Odds and Ends

Let's look over this swimming beach situation. Interest has been naturally aroused because out of a clear sky, Clarkston has two groups of life guards. One is an effective patrol of the beach, now in operation. This group is made up of volunteers who saw their duty and went to work. The other group from what we hear is in process of organization . . . Now all Clarkston needs is a BATHING BEACH. May we repeat . . . Clarkston needs a BATHING BEACH. The signs on the South End of Deer Lake where the villagers go are negative: "No picnicking"; "No changing in cars"; "No this and No that". There is NO dock; NO sanitary conveniences. In fact as the little boy would say "No Nothing". And with all due respect to the council who has given Clarkston paved streets and cannot give them everything, we doubt if much is done with the beach for some time. If this is so, the "No" signs and a clean place are better than the camp near the cemetery, which does not present a beautiful sight to one entering Clarkston from the West. We believe Ed. Miller would be doing the Village a real service if he were to open a real beach on his property, charge for parking the swimmer's car but furnish sanitary conveniences. This would allow the council to add one more "No" sign and say "No bathing". No one has really found fault with, shall we say our people swimming and even our guests have conformed to ideas of decency. But we believe that the beach presents an unhealthy condition when used by outsiders who come from quite a distance, and make the place an all day camp. Clarkston can get along without "all day resorters" who "relax" and with noise and rowdy actions make a nuisance of the beach on any holiday or on Sundays.

Will Your Child Be Ready?

SCHOOL DAY IS A MONTH AWAY! The child who is a continual repeater in school is a financial burden on the town! He may have to repeat his grades because he does not hear well, cannot see clearly, or because he is out of school frequently with aching teeth, diseased tonsils and frequent colds.

Such a child may be the result of parental neglect. The Michigan State Medical Society urges parents and guardians to see that all children entering school do so in the best of physical health. Cooperation in this program of preventive medicine, including the correction of remedial defects, guarantees fewer days lost in school during the year, less sickness for the child and fewer worries for the parents.

Vaccination and immunization will protect children against smallpox and diphtheria. The unprotected child entering school for the first time is the one most apt to catch any disease which may be introduced. There is usually a flare up of measles, whooping cough and other diseases among young children about a month after the opening of school. Children of varying degrees of health and resistance have been brought from the fresh air and from the freedom of outdoors into closed rooms and into intimate association. They play together, they exchange toys, they use the same playground equipment, they share their treasures.

The well, strong and vigorous child, if well nourished, and if his bowels, kidneys and skin are working perfectly, is able to throw off a certain amount of infection because his body is stronger than the disease germs which have gained access to his system.

It is not too late to have the preschool child checked over. If your physician advises, have his defects corrected now so that he may be fit and strong by September.

TRAGEDY AT DAVISBURG

George H. Harris Fatally Injured at Grand Trunk Crossing

WAS A PROMINENT CITIZEN FOR MANY YEARS

[By RALPH W. BROWN]

George Harris is dead. That's what the neighbors are saying with sad voices at Davisburg. But as for me, I must join with James Whitcomb Riley,

"I cannot say, and I will not say That he is dead! He is just away! With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand, He has wandered into an unknown land.

And left us dreaming how very fair It must be, since he lingers there. And you,—O you, who the wildest year For the old-time step and the glad return,—

Think of him faring on, as dear In the love of There as the love of Here; Mild and gentle as he was brave,— When the sweetest love of his life he gave.

To simple things: Think of him still as the same, I say; He is not dead—he is just away."

While George is away, we are going to miss him and miss him badly for George Harris was a strong man and a good man. Nature when she made him took the materials nearest at hand, the clean strong soil of Oakland County and built a strong man like unto the Oaks that thrive upon her hills.

A prized possession in the Harris family is a large silver drinking mug. Let the mug tell what took place on the 18th day of October 1850. It is in Merry England that the Waltham Agricultural Society has arranged a plowing contest for farmers' sons under twenty-five years of age. There is a beautiful level field, green as emerald stretching away from us. A score of farmer lads with spanking teams of horses are at hand to take part and demonstrate their respective skills in making a straight, even, completely turned furrow. All have demonstrated their very best. The Duke of Rutland calls the name of Edward Harris and a bashful lad, short and stooky steps forward from the throng and is presented with the first prize. A silver drinking mug handsomely inscribed.

Shortly after this English boy who leaves off his H's where they belong and puts them on where they do not belong packs his silver drinking mug and takes a sailing vessel for the promised land of America. Six weeks of terrible travel upon the water. The experience was so terrible, that Edward never again would cross the ocean, no, indeed the very thought of going upon the water filled him with fear and trembling. What suffering these early voyagers went through. Neighbors of the Harris family, when they came to America from England buried three of their children at sea.

Edward Harris with his silver drinking mug came to Oakland County Michigan and went to work for a family by the name of Whitfield at Square Lake. Each Sunday Edward would walk into Pontiac where he sang in the choir at the Episcopal Church. Edward's wages were $100 per year. He worked and saved his money until he had acquired $800.00 and then he came into the territory near Big Lake and there purchased a farm. Edward married a Miss Windate and on Dec. 2nd 1862 a baby boy was born and to this sturdy boy they gave the name of George. For sixty-one years George was to remain in the vocation of his father and his grandfathers, namely, agriculture.

Edward's family came into possession of four hundred acres of land in his chosen County of Oakland. Edward the expert plowman slept with his fathers and fourteen years ago George sold the farm, stock and tools and came to Davisburg to live. He purchased the old Stiles Mill and has been engaged in feed grinding and merchandising of feeds and coal.

What the father loves the boy will love, and George also loved the church. The father plowed a straight furrow across the earth and George followed in his footsteps. During the past years while George was engaged in the coal business he made it a practice of cutting the coal bills of the church in half. Thus Edward's son was furnishing free one half of the coal for the White Lake Presbyterian Church and for the Davisburg Methodist Church. George Harris would not make mention of these things that he did, but those who paid the bills for the churches told. Others must tell of George's good deeds for he did them and forgot them.

The hands of George Harris were like the hands of the pioneers of the frontier. Large, strong, shrewd, knotted and scarred with toil. Hands full of character. The type of hands that made America great.

For three quarters of a century he has been in this community, a strong man and a good man. Like a great Oak he has fallen and left "a lonely place against the sky."

It was last Thursday, that grown weary with the weight of years he slept for a moment while at the wheel of his auto and in that moment crashed into a speeding Grand Trunk passenger train. His injuries were beyond repair and George Harris on Sunday morning August 14th like his father before him became a pilgrim and a traveller to the Promised Land where there is the promise of a Mansion and a Crown.

The neighbors and friends stretch out their hands in loving helpfulness to his beloved wife Kittie Cuthbert Harris, and to his children Mrs. Albert Schultz, Mrs. Wm. Sommers, and Edward G. Harris.

"No, not cold beneath the grasses, Not close-walled, within the tomb; Rather, in our Father's mansion, Living in another room."

In addition to Mr. Harris' activities mentioned above, he was a stockholder and director in the First State & Savings Bank of Holly and the Clarkston State Bank.

The funeral services were held on Tuesday at 2 p. m. from the White Lake Presbyterian church. The pastor, Rev. George A. Hill, officiated and burial was in the White Lake cemetery.

Editor's Note: The foregoing story taken from the Holly Advertiser and written by a man who knew and understood the late Mr. Harris, was so beautiful that we thought our readers would appreciate it.

Warning to Voters

George A. Sutton, one of the Republican candidates for Probate Judge of Oakland County, says:

"While out through the County campaigning for this office, I find many people who think they can split their votes at the Primaries on September 13th, the same as at the November election. Voters must understand that this cannot be done and that all of their voting must be done on one ballot. The opposite ballot must be handed back unmarked."

Mr. Sutton has been in the active practice of law at Pontiac since 1914 and is well known throughout Oakland County.

Nature Chats

The Chipping Sparrow

The Chipping Sparrow is a smaller bird than the English sparrow. This small bird is sometimes called a social sparrow, hair bird, or chip-bird.

The chipping sparrow builds its nest near the ground in a rose bush or shrub and lays four bluish green speckled eggs. Its note is a mere "chip-chip".

The crown of this mite of a bird is chestnut color and the forehead is black, the wings and tail are dusty brown, and the bill is black.

The chipping sparrow is one of the commonest of the sparrows and is found in our yards, orchards, and pastures. They are friendly little birds and will stay in their nests even if one hovers over them. They feed their young on insects and worms and when mature they devour a great many weed seeds.

The house cats kill many of these birds as they nest in yards and shrubs and many female birds and their young are destroyed. There is a movement now in Michigan to have Tabby Cat licensed and wear a small bell around her neck so that birds will hear her coming and can thus escape her destruction.

For Homemakers

Efficient homemakers who sew for themselves and for younger members of the family find that pattern purchases can make too large a portion of the cost.

So here comes the suggestion of Marian H. Dixon, instructor in clothing at Michigan State College, that when a pattern is purchased it should be selected carefully so that it can be used several or many times. Pattern costs range from 10 cents to many times that cost, so the practice can help save money.

"A good pattern, one that is structurally sound, has lines suited to the individual figure and is a pattern that can be altered easily without destroying the structural lines of the pattern," Miss Dixon points out.

"If one has this type of pattern, what is the next step in using it so that all these home creations do not look alike? That is not difficult, for it can be done by changing the decorative features."

Miss Dixon advises taking a peek into several of the better style magazines for selecting decorations for a new dress. The same aid can be obtained for determining what accessories are to be worn with this new homemade creation.

Some women find that the less expensive patterns serve their purpose well. Other women doing their own sewing discover that after purchasing high grade fabrics the patterns do not do justice to either cloth or figure. The advice is to select an excellent pattern to avoid mediocre garments.

We have repeatedly mentioned in this column that the one thing needed by drivers today is more courtesy. Place a little more trust in your own ability to drive, and make that ability live up to the trust you have placed in yourself.

A great many of our traffic accidents could be prevented if people would only realize that they cannot depend upon the other fellow doing the thing which common sense, or the law, or courtesy dictates should be done.

In other words, in driving today you cannot trust anybody but yourself. Courtesy pays.

HOLLY THEATRE

Check your dignity at the door when you go in to see "Cowboy from Brooklyn" which opens Sunday at the Holly Theatre. Comedies don't come any funnier than this musical saga of a cowboy who never rides the range because he's scared to death of horses.

PLEASE!

NEW YORK—In the World of Tomorrow, there will be no such harsh, forbidding signs as "Keep off the Grass!" At least the New York World's Fair 1939 has already introduced, on the Fair grounds, signs reading merely "Please." The young lady in the picture, Miss Betty Rafferty, is regarding the sign with genuine pleasure.

"I never liked those signs 'Keep off the Grass.' It is certainly a happy and considerate thought to use the one word 'Please.' Surely the public will both understand the meaning and will appreciate the friendliness of the request."

With the exception of a few sentimental interludes and some musical moments every minute of this production, which features Pat O'Brien, Dick Powell and Priscilla Lane, has at least fifty-nine seconds of hilarious comedy.

It is a fast-moving farce, with songs introduced occasionally but always with a logical step in the plot, which revolves about the amusing misadventures of a singer.

The screen play, adapted by Earl Baldwin from the stage play, "Howdy Stranger", by Robert Sloane and Louis Pelletier, Jr., gets off to a flying start when Pat O'Brien, as a vacationing Broadway theatrical producer, mistakenly assumes that Dick Powell, who is being paid to entertain the guests at a Wyoming dude ranch with his singing, is an authentic cowboy.

Powell is actually a Brooklyn boy who has never ridden a horse, is afraid of horses and is even frightened by such tiny animals as prairie dogs. Nevertheless, taken back to New York by O'Brien, he wins great fame on the radio as a crooning cowboy.

It becomes necessary, however, for O'Brien to prove that his singer is a real cowboy, and he arranges to have the timid hero demonstrate his cowboy talents at a rodeo in Madison Square Garden. To tell here how this seemingly impossible task was hilariously managed would take the edge off one of the most ingeniously amusing sequences seen in any picture.

Just Another Day in New York

Golf Champion of Today Sees World of Tomorrow

NEW YORK—Upon their return from England the American Golf Team inspected the grounds and buildings of the New York World's Fair 1939. Grover A. Whalen, President of the Fair Corporation, presented Charles Yates, winner of the British Amateur Championship, with a scroll and appointed him a member of the Fair's Advisory Committee on Sports with this remark: "We are very happy to take the golf champion of today into the World of Tomorrow—the New York World's Fair 1939." In the picture, left to right, are Mr. Whalen, Mr. Yates with trophy, and Francis Ouimet, captain of the team.

A group of friends from Atlanta, Georgia, the home town of Yates, accompanied him to the Fair grounds. In this group were George B. Hamilton, Treasurer of the State of Georgia, James D. Robinson, President of the First National Bank of Atlanta, Thomas E. Paine, James C. Malone, and O. B. Keeler.

day program at Michigan State College by the short course department and the state poultry improvement association is scheduled for Sept. 12 to 16. CLARKSTON, MICHIGAN

It is seldom that we Americans think of art or artists in foreign lands with which we are not familiar. From faraway Burma comes the news that Burmese artists submitted 252 designs for the four new pictorial stamps to be issued in that country. The government awarded the first prize for a design of the "Royal Barge" of the Burmese king; the second was a representative scene of the rice industry; the third, that of the teakwood, and the fourth a river scene of the Irrawaddy. Aside from the scene they will also bear a portrait of King George VI and it is expected the stamps will be issued in November.

A Swedish collector of note has recently completed a book on portrait stamps and lists alphabetically 1340 personalities with short biographical sketches of each. There are over 800 illustrations and the book is published in both cloth and paper bindings by the Olofsson Brothers Printing House, Gotgatan 11, Stockholm, Sweden.

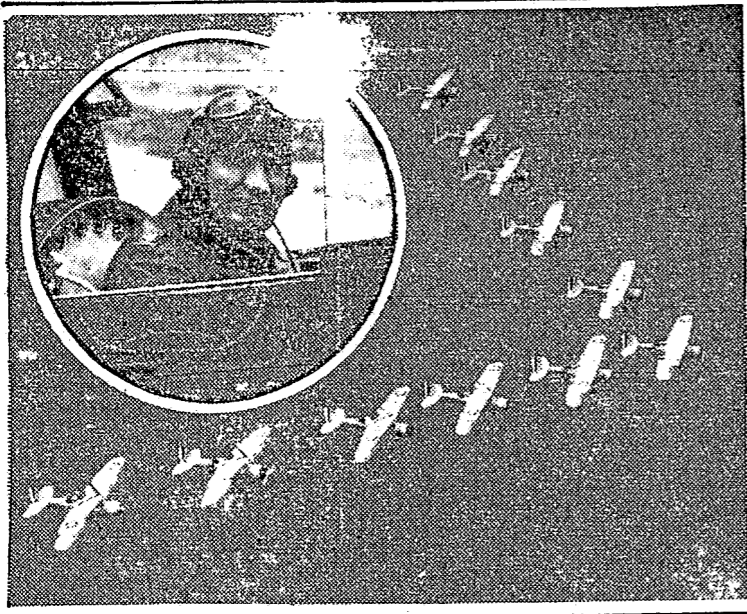

Collectors and philatelists in general throughout the country will appreciate the policy adopted by the agency in Washington in regard to notices of removal of commemoratives and sets that are almost exhausted. Formerly no notice has been given and such action would come as a complete surprise on the very day of the removal. Now word has been given out that there is possibly a month's supply of the Army-Navy stamps yet available. This series has been a popular one with collectors and likewise profitable to the government.

First offered to the public December 15, 1936, when the one cent denomination went on sale, an almost unbelievable amount of these stamps, 747,000,000, have been printed and sold.

Consisting of one, two, three, four and five cent of each denomination, they are now available at one set at 50c, with blocks and sheets in proportion.

The stock of the 1922-23 series is also becoming rapidly depleted, especially the lower denominations, and will be removed from sale in the very near future. The set consisted originally of 21 denominations but changes were made that brought it up to 25. A complete set of one stamp each of this series is available at $10.64.

SERVICE FLYERS TO THRILL AIR RACE CROWDS

The Army, Navy, and Marine Corps will again participate in the National Air Races, Cleveland, Sept. 3, 4, and 5. The great exhibition of Service Flyers in 1937 will long be remembered by the quarter of million spectators who watched their thrilling exhibitions on formation flying, group maneuvers, and aerobatic work. The 1938 performance is expected to match the 1937 Service Show in every respect.

This year the Army, in addition to daily exhibits in its various units in the air, will have an elaborate ground exhibition which will include a complete showing of the latest equipment for World War II and I.

For the Navy Department, Rear Admiral A. P. ... announced the participation of an 18-plane Navy Fighting Squadron from the U.S.S. YORKTOWN, and an 18-plane Marine Corps Fighting Squadron from Aircraft One, Fleet Marine Force, Quantico, Virginia.

All of these units will give daily exhibits throughout the 5-day program, with their last training flights managed by each pilot in turn. Each flight of the service flying routine will include full formation flights by each group, combat exercises, precision flying, and aerial maneuvers for which service pilots are noted.

Air Corps Repels "Invasion" During Test Maneuvers on Eastern Seaboard

Right: Communication center at the "wing" command at New Haven Airport, showing at the left some of the 39 teletypewriters installed at air bases from Massachusetts to Maryland and linked by 2200 miles of wire circuits, through which G.H.Q. directed the operations of the entire air force. Below: Pursuit planes in combat formation (Official U. S. Army Air Corps photo). Below, right: Boeing four-motored "flying fortress."

The most elaborate concentration of air forces ever staged by the U. S. Army took place not long ago when the Air Force was called upon to repel "invasions" on the New England and Virginia coasts. In addition to 220 planes, the maneuvers employed the most modern equipment and latest practices in aerial operations, including a teletypewriter system which interconnected the General Headquarters at Mitchel Field, N. Y., with the other 17 bases for the transmission of orders and the exchange of information.

"War exists between the United States and a coalition of Asiatic and European powers. Far out on the Atlantic a naval force of these powers is escorting troop transports and aircraft carriers obviously intent upon effecting a landing on the New England coast. Another force, with even more planes, has just left Europe, probably headed for Virginia."

That is the "poser" the Army put to its G.H.Q. Air Force recently, calling upon it to organize, on the ground and aloft, a line of defense which would frustrate these attacks. Just to make the problem a real one, the Army strategists left the Navy's Fleet in the Pacific, fully occupied with defensive operations there and unable to lend any very heavy support.

All Types of Planes Engaged Under the command of Major General Frank M. Andrews, the first message of the Air Force was to set up headquarters at Mitchel Field, Long Island, N. Y., with subsidiary air bases so located that their planes would be able to push defensive operations along the coast from Maine to Georgia.

Having settled upon this ground plan, General Andrews then put the Air Corps into the air en masse. Pursuit, attack and bombardment planes took off from California, Texas, Louisiana and airfields in between, with more than 3,000 men, in the most elaborate concentration by air that the Army has ever staged.

The maneuvers employed the most modern equipment and the very latest practices in aerial operations. In all, some 220 planes participated. There were swift Boeing pursuit planes and Seversky fighters, Douglas bombers, Northrop attack planes, and the great Boeing four-motored "flying fortresses." Besides this "flying stock," General Andrews' staff introduced a portable photo laboratory, portable runway lighting equipment, photoflash bombs big enough to light up a small town, and numerous other recently developed accessories of military aircraft.

Perhaps one of the most important tests conducted was that of a teletypewriter system that connected G.H.Q. at Mitchel Field with the other 17 air bases, scattered from Massachusetts to Maryland.

A Big Teletypewriter Network

The network set up circuits from G.H.Q. to the "wing" commands—one at Mitchel Field itself and the other two at Middletown, Pa., and New Haven, Conn. These in turn were linked by other circuits to smaller units radiating from the central points. Switching equipment permitted hooking the whole set-up together. In all there were 39 teletypewriters connected by circuits totalling approximately 2,200 miles in length.

Under the direction of Lieut. Colonel Cedric W. Lewis, U. S. Army Signal Corps, signal officer of G.H.Q. Air Force, there flowed over these wires "intelligence summaries"—the bulletins put out by headquarters that tell how the war is going; orders to the various units to scout an area or attack a theoretical enemy; weather reports summarizing the situation in the theatre of war from maps prepared at Mitchel Field by the Army's foremost meteorologists; orders, requests and reports regarding a steady stream of supplies feeding into the various air bases; and "PX" reports—the messages sent out by an airport announcing a plane's departure, so that the airport of destination will keep an eye open for it.

According to Colonel Lewis, the teletypewriter system handled an average of 20,000 words a day, and on one day he estimated that it handled 30,000 words.

On one occasion during the maneuvers it gave signal indication of its efficacy, when a magnetic storm struck North America. Although this disturbance not only played hob with short wave radio transmission in certain sections but generated voltages ranging from 500 to 1,000 volts in land lines, protective devices prevented interference with the teletypewriter system by the storm.

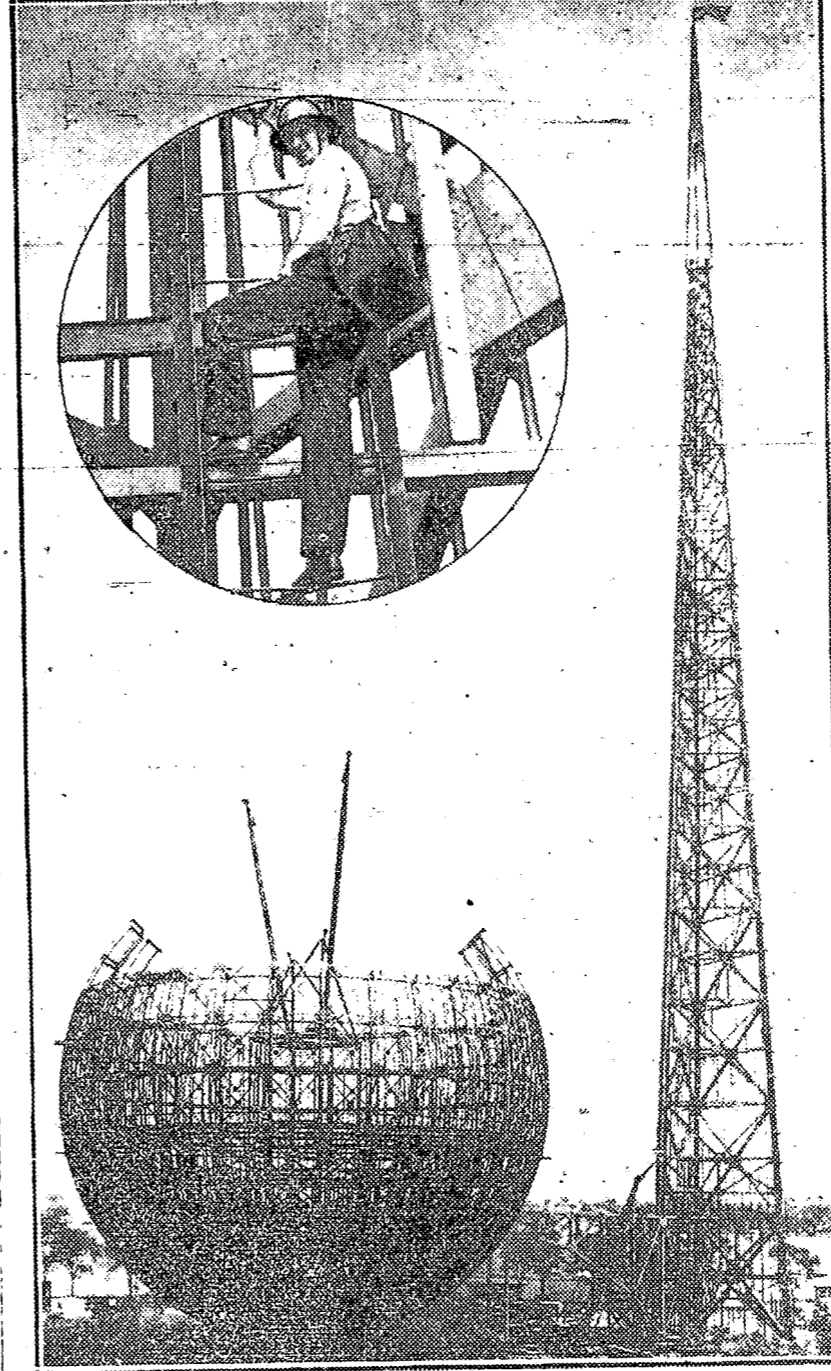

A Month's "War" in 7 Days

In the seven days covered by the problem, the eastern seaboard of the U.S.A. was treated to a succession of military events which would ordinarily occupy at least a month in even the most modern type of war.

Whether it's a real war or a make-believe, everybody concerned is much interested in proving who won it. According to Colonel Walter H. Frank, Chief of Staff, the actual damage sustained by G.H.Q. Air Force, in 7,000 plane-hours of flight, consisted of one bent propeller.

As to the theoretical results, they comprise a sequel that will be told in the reports of official messengers. At the close of hostilities, Invading Force Number One had been driven from the New England coast, while Invading Force Number Two had its foot in the door at the Virginia Capes. Of the enemy's ten airplane carriers, three had been sunk and two disabled, and the enemy had lost more than half its planes.

UP THE LADDER TO FAME

NEW YORK—It took Ross McKee of the New York Daily News 35 minutes to climb to the top of the 700 foot Trylon on the grounds of the New York World's Fair 1939. Once up he squeezed out on a 14-inch ledge and took panoramic pictures of the Fair grounds and snapshots of the giant 200 foot Perisphere, the framework for which is nearing completion.

McKee was the first cameraman to accomplish this feat. He followed in the footsteps of steel "birdmen" who had just planted the U. S. flag, marking the finish of the steel frame of the Trylon.

These two structures will be covered with stucco and, as the Theme Center of the Fair, will set the pace for the $150,000,000 Exposition.

FREE, with The Detroit Sunday Times, August 21 issue, will be an attractive action picture of Charlie Gehringer, the Detroit Tigers' great second baseman. It is a picture every baseball fan will be proud to possess. Be sure to get The Detroit Sunday Times.

Farmers Save by Amended Vehicle Law

Approximately $250,000 were saved to the farmers of Michigan this year as a result of the enactment of an amendment to the Motor Vehicle Law by the 1937 Session of the State Legislature.
The amendment to the act reduced the license fee on vehicles used exclusively for farm use to a flat rate of fifty cents per hundred. Prior to this year all farm trucks were assessed the regular fee charged to commercial trucks, the price range of which was from $.65 to $1.25 per hundred.
The amendment was urged upon the legislature by the Secretary of State as a just concession to the farmers of Michigan whose vehicles are used almost entirely on the farm and used on the highways only incidentally to their real use. This amended fee schedule applies also to hearses and ambulances.
The 1939 license plates for farm trucks will have inscribed on them the words, "Farm Comm." to afford protection to the State against any attempts at abuse of the provisions of the amended act.
License plates for all motor vehicles may now be purchased at half price and may be used until March 1, 1939.

TRADE COMPACTS HELP TO FARMERS

M. S. C. Professor Points to Advantages Gained Trade agreements hold definite promise of benefiting Michigan agriculture and industry.
In a survey of trade agreement effects, M. C. Gay, department of economics of Michigan State College, finds exports and imports go hand in hand, that this country cannot be widely prosperous as a self sufficient unit and that Michigan especially would be affected by arbitrary blocking of trade channels in foreign markets.
Gay points to the Canadian trade agreement as particularly important to Michigan. In 1936 he finds that exports to Canada increased almost $61,000,000 over 1935, an increase of 18 per cent, while imports from Canada gained $81,000,000. The drought gets the blame for this, for in the first nine months of 1937 we sent an increase of 38 per cent in exports to Canada while imports increased but 18 per cent.

Michigan livestock income jumped from 91 millions in 1934 to 142 millions in 1937. Dairy interests find the trade agreement has not held back betetr prices. Imports of cream increased in 1937, yet prices in Michigan were higher and the Canadians exercised only 10 per cent of their quota.
"Our economy is so geared as to require a large foreign trade to maintain its smooth operation," says Dr. Gay. "A large import and export trade means greater production, greater consumption, more employment, more purchasing power and, in general, a higher standard of living." His explanations are "printed more fully in the current issue of the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station Quarterly Bulletin dated August.
The sport of fishing is believed to be nearly 4,000 years old.
Forty-four pulp mills in the South have an annual capacity of 3,058,000 cords of wood, equal to the yearly production of about 9,000,000 acres of forest land.
