The more eager of the party were there early. They took seats behind home plate. Then the attendance of republicans kept growing until the first section of reserved seats (held until 7:45) was filled. At 7:45, the general admission tickets were accepted and the crowd was enlarged by a few more thousand. As near as can be learned every person from Clarkston sat near first base. Here is your chance met at the H. W. Huttenlocher home human, just part of the public address system) and flood lights powerful enough to blind the audience even unto those in the last row. The reporters, those hale fellows from the press with their working press tickets stuck jauntily in the bands of their hats scurried back and forth like a hill of ants while the photographers, whether with hand outfits, or those high step-ladders and tripods were firing enough flashlight powder to bankrupt a small paper. Around eight the amusement preceding the scheduled radio program (which filtered through the networks to the nation) began to take place in the form of music by not one, not two, not three but nine or ten drum and bugle corps presumably from the Detroit area. The outfits played, paraded, and manoeuvred, much to the delight of even the best republicans who were finding their reserved seats just a little irksome. Then community singing gave all a chance to enjoy a seventh inning stretch. The public address system asked the audience how the system was working and about 25,000 peo ple told him. The candidate for Sen ator made a speech which was supposed to blister the opposition and a the same time instruct those doubtful voters the ballot they should cast. Then with one minute to go (there is always room for that romantic "minute to play" on a ball field), the governor of the state was shoved into the program to introduce, which introduction was unheard as the largest drum and bugle corps had formed an aisleway and the CANDIDATE FOR the group with a violin solo, "Lust-PRESIDENT OF THESE UNITED spiel Overture" by Keler-Bela. He STATES OF AMERICA was approaching the speakers' stand on foot, amid the rousing cheers of the assembled multitude. The candidate climbed upon the platform and as he started his task of asking this group (part of 125 million people he must ask) for a job for the next four years, the sound cameras went into action, silent photographers started their bombardment of flashlight powder in earnest and the ants mentioned before started filling their scratch pads. As the speaker had not had an opportunity they were probably writing that he looked like his picture, wore a dark suit, and other non-essentials that would make pleasant reading and still not commit the paper to the party. The speech wended its way to the end, interrupted by cheers for the speaktion. er, boos for the opposition and such other restless action as would make the wooden bench more comfortable or tend to warm the listener. All during this time the radio boys were busy picking the speech, minus too much interruption from the audience, for the networks. The speech ended, the candidate backed away from the front of the platform. The audience let out a few lusty yowls, and yelled a few yells and jumped from their places to race for their parked cars, for, dear subscriber some of this audience had homes in the furthest corners of the state. One group even hired a special train and marched onto the field with the banner taken from their train, while many of the group carried small banners bearing mottoes so that everyone could easily read why you should detest the opposition or support the candidates of the evening. All of the foregoing, dear: subscribers, is a political rally for the high office of President and today-two days after-some are discussing the speech, some are discussing the color of such a show, some are discussing the engineering required to put on such a spectacle and some humble servants like myself are trying to give you a descrip tion of what happened.

Many County Candidates Attend Dinner

On Wednesday evening a dinner sponsored by several townfolk was by the Ladies' Aid of the served Methodist church in the church dining-room.

The tables were prettily decorated with autumn leaves, red, white and blue candles and miniature elephants. On the wall back of the speaker's table was a large American Flag, on the wall opposite was a large picture of Governor Alf. Landon. Of course a large elephant and an exceptionally large sunflower were conspicuous. Rev. C. E. Edwards asked the blessing and everyone enjoyed a very fine meal. This was followed by a program in charge of Mrs. Milan Vliet. After the salute to the flag the whole assembly sang the first verse of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" according to Julia Ward Brown and then the County candidates sang the Republican version, for which they received a loud applause. Harold Konzen then favored was accompanied by Mrs. Winifred Perrin. The speaker of the evening, Congressman George Dondero, was then introduced by Mrs. Vliet and everyone was greatly interested in what he had to tell. He quoted figures and statistics that gave every guest something to think about. George McCallum of Ann Arbor, candidate for State Senator was then introduced and he gave a short talk. Miss S. D. Woodward sang two numbers. "My Native Land" by Edward Grieg and "Speed the Republic" by Keller. Mrs. Perrin played the piano accompaniment for the first number and for the second number she accompanied on the plano and Harold Konzen on the violin. After the singing of the national anthem Rev. With the plan of awarding 32 un dergraduate-scholarships annually to Michigan State College freshmen going into its fifth year of execution, the alumni association of the college has today enrolled approximately 90 students as recipients of these scholarships.

Only 30 scholarships were awarded in 1932 when the idea was created, but for each of the successive years 32 have been awarded in Michigan, one to the outstanding student in each senatorial district of the state. A Clarkston student who has won a scholarship for this year is: Katherine Foster, junior in physical education.

The saving to the student is $90 a year, which is given by the association in the form of a waiver by the college of the $30 course fee for each of the three terms.

There were two number from Holly and aeronautical Williams and Mrs. celebrities from the military and civilian departments of the U.S. Government. Major "Jim" Doolittle and Col. Eddie Rickenbacker will be the judges. With the gates opening at 6:30 on Saturday morning, the entire day will be taken up with military aircraft maneuvers, including airplane business meetings. The first lesson acrobatics, formation flying, flight maneuvers, bombing, and parachute jumping, as well as the first solo flight of Priv. Knutz Q. Dumbjohn. The aircraft acrobatics this year will include daring stunts with the planes going through space at tremendous speed. With many changes in pursuit flight tactics, spectators will view new formations and varied flight maneuvers. As in past years, this national air classic will be covered by newsreelmen, radio announcers and newspaper rien from all over the country. An outstanding feature of the Mitchell Trophy race is that it is the only air classic of its kind in the United States in which military planes are permitted to race. Mrs. William Mitchell, widow of Brigadier-General William Mitchell, donor. of the trophy, will attend the races. Selfridge Field, recognized as one of the finest air posts in the country, will provide facilities for the hundreds of visiting planes coming from every corner of the nation. And asall spectators can watch the spectacle from automobiles, adequate and comfortable parking arrangements will be provided for all cars. In order to speed up traffic after the races, all highways leading out of Mount Clemens will give over to one-way traffic. Admission to the air races will be one dollar per car. Assembly

A special assembly was called at 500 last Monday for the purpose of shecking up on the progress, or lack of progress, made in the magazine subscription drive. The report was submitted in a very original manner -in the form of a skit enacted by the Public Speaking class. The hero of the skit, King McIntyre, was supposed to represent our athletic finances, and of course, he was in a very bad state of invalidism-his head swathed in bandages and tape, able to stand erect only by the means of a crutch. June Dunston, as prin-cipal of Clarkston High, was told of the relapse of the patient by Hamilton Newman who appeared breathlessly on the scene. The calm uninoperator • was terested telephone played by Violet Coy: Chester Adams, as the specialist on the case, Kathie Johnson, the nurse; Bud Shaughnessy and Marty McReynolds, internes; and Charles Perry, George Dupee, Howard Boynes, and Durward Ash, as representatives of the various home rooms, completed the cast. With the pep talk "Ollie" Malone (Crowell representatives) gave us, the inspiration of that skit-gosh!-and your cooperation, we hope to get some where near our quota though we've quite a ways to go.

Junior Class Party

The Juniors had to postpone their class party until Monday, October 12 but it came then and in a big way. They met at six o'clock and had din ner at six-thirty in the Domestic Sci ence Room. Boy, it was a good din ner too. They had meat-loaf, escalloped potatoes, baked beans, rolls, cake and cocoa. Chester Adams brought some cider which added to the gaiety of the party. After dinner they went into the gym and played games of all kinds.

Yost, Lawson for Tee, Newman for Wainman, and Walker for Secord. There was a steady drizzle of rain throughout the game. The footing and ball handling was a very slippery job on this account. Farmington made 2 points in the first quarter by a safety when Yost fumbled the ball. Farmington then made a touchdown in the second quarter and kicked the point which made the score 9 to 0 in Farmington's favor. In the third quarter it was a nip and tuck fight, neither side getting any advantage. Clarkston passed a few times and in the fourth quarter they started a march which might have ended in a touchdown had the game lasted longer. Even though they lost they showed Farmington some real football. Yost, the passer, was the outstanding player on the Clarkston team by his good running and tackling. BAITING TO KILL OAKLAND RODENTS

Mice baiting is going to be a profitable game and industry practiced in orchards this fall where the mice population again indicates possibilities of excessive winter damage from riddling and girdling. A campaign to educate tree owners in baiting rodents is to be conducted in the principal fruit producing sections of the state this fall by H. D. Hootman and T. A. Merrill, extension horticulturists of Michigan State College. In Oakland county a rodent control demonstration through cooperation with the county agricultural agent is scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 28 and 29. The extension men hope to prevent a recurrence of the excessive damage incurred last winter when heavy snows covered the feeding grounds and rabbits and mice found the most available food was the bark and lower branches of fruit trees.
