco, opens at the Holly Theatre next Sunday, with an all star cast headed by James Cagney, Margaret Lindsay, Ricardo Cortez and Lili Damita.

The picture is set in the colorful background of the early fifties when the waterfront at the Golden Gate was a flaming panorama of gilded gambling halls and palaces of pleasure.

The characters are based on historic personages of the time who flocked to the city of gold from every port in the world—adventurers all, ready to risk their fortunes or their lives on the throw of a die.

Into this picturesque atmosphere comes a sailor, strong, purposeful, crude, ignorant, but a man of tremendous force and magnetic personality, who rises to be the master of the Coast and who dares to fall in love with the most beautiful girl of San Francisco's highest society.

James Cagney and Margaret Lindsay, as the two characters, carry on this strange romance in the midst of a series of thrilling episodes when the city is rocked by terrific battles between the vigilantes and the denizens of the Coast.

P. T. A. Gifts Distributed Monday

Mrs. F. E. Davies to Be Finance Chairman

On Monday evening the P. T. A. had the pleasure of distributing their gifts to three lucky persons. The beautiful baby doll was won by Robert E. Munro, the turkey by Bird Cooley, and the basket by Floyd Kimball. The finance committee is happy to report that they cleared $36.35 and were well able to contribute to the children's Christmas tree sponsored by the child study club.

Mrs. A. B. Wompole and her committee wish to thank everyone who supported their project so generously, also the merchants for their cooperation in displaying the gifts.

The committee has had a fine year and has accomplished a great deal and now that Mrs. Wompole is leaving for California, Mrs. F. E. Davies will act as finance chairman and she will be glad to have your hearty support. The school dishes and silverware are here now and will be on display at the last P. T. A. meeting. The P. T. A. will most likely serve a dinner some time in January and everyone will have a chance to use the dishes and silverware that have been needed at the school for quite some time.

The Lone Star flag will float alongside the banners of three of Texas' ranking universities championing the sports honors of Texas in inter-sectional football classics on the first day of 1936, the one-hundredth anniversary of Texas under the Lone Star.

Undefeated, untied Southern Methodist University will send its Mustangs to the 90,000-seat Rose Bowl in Pasadena, California, to meet Stanford University in a game that was a sellout four weeks before game day—before, in fact, the tickets were even printed.

In New Orleans' Sugar Bowl the Horned Frogs of Texas Christian University, victors over all comers except the Mustangs, will play the powerful grid warriors of Louisiana State University.

Hardin-Simmons University's Cowboys will continue training through December in their corral at Abilene and carry the Texas colors to Arizona, to meet the New Mexico Aggies in Phoenix in the feature of the Fiesta del Sol in the Sun Bowl.

For the first time in Rose Bowl history, the visitors will be allowed program time between halves of the game. The S. M. U. bandmen whose small starting lineup needs no reserves or substitutions, already have planned five minutes of fast entertainment that will thrill the 90,000 gamegoers and provide radio millions a words-to-music picture of some of the glories of history of Texas as it comes of centennial age.

The Good Will Club of Waterford was entertained on Friday, Dec. 20th, at the home of the president, Mrs. Henry Mehlerberg. It was an all day meeting. The members finished tying two quilts and had them ready to give for Xmas cheer. The club also prepared a basket. A three course luncheon was served at one o'clock. An informal meeting was held after the luncheon. The January meeting will be at the home of the secretary and treasurer of the club, Mrs. Henri Buck. Two new members were initiated into the club, Mrs. Oscar Virgin and Mrs. Roy Blakeslee. The Xmas tree held gifts for the guests and each one was presented with something attractive and useful. The club meets on the third Friday of each month.

The Christmas program and tree held at the Waterford Church on Thursday night drew the largest crowd the church had had for a long time. There were approximately 400 people present who enjoyed the splendid program. The church was attractive with the decorations of greens and the Christmas colors, also the tree which had the place of honor in the front of the church. The decorating was done by the classes of Miss Roberta Virgin and Howard Burt Sr. The Christmas treat was prepared by Mrs. Lyman Girst, Mrs. Bessie Owen and Mrs. Leonard Eakle. Of course Santa came following the program and distributed the gifts to the children. A Christmas tree program would not be complete without Santa's coming for at least a few minutes. For he is always welcomed with cries of delight and hand clapping by the children. So Waterford always has an order in for him to come and visit the programs each year. The program was opened by song by the congregation with Miss Jane Shouclike at the piano and Rev. Howard Jewell offered prayer. Bradley Martin gave a violin solo accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Frank Martin. Then during the offering two piano duets were played by Howard Burt Jr. and Billy Wagner. The collection went toward defraying expenses for the evening and amounted to around fourteen dollars. The teachers who helped make the program a success with the children's wonderful help were Mrs. Mayme Baker, Miss Mary Jacobus, Miss Gertrude Everett, Miss Marveta Hines, Howard Burt Sr. announced some of the program and each room had their own announcers who did fine work. The S. S. teachers and the superintendent of Sunday school, H. B. Mehlerberg, express their appreciation of such fine help.

AWAY FROM RESTRICTIONS

The Canadian-American trade treaty has met with a very mixed reception from the interests immediately involved. As a closer examination of its contents has revealed its nature, most of the first cries of alarm have subsided. At the same time a sigh of satisfaction has gone up from those who are watching anxiously for a sign as to the genuineness of Mr. Roosevelt's support of his Secretary of State.

The treaty has more importance than even the hundreds of millions of dollars of prospective trade benefits that it involves would indicate. Its significance lies in the crucial turn that it may give to American policy at this period. The President has shown some reluctance to antagonize special interests who ask the government for tariff protection or largess. If his political scouts report to him—as it seems probable that they will—a highly favorable reaction to the Canadian trade treaty, he may be emboldened to take the direction toward recovery offered by Secretary Hull rather than by the "restrictionists."

The success of this change of front will depend upon support by the business community itself and by the nation at large for a national program as opposed to one of special interests. If business leadership requires to be consistent in opposing control of production, it would do well to back with enthusiasm Secretary Hull's policy of gradually taking restrictions from trade.—Christian Science Monitor.

CONSERVATION NEWS

The "conscience fund," formed by the voluntary contributions of individuals who have broken the fish and game laws, has been increased by the sum of one dollar.

"This summer I vacationed in your state and on one occasion I thoughtlessly went fishing with a friend. It has since troubled my conscience," wrote a resident of Illinois to the Department of Conservation at Lansing.

"Enclosed you will find a dollar which I know is three times the value of the fish I caught."

The letter was signed: "A Christian Citizen of Illinois" and the contribution has been placed in the general operations fund of the Department.

The large-mouth black bass, which is called a "trout" in southern states, attains a weight of close to 20 pounds in Florida waters.

For Homemakers

Farm women and urban homemakers have a mutual interest in food prices and in their relation to other costs of living, according to the home economics department at Michigan State College.

The fact that bacon costs now are much higher than they were one year ago causes many buyers to forget that present bacon prices are lower than they were in 1920 or in 1926. The fact is often forgotten that more people can now buy bacon at the higher price than could buy it last year at the low price. The price of food is of little importance to people who have no money to buy anything.

Farmers and the working people of the cities have common interests and neither can have prosperity without the other enjoying a share of it. The farmer's wife who shares in the receipts of higher prices for hogs also shares in the increased buying of things which the city woman's husband manufactures.

Retail sales in towns of less than 2,500 population and from mail order houses, dropped from $9,200,000,000 in 1929 to $3,900,000,000 in 1932. Economic levels were at low ebb on the farm and in the towns in 1932 and the fact that farm prices were at ruinous levels did not help the urban dweller. The sales figures show that townspeople as well as farmers quit buying manufactured goods.

Housekeepers in the city should remember that the farmers' wives who obtain more spending money from better prices for farm produce also buy many kinds of manufactured articles which are higher in price than they were in 1932. Buyers' strikes against meats are no more logical than similar strikes against manufactured goods.

Wise choice of detachable collars for dresses will add smartness to a wardrobe, change the lines of some garments so that they appear new, and will enhance or improve the appearance of the person's face who wears the dress, according to clothing specialists at Michigan State College. The selection of a pattern for a neckline depends upon the shape of the face. An oval neckline harmonizes better with most face types than any one other shape. A V-neck tends to emphasize thinness of face but this may be counteracted by using the suggestion of a curve in cutting the V.

Round necklines make the face appear rounder but this may be subordinated by wearing a tie which draws attention from the neckline to the tie itself. Square necklines are not a wise choice for most women but they sometimes can be used, when impossible otherwise, if the sides of the square are curved slightly and the right angles left in the corners.

In making collars, it is wise to make a trial collar from muslin first. When fitted, if this muslin collar does not hug the body line on its outer line or if it tends to ripple, darts should be pinned in it where it appears loose. Run the darts to nothing as they approach the neckline. The fitted muslin collar may then be used as the pattern.

A full discussion of collar making is given by the College clothing specialists to women enrolled in the county study groups. The mimeographed outline used for the collar lesson will be sent to those who request it from the home economics department at East Lansing.

Eighty of the foremost leaders of the various walks of life of our nation comprise the national committee for the Birthday Balls. The chairman is Colonel Henry L. Doherty and Senator James Couzens and Edsel B. Ford, of Detroit, are two of the eleven members.

Student Operators' Training Course Was Pioneer in Vocational Education

Upper left: Hats were hats, back in the days when this group of young women enrolled as students in a telephone company school for operators. Above: Classroom methods of teaching telephone operating were based on the best educational theories of the period. Left: Practice switchboards such as this, simulating in every detail the actual handling of telephone calls, supplemented the class-room instruction.

The first training course for telephone operators, opened in New York City in 1902, was a milestone along the road to the Bell Telephone System's present operating efficiency. Today, however, the emphasis is on "learning by doing," and instruction is given principally at special positions of regular switchboards, where the student gets the "feel" of the work she will eventually do. This is supplemented by drills and discussions away from the switchboard.

When the Bell Telephone System established the first training course for telephone operators, in January, 1902, in New York City, one of the pioneer steps in vocational training was undertaken. Since then, vocational training has become widespread, not only in telephone service but in many other industries.

Learned as Best They Could

In the early days of the telephone, new operators learned what they learned without a great deal of teaching. The training was brief and, as it were, casual. Newly engaged operators were taken to the switchboard, shown what plugs and jacks were, how to get a number, and a few other elementary facts, and were then permitted to listen-in on older operators handling actual calls.

After a few days of this, they were allowed to handle calls themselves, with the coaching and assistance of experienced operators beside whom they were seated. Points of such great importance today as the tone of voice to use were not even mentioned in those early pioneer days.

First Training Course Established

Finally, the need of a training course became apparent, and the first school for operators was established in New York City in January, 1902. By this time the change from the old magneto to the common battery switchboard had been completed in all the central offices in that city. The establishment of this school marked a real milestone along the road which has led to the great degree of operating efficiency which now characterizes the Bell System.

The theory on which this operating school was based closely followed that generally accepted in educational circles at the time. There was a definite emphasis on classroom work, to which practice at the switchboard was supplemented.

The equipment of the school consisted of a room furnished after the manner of a typical schoolroom, which was used for lectures and study periods, and an operating room. The latter duplicated, as nearly as possible, the equipment of an actual central office, with a twelve-position switchboard, a chief operator's desk, and other equipment.

Trained Many Thousand Operators

So successful was the establishment of the training school in New York that it was soon followed by the opening of similar courses in Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Denver, and other large cities, and later in other centers throughout the Bell System.

Within the past few years, the training of telephone operators has entered into still another phase. In a way, it is reminiscent of the old days when a new recruit learned her job by sitting at the switchboard and doing it under the guidance of an older and more experienced operator. The present system of training, however, is not simply a return to the methods of pioneer days. Rather it is a return, plus all that it has been possible to learn about education and about the telephone business in half a century.

They Learn by Doing

The operator today learns her job on the job. On her very first day at work she is given a position at the switchboard at which she is to work. Switchboard positions which are not in actual use are assigned to new operators. At either side of the new-comer are experienced girls, busy with their work. The position to which the new operator is assigned is identical with the others at the board, except that it has a key which cuts it off from the rest of the switchboard and protects the service against disturbance by practice calls.

Actual Calls Are Simulated

The student is seated at such a position and is given some informal instruction in the handling of calls. Then a specially trained operator takes another position, known as the "control position", from which she can simulate the calls that will have to be handled by the new operator when she is given actual work to do. Under such guidance, the student operator sets up connections which are in every respect like actual calls. When she becomes proficient at this, she is given an opportunity to handle actual calls during light traffic periods, and thus she works into her job almost without being aware of it.

This might be termed a process of learning by doing. It is supplemented by discussion of operating practices, and drills, conducted away from the switchboard. Classes are held, but the groups of students are made small so as to keep the atmosphere of the classes informal and giving them rather the aspect of discussion groups.

Training Never Ends

As a result of these new training methods now in use, the operator at once begins to become accustomed to the atmosphere of the particular central office where she is to work and thus becomes a part of it. Even after a girl has been given actual traffic to handle, her training is not regarded as completed. In fact, an operator's training is never finished, one of the objectives of the present system is to give the operator the opportunity of always learning to do her work better.

WILL ROGERS

In his last and greatest picture, "IN OLD KENTUCKY," comes to the Holly Theatre, THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY, December 26, 27, 28.

STATE COLLEGE OFFERS GOOD SHORT COURSES

Students who enroll in the agricultural engineering short course at Michigan State College from Jan. 6 to Mar. 6 will have a free hand in choosing the subjects in which they want training.

Courses offered will include information about all kinds of engineering problems on the farm from the installation and use of electrical equipment to splicing rope for the hay fork. All types of engines and tractors will be available for laboratory work both for teaching methods of operation and for explanation of adjustments to make the operation as economical as possible.

Planning and laying drainage systems for the farm and for the disposal of household wastes can be selected as subjects by those students who are especially interested in such problems. The use of explosives in drainage and clearing operations will be included in this section of study.

Practical training in woodshop and forge work will be given to all students in addition to the training in the subjects selected by themselves. Students are not limited in the amount of work they can complete by any rigid limits to the courses. Those who are more than ordinarily ambitious will be able to put in as much time and get as much training as they want.

Other short courses which will be offered in the period between Jan. 6 and Mar. 6 are general agriculture, dairy production, dairy manufacturing, poultry, home economics, floriculture, golf course management, and fruit production. Information about any of the courses can be obtained from the Short Course Director at East Lansing.

There were 11,624 covers carried in the China Clipper on its return from Manila to San Francisco, according to the latest figures.

A complete set of the Silver Jubilee stamps has been framed and placed on exhibition at the Philatelic Museum in Washington, D. C.

As yet no designs have been reported from Arkansas nor has the stamp been officially authorized but it is generally understood that the anniversary will be so honored.

An act of Congress several years ago gave authority for the issuing of 1,500,000 U. S. half dollars in conjunction with the Texas Centennial that will be observed in 1936. The last 30,000 of the coins are now being stricken at the Denver and San Francisco mints and will be disposed of at $1 each, the profit to go toward the creation of an American Legion Museum. The first coin was sold at auction from the steps of the state capitol in Austin and bid in at $90 by James E. Ferguson, former governor, who presented it to his wife, Mrs. Miriam O. Ferguson, who was the state's chief executive at that time.

The coins bear the heads of Gen. Sam Houston and Stephen A. Austin, heroes of the state; the Alamo, and the five pointed Lone Star of Texas.

TO WAIT UNTIL SPRING TO TRANSFER MOOSE

Plans to move a cargo of moose from Isle Royale to the upper peninsula this month have been definitely abandoned by the Department of Conservation.

"We had hoped to get a shipment of moose from the island to the Michigan mainland before the freeze-up this winter," said Paul Hicke, mammalogist of the Game Division. "Weather and ice conditions, however, have made this unsafe and the moose are apparently wilder and harder to handle than they will be in the spring."

The moose now in the Department of Conservation corral near Senter point on Siskiwit bay will remain in the corral until the break-up of ice conditions next spring at which time all of the moose taken during the fall and winter will be transported to the mainland for release.

MUST BUY LICENSE PLATES BY JAN. 31

That Will Be Deadline for Auto Owners This Year

Extension of one month of the deadline for the purchase of 1936 automobile license plates has been granted by Orville E. Atwood, Secretary of State. The order specifies that new plates must be purchased by midnight, Friday, January 31, if cars are to be driven. Other states will be notified of Atwood's decision, and will be requested to be guided by it, so far as Michigan plates are concerned. Motorists contemplating driving out of Michigan any time after January 1, however, are cautioned that inconvenience may result if they carry 1935 plates; in many states, January 1 is the absolute deadline each year.

Atwood warned that further extension after January 31 is not contemplated, calling attention to the fact that 1936 plates were placed on sale this year far earlier than in previous years, as a device for aiding the motor industry which placed its 1936 models on the market considerably in advance of the date in previous years.

Because of the advanced date for placing 1936 plates on sale, it is a natural consequence that the final date for purchase of the plates will also be advanced this year. The law permits extension of 60 days after January 1, in the discretion of the Secretary of State. At the time the law was enacted, however, new plates were being placed on sale in December of the preceding year; this year, sale of plates was started much in advance of that date.

Stickers, or half-year permits, may of course be purchased for half the price of plates, which would defer until August 1 the necessity for payment of the other half of the plate cost.

MICHIGAN YOUTH TO RECEIVE WPA HELP

The Federal Government has come further to the aid of large families living on WPA wages in Michigan, by allocation of $338,000 to the National Youth Administration in this State, to provide part-time employment for sons and daughters between the ages of 16 and 25.

The fund will give work to 5,000 young members of former relief families, who will receive one-third the prevailing security wage rates.

William Haber, State Director, inaugurated the first NYA project last week in Lansing, where a group of Michigan State College students will act as "eyes" and readers to fellow students enrolled from the Michigan School for the Blind.

He announced the program is ready for state-wide expansion as fast as projects, locally sponsored, are approved.

The NYA will employ youth, largely as assistants, in:

- 1—Community and recreational activities in urban areas.
- 2—Improvement of schools, grounds, libraries and agricultural and reforestation work in rural sections.
- 3—Public service projects, such as traffic checks, parole and delinquency work and related social services.
- 4—Research, such as safety and tax surveys and agricultural experimentation.

Seventy-five percent of the $338,000 fund will go for wages.
