Fishing

Say, have you ever had the joy Of going fishing with your boy? And hunting out a quiet spot, That other men had all forgot? And give that rod and line a swish,

And set about to catch some fish? If you've done this you'll understand You've joined in kind of secret band. Then, as you sit beneath the skies And peer into each other's eyes, You'll find a quality so rare,

Not found in any other pair, The boy is gone and so's the dad For which both parties sure are glad. It's just like being in a dream-

Equality reigns here supreme. You're just a pair of happy souls, The size and numbers that you land, And tug of line held in your hand, Will do their share to give a
