LANSING TO ENTERTAIN THE AMERICAN LEGION

Michigan's capital city is to be host to the 1936 state convention of the American Legion. Determined to make this convention the most outstanding in the history of Michigan's Legion, members of the convention corporation are swinging into line with new ideas for entertainment of delegates and guests. The convention is to be held August 16, 17 and 18.

Arrangements have already been made for decorations which will be unique in beauty and originality and the parade committee has promised to have more bands and drum and bugle corps in line than have ever appeared at a Legion state convention in Michigan.

The committee on entertainment is considering a score of features which will be unusual. It is probable that there will be a sportsman's show, log rolling contest, junior baseball, softball games between outstanding girls' teams, carnival and a colorful military ball.

The housing committee is making plans to accommodate several thousand visitors, with headquarters for men at the Olds hotel and for auxiliary members at the Roosevelt hotel.

For the Legionaire who desires to use a house trailer instead of making hotel reservations, several sites are being leased, in addition to the municipal tourist camp, which is one of the most modern and best equipped in the state.

Car Overturns

Scares Horses

Accident Occurred on Orion Road Last Saturday Evening

Last Saturday night as Clarence Smith, who lives on a farm just northeast of Clarkston, was returning from work with his team of horses and wagon a car coming into town went to round the sharp turn in the road just west of the Smith farm and in so doing swerved in the gravel and turned over a couple of times into the ditch and scared the horses. Mr. Smith made an effort to stop the horses but they were so startled they turned back towards town and in making a turn they hit a culvert and wrecked the wagon. Mr. Smith was thrown to the ground receiving a severe cut in his hand and some very bad bruises. The horses dashed in on Orion Road and turned south on Main Street dragging the front wheels of the wagon along with them. Bradley Miller saw the horses coming and realized that to let them dash down Main Street on a Saturday night when traffic was heavy and so many people were on the streets would cause terrible damage so he headed them into the old school grounds where they were caught between two large maple trees.

The car was driven by a man from Detroit and fortunately he and the minor injuries. The car was badly wrecked.

Judgment Given to Mrs. Carrie A. Walter

Damage Suit Against the Plaintiff Is Dismissed

The suit by which Mrs. Carrie A. Walter sought to recover damages for an auto accident which occurred at the intersection of Orchard Lake and ten mile roads on July 14th, 1935 was decided in Mrs. Walter's favor against Emile Boudreau of Ferndale, in Circuit Court on Wednesday of this week.

Mrs. Frank Gallagher, mother of Mrs. Boudreau, brought suit against Mrs. Walter for the loss of her husband who was killed in the accident, which case, involving the same facts as Walter vs. Boudreau, was tried at the same time as the latter suit and resulted in a verdict of no cause of action.

One of Billy's girl friends managed to keep him at her house until the rest of the group assembled at the Parker home and then just to be different she took him home and what a surprise. Billy was very happy of course and for the rest of the evening the young people had a round of fun. KEEP EGGS COOL FOR MARKETING

Poultry Raisers Advised Regarding Important Matter

Thousands of dozens of Michigan eggs will be spoiled by hot weather unless attention is paid to proper gathering and cooling.

Eggs must be kept in temperatures below 68 degrees at all stages of the marketing process from the time the egg is laid until it is eaten.

This is the advice of the poultry department at Michigan State College, East Lansing. Since Michigan stands twelfth in the nation in egg production with an annual yield of over one and a quarter million dozen eggs, the problem of keeping eggs cool is one worth attention in warm weather.

"Germ development in eggs can be prevented if eggs are kept in temperatures below 68 degrees", extension poultry workers say. "Above that temperature, germ development begins. Infertile eggs reach market more easily with higher quality."

If at any stage in the process higher temperatures are permitted, egg quality suffers. Cities which have grading regulations, are continually on the watch for eggs showing heat effects.

Frequently eggs are kept for too long periods in temperatures around 90 degrees, they say. Three days of such heat are enough to make eggs holly inedible.

For Homemakers

About 95% of the flies about the house are of the common house fly species capable of spreading typhoid, dysentery and tuberculosis germs, according to E. I. McDaniel, associate professor in entomology at Michigan State College, East Lansing.
 Miss McDaniel, who has done research work with flies and mosquitoes, believes that complete control will never be secured by use of sprays alone.
 "Only such control measures as serve to eliminate the breeding place of the house-fly are efficient," she says. "House flies cannot be controlled successfully by the collection of adults after they have polluted food material."
 Miss McDaniel insists that the first step in the anti-fly campaign is to provide for the proper disposal of manure in barns. If manure is permitted to collect for three days in the summer time, it will be almost impossible to destroy the larvae.
 She says that properly constructed manure-pits, bins and platforms can be of great help in combating flies. Solutions of borax, hellebore and as-senite of soda for treating manure are recommended. Precautions should be taken to keep livestock from hellebore solutions because it is poisonous.

 An ingenious fly trap which can be built at home for catching adult flies is also recommended. Two boards 12x18 inches one for the top and one for the bottom are completely enclosed with wire netting. From a large entrance at the bottom, a truncated cone screen extends to within two or three inches of the top. A small hole is cut at the top to take out dead flies. A sweet-smelling bait is used to attract flies and sprays can be used to kill them once they enter the trap.
 Details on combating flies and mosquitoes can be secured by writing the Michigan State College bulletin office for Circular Bulletin No. 144 revised.
WHAT STATE LAW SAYS REGARDING TRAILERS
 With the exodus of vacationists beginning and with thousands more to follow within a few weeks, the legal department of the Automobile Club of Michigan today warned tourists taking their vacations in trailers to observe the state laws before departure.

 Numerous complaints have been received by the legal department from irate tourists who did not study the state laws before embarking on a "trailer tour". Predominant among the complaints concerned attachment of the trailer to the automobile. The state law on this reads:
 "All trailers or semi trailers hauled by any motor propelled vehicle must be attached to such vehicle and to each other, with such forms of coupling devices as will prevent such trailer or semi-trailer from being deflected more than 6 inches from the path of the towing vehicle's wheels. The trailers must also be connected to the towing vehicle, or to each other by suitable safety chains or devices, one on each side of the couplings and at the extreme outer edge of the vehicle and each such chain or device and connection so used shall be of sufficient strength to haul the trailer when loaded."

DRENCHING SHEEP CUTS WORM LOSS

M. S. C. Tells How Big Savings May Be Effected

Parasitic flocks eliminate all possibility of Michigan flock owners realizing any profit as their share in the state's ten million dollar sheep and wool industry, warns the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College in advocating drenching of sheep and lambs at monthly intervals this summer to prevent infestation by stomach and tape worms.

A simple job of drenching sheep once a month in the summer may mean profit instead of loss for Michigan farmers.

When lambs go to market, those which have not been drenched for protection against worms weigh but two thirds as much as healthy lambs. The underweight animals command usually but two thirds the price per pound. Yet costs of drenching are less than half a cent for a mature animal and lambs can be treated for a fourth of a cent.

Treatment is comparatively simple. A soda pop bottle is most commonly used although some sheep men use a syringe. One ounce of copper sulphate and one ounce of nicotine sulphate are mixed in three quarts of warm water. Of this three quart solution adult sheep receive four ounces, 75 pound lambs should get three ounces, 50 pound lambs get two ounces and 25 pound lambs one ounce.

The sheep is backed into a corner and the operator straddles the neck of the animal. Holding the nose no higher than the level of the eyes, the bottle is worked up and down in the mouth of the sheep so that the solution is swallowed slowly.

Although sheep on dry lot feeding should be kept off feed for 12 to 18 hours before treating, this is not necessary for sheep on pasture, but all sheep should have access to water at all times before and after treatment.

DEER LICENSE TAGS CHANGED THIS YEAR

Since adoption of the deer-hunters license tag to be worn on the back of the hunting coat next fall, Conservation authorities have received several requests for low numbers, even the unlucky "13".

"We hardly expected there would be any great demand for low numbers, or that a demand of any kind would develop at such an early date, consequently we have given it no consideration in our plans," said Director P. J. Hoffmaster.

"However, for the accommodation of those who have been in the custom of buying their deer-hunting licenses at the Lansing office in past years, we will reserve a supply of the low numbers. These will be issued until the supply is exhausted. No special arrangements can be made this year to honor all requests for low numbers."

The deer-hunters' license tag, similar to that in use in Pennsylvania, will be 10 inches wide and four inches high and will have numerals two and one-half inches tall, corresponding to the serial number on the hunter's license and aluminum antler tag. The tag will be of cloth and safety pins or needle and thread may be used to attach it to the back of the hunting coat. Colors will be black on orange for residents and green on orange for non-residents.

Approximately 124,000 deer-hunters' license tags will be ordered by the Department for use next fall, the Director said.

Plans have been completed for extensive development of the telephone service throughout Manichukoo. One of the projects contemplated is the construction of a telephone exchange at Dairen, while another exchange, with a capacity of 7,000 lines, will be built at Changchun.
