Over the course of the last few weeks the school building has been thoroughly cleaned and the floors and fixtures shine as though they had been just newly installed. Everything has been done to make the children and the teachers comfortable.

Plenty Smart

We find deep in each human heart A feeling that the guy is smart, Many's the taunt that he has hurled— At people in this cockeyed world And he can tell each mother's son The way each job ought to be done. We know he's failed at every turn But yet it seems he'll never learn To find someone who's learned to live And take advice that he could give. But I am pleased that this complex Is not confined to just my sex. Out in a restaurant today I saw a girl to my dismay— With lips a fire engine red, And brows plucked from her pretty head. Sit with girls and there engage In talk away beyond their age. And she would take a sip of Coke And then inhale a drag of smoke. I must have been born way too soon To eat a meal like this at noon. And have a longing in my heart, To tell the cockeyed world I'm smart. Robert C. Beattie.

HOLLY THEATRE

Laughs, long and hearty, will be the order of the day when the new comedy, "I Love You Again," co-starring William Powell and Myrna Loy, reaches the Holly Theatre Sunday for an engagement of two days. Never in the careers of these two favorites have they appeared in a more hilarious film. From beginning to end, the picture piles laugh upon laugh in a series of the maddest situations ever conceived by a group of authors.

The story, in brief, deals with the plight of a man who, through an accidental crack on the head, suddenly recovers from an attack of amnesia which has lasted over a period of eight years. It is a definite shock to him when he learns that during this eight years' time he has acquired not only a charming wife who is about to divorce him, but a spotless reputation as a civic leader in the community of Habersville, a fair-sized bank account, and the manager's berth in a large pottery factory. Adding humor to the situation is the fact that in his pre-amnesia days he was a confidence man of no mean abilities. His decision to return to Habersville and ply his former trade behind his snow-white reputation makes for the tops in comedy.

Not in some time has Powell been handed a role more suited to his abilities. Myrna Loy gets a brief vacation from her characterization as the "perfect wife", a vacation long enough for her to plant a plate of scrambled eggs over the head of her spouse. The supporting cast includes Frank McHugh as Powell's buddy, "Doc" Ryan, Edmund Lowe as a slick oil promoter, Donald Douglas as Miss Loy's model boy-friend, Nella Walker as her mother, Carl "Alfalfa" Switzer of the "Our Gang" comedies, Pierre Watkins, Paul Stanton, Morgan Wallace and Charles Arnt. The picture was directed by W. S. Van Dyke II.

Mr. Dunckel and the Republican candidates in the county were introduced and welcomed. In addressing the group Mr. Dunckel thanked the Republican women for their many courtesies and then pledged himself to a state program which would result in the appropriation of sufficient funds to maintain schools for a full term and guarantee a decent wage to teachers; to care for the crippled and afflicted children; to aid the aged and feed and clothe the unfortunates. He stressed the need for an adequate program without further burdening those who pay the bills.

The large dining-room was very attractive with two long tables covered with lace cloths and gaily decorated with a patriotic color scheme. Red, white and blue flowers centered the tables and were used about the room. Red, white and blue candles and crystal elephants also graced the tables. Even the refreshments wherever possible were red, white and blue. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Herbert Lavigne presided at the tea table.

MEAT EXHIBIT AT STATE FAIR

Will Show What Michigan Can Do in That Line

Michigan's leadership over 34 other states in the production of meat is the basis for an educational meat exhibit at the Michigan State Fair at Detroit, August 31 to Sept. 8. The exhibit is to be set up by the National Live Stock and Meat Board with the cooperation of Michigan State College and the State Fair management.

Stretching food dollars will be one phase of the meat show. Another will include meat dishes for parties. Sausage is to get another section of the show, as well as lard and the use of meats in reducing diets.

Beef, pork and lamb cuts are included in the thrift exhibit, explains Paul Goesser, member of the staff of the Live Stock and Meat Board. Beef cuts include blade steak and cross-cut shanks. Economical pork cuts will include butterfly ham slices and cushion pork shoulder, and the lamb economies will be displayed by cuts of rolled lamb shoulder and lamb trotters.

The party hints will suggest porterhouse steak, crown roast of pork and English lamb chops. The sausage suggestions are to be included because of their part in providing wider variety in the daily menu.

Charles Umlauf, well known lard sculptor, will borrow from the current political campaign for his lard motif. He plans to carve out a Democratic donkey and a Republican elephant and depict them in a race to the White House. Transparencies of cakes, cookies and doughnuts are to be revolved to show the texture given to foods by the use of lard.

CARILLON BELLS WILL RING AGAIN

At Christ Church Cranbrook During Coming Month

The bells of the carillon at Christ Church Cranbrook on Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills will again peal forth for the enjoyment of music lovers on Sundays and Wednesdays during September when Anton Brees, master carillonneur, returns to Cranbrook.

Mr. Brees has played at Cranbrook every year excepting 1939, since he dedicated the bells at Christ Church on September 30, 1928. His concerts have become a traditional event for people of the greater Detroit area as well as those of near-by towns in southeastern Michigan.

Anton Brees began the career of carillonneur at the age of sixteen under his father, Gustaaf Brees. His father was organist and carillonneur at Antwerp Cathedral and several years ago celebrated his fiftieth anniversary in his position. Anton Brees also studied at Malines, Belgium, under Jes Denyn who then was the most famous carillonneur in the world. Mr. Brees finally was recognized as Laureate of the Royal Flemish Conservatory. In 1923, Anton Brees played the carillon at the War Memorial in Loughborough, England. It was there in Loughborough where the famous Taylor Bell Foundry is located which executed the order for Christ Church Cranbrook. There is a real art in bell making and the secrets of the profession have been handed down from father to son for many generations.

Mr. Brees came to this country in 1924. He has been the pioneer of approximately thirty carillons in America. He is the director of the first carillon school at Mountain Lake, Florida, where the Bok Singing Tower is located. This school is connected with the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

There are sixty-two bells in the carillon at Christ Church. The largest bell weighs 6,700 pounds and the smallest, fourteen pounds. The bells are tuned to the notes of the chromatic scale. The bells themselves are stationary and are played by the carillonneur from a clavier which is similar to the manuals and pedals of an organ. A system of levers connected with the clavier moves the clappers which hang from the inside of the bells.

Interest in these concerts has increased each year. It was estimated that more than 20,000 people enjoyed them last year. Winding roads and ample parking space provide the aisles for an outdoor auditorium accommodating thousands in their own cars. The music is best heard at distances of 500 to 1,000 feet. The Sunday concerts commence at 5 p. m. after the four o'clock vespers in the Church. The Wednesday evening concerts begin at 8 p. m. The first concert will be held on Sunday afternoon, September 1.

For Homemakers

Science has reduced the failures in home canning, although the process is only a little more than a century in age. Greater appreciation of home canned vegetables has resulted.

For homemakers who want to be sure of their methods in home canning, home economists of Michigan State College recommend certain general rules.

First of all, be sure vegetables are fresh. Materials lose flavor and quality when they are held over for any length of time. Good quality vegetables are essential, because a bit of decay can be responsible for spoiling an entire batch.

Precook vegetables and have them hot when they go into the cans or jars. Precooking shortens the time of processing, and also saves the bother of "exhausting" the cans to get out the air before sealing them.

Fill only as many jars or cans as equipment permits processing at one time. If the cans of warm vegetables are allowed to stand long before processing, the bacteria in them will multiply very rapidly.

Use a steam pressure canner for peas, corn, snap beans, lima beans, and all nonacid vegetables. The only way to be sure of killing all the bacteria in these vegetables is to raise the temperature to 240° to 250° F.

Be sure to label each can or jar and to keep complete records of each batch—the kind of food, the date canned, and the method of processing. Then if anything goes wrong, you can trace back and find the cause of spoilage. Use a timetable and exact directions to escape errors and failures.

Explains Policies Of Red Cross

The following release is published at the request of the officers of the local Red Cross chapter. Washington, D. C.—Chairman Norman H. Davis, in answer to various inquiries as to the present policy and activities of the American Red Cross in respect to European War Relief, has issued the following statement: "It is the policy of the American Red Cross to extend relief where it is most urgently needed, providing it has the necessary freedom of action and safeguards for carrying out the distribution of its supplies to the actual victims, whether refugees or war wounded soldiers."

"At present there are three distinct areas where such need exists and where assistance has been requested: First, Great Britain; Second, the unoccupied portion of France; and Third, those territories under German Occupation."

"With regard to the first we have set up an American Red Cross Committee in England and are sending medical and hospital equipment, clothing and other supplies, including food, as rapidly as tonnage is available."

"With regard to the unoccupied portion of France the S. S. McKeesport loaded with all sorts of supplies and enjoying safe conduct from the British blockade authorities is now headed for Marseilles where its cargo will be distributed to the millions of refugees and war wounded in Southern France under the direction of American Red Cross representatives. In addition, a trainload of Children's food is now enroute to the same region from Geneva."

"With regard to the third area, namely occupied territory, we have been extending aid in Poland with funds contributed for that specific purpose. This program is under American Red Cross supervision, thus safeguarding control over the ultimate destination of supplies. As for other occupied territories, aid to the sick and wounded and to refugees, particularly children, is being extended only in Paris and vicinity under the direction of Wayne Chatfield Taylor, American Red Cross delegate working in cooperation with the American Hospital and French Red Cross."

"Beyond this limited activity the American Red Cross is not extending any relief in the occupied portions of France. There are certain questions of policy and inherent difficulties such as blockade transportation, delivery and control of distribution which at the present time are most difficult of solution. The needs for relief which are daily increasing in the areas where we are now operating and in which we may operate in the future will require continued large outlays."

"In this connection I want to point out that none of the supplies of the Red Cross have been interfered with by any government or diverted from the needy for whom the supplies were intended, and the American people can rest assured that we do not intend to engage in any operations not adequately safeguarded and which do not give consideration to the wishes of those who have so generously contributed to the work."

The Golden Text (John 3:17) is: "God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Matt. 5:16): "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good words, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 25): "Though demonstrating his control over sin and disease, the great Teacher by no means relieved others from giving the requisite proofs of their own piety. He worked out their guidance, that they might demonstrate this power as he did and understand its divine Principle."
