HOLLY THEATRE
A slick comedy cast, headed by such luminaries as Joan Bennett, George Brent, Mischa Auer, Glenda Farrell, Ernest Truex and Una Merkel, is responsible for the gayety, fun and hilarity which highlight the swift-moving action of the new Edward Small production, "Twin Beds", which is slated for its local premiere at the Holly Theatre Sunday through United Artists release.
Based on the Broadway hit farce of the 1916-1917 theatrical season, "Twin Beds" tells a laugh-getting story of a young married couple, consisting of Miss Bennett and Mr.

Brent, who become involved in a whole series of crazy complications because the heroine goes about daffily doing good deeds where they always have the worst possible effect.
Miss Bennett's enthusiasm for good causes finally brings her harassed husband to the end of his rope and he skips town. When he returns, on a mission of reconciliation, he is greeted by a surprise that is more than any man in his right mind is willing to accept. From there on the story gambols madly to a bright finish.
One of the funniest sequences in "Twin Beds" got there accidentally. Brent, attired in robe and pajamas, was supposedly having a running quarrel with his screen wife, Miss Bennett. As he dashed around the end of their bed his foot caught in a bearskin rug and he landed heavily on his knees and one shoulder.
The spill looked so funny as it was caught by the camera that Director Tim Whelan ordered the take printed and rewrote the sequence to include it.

Garden Suggestions Worth Following

Attention to Them Will Bring Its Own Reward
With tomato plants now up approximately eight inches, it's about time to start staking them to poles. The stakes should be set 16 to 18 inches apart—which is just where you planted your tomatoes, if you did things correctly—and should be about an inch or an inch and a half thick. Height: five to six feet. Advice: The shorter poles require less labor in setting and are the most common support.
Some growers place the supports before the tomatoes are planted; others prefer to erect them after the plants are set. If you plan to stake at all you better do it soon, as the roots will be disturbed if there is much delay.
While tomato plants are small, weekly pruning of the side buds is recommended, if required, to remove all side shoots. As growth progresses the plant may be tied to the stake with coarse twine or tape. Tie the twine first to the stake so that it will not slip down, and then tie up the plant, allowing ample space for the stem to grow thicker. When—and if—the center shoot or tip of the plant reaches the top of the support, nip it off. Tomatoes which are staked produce higher quality fruits because the fruits do not lie on the ground and are subject to less decay.
Cauliflower
If you wish success with cauliflower you should have moisture-laden air, well enriched soil and liberal feeding with liquid manure. Cauliflower heads, when beginning to gain size, must be shielded in some way against drying winds and sunshine to insure perfect development, spotless whiteness, tender flesh and spicy flavor. A simple and effective way in which to do this is to bend down and draw over the plants the nearest of the upper projecting leaves; or to cut large green cabbage leaves for a covering, renewing them from time to time.

Garden calendar for July
Spray cucumbers, tomatoes, potatoes and such vegetables as are subject to blight with Bordeaux mixture (copper sulphate (blue vitriol) 4 lbs; caustic lime (unslaked) 4 lbs; water, (50 gals.)
Plan successive plantings of beets, radishes, lettuce, spinach. Apply nitrogenous manures to all crops grown for their leaves.
Transplant late cauliflower, cabbage, kale, broccoli, and Brussels Sprouts to permanent quarters. Stop cutting asparagus. Thin out New Zealand spinach.
Keep constantly cultivating. Tie up leaves of early cauliflowers when heads are forming. After they are matured and it is desired to hold them for some time, cut the roots in half through. Stake up the tomatoes.
In the flower garden
Cultivate everything frequently. Give sweet peas plenty of water or mulch. Prune climbing roses now as soon as they have finished blooming. Sow seeds of perennials, especially digitalis and campanula. Spray all plants to control insects and diseases. Keep blooms and seeds picked from all annuals. Sweet alyssum, baby's breath and other short season annuals may be sown for fall bloom.

Big Game, 2013 Model

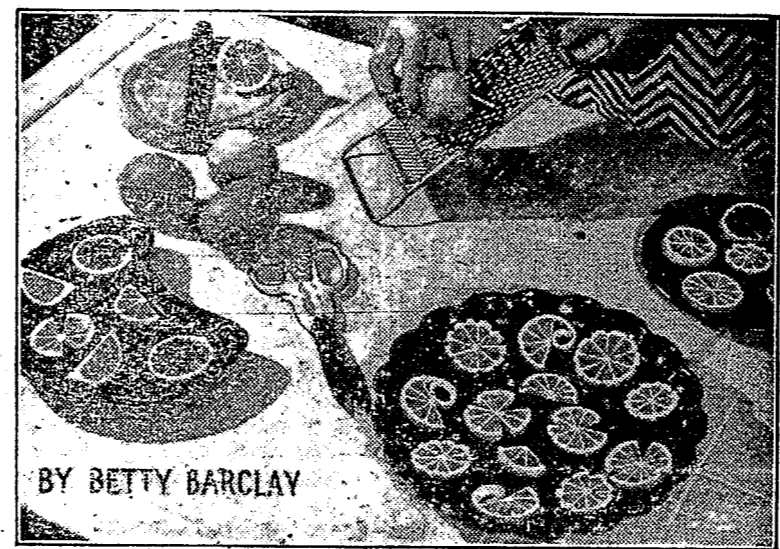

One production line not affected by the war is the one that is turning out wildlife in Michigan's north woods, where a bumper crop got a good start in favorable weather this season. This black bear cub, photographed in the woods near Roscommon, is one of the smartest of the woods youngsters. Like unattended fawns, bear cubs ought never to be picked up when found in the woods. They are at home there, and state law protects them from kidnaping.

Buckwheat Looks To Be Good Bet

Buckwheat cakes and maple syrup or sorghum molasses may come back to their own next winter in Michigan. The year 1942 looks like a buckwheat year because the excessive rains of May and June have drowned out thousands of acres of corn, soybeans, and sugar beets or so delayed plantings that farmers are forced to turn to quick growing emergency crops.
Buckwheat is the most satisfactory of these as a cash crop, though it has never been unusually profitable, reports H. C. Rather, head of the Michigan State College farm crops department. The long-time average yield in Michigan is 13 bu. an acre but yields of 20 to 25 bushels are not uncommon. The average 1931-1940 price in Michigan was 53 cents a bushel, but more recently the farm price has been above 75 cents.
Buckwheat is not sensitive to soil requirements. It can use relatively less available forms of phosphorus and potassium better than other grain crops. The normal time of seeding in Michigan is June 20 to July 5. Seedlings after July 15 are not advisable, according to Rather. It takes 10 to 12 weeks to mature the crop. Three or four pecks of seed are used to the acre.

The crop in Michigan is usually harvested with a binder but the combine may be used if storage facilities are available which permit spreading the grain in shallow layers so it can dry out thoroughly.
Michigan's normal acreage is about 20,000 but, in 1918, 75,000 acres were harvested in this state.
The grain is used for pancake flour and groats, the dehulled kernels used for breakfast cereal. By-products are used for poultry and livestock feed. The crop is also used to smother weeds, as a honey crop, and for green manure.

Lemon Garnishes Add Distinction and Enhance Flavor

ARE YOU aware of the distinctive touches lemon garnishes and grated lemon peel add to an otherwise ordinary meal? Many homemakers make it a definite rule to have a plate of these garnishes on the table just as they do salt and pepper or they accompany many foods with these dainty bits in order to enliven and enhance their flavors.

Lemons, attractively cut, add vivid contrasts of color to foods with which they are served and through their abundance of squeezable juice, they help to bring out hidden flavors often lost in the service of many meats, vegetables, soups, salads, and beverages and thereby awaken appetites to the goodness of everyday menus. The inviting eye appeal of the various yellow shapes often lures the family into second servings of foods which might otherwise be turned down and when appreciable amounts of lemon juice are obtained through a generous supply of lemon garnishes, vitamin C is also added to the diet. This vitamin is a daily "must" for tip-top health.
For the most practical juicing-providing accompaniments, lemon quarters or sixths are suggested. With a sharp knife, cut a lemon lengthwise in four or six pieces. These pieces may be squeezed without getting juice on the fingers and they are decorative additions to the foods they attend as well. Of course, clean-skinned lemons are best for all types of garnishes.
Fancy shapes, like those illustrated are most easily cut with a sharp knife or slicer. Whether they have scalloped edges or are irregular shapes, they lend a pleasing sparkle to foods. To heighten the effect of these more special cuts, the lemon may itself be garnished with chopped mint, pimented strips, paprika, or parsley.

Obituary

Emmet Clark
Emmet Clark, aged 75 years, of 69 South Holcomb St., Clarkston, passed away at his home last Friday, June 26.

Mr. Clark was born February 22, 1867. He lived in Clarkston most of his life.

He is survived by two brothers, John of Holly and William of Clarkston; one sister, Mrs. John Newall of Lewiston and a niece, Mrs. John Haskins of Clarkston, with whom he made his home.

The funeral service was held Monday afternoon at two o'clock at the Ogden-Kennedy Funeral Home with the Rev. W. Harold Pailthorpe officiating. Interment was in Lakeview cemetery.

Annual Farmers' Day Is Called Off

But 4-H Club Fair Will Be Held in September

There's to be no customary Farmers' Day the last Friday in July this year on the Michigan State College campus. It's the war, the college announces, which forces the agricultural division to call off the usual open house invitation to farmers.

Instead there are plans to demonstrate new scientific practices to campus visitors who may come to the proposed 4-H Club fair to be staged the forepart of September in the place of the State Fair events usually held in Detroit.

Visitors who do come in the meantime to the campus will be welcome, says E. L. Anthony, dean of agriculture. They will find the college staff involved as usual in the promotion of efficient agricultural production in Michigan.

New purebreds in the livestock barns can be viewed. Two new beef purebreds, a new dairy bull, three purebred Arabian fillies and two new rams imported from Canada are among the new animals used in class work, research and demonstrations.

Prilly Sensation, a 2100-pound 10-year-old Holstein was purchased recently from Buford Brothers, Elizabeth, Ill. His female relatives and offspring have production records indicating this dairy bull has some of the best blood lines in the United States.

A Hereford calf, a year old, has been purchased from Purdue university. He is Triple Bond 4th. The barns also house Black Bardolier 3rd a Black Angus born Oct. 8, 1938, and purchased by the college from Scripps' Wildwood farm at Lake Orion.

The three Arabian fillies presented the college by W. K. Kellogg from his Pomona, Calif., ranch, are to be bred to Amidore, 10-year-old Arabian stallion. The college staff foresees a rising interest in the pleasure horse.

Canadian imports for the college sheep flock include a Hampshire ram lamb from Robeson and Son, Ont., and a three-year-old Cotswold ram from Charles Shore, Ontario.

How to get the most light from your

LAMPS AND FIXTURES

"Take good care of the things you have" is one of the cardinal rules of the U. S. Government's Consumer's Pledge—and it applies just as much to your lamps and fixtures as to your electric appliances. Perhaps it is even more important, because lamps lose their efficiency little by little, day by day, as dust and dirt collect on bulbs and shades and reflector bowls. The amount of light you are getting may be cut in half before you realize it... and these days you need plenty of good light for easy comfortable seeing, during those extra hours you spend knitting or sewing or doing war work. Good light helps make your time more productive.

Here are a few simple rules to aid in keeping your lamps and fixtures at top efficiency: Wipe all lamp bulbs frequently with a damp cloth, also the reflector bowls and shades. Dust steals light. Replace dark-colored shades with light shades or shades with white linings. This may give you as much as 50 per cent more light. Use the RIGHT SIZE BULBS in your lamps and fixtures—not too large, not too small. Too large a lamp may cause glare, too small a lamp gives inadequate light. Move your lamps closer, to the point of use, so that they shed their light more directly on your work. Check the location of all your lamps with this in mind. Use adapter shades and linings to modernize your present equipment. This can be done easily and at low cost, and you obtain good light while conserving materials. The Detroit Edison Company.

Michigan's Beauty Spots are at your door

But on days off they need to renew their energies out in the open. • In Michigan, you don't have far to go. Here you'll find almost any kind of recreation you want—fishing, swimming, canoeing, camping—all—close at hand. Five thousand miles of streams and rivers and millions of acres of woodland are your playground. • Michigan workers are fortunate in having all these opportunities within easy reach by bus, boat or train.
