COMMENT CRITICISM

The coldest period we have experienced this year came this week.

writers show that where 9.92 fires the rate drops to 8.39 in cities in the ton 54. 250,000-500,000 bracket, and to 6 in metropolises housing 500,000 or more

The per capita fire loss in the 20,-000-50,000 classification is $1.49, as against $1.36 in over 500,000 group. While statistics are not available for communities of less than 20,000 population, it is a logical supposition that both the number of fires per 1,000 people and the per capita loss are materially higher.

Fire waste is a grave problem to all the country-and it is more than ordinarily grave in our smaller cities. towns and villages. And on farms, where efficient fire-fighting equipment is often unobtainable, a fire that would be of small consequence in a well protected city may turn out to be a disaster. Loss of human and animal life through fire is likewise tragically high in our rural areas.

Any community or district, no matter how small in population, can quickly and simply reduce its fire loss. Fire marshals can instruct citizens in the proper technique of inspecting property with a view to eliminating hazards and literature is available on the subject. "Spruce up" campaigns to tear down useless buildings, keep vacant lots clear, etc., are a great help in ridding the community of some of the gravest dangers. And in the matter of fire protection, many small towns and farming communities have proven it practical to finance district fire-fighting organizations which are strategically Miller. The cost of this, in the light of the service rendered, is insignificant.

One of the greatest tragedies of fire is that almost all fires are pre- spent several days this week with

We boast of our modern civilization, and in many respects it is very wonderful. Our actions are largely governed by inhibitions, many of them trivial and without any bearing upon true character or morality, but nevertheless considered binding upon all who would appear civilized. Were these rules and regulations established by leaders possessed of superior morals or intellect, they might be observed with better grace. But if such were the case the rules would probably be quite different from what they are.

In the eyes of some of our arbiters, it appears that a breach of table manners is a more heinous offense than a violation of the moral code; to wear out-of-style clothes is more reprehensible than defrauding a cred-

SOCIAL SECURITY

A surprising lack of results with respect to claims for lump-sum payments was revealed. "One possible families. explanation," Mr. Redman says, "is that the amounts available to the first persons reaching retirement age hymns and carols on the carillon. appear to be too small to induce active workers to call at the office to execute their claim and, in many cases, it is felt that they think it is necessary to retire from active work in order to collect this payment which amounts to 31/2% of their earnings since December 31, 1936. A great of and are not familiar with their rights under the act. We have found in many cases where the wage-earner has died that the next of kin has thought, the amount of their claims being small, and large amount of expense involved, it is not worth while to come in to make a formal claim. Many have thought it necessary to hire someone to handle their claim." Mr. Redman desires to correct both of these errors because there is no expense involved and Mr. Redman and his office force will assist in making out the necessary papers. We have already handled claims for several people who have reached the age of sixty-five," he said, "and have worked in covered employment since January 1. These people are continuing to work and their employers are cooperating in completing the necessary claim forms. Attainment of the age sixty-five is not a bar to continuing employment."

JOU would naturally think of the man Y operating the tractor as a farmer. And he is a farmer, but he's also an increasingly important figure in the industrial world, not only as a consumer but as a producer. He's engaged in hoeing up a field of soy beans which later, after passing through various factory processes, you'll be using in the form of paint and varnish, soap, lineleum and scores of other products. Consumers Information points out that 91 million pounds of soy bean oil, a comparatively new crop for American farmers, was produced in one recent year Of this amount, 2½ million pounds went into the soap kettles, 5 million into linoleum and 13 million into paint and varnish.

This brand new market for American farmers, who are now growing a large number of industrial as well as food products, has been developed, like many others, through the vast research programs undertaken by American indusy, whose laboratories have added untold millions to the national wealth and also thousands of jobs for American

SCHOOL NEWS

Plans for the annual Christmas panquet are underway. The committees have been appointed. This year we plan to put on a one-act play.

December sixth, we were entertained by Chiefs Blue Cloud and Flying Eagle. They displayed a very fine exhibit of Indian costumes and relics. The Indians danced several native dances and sang some Indian church songs. Everyone danced with the Indians the Snake Dance at the close of the program.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER By the Staff

Question: "What changes do you think would be effective in the 'Hilltopper'?"

Bill Skinner, seventh grade: "I don't think it has enough jokes in it.' Doris Jencks Junior: "It ought to have interviews of different school children to create a more friendly Betty Taylor, Freshman: "It ought to have more school features in it." Hazel St. Clair, Senior: "They ought to have more of a variety of school people in the features, just the same ones all the time." Iva Sommers, Junior: "Make it a school paper and not about what certain people are doing." Elaine Waterbury, Freshman: "It ought to have more school features."

Charlotte Sue Miller, Sophomore: 'It should have more school features in it so it will draw more school children to read."

Betty Chamberlain, Senior: "I think we ought to have many more editorials and school papers in it." Julia Edgar, Sophomore: "I think that they ought to have more of the school children's work in it, not just what they are doing."

Mrs. Durand, Teacher: "The features would be better and of more value if student compositions on worth-while subject matter took the place of petty gossip. I think advanced students should be made responsible for making corrections in spelling and grammar before the paper goes to press."

Ann Russell, 7th: "Sometimes there could be a little more humor in it. Otherwise it is pretty good."

Marie Tremper, Senior: "I think the paper is better than it was last year, although it seems to me that the upper classmen are mentioned more than the Junior High school student. I think that all should be treated the same."

> GRADE NEWS by Esther Soncrainte Miss Wade's Room

Our narcissus bulbs are growing fast. We hope that they will be in blossom by Christmas.

We have been making Christmas lecorations for our room. There is a black and white silhouette of Santa and his six reindeers riding swiftly across the snow. His bag is full of toys. We also have a picture of a little girl in her pajamas lighting a large red candle on Christmas Eve so that Santa Claus won't forget to stop at her house. Our snow pictures made with chalk on dark blue paper are very pretty.

Both the Kindergarten and First Grade are making toy books. Each day we make a new toy to put in our books.

We are enjoying the Christmas

Mrs. Vliet's Room

The Christmas spirit needed only the impetus of a Christmas tree (donated by the P. T. A.) to descend in full force and now we are in the midst of a dozen Yuletide activities.

First, of course, we made decorations for our tree and then gathered about it to learn two new Christmas

Next we planned a toy shop and each day we cut and color a toy for it. These are labeled and their prices marked. After learning to identify the real coins and comparing their values, we made paper coins and are The eighth grade Eng. class is using them to learn how much reading Dickens' "Christmas Carol" amounts from 5c to $1.00 will buy in Courtship of Miles Standish". The have made up some original stories season is not right, but we are gain- about Christmas pictures. The most interesting, "Santa's Helper", is printed and on display for us all to learn to read, supplementing our regular Reading.

It's fun in our spare moments to practice printing and writing terms such as "Merry Christmas", "to father", "to mother", and the second grade is completing a border of jolly Santas about to fill gaily decorated

On our bulletin board Santa and his reindeer, cut by the 1st graders in Miss Wade's Art class, are speeding thro' the sky over, a miniature forest of Christmas trees. Each tree bears the name of a pupil and varicolored seal decorations are the reward for keeping neat and clean.

Thus, Reading, Arithmetic, Spelling, Conversation, Writing, Handwork, Music, Character Building, and Health all lend themselves to the enchantment of the Christmas season. We are busy. We are happy, and we hope to learn many new things.

The Hilltopper

This is off the record, but we hear that Scofield thinks Rudy Vallee is a place between two hills and that the Rose Bowl is John Boles' sister.

Well, we have at least one mimrod in the faculty, anyway. Mr. Thayer hunts, or pretends to hunt, like a woodsman of the old school. Ah, there is a man after my own heart. Adams is a pot, his feet show it, they are long-fellows.

All "youse guys and gals" that play table tennis had better start getting wound up, the tournament can't be far off.

McIntyre has a hard time figuring out who wrote "Macheth"—not that we didn't study it and its author for a month or so.

In Civies class students take over the teaching of "Scholastics" and from all appearances some would make pretty good school "marms and masters".

Bettieann Comstock says that her policy is to have a boyfriend outside of the school. Well, that isn't such bad philosophy.

All the chilluns took their report cards home this week. (We hope!)
Last marking period, we asked people what they thought of their marks, and lo and behold, everyone was satisfied.

Pearl Olson can't see so well without her glasses, especially when she doesn't want to.

Here's a case of getting the buggy (I mean the sleigh) before the horse. Howard's surprise birthday party last Sunday ended in a sleigh ride out at Miller's. Ended in a sleigh ride is right, too, for one of the horses stepped on the tongue of the sleigh, heartlessly breaking it. Then all the hearties hove too and traded places with the horses, merrily pushing the sleigh on homeward. Their theme song, by the way is: "Oh, what fun it is to ride on a none horse open sleigh!"

Who Did Write "The Face on the Barroom Floor"?

An article in The American Weekly, with the December 12 issue of The Detroit Sunday Times, will explain that nobody seems able to settle whether the tearful American saloon classic is having its 65th anniversary or merely its 50th . . . and presenting the versions of its "origin" by BOTH its living and dead "authors".
