such machines has become sensible home economy.
 How to make a washing machine last longer and serve better is reviewed by members of the home economics extension service at Michigan State College from information provided by the bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture.
 Follow the manufacturer's directions for oiling the motor, wringer gears or other parts of the machine. Do not over-oil any part.
 Keep the washing machine clean. Rinse the machine, drain it well, wipe out any lint and dry inside and out. To keep the outside frame of the machine from rusting if it's of steel or iron, rub it occasionally with a little light oil. Between washdays leave the drain faucet open and prop the lid up an inch or two. Cover the machine if it's out where it can collect dust. Never use harsh powders on any part of the machine, especially the inside.
 Now that rubber is scarce, be especially careful with the rubber wringer rolls. Be sure that the pressure on the rolls is evenly distributed when using the wringer. Don't stall or strain the wringer by putting too much clothing through at one time. Fold buttons and buckles to the inside of the clothes before wringing them. And every time a washing is finished be sure to release the pressure on the wringer rolls.
 Wipe the rubber rolls clean and dry after you use them. You can remove most discoloration with a cloth dampened with kerosene. But be sure to wipe the kerosene off right away. It softens the rubber.

Save Salvage For Defense
 An effort to secure a complete list of abandoned and other wise discarded scrap of all kinds in Oakland County was launched today by the Oakland County Defense Council's Salvage Committee, of which O. L. Beaudette is chairman.
 The program will be conducted in cooperation with the State, which last Saturday announced that it planned, through the W. P. A., to solicit all farms in the State to add to the tremendous amount of scrap materials vitally needed in the defense program.
 Along with the farm program, the State is urgently requesting that the location of all abandoned scrap piles be reported to the Oakland County Defense Council Salvage Committee, old Masonic Temple building, Pontiac, which will act as clearing house for this information. Those who know of such scrap piles are urged to write to the Defense Council, phone Pontiac 4-2142, or call their local committee chairman.
 It is estimated by State officials that enough abandoned scrap is lying in small piles in out of the way places throughout the State to construct over 100 tanks for the nation's armed forces.
 The County Defense Council also is seeking to compile lists of all organizations in the county not affiliated with the County Salvage Committees which are now collecting scrap and turning it into defense channels.
 "We are interested in locating who the organizations are and the amount they are collecting and selling," Beaudette said. It is believed there are a number of such groups not known to the County Salvage Committee which are doing important work, and they are asked to report their activities to the Defense Council office so that a complete record may be kept.

Suggestions on Where To Plant Trees
 Land not useful for vegetable gardens or farm crops can be put into Victory Gardens of trees, according to a suggestion of the forestry department at Michigan State College. Trees can be obtained at cost from the forestry department at the college, says W. Ira Bull, extension for ester. Suggestions include the native white, red or jack pine for south or west slopes of eroded hillsides or north or east slopes of hills or in odd corners of fields. Locust and white cedar are recommended for fence post wood. Transplanted evergreens are suggested for windbreaks. Sandy loam or heavier soils can take broad leaved trees of green ash, American elm or black cherry or shrubs that offer food for wild life. Special allotments are available from the Agricultural Conservation program for tree planting or windbreak transplants.

Points to Observe In Victory Gardens
 Gardening tricks that have been practiced for many years by the veterans are being broadcast for use in all of Michigan's farm and suburban Victory gardens early in 1942.
 Some crops need an early start to beat hot weather, others need a longer than average growing season. An answer to these needs lies in use of hotbeds or cold frames or even in small soil flats which get their warmth and sunshine through a pane in a house window, according to members of the horticulture department at Michigan State College.
 Those who start plants early should schedule the planting indoors or under glass so that plants are ready at the proper planting time and not too much ahead of outdoor planting, warns Perry Bowser, college extension specialist in horticulture.
 Tomatoes require six to eight weeks in the protected plant bed. Cantaloupes and other vine crops can grow four or five weeks before they are set out, but cabbage can be field planted at a much earlier date.
 Details to observe are those of selecting good seed, treating seed and perhaps soil to prevent disease, proper soil selection and attention to seeding, watering, ventilating, transplanting and hardening.
 Warm season crops commonly planted early under protection include tomatoes, peppers, eggplants and cantaloupes. Earlier harvests can be obtained by early planting of early cabbage, broccoli, leaf lettuce and early celery, transplanting later.
 Cauliflower and head lettuce are typical of those crops that are hurt by midsummer hot weather, so that early seeding and replanting bring on maturity before hot weather arrives.
 Farmer Giles and the Wood Nymph. A delightful page in full color by the distinguished artist Alastair K. McDonald, who sketches in his inimitable way an episode in the Merrie England of long ago, when elves and pixies abounded. Don't miss it in The American Weekly, the magazine distributed with next week's Sunday Chicago Herald-American.

There's more to it than just convenience. Using your Detroit Edison office when you are in the vicinity is a patriotic help. With tires, cars, etc. being rationed, The Detroit Edison Company is adjusting its work to meet wartime conditions. There will be no hindering of our emergency service; it will be as prompt as ever. Under the tire rationing provision, we will still be able to get tires for our heavy trucks, and in emergencies—storm, wires down, etc.—line trucks will be on the job as always. But the present tire rationing order will not allow us to purchase tires for delivery trucks or the ordinary light cars with which we do most of our business.

Authoritive Advice on What Is Wanted

From the Michigan Council of Defense comes the following article on what to save and what not to save: Tin cans, not unless a local dealer wants them; bottle tops and razor blades, not now but perhaps later on; rubber heels, no; crepe rubber soles, yes; toothpaste and delicate cosmetics come in tubes 98 per cent tin and should be saved but shaving cream tubes (they contain lead) should not be saved; street car or railroad rails, emphatically yes; fats and greases, a national campaign will be started later on to save them, but they need not be preserved for the present; ornamental railings, etc.: no need to junk these until the need is much greater than now.

ON Guard

We stand ready to serve. There is a war to be won—and we consider it our first duty and real privilege to do our full share in helping to win it. "Preparedness" is a familiar word to a utility. It must always plan and build for the future. That is why Consumers Power Company today stands ready to meet this new emergency with gas and electricity on hand and ready. No matter what we are called upon to do, every effort humanly possible will be made by our people to give industry and you the highest type of gas and electric service possible under existing conditions.
