COMMENT AND CRITICISM

And John D. Rockefeller expects to reach 100 years of age. We hope he does. While there are any number of reasons why one should live, the reason that stands out in our mind in regard to this gentleman is the fact that he has no recipe. He lays down no set rules. He says nothing about the use or lack of use of tobacco, whiskey, spinach or what have you. He lives each day as it comes, takes the good with the bad, and keeps going. Naturally he is somewhat sheltered from the strenuous life but if stories of how he amassed his wealth are even one mite true, he did his strenuous living when he was young and today is reaping the benefit.

We are not so selfish that we expect you to be interested in our troubles—and perhaps what we have are not so troublesome. Anyway when we do anything we like all the trimmings and our moving job is no exception. About the only person who gets any enjoyment out of transferring household goods is the professional, paid mover. So taking it for granted moving is no fun perhaps the hot spell that we are all enjoying is one of the added trimmings to the job, and we are getting our money's worth.

In thinking of the work that must be completed to render to us the daily services we have grown used to expecting as a matter of course, drop a tear for the mailman and the farmer. Hot dusty roads, with frequent stops, allows the mailman to get the worst out of a good hot spell. As for the farmer who is doing his share to raise food to feed us next winter, haying, harvesting and even cultivating would hardly come under the name of pleasure.

Whether Roosevelt, and his party is bringing back prosperity or whether if some one else was in office, things would be ever better—it is so hot that even the politicians are not even talking office seeking, so why should I enter into the game—one fact does remain. Present conditions are such that it is almost impossible to hire a carpenter, or anyone to work for you on any job needing skilled labor.

Somehow, nothing makes us so "mad"—and an eastern professor of English says that a human can be so angry that he gets "MAD"—as to hear a prosecuting attorney carefully explain to the jury and judge that he is merely in court to get the facts, that he has no desire to convict an innocent man—and then proceed to show that all the defense witnesses have family trees so full of criminal minded that even the present branches could not tell the truth if they had to. Ethics forbid an attorney vouching for himself or his client—but the P. As. seem to think they are above ethics and vouch for their honesty, the good intentions of their office, the 100% veracity of the complaining witness, and claim that they are out for justice. The above reminds us of one P. A. who when trying a weak case, would ask that the case be dismissed because the man was innocent, just so that the jury would be impressed with his honesty and for the rest of the time that jury served he would get a conviction in every case by stating he would not try and convict an honest man. A cute trick, shall I say a shrewd trick, but it is also food for the common remark "there ain't no justice".

Kanolds Visit Famous Quintuplets

Mrs. Paul Kanold and son Billy have been visiting with relatives in Boston. They made the return trip by motor with Mr. Kanold's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kanold. In coming west they went up through Ontario and stopped at Callander to see the Dionne babies. They were sorry that it happened to be a rainy day and the quintuplets were closed in on the porch. However they saw them from a distance of about a hundred feet and Billy was anxious to get to the porch and play with them. They were very cute and were dressed in pretty little play suits.

The Kanolds arrived in Clarkston last Saturday and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kanold plan on visiting here for at least a week.

FEATURE ALFALFA AT FARMERS' DAY

Varied Program at East Lansing on Friday, July 31

Fifty acres of test plots offering visions of new opportunities and practices for nearly all of the major Michigan crops will be included in the open house program for the annual Farmers' Day program on the campus of Michigan State College on Friday, July 31.

Primarily the features of the day will center around the state's million acre alfalfa crop, and acreage in which Michigan leads the nation. Production, handling and usage of alfalfa will enter into all the major parts of the day's program. In the morning, however, groups of farmers will have the opportunity to tour the test plots.

Visitors will see some unusual experiments, according to the promise of H. C. Rather, head of the farm crops department at Michigan State College. Soy beans, for instance, were planted ahead of corn, instead of later, so that if maturity can be reached earlier in the fall, hay can be cut and cured with four times the chance to avoid rains in August than in the usual curing time in September.

Corn, alfalfa, chicory, weeds, sudan grass, maying barley, wheat, oats, sugar beets and beans are all involved in tests on the college farms. Varieties are being tried out, planting dates are being checked, and other cultural practices and hay and pasture operations enter into the experimental work. The farm crops department is cooperating with other departments in running many of the plots and experiments.

In general, the program for the day will be worthwhile and interesting. A hay cocking contest at 9:30 in the morning will open up the program. After departmental demonstrations in the morning, a general afternoon program of speaking will include a talk by O. E. Reed, chief of the Bureau of Dairy Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. More than ten years ago Reed was head of the dairy husbandry department at Michigan State College, when the first stimulation to alfalfa growing in the state was begun.

Coming Events

July 10th—Friday—The Baptist Ladies' Union will meet at the home of Mrs. Fred Steiner on Orion Road. There will be a picnic dinner served at one o'clock. It is not necessary for the members to bring dishes.

HOLLY THEATRE

Any person who has ever had the desire to "throw things" will envy the opportunity that came to Margaret Sullivan, star of Walter Wanger's production for Paramount, "The Moon's Our Home", coming Sunday to the Holly Theatre.

Miss Sullivan plays a temperamental motion picture star whose tempestuous, fiery frenzy causes her completely to wreck a lavish living room in a modernistic Hollywood bungalow apartment.

When the script was originally shown the star, she could hardly believe that such destruction would be tolerated.

"You really mean for me to smash those beautiful lamps and vases?" she asked as she rehearsed the scene for the director, William Seiter.

"That's the way the story reads," ordered Seiter. "Let's shoot—and please aim any place but at the cameras."

Miss Sullivan simulated the best rage she could muster, and, at the director's nod, went into action, shattering expensive lamps, reproductions of Ming vases, glassware and bric-a-brac.

The story of "The Moon's Our Home" deals with a spitfire of a screen star who learns to hate a man whose reputation as a world explorer and author have won him the admiration of millions of women. He too has learned to hate what he calls the "pastry-faced screen star." How they finally meet, without knowing each other's real identity, fall desperately in love, and have a really scrappy time of it, makes hilarious screen fare. Faith Baldwin wrote the original story.

In support of Miss Sullivan are Henry Fonda, Henrietta Crossman, Charles Butterworth, Lucien Littlefield, Beulah Bondi and many others. The picture was directed by William A. Seiter.

For Homemakers

First rule in shopping for women, if the search is for something to wear, is to shop when sufficient time is available and when the shopper is not exhausted by trivial errands and all the purchases that frequently are put on a Saturday shopping list.

Such is the suggestion offered by Miss Eleanor Cramer, extension specialist in clothing at Michigan State College. When one is tired and exhausted, says Miss Cramer, it is impossible to be enthusiastic, all the patterns look alike and the creative spirit is too dull to recognize patterns and designs that will be suitable as well as clever.

"Wait to purchase your pattern until you have shopped around to see whether you can find the materials," suggests Miss Cramer. "Perhaps the pattern depends upon a long tassel or a certain type of button to make it complete. If they are not available, better select another pattern."

"It requires either a very artistic imagination or a great deal of experience to be able to visualize how a certain fabric and a selected design are going to look. If the shopper will be frank and admit a lack of experience, considerable help can be obtained from designers, experienced sales clerks and from those ridiculed sources provided in 'window shopping'."

Stamp albums have come a long way since one Justin Henri Lallier devised the first one in June, 1862. The printed spaces did not all correspond so early amateurs cut their stamps to fit, thus destroying many that would be of great value today. It is interesting to know that Lallier was not a collector, nor did he have any knowledge of stamps. Many editions of the Lallier albums were published and collectors are still on the lookout for some of these old oblong books.

Skyscrapers tower above the City Hall in the heart of modern Detroit

Skylines and Playgrounds —in Michigan!

CONSIDER Michigan's busy and beautiful cities, and plan to spend at least a part of your vacation visiting them this summer.

Visit mighty Detroit, with its towering buildings, the tunnel to Canada, and the Ambassador Bridge; see the campus of the University of Michigan and that of Michigan State College; view the State Capitol; arrange a trip through a great industrial plant.

The products of Michigan's cities have made them world-famous, for their commodities are shipped to every quarter of the globe. They are growing in interest and importance, as in population and industry. Each offers the vacationist opportunities for inexpensive entertainment and summer sports. And each is the center of a region of lakes, rivers, hills and valleys that call to the lover of the out-of-doors.

Could you spend a more pleasant and interesting vacation anywhere than in the great cities of your own State? Explain Michigan's vacation advantages to your friends who live beyond our borders.

In the hope of promoting the interests of Michigan, this series of advertisements is being published in newspapers throughout the State by a Michigan organization that can prosper only as the citizens of Michigan prosper.

 ELECTRICITY brings you

this new service!

"Behind the hot water faucets in your home, I stand with my magic wand... making sure that the word 'hot' on the faucet means exactly what it says at all times. You never see me... you need never think of me or lift a finger to help me. Like Aladdin's faithful genie, I stand serving you unobtrusively, hovering to obey your wishes. Day and night, summer and winter, year in and year out, whenever you wish hot water you need only turn the faucet: There is your hot water on tap.

"Once you enlist my services, your hot water problems are over. No more need you run up and down stairs to light a manually operated heater. No more need you wait for water to get hot, or put up with the inconvenience and delay caused by finding only lukewarm water in the pipes. The service I bring you is complete: It frees you from all worry and responsibility. From the day I start working for you, you need give me no attention whatever.

"And the cost? My wages are measured in pennies a day... and I will serve you faithfully and well for years to come. Ask about me at any Detroit Edison office."
