COMMENT AND CRITICISM

Next Monday is Labor Day. Which reminds us of the way the boys seeking office tried to gather the vote of organized labor. However this year the race for votes is just a lot more difficult because labor itself is divided. Instead of the A. F. of L. we have the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. Just what the strength of either will be is another question.

And following next Monday is the day school starts. The roads will be used by school children. Please Drive carefully. Youngsters will play along the road and it is up to the driver of motor cars to help protect them.

We believe that the report of Black Legion activities deserved the publicity it obtained but we do believe that inasmuch as the report seemed to show the office holders were or were not members it should have gone a step further and given us the status of the other candidates. Otherwise we may replace the present members with other members.

And now (too late to use in this week's issue) comes word from Senator Couzens. In case you do not know it he is a republican who is for the democratic candidate for President. Now we are out of the picture as to saying anything for or against him as a candidate but as an office holder we wonder if he does not think he is larger than the party or the job. And our older subscribers have learned by this time that the man who is larger than his job is generally not capable of holding it.

And this is the first issue of the eighth year of the Clarkston News. It would be unfair not to thank you for your kind support in the past (a little better than three years under our management) and it would be impertinent if we did not ask for your continued support in the future. A newspaper is really a service unit of the community it serves. At least that is our attitude. It also explains why the News is independent of politics. Being the only paper it should present both sides of the question or none at all. So your paper and our paper starts a new year.

CHICKEN THIEVES ARE WORKING NEW GAME

Through the 30 posts, Michigan farmers to check carefully on all strangers who come to their farms to negotiate purchase of poultry or stock.

The game is, the troopers have learned, for thieves to call in daylight on a pretext of buying. The visit gives the opportunity to look over poultry and stock, see how it is kept and generally get "the lay of the land". They then return under cover of night and help themselves.

In all cases where there is a call to negotiate a purchase, farmers are being urged to make a note of the car license numbers and observe the callers closely. Then, in event of a night raid, they would have information which their sheriff or their state police could use effectively in recovering the stolen property.

DEER HUNTERS OFFERED VALUABLE NEW MAPS

As a service to deer hunters who are planning trips into new and strange country this fall, the lands division of the department of conservation has available maps of many northern counties showing the roads, streams and lakes. The maps will meet a demand that has been recurrent each fall, particularly from deer hunters from the southern metropolitan centers of the state.

Printed lithographic maps showing in colors the lakes, streams, soil type, forest-cover type and the roads and trails on a scale of an inch to the mile are available at a fee of 50 cents each on the following counties: Antrim, Alpena, Crawford, Kalkaska, Roscommon, Ogemaw, Menominee.

Another set of maps of the blueprint type on a scale of two inches to the mile will be distributed at fees ranging from $1 to $2.50 on the following counties: Alger, Schoolcraft, Cheboygan, Bay, Charlevoix, Chippewa, Iron, Lapeer, Montmorency and Oscoda. Clarkston Youth Weds Holly Girl

Josephine Smith Becomes Bride of Walter F. Andrews

The First Presbyterian Church of Holly was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Saturday, August 29, at 3:00 p. m., when Josephine C. Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Smith, became the bride of Walter F. Andrews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Andrews of Clarkston. Rev. Morton Booth officiated.

Tall baskets of pink glads, flanked by cathedral tapers, formed a decoration against velvet altar drapes.

Mrs. Charles F. Herrick, at the piano, entertained the assembled guests with "O Promise Me", swinging into Lohengrin Wedding March as the bridal party approached the altar.

The bride's gown was of sheer white silk over satin, with flare full length skirt, full waist and three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a close fitting white stitched crepe turban with modest veil and carried an arm bouquet of Johanna Hill roses veiled in baby's breath and was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Marguerite Andrews, of Clarkston, sister of the groom, attended the bride and was gowned in aqua embroidered organza of floor length and carried pink roses.

Donald Harris, of Detroit, was best man.

Mrs. Smith, mother of the bride, wore a navy blue crepe dress with cape effect with white accessories and corsage of pink roses and baby's breath.

Guests were from Rochester, N. Y., Detroit, Pontiac, Ann Arbor, Oxford, Kingsley, Clarkston and Holly, later attending a reception at the farm home of the bride east of Holly. Mrs. Kneale Brownson, of Detroit, and Miss Charlotte Spencer, of Clarkston, cousins of the bride, served the guests. A beautiful lace cloth covered the table which was adorned with the bride's cake.

Very colorful garden flowers were used.

For Homemakers

Progress that a child makes in school is influenced by the sort of lunch that he eats at noon. Roberta Hershey, extension nutrition specialist, Michigan State College, points out that this noon lunch should receive more attention than merely preparing a few sandwiches of miscellaneous left overs and a piece of cake.

"The noon lunch for the child, who must carry his meal with him challenges the imagination and skill of the home maker," Miss Hershey says. "In the first place, every child should have at least one hot dish each meal, particularly from September to June. Hot dishes usually have a better nutritive value than cold ones and also tend to stimulate the appetite and digestion. If hot dishes cannot be obtained at the school, the school luncheon box should be equipped with a thermos bottle so that the home may supply this lack."

A good pattern for a lunch box may include the following: sandwich with a filling of meat, cheese, egg, fish, peanut butter, baked beans or a substantial food with bread and butter; a succulent food such as salads, vegetable sandwich, raw or cooked vegetables or pickled vegetable or fruit; milk, for drinking or in a bottle of milk soup, cocoa, custard, or other milk puddings; fruit or fruit-juice; and something sweet. If a thermos bottle is available a great care of the problem of providing nutritive lunch for the child is solved. The homemaker should not overlook the importance of packing the lunch attractively and providing little surprises in the choice of food from day to day.

Choice of lunch box has a great influence upon the ease in which the child's noon meal is planned and also upon his desire to eat the meal. Lunch boxes should always be of tin or aluminum so that they may be easily cleaned and scalded.

GRAND JURY GIVES OUT ITS FINDINGS

Court Inquiry Into Black Legion Reveals Arms and Names

The findings of the Oakland one-man grand jury called to investigate the activities of the Black Legion were made public Tuesday. The report was written by Circuit Judge George B. Hartrick and approved by Clinton McGee, special prosecuting attorney, and Buell A. Doelle, assistant attorney general. It makes a pamphlet of 83 pages. Beginning with a history of the organization the report recites how it came to Michigan and to Oakland County, finally entering the political field. Incorporated in the report is the blood-thirsty oath of the Black Legion, and a portion of the ritual with the questions propounded to candidates upon initiation and the addresses of the chaplain and the colonel.

"Believing," continues the report, "that the light of publicity and an exact knowledge of the facts of the activities of the Black Legion in Oakland County will effectively dispel enthusiasm for similar organizations, just as secrecy, darkness and ignorance further these sinister purposes, this body has elected to reveal the names of certain persons who may be said to have been identified with the activities of the organization. . . No effort of any investigating body can reveal all of the members, because no membership lists are available. Patiently, however, this body has turned its attention primarily to the fact of membership of certain public officers and employees."

Then follows the names of such persons, 86 in all, 35 of whom are listed as "State officers", 12 as "County officers", 31 as "Pontiac city officers", and 8 as "Royal Oak Police Department". Nearly all of those listed as "State officers" are connected with the Sales Tax Division, Liquor Control Commission or State Hospital. Over half of the "County officers" are deputy sheriffs or former deputy sheriffs.

Whether any action against these officers, none of whom are accused of crime, is taken, is left up to the snout be taken through the courts or dismissal. However, there is not likely to be any drastic action that would strike equally and swiftly at all persons implicated, but each case will be determined on its individual merits, according to present indications.

Telephone Men Rely on Burros to Help Transport Poles Up Mt. Lowe

Left: Burro and "mule skinner" take a pole up the last precipitous stretch of the trail up Mt. Lowe, in Southern California. Below: Two burros pull several poles along a relatively level section of narrow gauge railway.

When a telephone line was recently built up the precipitous slopes of Mt. Lowe, 5,280 feet high, in California, known since 1895 to hundreds of thousands of tourists who have traveled its famous inclined railway or taken the difficult trail to the top, the same type of sure-footed burros that have carried many a prospector's grubstake to a gold hoard in western mountains were used for the transportation of telephone poles.

Telephone service to Mt. Lowe Tavern, 5,050 feet up, for years depended upon a telephone circuit superimposed upon wires of the electric railway, which made it subject to electric power interference. This circuit was owned by the tavern, and was connected with wires of the Southern California Telephone Company, which has now replaced it with the new line, which runs to Pasadena.

Few telephone poles have had as varied transportation up a mountain as these. Carried by railroad to the base of Mt. Lowe, they were loaded upon tractors and hauled for the first leg of the journey over an old mountain road with a 75 per cent grade.

This brought them to the inclined railway, where they filled roles of guest passengers aboard the cable cars, with the seats removed. This part of the trip covered 3,000 feet horizontally and 1,200 feet vertically with 62 per cent grades.

Then a narrow gauge railway carried the poles another three miles, more or less horizontally, on a third leg toward the tavern. Here the trail becomes so tortuous that only sure-footed burros would suffice for transport, with one pole to a burro. The center of each pole was balanced across a regular pack saddle, and a "mule skinner" assigned to help steer the load and balance it along the winding, precipitous trail.

Copper wire in 75-pound lengths was also carried up the steep trail by the long-eared, long-haired, sad-eyed little animals.

Indians Adopted White Man's Magic To Help Their Rain God's Powers

This Navajo Indian rain god from the plains of Colorado offers in front view a conventional likeness of the clay figurine to which these plains Indians looked for help in dry weather. The back view, however, with the initials C T C M, presents an example of aboriginal shrewdness and observation. At some time in the past, telephone poles carrying those letters were placed near their reservation, and the Indians reasoned that if white men put bare poles in that dry ground and expected them to grow, then the same markings ought to prove efficacious on their rain god. The initials C T C M stand for Colorado Telephone Company Material, that company having been a predecessor of the present Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, where they have been visiting Mrs. Thrasher's father, F. J. Duffley. Mr. and Mrs. George Stanback and daughter, of Metamora, were guests of Dr. and Mrs. L. G. Rowley on Sunday. Mrs. M. M. Cable of Detroit spent the week end at the Rowley home. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Junker and daughter Marjorie of Wellsville, N. Y., returned to their home last Wednesday after spending ten days with Mr. and Mrs. Bert McClay. A nursing class under the supervision of Julia V. Arsdell of Oakland County Chapter of the American Red Cross will be held in the Community United Presbyterian Church next Thursday, September 10th, at 2:00 o'clock. Anyone wishing to join may do so at this time. Mrs. Elizabeth Bargert of South Drive returned to her home Saturday after spending three weeks at Port Frank, Canada, where she was the guest of her daughters, Mrs. Margaret Burns and Mrs. Louise Duchane. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Day of Philadelphia returned Saturday to their home after spending two weeks with Mrs. Day's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stroup and Mr. Day's sisters, Mrs. A. A. Solomon and Mrs. Mamie O'Boyle and two brothers Louie and Ray Thrasher. The Community United Presbyterian Choir held its regular monthly meeting and choir practice at the Elsey cottage at Williams Lake last Thursday evening. A lovely pot luck supper was served at seven o'clock. Swimming, canoeing and boating trips were enjoyed. While Mrs. Louie Thrasher was absent from her home last Saturday, Aug. 22, some small boys entered her home and carried away several rings, her watch and a small sum of money. Some of the loot has been returned with the exception of a man's wedding ring and her watch which was a keep sake. The boys who took these things said they gave the watch and ring to some strange boys. Mrs. Thrasher would appreciate very much if whoever received these would get in touch with her on Seeley Street or phone her, Pontiac 872-F14. The watch was a white gold rectangular shape and was attached to a silver bracelet (wrist watch).

A Successful First Term in Office Merits Re-election VOTE FOR DAVID C. PENCE For Prosecutor Republican

TO RESUME WORK FOR ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE Dr. Frank L. Church who occupied the pulpit of the M. E. Church several times during the absence of Rev. C. E. Edwards a year ago is the field man for the Anti-Saloon League. Mr. Church announces that he soon will leave for a campaign in the Upper Peninsula, where he will present in a number of places the dramatic production, "The Prisoner at the Bar", and also a new temperance drama entitled "Death Takes the Steering Wheel". The campaign is preliminary to a state convention to be held in Lansing Oct. 18 and 19, to forward the work of getting in shape the petitions to the Legislature next winter to secure new liquor legislation in Michigan. Local option and more restrictive features of liquor control will be sought. SHEEP RAISERS GIVEN SOME TIMELY ADVICE The size and to a considerable extent the vigor of the 1937 lamb crop will be determined by the care and attention given the breeding use flock during the next three months. Judgment needs to be used in selecting a pure bred sire of correct type and individuality, suggests George A. Brown of the animal husbandry department at Michigan State College. With the prospective feed shortage this year, special attention should be given the culling of the ewe flock. Frequently the elimination of all aged ewes, those which are light shearers, have bad udders, or have failed to nurse their lambs properly this year, will result in a much larger percentage of lambs another year and a more uniform crop and greater net returns per ewe. Culled ewes will undoubtedly sell for more now than they will later in the fall. Following the culling of the ewe flock, the remaining animals should be drenched, thoroughly tagged or trimmed about the rear parts and then given access to the best pasture which the farm affords. If better pasture is not available to which to transfer the flock, it is a good policy to flush them by feeding one half pound of oats per head daily for three weeks, preceding the time that the sire is turned with them. SILOS NEED ATTENTION BEFORE BEING FILLED Repairing and smoothing rough surfaces on the inside walls of silos before filling may be the means of avoiding spoiled silage, as rough surfaces interfere with the proper settling, says C. H. Jefferson, Michigan State College agricultural engineer. If the inside surface is only slightly pitted, applying a coat of white portland cement paint may be sufficient. Before making repairs, the wall should be thoroughly brushed to remove all loose material and to provide a clean, hard surface. After cleaning, the wall should be kept damp for at least an hour before applying the concrete paint in order to prevent the water in the paint from being absorbed too rapidly. Crows Cause Strange "Trouble" on Long Telephone Line in Colorado

Left: A setting crow, with a scrap of wire on her nest on a telephone cross arm. Right: Showing insulation of telephone wires, which has been resorted to in an effort to avoid short-circuiting the lines. On a 72-mile section of telephone line in Colorado, crows have repeatedly put the circuits out of order by using scraps of wire in building their nests on the cross arms of the poles. Of the various methods tried, insulating the wires at the cross arms seems to offer the best protection against "shorting" the circuits. Between Denver and Lamar, in southeastern Colorado, there is a section of telephone line which stretches 72 miles as the crow flies. There are, in fact, many crows, and they not only fly but build nests. They build nests on the cross-arms of telephone poles and, among other building materials, they often make use of scrap wire. When this scrap wire touches telephone lines, it puts them out of order until the wire is removed. Poles Make Fine Home Sites Since the Denver-Lamar line was built, in 1929-1930, there have been 643 line troubles, involving 303 separate cases, directly chargeable to the nesting habits of the crows which thrive in the locality. Crows are, as every hunter knows, exceedingly wary birds. They prefer to build their nests high up, where they can see far in every direction. In the arid territory which the telephone line crosses, the only trees are found usually in valleys, and are therefore not good observatories. The telephone poles, on the other hand, are tall and straight, are fairly isolated, and are located in the open. To the crows, they make ideal home-sites, since it would be difficult for an enemy to approach unseen. They generally build on the second crossarm from the top of the pole. The top cross-arm shades the nest, helps to conceal the eggs, and prevents a hostile bird from swooping directly down on the nest. Wire from Abandoned Homesteads In addition to the incidental use of scrap wire, crows build their nests of sticks, dead weeds, corn husks and other coarse matter, and line them with fine roots, dry grass, straw, moss, rags, wool and similar soft material. Every Direction Is "In Front" of Newest "Eight-ball" Microphone

Above: Diagram of construction of new non-directional dynamic microphone. Right: This microphone has neither front nor back; it picks up sound equally well from any direction. A new streamlined microphone, which picks up sound equally well from any direction and which promises to revolutionize technique in radio broadcasting studios, has been developed by the Bell Telephone Laboratories for the Western Electric Company. In size and shape the microphone resembles a billiard ball with a flat screen for a hat. In fact, the radio trade has already dubbed it the "eight-ball mike." In engineering parlance, however, it is known as a non-directional dynamic microphone. The ideal of microphone designers has long been to create an instrument which would make a faithful electrical copy of sound pressures in an undistorted sound field. Great progress has been made, and the microphones used today in radio broadcasting and sound picture studios represent tremendous improvements over earlier types. The new instrument is considered to be the greatest advance made in recent years. Its response is independent of the angle from which sound approaches and covers faithfully a wide range of frequencies. The advantages of the new microphone have already become apparent as a result of tests made by broadcasting companies in their studios. Only one non-directional microphone is needed to pick up a large orchestral or dramatic show, in place of several of the former types which have up to this time been required. Furthermore, because of the full circular pick-up, it has been found that dramatic groups, quartets and vocal ensembles need not crowd and crouch over the new microphones as over others. It has no front or back.

HERE'S A NEW WAY TO CATCH BLUEGILLS

A new type of lure known as the "club sandwich" has been proving very effective against large bluegills in the inland lakes in the vicinity of Traverse City, and it is described below for the benefit of Clarkston fishermen who enjoy bluegill fishing.

Mark Crow, conservation officer, says: "Fishermen who have been using it take any old snelled fly, the more ragged the better, and on this they string a cricket, a grasshopper and a worm. This bait is a deep water killer and obviously takes the larger bluegills. Do the fish go for it?"

A black-gnat fly on which a small white grub is fixed, weighed down with a lead shot, recently was found effective in the lakes near Baldwin.

HOLLY THEATRE

A story that strikes deep and sure at love today, comes Tuesday to the Holly Theatre, in the Twentieth Century-Fox picturization, "To Mary—With Love."

Warner Baxter and Myrna Loy are co-starred and their performances opposite each other are said to surpass the heights they reached in "Broadway Bill" and "Penthouse."

Ian Hunter and Claire Trevor are featured in the cast which also includes Jean Dixon.

A love-letter romance, "To Mary—With Love" opens with the marriage of Baxter and Miss Loy. Best man is Ian Hunter who hides his regret with a grin, at seeing Myrna's happiness in Baxter's arms.

Making love lightly, yet loving deeply, they move through their honeymoon and then return to New York where Baxter plunges into the stock market, intent on accumulating a fortune.

So occupied is he that Myrna takes a summer trip to Maine alone. Returning home earlier than expected, she finds that Baxter hasn't been so lonesome as supposed, but, instead, has been entertaining Claire Trevor.

This is the first flaw in their happiness and, although they patch it up, the scars still linger. Baxter returns to his manipulations in finance and, as the market rises, becomes wealthy. Money doesn't bring happiness to the pair, however, for Myrna finds too much time on her hands and becomes intimate with a group of parasites and questionable friends.

Just as it appears that their marriage must break up, the market crashes and Myrna finds that her husband needs her more than ever.

From their penthouse they go to live in a shabby suburban bungalow. Baxter is unable to comprehend what has happened and Myrna is unable to convince him that he should get a job—any kind of a job.

Hiding their hurts and holding back their tears, Myrna and Baxter rise gallantly and splendidly from their misfortune and find a new and greater love to reward them.

Washtenaw County Republicans Present

George P. McCALLUM

as their Candidate for Nomination for State Senator from the Twelfth Senatorial District

There has existed in the Senatorial District a gentlemen's agreement between the Republicans of Oakland and Washtenaw Counties to alternate the office of State Senator between the two counties. Since this agreement has been in operation, Oakland has had the office eight times and Washtenaw seven times. In 1934 it was Washtenaw's turn to present a candidate. However, since the late Senator Moore had not completed his work the Republicans of Washtenaw County willingly supported Mr. Moore and helped return him to the senate for a third term. The Republican voters of Washtenaw County now feel that in all fairness its candidate should be nominated and in supporting Mr. McCallum, Washtenaw knows that it is presenting a man well qualified to discharge the duties of this important office.

Mr. McCallum was born in Michigan and has lived in Michigan all his life. He has had legislative experience, having heretofore served in the Michigan legislature. The problems presented by taxation are not new to him as he has long been a student of taxation and in his private capacity is head of an organization owning large acreage of agricultural, timber and other real estate holdings. He has given much attention to the question of financing Michigan's educational system. He has been a practicing attorney for over twenty years.

In view of Mr. McCallum's qualifications and of the agreement between the Republicans of the two counties, we earnestly request the Republicans of Oakland County to support and vote for Mr. McCallum in the primary election.
