A new thermostat that is standard equipment in the water circulating system of all 1941 Pontiac cars allows the circulation of more heat from heaters without danger of losing volatile anti-freeze solutions. FEEDING ADVICE FOR POULTRYMEN

Authority Tells How to Obtain Eggs of High Hatchability

A reputation for eggs with a high hatchability rating will bring repeat orders and a good premium for careful poultrymen, says J. A. Davidson, associate professor of poultry at Michigan State College.

These dark winter days special care is in order that the ration contains plenty of the essential vitamins which play an important role in making the eggs pop out lively chicks at the end of 21 days instead of being culled as profitless duds, Davidson explains. Essential vitamins can be provided by including alfalfa meal, cod liver or other fish oils, yellow corn, and different forms of dried or concentrated milk in the ration. It requires approximately 50 per cent more vitamin D for good hatchability than for regular egg production, he adds. A ration containing seven to ten per cent of dehydrated alfalfa meal, five per cent of dried milk, three per cent of dried fish meal and three per cent of cod liver oil of 80-unit strength will contain enough of the important elements to insure good viability.

Other feeding recommendations include having a variety of proteins and feeding a mash with a protein content of 18 to 20 per cent. In the case of heavy breeds, hatchability is often enhanced by the addition of eight to ten ounces of manganese sulphate per ton of mash.

Another factor in insuring viable eggs is use of sufficient males in the flock. For Leghorns six males to 100 hens is ample, while heavy breeds require seven to eight males for a flock of this size.

In addition to care in feeding, a little attention to gathering and handling will pay dividends. Frequent gathering (at least every hour during freezing weather), keeping nests clean, and storing in a moist place at a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees. Hatching eggs should not be held more than one week before going into the incubator, Davidson warns, and if necessary to hold more than five days, they should be placed pointed end down and the container tilted at a different end each day.

A large crowd attended the O. E. S. school of instruction on Monday night. The Grand Martha, Mrs. Marion Knight of Detroit, gave the instructions. Visitors were present from Oxford, Ortonville and Pontiac.

The all school dance will be held at the school on Saturday night starting at 9:00 o'clock. Don Smith's orchestra will furnish the music. The theme of the Program was "Our Christian Faith and Democracy". In addition to the addresses by outstanding national and international figures, three Forums met which dealt with (1) Pastoral Counseling; (2) The Church and Its Community; (3) Church and State. Over eleven denominational groups were present for the Conference and over three hundred ministers were in attendance.

HOLLY THEATRE

Introducing Judy Garland in her first solo starring role and in her first "grown up" love affair, "Little Nellie Kelly", coming to the Holly Theatre Sunday for an engagement of 2 days, is heralded as giving the popular young actress her fullest opportunity dramatically to date. Stepping temporarily out of "kid" roles, Miss Garland becomes a grown-up and adds new glory to her acting and singing fame. Teamed with her for histrionic honors are George Murphy and Charles Winninger, with an excellent supporting cast.

The story, based on George M. Cohan's famous play, deals with a young Irish girl who marries against the wishes of her father, who vows that he will never, so long as he lives, speak to her husband. He keeps his in spite of the fact that he, along with the other two, comes to America to live. In America the daughter dies, leaving behind her an infant named Nellie. As the child grows older she is torn between love for her father and love for her grandfather. In the end the two men are reconciled through her efforts.

Miss Garland portrays both roles, enacting first the young Irish mother and later the thoroughly Americanized daughter. The songs she sings include "It's a Great Day for the Irish", "Pretty Girl Milking Her Cow," and the more modern "Singin' in the Rain."

Murphy is seen as Miss Garland's husband, and later as her father. Charles Winninger appears as the grandfather. The young baritone, Douglas McPhail, remembered for work in "Babes in Arms," is the romantic interest of the young Nellie, and Arthur Shields, of the Abbey Players, is McPhail's father. The film was directed by Norman Taurog, director of such human documents as "Boys' Town". Arthur Freed produced.

Drafted for a Purpose

I clasped your hand and bid you bye
And saw a tear come in your eye
No doubt you too could also note
A lump had come and filled my throat.
My friend, I think you'll always know
How hard it was to have you go.
Since you have gone I've pondered long
Why you were picked from all this throng

To send to camp to learn to fight
It seemed to me it wasn't right
And I think you will always know
How hard it was to have you go.
But now I think I see the light
Although I pray you'll never fight
I like to think in God's great plan
That He's picked jobs for every man
And in this camp you'll find He'll show

You many things that you should know.
I think he's picked the Cream of Youth
Who're bright enough to grasp the truth
Who can influence other men
That they might never fight again
If you'll teach this that all might know
It's not so hard to have you go.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (II Sam. 22: 1,21): "And David spake unto the Lord the words of this song in the day that the Lord had delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul: The Lord rewarded me according to my righteousness: according to the cleanness of my hands hath he recompensed me."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p.238): "The eternal Truth destroys what mortals seem to have learned from error, and man's real existence as a child of God comes to light."

The Hilltopper

Tuesday, January 14, the team packed up for a long trip to Linden for a scrimmage game before Friday. This team beat Clarkston's first team 10 to 29. Last Friday Clarkston went to Keego Harbor. Keego won the championship last year and haven't lost a game yet this year. Our home teams gave Keego two hard games, but lost them both. The second team score was Clarkston 16, Keego 37. The first team game was near the same score. Clarkston 16, Keego 39.

The starting lineup for the first team game was: Wilcox—forward; Wainman—forward; Perrin—center; Shaughnessy—guard; Smith—guard; Edwin Ross, who substituted for Smith, was high pointman with 5 points.

This Tuesday and Friday two games will be held here with Linden and Walled Lake, respectively. Plan to attend and furnish the well deserved support for the team.

MUSIC

Books have been ordered for the "Black Face Musical Comedy" to be presented early in March. Several new members have enrolled in chorus and it is the largest in the High School history.

To think we are able is almost to be so; to determine upon attainment is frequently attainment itself; earnest resolution has often seemed to have about it almost a savor of omniscience.—Smiles.

Democratic Women Name Officers

Mrs. Donald Adams was named President of the Oakland County Democratic Women's Division at its annual meeting held at Hotel Waldron, Pontiac, Tuesday evening. Five vice-presidents were re-elected as follows: Mrs. Ralph Marriott, Mrs. Emma Wheaton, Mrs. Grace Haddrill, Mrs. Hilla Williard, and Miss Margaret Ormond.

Other re-elections were Mrs. Odin Johnson, recording secretary; Mrs. Charlotte Osmun, financial secretary. One new officer, Mrs. Blanche M. Towar, was named as auditor.

For Homemakers

Many of the foods produced at home are the protective foods so important in making an adequate diet, says members of the home economics department of Michigan State College.

Most valuable land on the farm can be the acre or two used for a vegetable garden, and perhaps some berry bushes and fruit trees. Dairy products and eggs produced on most farms for home use are also 'musts' for every good diet, they point out.

Home economics and horticulture specialists on the college staff have been planning for two months a program of information for "Feeding the Family First" in Michigan. These plans precede one that since is being projected into other states by the United States Department of Agriculture as a measure of national home defense.

Garden records kept each year in planning production for succeeding years. Even if no records have been kept in past years, there is still ample time to lay plans for the coming spring, say the home economists. This involves estimating the amounts of different foods that each member of the family will need. The college home economics and horticulture staffs, county or home demonstration agents and federal Farm Security agents can aid in computing these figures.

"Then on the basis of these figures, estimate how much of this food you can produce at home economically," say department members. "You can work this out in terms of rows of vegetables, gallons of milk, and so on. For instance, if there are three children in the family you will need about 950 gallons of milk for drinking, cooking and making butter and cheese. This will require at least two cows the year around. Also, you can estimate the amount of butchering, number of chickens to raise, the layout of the vegetable garden and a year-round canning schedule."

Race in Springfield For Supervisor

Ira E. Kinney, a resident of Davisburg for many years and well known in the community, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Supervisor of Springfield township at the primary election on Monday, Feb. 17. Mr. Kinney is now one of the justices of the peace of the township. Edward F. Cook, the present supervisor, will be a candidate for renomination, and it is understood that Howard Hillman, a former supervisor will also be in the race. The Democrats are also reported to be preparing to file petitions and to enter a full ticket headed by another former supervisor, Fred W. Walls.

Conservation Notes

To be ready May 1, the conservation department's new training school on the north side of Higgins lake will provide quarters and classrooms next summer for several hundred public school teachers enrolled for short courses of conservation study.

Also, the new school will provide facilities for more intensive training of conservation officers and members of the department's forestry, parks, fish and game division staffs.

Construction of new buildings has been carried on over a three-year period by Higgins Lake CCC camp enrollees. Buildings are of concrete and wood construction.

Site of the new school, adjoining the Higgins lake state forest, was chosen because it is close to the center of conservation activity in Michigan and is near fish hatcheries, the forest fire experiment station at Roscommon, forest nurseries and state parks.

Last season 377 teachers in Michigan schools, and normal school students, enrolled for short courses in conservation study. The new school will make possible larger classes in the future. Awaiting completion of new buildings at Higgins lake, the conservation department's field training activity has been carried on in headquarters buildings on the Pigeon River state forest east of Vanderbilt.

Field trips and demonstrations are an important part of the conservation courses arranged for teachers and normal school students.
