Large Crowd Attends Annual Junior Play

Last Friday evening a large crowd packed the High School Auditorium to see the annual Jumor play. This year, after much deliberation, the class selected "Aunt Abby Answers an Ad" and since the night of the presentation the class as well as those who attended have decided that the choice was an exceptionally good

From start to finish the crowd was kept laughing. The cast was a fine one and every student was quite at home on the stage. One feature of the play that was appreciated by the audience was the ease with which they could hear the voices. It was not necessary to strain the ears to hear any one of the players. The class advertised their play as an evening of fun and they did not exaggerate in the least. At one time when the disguised widower called at the home of Aunt Abby and made love or tried to make love to the maid when he thought he was talking to Aunt Abby the crowd went into fits of laughter until words from the stage were unheard and all the players had to do was act. The school orchestra under the leadership of Orlo Willoughby opened the program and between the first and second acts he led the violin, clarinet, piano and trumpet classes in several numbers. Musicaby the High School students is always appreciated.

After the final curtain the class presented their director, Miss Dorothy Cohen, and Mrs. Ronald Walter and Mrs. Warren Strait, who assisted, with gifts of appreciation.

Many comments were heard in the school corridor after the play had ended, all favorable of course, and by vice, and the Clarkston Youth Vested the talk of a great many one would Juniors are headed for Hollywood or a dramatic career elsewhere.

The. Juniors and their director are to be congratulated.

Mrs. Walter-

The World History Class is beginning a study of advancement in art, science, music, literature, medicine, etc. in the latter nineteenth and early twentieth centuries.

Both American History Classes will begin a study of the World War soon. We hope that a study of some of the factors that helped to bring it about will enable us to better interpret the complicated happenings in the foreign situation today. We hope, too, to learn just how we became involved in the war so that we may know a little more about the course for the United States to follow, or not to follow, in the future.

The Economics class has completed its study of banking and banking problems. We are now learning about stocks and the stock market. Each member of the class is graphing the closing figures of one particular assigned stock. These graphs are posted on the bulletin board where all may see them. Each member has been 'given" $15,000 to invest in stocks. This project will last for several weeks. We hope to have a great deal of fun as well as to learn more about stocks in doing this. SENIOR CLASS NEWS We wish to make an apology to Betty Jean Clark because of an error in our commencement news last week. She is one of the members of the Senior Commencement Committee and because of an omission was not given credit for her work. What will the Seniors be wearing for graduation? What color will the clothes be? These two questions seem to be the center of much discussion and criticism both in the Senior Home Room and elsewhere. The majority of the class seemed in favor of caps and gowns. Samples were sent for and five gowns were received-two blue, two white, and one gray. Because of the material and tailoring the gray gown seemed to be the favorite of the class, although the blue gowns were also quite popular. Will (continued on page 4)

Special Finishes for Floors and Walls

By Vaughn S. Garrison, Manager, Pontiac Varnish Company's Paint Store, Pontiac, Michigan

Painted floors and linoleum with worn patterns can be given an interesting finish in the following manner. First apply a coat of floor enamel of any desired color and allow to dry of sponge and trim one side to a flat surface with a sharp knife or shears.

board and make one impression on make another impression, repeating the process until the whole floor is ministration of said deceased, and that ad-ministration of said estate be granted the sponge, Several stipple colors can be applied by using a separate sponge and palette board for each color. When the stippling is dry, varnish. Walls can be stippled in the same way, and there is another easily applied attractive finish called "Scumbling"

To scumble a wall, first paint it with any desired wall paint or enamel. Then make up a scumble coat by adding a color in oil, such as Raw Sienna or Van Dyke brown to glazing liquid, and apply it to the wall. The scumble pattern is produced by pressing, rolling, or patting this coat while it is still wet with newspaper or rags. Loosely crumpled paper gives a coarse pattern, tightly wadded paper a fine pattern, and numerous other variations can be obtained as desired.

Tinted glazing liquid is also used for "antiquing" walls and woodwork. Paint the surface first with white enamel. When thoroughly dry, apply the glazing liquid as a sort of wash coat. Then before this dries wipe it off with a soft cloth, removing it from the surface but leaving slight amounts in corners and depressions. This gives a light ivory finish. Other finishes are obtained by varying the day of April A. D. 1939. ground coat and the tint used in the glazing liquid.

• Exterior paints made by the Pontiac Varnish Company seal your property against the weather. They keep out the dampness that leaks into joints and cracks, rotting the interior woodwork.

Inspect your home for signs of paint failure. Look around the window frames for open cracks where moisture can leak in . . . look for rust at nail holes. Don't wait until paint is so chalky that it can be brushed off with the hand, or until it scales and chips. Your house will look better and you will save money if you give it paint protection.

IT PAYS TO USE GOOD PAINT

Good paint is a sound investment. Exterior paints made by the Pontiac Varnish Company will endure against the assaults of the weather and will hold their colors longer. Pontiac Varnish Company paints are easier to apply and give better coverage per gallon.

If you plan to do the painting yourself, there are full directions on each can of paint, and also on the color charts which are furnished free at this store. We also sell a complete line of thinners, oils, and other painting supplies.
