Bonds Purchased by Pay Roll Allotment

Participation to Be Entirely Voluntary
Employees of Consumers Power Company soon will be able to purchase United States Defense Savings Bonds through voluntary pay roll allotment, D. E. Karn, vice president and general manager of Consumers, announced today.
Mr. Karn said the plan will become effective as soon as the clerical details can be worked out and a supply of printed forms obtained. He predicted that it will be in operation early in January.
"This plan is being inaugurated as a service to our employees and to the Government," Mr. Karn said.
"A great many of our employees already have bought Defense Bonds and others have expressed a wish to do so. The Company is attempting to make the purchase of bonds as easy and convenient as possible, believing that if an employee buys a Defense Bond he not only renders his Country a patriotic service but also makes a sound and wise investment for himself."
"Through the pay roll allotment plan, purchase of Defense Bonds will become automatic. Participation will be entirely voluntary. An employee who wishes to buy a bond will simply authorize the Company to deduct an appropriate amount from his pay check every month until the bond has been paid for. It thereupon will be registered in his name, or in such manner as he desires, and delivered to him by the Government."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Sacrament" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, January 11.
The Golden Text (I Cor. 5:8) is: "Let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth."
Among the Bible citations is this passage (Luke 22:41,42): "And he was withdrawn from them about a stone's cast, and kneeled down, and prayed, Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me; nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done."
Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p.38): "When the human element in him struggled with the divine, our great Teacher said: 'Not my will, but Thine, be done!—that is, Let not the flesh, but the Spirit, be represented in me.'"

Production Unit To Start Work In Clarkston

Sewing Machines Are Needed

At the meeting held in the Town Hall in Clarkston last Friday afternoon at which Mrs. Sheldon Noble of Pontiac explained the branches of the Red Cross work that could be carried out in this vicinity, plans were started for a production unit. The work will consist chiefly of sewing and knitting.

Mrs. Robert Waters was appointed as chairman of the sewing with Mrs. Ronald Walter doing the clerical work. Mrs. Joseph Seeterlin will continue as chairman of the Red Cross soliciting campaign here. The town hall will be used as a sewing-room and dates for the meetings will be announced just as soon as Mrs. Waters has been able to secure enough sewing machines to begin work. Anyone who has a sewing machine that they would be willing to leave at the town hall or if any have portable machines that they would use themselves or permit someone else to use is requested to get in touch with Mrs. Waters or Mrs. Walter as quickly as possible.

The women of this community are anxious to help and this is a splendid opportunity as the Red Cross needs are great. You are also asked to remember that the Red Cross needs cash and the campaign to raise our share is now on. Mrs. Seeterlin has helpers in the Clarkston State Bank and in the Post Office ready to take your donation.

The Last Hour

Eleven P. M. by the clock in the steeple,
The last of the passing old year,
A time when the world with millions of people
Are set for a night of good cheer.
Bright spots by the highway ring out in laughter,
And singing rings out in the air,
And vibrates the rooms from rafter to rafter,
Relieving a world of its care.
Folks who are serious will pass resolutions
To mend all their sins of the past,
In one short hour, will seek the solutions
Of changing the dies they have cast.
To live back a year in just one fleeting hour
Undoing the wrong that's been done,
And eyeing the hands on the clock in the tower
Is a race that never is won.
I liken this to the man who is passing,
Who has but one hour to stay,
And visions misdeeds thru life he's been massing
With only one hour to pray.
His job is so big in one hopeless hour,
Undoing the wrongs of his years,
And watching the hands on the clock in the tower
Thru eyes that are clouded with tears.
For all that I know there isn't a power
That ever has found any way
Of condensing the time in one single hour,
That God has planned out for a day.
If I was to judge, I would think I would need
A year to relive every year,
That I had mispent by word or by deed,
Before my great path would be clear.

Brush Piles Afford Game Protection

Don't Burn Them If You Like Wild Life

Brush piles produced by winter cutting on farm woodlots will provide food and shelter for rabbits, quail, grouse and other small game, if only farmers will refrain from burning the heaps of budded twigs and small branches, according to conservation department game men.

Branches from trees cut at this time of year, if left in piles, provide palatable food for rabbits all winter and discourage the animals from feeding on bark of living orchard or shade trees.

Game men report that quail and grouse often use brushpiles as roosting places, if they are not too far removed from the wooded areas.

Brush put in gullies on farms is helpful in halting soil erosion and in healing the scars, and at the same time furnishes homes for rabbits. Accumulation of brush in woodlots and in unused field corners will in no way interfere with farming and can prove beneficial to the farmer by increasing the farm's stock of small game.

Big brushpiles, up to five feet high and 15 feet in diameter, are recommended for maximum assistance to game.

What then remains? Courage, and patience, and simplicity, and kindness, and last of all, ideas remain; these are the things to lay hold of and live with.—A. C. Benson.

A Real Year 'Rounder

By BETTY BARCLAY

We may honestly call the lemon a "real year 'rounder" or "a one hundred per cent fruit." Lemons are on the market all the months of the year.

In fact, the lemon actually goes the limit as a year 'rounder. The tree itself never takes a vacation. It is often possible to find buds, blossoms and fully ripened fruit on the same tree at the same time.

Lemons are the only known source of Vitamin P, or citric acid, and an excellent source of Vitamin C, a good source of Vitamin B1; and lemons also aid digestion.

Lemon Shortcake
Beat 1 egg until very thick. Add 1/2 cup sugar and the grated rind of 1 lemon. Peel the lemon, removing all traces of rind. Then cut into small pieces, discarding the seeds and fibrous parts.

For Homemakers

Inter-country diplomacy which has made "good neighbors" of South and Central American countries reflects itself on the average Michigan dinner table.

Even when home economists at Michigan State College recommend wider use of homegrown produce including a wide variety of Michigan fruits and vegetables, the authorities still give credit for added variety and some of the spice of eating to more southern sources.

In a recent compilation by the federal bureau of home economics, some of these food sources are indicated. That morning cup of coffee, even when blended from varieties of several different countries, still means South America.

THE STORY OF ELECTRICITY

Number One in a series published by The Detroit Edison Company

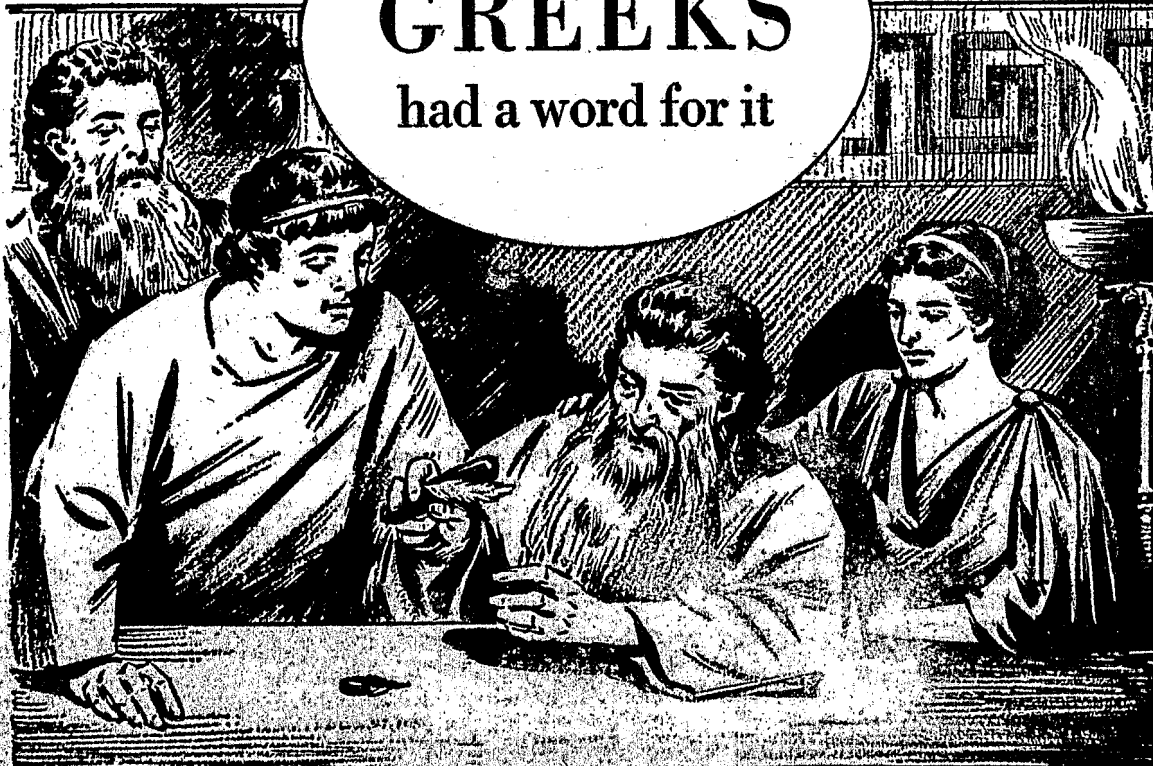

When was electricity first discovered? How did it get its name? More than twenty-five centuries ago, about 600 B. C., the Greek philosopher Thales noted one of the earliest recorded electrical phenomena.

Another substance which attracted the early attention of the ancients was a magnetic mineral, lodestone. Sometimes found as an outcropping rock on the surface of the ground, this black stone had the peculiar property of attracting iron.

the word magnet is a matter of dispute. One tale has it that a shepherd named Magnes suddenly found his iron-tipped staff and the nails in his sandals mysteriously adhering to the mineral...

Some say that the sailors in the northern countries of Europe first discovered its curious property of pointing to the north when suspended like a compass... hence the name lodestone, or "leading stone."

Conservation Note

Featuring an extensive exhibit of the activities of the Michigan Conservation Department, the fifth annual Michigan Sportsmen's and Boat Show, sponsored by the Detroit Sportsmen's Congress, will be held at Convention Hall, from Saturday, March 7 to and including Sunday, March 15.

Busy beavers, trick horses, six trained performing deer, husky dogs, a world-wide reptile collection, diving duck retrievers and game animals are a few of the largest collection of special attractions ever offered at a Michigan Show of this character.

Every day there will be casting and rifle tournaments, plus a new special feature of a "Sports of All Sorts" clinic covering football, baseball, hockey, golf, bowling, billiards, tennis, table tennis and badminton, with outstanding stars from each sports field in daily attendance.

To better accommodate the large crowds of outdoor enthusiasts who annually visit this show, the seating capacity at the performance pool has been doubled, while the number of daily entertainment performances will be increased from two to three, the starting time for each performance being at 3, 7:15 and 9:30 p. m.

Recently the Detroit Sportsmen's Congress took possession of a Braun Cedar Cabin at 13 Mile Road and Woodward Avenue for public inspection purposes, and at the conclusion of the Show a duplicate of this cabin will be erected anywhere in Michigan under the ownership of some visitor to the Show.

Dairy Farmers Out For National Defense

Dairy Feeding will feature the first of three looked for Dairy Defense Meetings which will be held in January and February according to announcement made today by County Agricultural Agent, Karl D. Bailey, who is being assisted by a committee of dairy farmers in carrying Farm Defense information to seven communities in the county.

The Dairy Extension Committee includes the following: Earl Voorhees, Russell Porritt, James Ferguson, Fred J. Beckman, Arthur Ferguson, Fred G. Beardsley, John Kiekbusch, Lloyd Swayze, Adolph Engler, Frank Williamson, Morris Place, Charles Axtel, Alfred Randall, Edward Thomas, Frank Dudley, Vern Parks, Charles Reed, Elroy Scott, Kenneth Wixom, Walter Oliver, A. J. Schroth, Walter R. Cook, Donald Pretzer, Lloyd Ingamells, Karl D. Bailey.

The talks on dairying will be relayed to the local community meetings by two members of the County Dairy Committee.

The leaders meeting will be held in the supervisor's room of the Court House, at 1:15 p. m. Monday, January 12, is planned for the County Committee and for other farmers living adjacent to Pontiac.

This meeting will be conducted by James G. Hayes, Dairy Specialist from Michigan State College. Since proper feeding can help the cow produce more milk at less cost and also allow the cow to live longer, it is thought that many farmers will want to use this event to meet National Defense Goals to increase the dairy output eight per cent.

The Community Meetings will be held the evening of the same day as the leader training meeting, and will be in charge of the committee members at the places indicated as follows:

Godison Town Hall, 8:00 p. m.—Frank Williamson, Pontiac; Charles Axtel, Harry Garling, James Hunter, Lake Orion.

Davisburg Town Hall, 8:00 p. m.—Lloyd Swayze, Holly; O. F. Foster, William Edgar, Clarkston.

Wixom Community Hall, 8:00 p. m.—Albert Kessler, Farmington; John Canfield, New Hudson; V. M. Spencer, Wixom.

Brandon Grange Hall, 8:00 p. m.—Andy Schroth, Pontiac; Earl Voorhees, Davisburg; Clarence Bradford, Ortonville.

Canada Jays Hobnob With Our Bluejays

Vary in Appearance but Not in Habits

Last Friday morning, when the writer was taking a few extra minutes in the kitchen where from the window there is a good view of the bird's feed box but a few feet away, one of the blue jays did not seem to look just right. All puffed up, the lower breast feathers looked like white down and the stripes and markings on wings and tail were missing. Yet as to size and general appearance he was apparently just another blue jay a bit off in color.

Time was limited and the incident forgotten until the following morning when the flock appeared as soon as food was put out and this time there were three of them, and I noted the lack of crest. The plumage more sleek than before, the back showed a dark blue gray with a few irregular dark markings, and they did not look quite as large as our jays. Sunday forenoon was the last I saw of them.

The current issue of Dumb Animals, published at Norwood, Mass., carried an article stating that CanadaJays had come south all along the border states and for bird lovers to be on the lookout for them. With this enlightening bit of information, it was not hard to surmise that some of them had been visiting their cousins, our own flock of jays, as they answered the description perfectly.

Known as whiskey jacks, camp robbers, and moose birds, they are native to Canadian forests in any latitude, but do, on long intervals, move south for the winter and it is not known if the wanderers ever return as far to the northward again or not.

They are much like our own jays, noisy and fearless, and in spite of the many crimes laid at their door, they become great favorites of campers and travelers in the northern woodlands.

Why they move southward may not be known, but certain it was that the three that appeared at the Patterson's free cafeteria were carrying on a lot of conversation with the local jays, and as all seemed to be very amiable, why not give them credit for having the same instincts as folks and just stepping out for a visit to relatives during the dull season, especially if the climate is more agreeable and the food more plentiful—just about the way most folks would figure.

HOLLY THEATRE

"You Belong to Me," Wesley Ruggles' new production opening Sunday at the Holly Theatre, stars Miss Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda. Said to possess all and more of the delightful tempo and atmosphere which distinguished their most recent comedy, "The Lady Eve," the new film has been praised as "a natural" for the brilliant talents of the players.

Miss Stanwyck is seen as a young woman doctor, seriously absorbed in her practice of medicine, who becomes the bride of a handsome young socialite. Mr. Fonda, as the love-crazy husband, is sufficiently understanding to recognize why his bride won't stay for breakfast... but he fails to carry that understanding into practice—his wife's practice. He wants to know, for example, why all her patients seem to be handsome young men, and he becomes inordinately jealous when he discovers every man in town is saying "ah" to his lovely bride.

"You Belong to Me" has been called, by both press and public wherever it was shown, as the year's wildest, wittiest romantic whirlwind, a sparklingly racy riot which deftly interweaves love and laughter. Suspenseful situations, scintillant dialogue and sparkling portrayals contribute to audience applause.

Miss Stanwyck and Fonda, whose hilarious antics in "The Lady Eve" left no doubt as to their capabilities in the field of comedy, outdo even their own sterling efforts as the love-at-first-sight stars of "You Belong to Me." Similarly praised are the supporting players, in particular Edgar Buchanan, Roger Clark, Ruth Donnelly and Melville Cooper. Clark is a newcomer to the screen, and promises to make a strong bid for stardom honors in the very near future. The others are well-known comedy character players, each with his own record of success.

Wesley Ruggles, producer and director of "You Belong to Me," is said to exceed in laugh-getting effect,
