To the Senior class of 1936 of the Clarkston High School our congratulations for the successful completion of high school work, our thanks for co-operation in the reporting of their activities, as set forth in Hilltopper, and our heartiest wishes for the successful completion of their ambitious desires in the future.

Having gone through a few slightly below par years and having grown somewhat disgusted with sad talk, it was a pleasure to hear the seniors says that they were not going to die and instead of making a class will they would sell their senior leftovers.

They decided that the class had been very much alive all year and just because they were leaving High school they were not going to die and leave a class will so they sold everything. This was very amusing and gave everyone a good laugh. Some of the seniors were musically inclined and at this time Max Soulby appeared and played a trombone solo. This was very much appreciated and everyone was very proud of Max. Then a couple of gypsies stepped out. #### Literary Club Visits Ann Arbor

Mrs. H. A. Huey Is Hostess

On Tuesday the Clarkston Literary Club held their last meeting for the season at the Huey home in Ann Arbor.

The group left here about tenthirty and by the time they reached Ann Arbor they were all ready to enjoy the picnic dinner that was served in the Park along by the Huron river.

At one o'clock the members of the club with Archie McIntyre, Ira Jones, Billy Parker Bob Huey and Rev. Huey's sister, Mrs. Hughes as guests sat down at a Marie Bennett long table that was just crowded with good things to eat and everybody ate heartily.

A few pleasant hours were spent on the scenic banks of this pretty, little river and then the group went to the Huey home where the business meeting was held.

Miss Ada Scrace, president. conducted the meeting and the programs for the next year were distributed. The club presented Mrs. Archie Mc-Intyre with a gift for her regular attendance.

After the business session Bob Huey piloted the group to the Arboretum where they viewed the beautiful peonies. It seems that a few of the members missed this feast for the eyes because they got out of line and made a tour of Ann Arbor instead. They arrived home in the early evening after a very pleasant day, and a trip to be remembered.

Schedule Suggested for Winter Storage Vegetables

Schedules for planting in small and arge gardens can be extended as far through the summer as late in August, suggests H. L. Seaton, instructor in vegetable gardening at Michigan State College Not only will a suc-cession of crops keep the table supplied, but canning and winter storage supplies will be part of the harvest. After the first plantings of string beans and sweet corn have a start, successive patches can be put in every two weeks until July 15. For late cabbage, cauliflower and Brussel sprouts, set the plants from June 15 to July 1.

"The right quantity of vegetables to plant depends upon the size of the family, preferences for certain vegetables and a guess as to what the soil and weather will produce as a reward for the garden work," says

"Usually about 100 cabbage plants of a good storage variety is sufficient. For beets and turnips for winter storage, about 150 feet broadcast about August 1 to 15 after early good storing variety of carrots should crops are harvested is enough. A be sown in 300 feet in rows before June 15. Late spinach, radishes and lettuce can be put in August 10 to 20 to catch cooler weather."

At the time the cabbage plants go in late this month, two or three dozen cauliflower plants and one to two dozen plants of the Brussel sprouts can be transplanted, while Chinese cabbage can be sown directly in the garden plot.

For Homemakers

To retain vitamins in commercial or home canning, vegetables and fruit must be canned as soon after picking as possible.

This is the advice of Flora M. Hanning, research fellow in nutrition at Michigan State College, East Lansing. Miss Hanning is making thorough study of the effects cooking and canning processes on vitamins.

"Vitamin C, contained in fresh raw vegetables and fruits, varies with soil and methods of canning," she says. "The fresher the vegetables, the more vitamin C is there. So whether in the home or in the canning factory, the shorter the time from field or garden to the finished can, the more vitamin C is con-

The amount of air included in the jar or can also affects the vitamin content, she says. Experiments at the college have shown, however, that apples which have been allowed to stand in salt water a short time before canning have more vitamin C than apples canned immediately after picking. The salt water permits some of the oxygen to escape.

"It is very important that the food out, and as little air as possible left under the lid. Heating with those hubbles of air destroys some of the vitamin C." she says.

Miss Hanning also stresses the fact that cooking vegetables and fruit too long in canning and then throw ing the liquid away needlessly wastes much of the vitamin content.

In 1921 the average freight hau per ton on U.S. railroads was 181 miles, for which the railroads received in revenue $2.31 per ton. Last year the average haul was 196 miles for which the roads received $1.92.

FORD V.8 ECONOMY MEANS HIGH Dollar Mileage

TO MATTER how you classify your expenditures for car up-keep it's your total expenditure that counts. How much "dollar mileage" is your car giving you?

Dollars do go farther in the Ford V-8. Modern improved carburetion gives you unusual gasoline mileage with brilliant V-8 performance. Most owners of today's Ford change oil only every 2000 miles and add none between changes.

And after the first few thousand miles you begin to understand what Ford V-8 "dollar mileage" really means.

It gives you more miles per dollar because it gives you all-round economy low first cost, low up-keep cost, low depreciation and long life — as well as low gasoline and oil consumption. All these are big items if you aim to buy the most economical car.
