Odds and Ends

Regardless of what we think, stringent times are present in this fair land. In this respect then perhaps the following will prove helpful. This week we received a small booklet, printed by some individual who had his own idea of bringing back "happy times". The idea was so simple that all who will can follow it—and it will bring results. He figures that there are 130 million people in the United States. No one of them can do very much—and no group can be joined together to include the whole in a recovery plan—without about as many plans as there are members. If this is the case the author reasons this way: He is one-one hundred and thirty millionth part of the United States. If he does as good as he can—and takes care of himself and each of the other fractions (each being one-one hundred thirty millionth of the whole—or you) does its part—or your part, then we will all be in a busy and happy frame of mind and the recession will be over. In this respect he even states: "It takes time from my work to ask you how you are doing and to answer your question as to how I am doing—let's cut out the talk and DO." Sounds feasible, does it not.

One of the best alibis there is, is the oldest one "I see by the papers." So may we offer the following with that alibi. The conservatives called the recent Union activities "the act of communists" much to the dislike of the Union leaders. I see by the paper that after the argument of the U. A. W. leaders in Washington this week, both sides left the room with this statement: "We were trying to get the communists out of the union." Perhaps we are all conservatives under the skin.

We have never tried to keep it a secret that we are against capital punishment. Our main reason is that as long as cases are tried in newspapers or over the radio, there will never be a fair trial. In our travels we have often heard this remark in the last week. "Killing is too good for the kidnaper of the Cash baby, he needs  ." Again we see by the papers that the kidnaper is begging for the state to hurry and kill him so he can have it all over. We can not see that he is deserving of any favors and if we were the judge it would be a pleasure to send him to that little island in the Pacific for a nice long healthy lifetime. We admit that our reason is in addition to our regular thoughts on capital punishment but in this case capital punishment is NOT enough. Why REWARD this kidnaper with death for his crime.

Much against our better judgment we are holding our dictionary offer open for another week. So many called or came to the office and subscribed or renewed their subscription that it would be unfair to close the offer immediately.

It's peculiar to note that automobile racing experts who compete at Indianapolis and other speedways year after year are very slow and careful drivers. Statements from these men and evidence of their driving habits prove they are careful. They know the results of excessive speed. They know what will happen when the car gets out of control. They must have good judgment on turns. They exercise common sense.

Safety is about 99% common sense—accidents are 99% thoughtless hurry. It's better to say, "Give him the right of way," than "GET HIM right away." It's smart to be careful.

Moscow, Russia, has the largest bell in the world, popularly known as "the Czar Kogokol." It weighs 200 tons and is fifty-four feet in circumference, but has never been rung. Soon after it was cast a fire broke out in the temporary shed over it and cracked it so badly that repairs could not be made.

Ladies' Aid Tea Is Grand Success

The Silver Tea sponsored by the Ladies' Aid of the Clarkston M. E. Church on Friday afternoon at the Church was a very lovely affair. Flowers were used to make the room like a pretty garden. The program was appreciated and once again the group had a chance to be proud of Dan Addis and his Rhythm Rascals. The tea-table at which Mrs. Alice Ulrich and Mrs. C. E. Edwards presided, was very attractive and everyone enjoyed the dainty refreshments.

Clarkston Locals

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Marlowe in company with Mr. and Mrs. Cox of Crescent Lake and Mrs. Mercer of Bald Eagle Lake left Thursday morning for Anderson, Ind., where they will attend a camp meeting for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Waterbury entertained at dinner on Sunday at the Waterbury Homestead in honor of their grandson, Clifford Gardiner Waterbury and his bride. Covers were laid for twelve and a right merry time was had.

Miss Viola Alger entertained her Contract Club at Devon Gables on Tuesday. The Club had not met for five or six weeks so this was a delightful reunion. A lovely luncheon was served and several interesting bridge games were played during the afternoon. The awards went to Mrs. L. F. Walter and Mrs. Joseph Seeterlin.

Commencement Program Features Court Scene

The Judge's Verdict Pleased the Graduates

On Thursday night the Commencement Program at the Clarkston High School featured a court scene. The whole procedure was thrilling and all the attaches were dignified and serious. The stage was arranged to suit. By all appearances the defense attorney, Charles Perry and the district attorney, Chester Adams are leaving High School well equipped with initiative and courage to step out and face the problems that are bound to confront them at this time. The witnesses were all fine speakers and gave everyone young and old something to think about.

The musical numbers were greatly appreciated and Dan Addis showed extraordinary ability in directing the orchestra.

Of course the beautiful climax to the whole program was the Judge's Verdict which entitled the graduates to their diplomas.

ADVICE IS GIVEN CHICKEN RAISERS

Refers to Proper Time for Vaccinating of Flocks

It's nearly vaccination time for thousands of young chickens in Michigan if they are to escape fowl pox this fall.

Yet a highly ethical warning by veterinarians is repeated by E. S. Weisner, extension poultryman at Michigan State College. He says, "stay away from vaccination where the flock and other flocks in the community have been free of fowl pox."

Some call the disease chicken pox. But it is not the type that affects humans nor is it the type called cow pox.

Competent veterinarians are recommended to treat flocks. They can use a vaccine on flocks susceptible to the fowl pox.

Weisner recommends the protection be furnished when the chicks are 10 to 16 weeks old. This helps them build up immunity against the disease which may show up in early fall when the pullets are housed. If early treatment is neglected, an emergency vaccination is possible with pigeon pox vaccine, again administered by a competent veterinarian.

Effects of the fowl pox do not always include mortality unless the pox is complicated with additional diseases. But egg production is stopped almost 100 per cent and the flock usually cannot get started again in the laying column until along in March. By then, egg prices begin to sag.

Bradley Family Will Hold Annual Reunion

The annual Bradley family reunion will be held this year at the home of James Bradley in Lansing on Saturday and Sunday, June 18 and 19. At that time there will gather the descendants of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bradley who came to Michigan at a very early date and settled in Waterford township. For many years family reunions were held at Williams Lake in Waterford township and were often attended by from 125 to 150 descendants, and the gatherings extended over four or five days. In recent years no large gathering has been held, although generally a few of the family met. This year, judging from responses received, there will be a big attendance.

Members of the family living in this section are Mr. and Mrs. John A. Bradley, of Holly, and Andrew Bradley and Ray Ansley and family, of Clarkston. Andrew Bradley is the oldest living member of the family. He is the sole survivor of a large number of the children born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bradley.

Traffic-Flow Map Shows Heavy Traffic Around Pontiac

Lansing—Travel on nearly every trunkline highway in Michigan expands twice its normal size sometime during the year while on many highways the maximum load is three times the average volume.

This is a major observation from the first traffic-flow map produced for the trunkline highway system in Michigan in seven years. The map, which is the work of the highway planning survey, is expected to be of great value in the development of the state's road system as well as to private business.

Traffic reaches its heaviest volume along US-10 (Woodward Avenue) just outside the north limits of Detroit where there is a maximum flow of 60,700 automobiles and trucks in 24 hours. The normal traffic at this point amounts to 27,000 vehicles a day.

Variations in peak and normal travel on other trunklines picked at random include: US-10 between Pontiac and Detroit 42,000 and 18,000; US-10 between Pontiac and Flint, 15,500 and 8,200; US-24 near Monroe, 13,400 and 6,400; US-16 near Farmington, 17,500 and 6,400; US-16 near Williamston, 9,400 and 4,000; US-27 north of Clare, 5,000 and 1,750; US-12 near the state line, 16,243 and 4,400; and US-41 near Powers in Menominee County, 1,357 maximum and 632 average.

G. Donald Kennedy, deputy state highway commissioner, said the new traffic-flow map indicates a road development program on a two-fold basis. The first is the use now made of highways as shown by their traffic volume. The second is new development to create traffic.

The Mourning Dove

One of the first birds in the spring is the mourning dove. This bird is commonly called Carolina dove or turtle dove. They are a lovely bird and one of the most famous paintings of Audubon is the Mourning dove.

The mourning dove usually nests about ten feet from the ground. They seldom nest on the ground. Two broods are reared. The male keeps faithful watch over his mate and brood. Their devotion to one another and their brood is very noticeable.

The young birds are fed by the process of regurgitation. This process is so common in bird life and makes the food easily digested.

The dove was the most commonly described and the most loved bird of the Bible. They were used in sacrifices, sent out by Noah, used in a simile by Isaiah, in prophecy by Ezekiel and in song by Solomon and David. The greatest event described was when the dove descended when Christ was baptized.

These birds are our most valuable ones. They do not damage crops but destroy insects, and feed a great deal on weed seed. They are a non-game bird and their killing is prohibited in Michigan.

Fuzzies and Fats Fine for Fanning Fishes' Appetites

Regardless of fluctuations in Wall Street stocks, a bullish influence is anticipated, beginning one week from Saturday, in the angle worm market. Quotations on such standard offerings as Wiggly Worms, Longs, Fats, Fuzzies and the domesticated issue fed on sour milk are expected to advance. Increased public demand for grubs, especially the light colored brand, is also forecast. The only bearish factor feared is inclement weather.

The anticipated boom in commerce in worms is due to the opening of the 1938 summer "pan-fishing" season June 25. Each year of late the opening of this season has sent thousands of prospective fishermen digging or buying worms, and the difficulty of finding a sufficient supply in some parts of the state has created a side-line business for a considerable number of persons. A year ago the average quotation for angle worms was 25 cents a hundred, but the price changes in relation to the operation of the old law of supply and demand. One year the supply was so limited and the demand so heavy in the northern part of the lower peninsula that one concern shipped a consignment of wigglers by airplane. There is, however, no advance indication of a shortage this year.

Providing he can obtain bait, no fisherman should have much trouble finding water in which to drop it. Anyone setting out to try his luck in every lake in Michigan would find that at the rate of one a day he would need more than a decade to complete the rounds. That is because there are 4,187 named lakes in Michigan ranging in size from 10 acres or less to Houghton, the largest in the state, with more than 18,000 acres. The season which begins a week from today opens all waters in the state not now open, except a few places closed by special order under state regulation and certain private waters to which the public is not admitted. The season runs through March 31 except on pike lakes and streams, and for a few species such as the salmon and trout, for which restrictions are applied at earlier dates.

HOLLY THEATRE

The gentle friendship Robert Louis Stevenson enjoyed with all children—and his remarkable ability to understand their every whim—is beautifully reflected in a ceremony which has taken place every year for nearly half a century.

Annually on November 13th, since 1890, Mrs. W. Bourke Cockran has assembled a group of her intimate friends at her home, 1136 Fifth Avenue, New York—and has celebrated Stevenson's birthday as her own.

This ceremony is legal and proper and Mrs. Cockran has the "birthday deed" which was presented to her by the author on the Island of Upolu (in Samoa).

Mrs. Cockran, widow of the late New York Congressman, was Anne Ide, daughter of Henry Clay Ide, one-time land commissioner in Samoa, and it was there that she spent many years of her childhood. Her father and Stevenson were old friends and she was the author's constant companion.

Stevenson, one day, expressed amazement at the fact that 6-year-old Annie never had a birthday party. Taking the matter up with studied seriousness, he discovered that the young lady had been born on Christmas Day! With an elaborate preamble in which he explained that he had no great use for his own birthday and because little Annie "was born out of all reason upon Christmas Day, and is, therefore, out of all justice denied the consolation and profit of a proper birthday," he drew up an imposing document.

The phraseology reveals his delightful sense of humor. One can readily imagine a little girl, terribly impressed by the formal reading of the "deed" and happily receiving a real "birthday."

Stevenson must have been a picture of kindness . . . little wrinkles of mirth in the corners of his eyes as he harrumphed, assumed a grand manner and read:

"I do hereby transfer to the said Annie Ide, all my rights and privileges in the thirteenth (13th) day of November, to have, to hold, exercise and enjoy the same in her customary manner . . . by sporting of fine raiment, eating of rich meats, and receipt of gifts, compliments and copies of verse, according to the manner of our ancestors."

It was in the Pacific Isles, where Stevenson gave his birthday to a girl who has cherished it for 48 years as her finest gift, that the great Scottish author wrote "Kidnapped," the story which he always considered his best. "Kidnapped," a stirring story of love and adventure, has been completed by 20th Century-Fox, with Warner Baxter and Freddie Bartholomew as co-stars. It will open at Holly Theatre on Sunday with a cast of 5,000 players and featuring Arleen Whelan, C. Aubrey Smith, Reginald Owen, John Carradine, Nigel Bruce, Ralph Forbes and H. B. Warner.

For Homemakers

It's no fable that an ant is industrious. So a timely warning to Michigan housewives is sounded by Professor E. J. McDaniel of Michigan State College, who sees no reason for households to be plagued if a few precautions are taken with the feed supply.

The grade school description of how ants follow up the findings of scouts is still gospel, says Professor McDaniel. Control of the foragers, however, is to forestall their work by several means.

One is not to leave food accessible. Crumbs of food, sugar supplies not adequately protected or preserves set out in open dishes are invitations for ants to crawl in by the hundreds.

If ants appear, then two more measures are appropriate. One is to take care of them inside the home.

Dry poison bait is easy to prepare. Make use of the ants' liking for brown sugar. But sprinkle the brown sugar with paris green. One ounce of the poison is sufficient to mix with one pound of the sugar. Keep the dry bait available until the ants disappear. If the sugar gets wet the bait loses its effectiveness. Commercially prepared baits also are recommended, also powders and repellants.

Any nicotine spray suitable for rose bushes also is effective for outside control of ants. Cultivation and crop rotation helps control in fields and gardens. Contact sprays of derris, pyrethrum or nicotine sulphate keep them off trees.
