To start the day the Bellows telephone rang and when Mrs. Bellows answered a tiny voice, none other than that of little Phyllis Kay Robinson, sang "Happy Birthday". Then shortly after noon a lovely birthday dinner was served on the beautiful grounds at the rear of the home. The birthday cake made by Mrs. David Newlands centered the table. Just as the meal was about over Mrs. Newlands and her guests, her two nieces, appeared on the scene and they sang "Happy Birthday".

Car Owners Urged To Destroy Old Plates

Harry F. Kelly, Secretary of State, today warned car owners that when they buy full year license plates to replace half plates expiring August 31st, they must destroy the half plates.

"The half plates are good until August 31", said Mr. Kelly, "and unless destroyed might fall into improper hands and be used illegally on other cars."

An earlier ruling by the department required full year plate purchasers to surrender half year plates to the department, but due to inconvenience to great numbers of persons who neglected to bring old plates with them the rule has been modified.

Instead, purchasers are being warned that failure to destroy old plates might cause them trouble should the tags fall into the hands of criminals.

Full year plates at half price were placed on sale July 10.

Harry F. Kelly, Secretary of State, placed the full year plates on sale at half price three weeks earlier than last year, in an effort to expedite the re-licensing of 500,000 cars in the state, now operating with first half tags, and to stimulate the sale of new cars.

NEW EXPERIMENTS ARE TO BE SHOWN

On Farmers' Day at Michigan State College July 26

Some queer looking contraptions, which prove that farming may be the oldest profession in the world but still has some wrinkles to iron out, are to be viewed by the thousands who attend Farmers' Day at Michigan State College on Friday, July 26.

How about a chimney in a hay stack?

It's an attempt by S. T. Dexter in the farm crops department to cure out exceptionally green hay without having it spoil or get caught out in the field in a rain. Two identical stacks of green material were placed recently out on the farm for the test, with one equipped with a crude chimney. The idea is that as the hay gets warm the chimney takes away the heat and creates a draft. This draws in air through the hay, aiding in the curing process.

On another portion of the college farm, near the experimental barn east of the dairy barn, is another experiment.

This was developed by H. H. Musselman, head of the agricultural engineering department. It is an above-ground trench silo, filled with green cut material treated with molasses.

Musselman has placed discarded barrels, filled with water, on one end so that the weight can help exclude air from the fermenting feed. On the other end, Dexter has covered up the silage with building paper and has sealed out the air with a layer of water. Some of the feed is to be examined Farmers' Day.

In other spots on the farm, the Michigan Experiment State will be open for the day for inspection by visitors. General programs are scheduled from 9:30 to 10:30 a. m. and from 1:30 to 3 p. m.

Clarkston 4-H Club To Meet Tuesday

The Clarkston 4-H Club will meet at the home of Kenneth Beard on Deer Lake Road on Tuesday evening, July 22nd, at 8:00 o'clock. All members are urged to be present. "Judging" will be the main topic of the evening and this should be very interesting as this club ranks with the highest in the county for judging ability.

New Dock Is Built At East Tawas

Completion of a 520-foot extension to a pier now jutting into Tawas bay from East Tawas state park is to provide an 872-foot breakwater, only boat shelter between Bay City and Alpena along the Lake Huron shore.

Also, it will provide elbow room for several hundred more fishermen who flock to Tawas City and the bay when the perch are running.

The dock extension, stone-filled log orris, will break the force of waves stirred by prevailing southwest winds and create a safe anchorage for small craft. The dock will extend about seven feet above the lake surface. WPA labor is employed in its construction.
