Chere is no Path Ahead

There is no path ahead this New Year's Day, No feet have trod this strange uncharted land. That lies before my eyes God, lead the way, God, take hold of my hand.

I dare not go alone, the hills are steep, The distances are great, the valleys wide; I cannot travel them unless you keep Me close, Lord, by your side.

There is no broken trail ahead today, No feet have gone the way that I must go. Be my companion and my guide, I pray, For with you, Lord, I know

The hills will level as I come to them; The valleys will be cool and sweet with dew, And down the tangled ways each briar-hung stem Will part to let me through.

Stephens-Sweet Rites Read Last Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. Sweet Will Reside in Stockbridge

NUMBER 18

A wedding of interest to a number of Clarkston people took place at the Methodist parsonage in Stockbridge, Saturday afternoon, December 26, at four o'clock when Millicent K. Stephens, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Edwin Stephens of Stockbridge, became the bride of Edgar L. Sweet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Sweet of Stockbridge. Mrs. Sweet was attended by her sister, Gertrude Stephens, and Mr. Sweet was assisted by his cousin, Harmon Camburn, as best man. Little Marjorie Stephens, sister of the bride was ring bearer. Rey. Edwin Stephens, father of the bride, and Rev. A. T. Camburn, uncle of the groom, read the marriage service in the presence of immediate relatives of the two young people and a few intimate friends.

Before the ceremony Mrs. W. H. Caskey sang "O Promise Me". The bridal party entered to the strains of the Mendelssohn Wedding March played by Nellie Stephens, sister of the bride. Mrs. Sweet was given in marriage by her father.

For her wedding dress Mrs. Sweet chose royal blue transparent velvet trimmed with rhinestone clips. With this she wore a corsage of red rose buds.

Gertrude Stephens, Mrs. Sweet's only attendant, wore a tunic dress of silver satin and black transparent velvet. Her corsage was of red rose buds also.

Following the wedding ceremony a lovely two-course dinner was served at the parsonage. A three-tiered bride's cake graced the center of the bridal table. This cake was made by Mrs. Edwin Stephens, mother of the bride, and Mrs. W. H. Caskey. At either end of this table were placed white lighted tapers. White tapers also lighted the small tables where the rest of the guests were served. Bowls of red roses were placed about the rooms as an added decoration.

Guests were present from Stockbridge and Hudson. Mrs. Ada E. Mills of Clarkston was also one of the guests.

Following a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Sweet will be at home in Stockbridge.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Sweet were graduated from Stockbridge High School. Mrs. Sweet attended the Clarkston School for six years, completing the first three years of her high school work in the Clarkston High School. During these six years her father, Rev. Edwin Stephens, served as pastor of the Clarkston Methodist Church. Mrs. Sweet is a graduate also of the Michigan State Normal College at Ypsilanti and for the past three years has been teaching in the Stockbridge School. Mr. Sweet is a student at Michigan State

It is a real pleasure to mention that Clarkston did do itself proud in the way of decorating the old homesteads on the occasion of Christmas this year. Such pride is worthwhile. 1937! A new year to be lived. A new year for wise men to find ways to lengthen life, which of course will be of usual length, due to over indulgence or we may come in contact with our current enemy which is symbolized by the trite truth "Sudden Death"-Moderns, modern' name for traffic deaths. But you may be sure of this-you will live the future as you have the past. Joy; sorrow; tears of sadness and of joy, will be your lot. But we hope your sorrows will be light and your joys be many in the year ot come.

LINDA was in the tub thinking of Jerry when the phone rang. She'd been thinking of him ever since they'd met a week before at the last club dance of the season. And a bang-up dance it had been. The orchestra, imported from Harlem, had out-cavorted he dancers, their instruments taking a terrible beating. During what was supposed to have been intermissions an Italian with a plano-accordion that prohibited, conversation, and a voice that dimmed the plano-accordion, had sauntered from table to table singing old love songs of Italy and new ones

"Want to meet the nicest little job the stork ever turned out?" he'd boomed.

Jerry had. And Steve hadn't exaggerated, In short Linda was O. K., ace-high, top-notch, first-rate. And certainly men like Jerry would always have a market. He had everything the advertisements promised. Easily Jerry and Linda had been the best looking couple on the floor and he had stuck to her all during the evening like ink to a blotter.

Linda, however, whose existence en abled the telephone company to pay steady dividends, had not heard from him since that night. She found this disconcerting not because Jerry was her answer to prayer but because he'd started her praying.

Now, alone in the apartment, she had to leave the suds hurriedly. swathe herself in a towel and make wet tracks for the shrill phone.

A man's voice boomed hoarsely over the wires and Linda's high hopes fell to the ground. For seven days she'd snatched up the phone-it might be the call she'd prayed for. It never had been.

"Linda?" he was repeating. "You sound like King Kong," Linda replied, doing her best to sound lighthearted and carefree. Why, oh why, couldn't this have been Jerry? "Just a slight cold," he explained.

'l'll soon be back to the silvery cadences. I'd have called you sooner but until today I couldn't speak at all. 'Feed a cold.' however, you know. So how about having dinner with me?" "That would be awfully nice." Try as she would Linda couldn't sound en

"Tomorrow night," she said. "Would it be too much to ask you to meet me in town?" his voice rasped. Linda lived tucked off in the suburbs far from jay-walkers and taxl races. "Where and when?" she asked. "Martini's. At seven. O. K.?" "O. K."

Linda's mother came in as she hung up the phone.

Waterford

Last Tuesday evening Waterford Church was the scene of one of the most colorful events that has ever taken place in Waterford. The annual Thristmas program was presented by the children and teachers of the day school. The stage setting was beautiful. A manger held center place and the only lights were the lighted candles in the candelabras at each end of the manger. The scene was that of a stable. To one side was the lighted Christmas tree.

The Christmas story was told and enacted by children gowned in flowing robes. Just as the story was about to start a robed choir of children marched up from the room below singing Christmas carols. At the close of the story they marched out in the same manner. During the program Christmas music was played softly by Mrs. Frank Martin at the piano and Lovell Spalding on the violin. The audience, which filled the church sang some familiar songs and then the children enthusiastically sang "Jingle Bells" and Santa Claus made his appearance and helped distribute gifts. The Sunday school provided the treat of peanuts and candy daintily wrapped in Christmas boxes Miss Anita Harris and her committee were responsible for the attractive decorations. Mrs. Bessie Owen, Mrs. Lyman Girst, Mrs. Otto Duguid, and Mrs. Henry Mehlberg were in charge of the boxes. Joseph Helman was responsible for the tree while Mrs. Henri Buck, Mrs. Joseph Helman and Mrs. James Saylor purchased the candy.

The Sunday School is very grateful to the Day School teachers for their splendid co-operation.

Mrs. Leonard French (Nina Hanfor two and a half years at the Web- uously. ster School was honor guest at a farewell party and shower at the

"For somebody else." The next evening Linda dressed lackadaisically. She didn't wear the new outfit. She was saving it just in case the Jerry man had a sudden fit of memory. The train ride into the city was a monotonous trip that was only taking her to a monotonous evening. The cross-town cab was an unrestful auto that was taking her to a restless evening. Linda bleakly visualized the past seven days. Each day had grown drearier, heavier. Each day had taken her that much farther from Jerry. The possibility of more such days was ghastly-days when the sound of the phone buoyed her up only to cast her down.

"For two cents I'd scream," sh mused. "I'd do it even cheaper." At Martini's she paid off the taxi driver and walked in under the long. striped awning. The sort of awning used at weddings, she reflected mo rosely. Why had she accepted this dinner invitation of Steve's? Why had she forgone the comforts of home where she could cry into a pillow; in peace, instead of having to swallow hard lest tears splash into the hors d'oeuvres? She-was berating, herself when she walked, right into his arms. She blinked rapidly, shook her head to clear it, but the apparition was not an apparation. There he was, all six feet three of him. Are Being Raised on State Game Farm Near Mason

Every Hungarian partridge reared tormaturity at the state game farm near Mason is worth $7.50 on the basis of courrent price quotations of private game producers.

One reputable California game breeder quotes "Hunkies" at a special sale price of $15 per pair. At this price the 450 Hungarian partridges at the Michigan farm, reared, with you as they are now paying others.

worth a total of $3,375 today. "Hand-rearing wild game birds is not so simple as it seems," comments Harry L. Ruhl, game chief of the department of conservation. When all costs are pro-rated, it will be found that these birds could command high prices. In fact, the production of some forms of wildlife in aptivity has proved so costly as to be prohibitive. One eastern state, for instance, has tried to produce cottontail rabbits in captivity and discovered that the cost was coming to about $200.00 a head."

Michigan has 450 Hungarian partidge at the state game farm at the present time; 117 were released during the past season and 150 eggs were supplied Michigan State College for cooperative propagation work.

Though the new M-G-M picture, "The Great Ziegfeld," opening Monday at the Holly Theatre, is absolute-ly faithful to the spirit of Ziegfeld, the author, William Anthony Mc-Guire, places his emphasis wisely on the traditional Ziegfeld, combining the real man with the fabulous one. The resultant figure is one of the most fascinating heroes a motion picture could boast.

In preparing the production, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer duplicated the profligacy of Ziegfeld himself, using ivteen reels and 15,300 feet of film, and discarding enough to make almost another picture. The story begins in 1898 when Ziegfeld introduced Sandow, the
