Nutrition in War-Time

Dinner Rounds Out the Victory Ration
To make sure that our meals contain all the foods necessary for complete health and energy most of us are planning our menus by the week or at least by the day. Some things that are neglected one day can be caught up with on some later day, but it is simpler to make every day complete in itself if at all possible.
For example, the average adult would hardly care to drink three and one-half quarts of milk at one meal or even in one day. It is easier to make sure that you have one pint a day. Or think of having four to seven eggs at one meal, even if one could get them! Let's assume that we have eaten two meals, breakfast and lunch.

For breakfast we had:
Fruit
Hot whole-grain cereal with milk
Toasted enriched bread with Butter or enriched fat
Milk for children—Coffee for adults
For lunch we had:
Tomato soup—crackers
Prunes stuffed with Cottage Cheese
Nut Bread with Butter or enriched fat
Milk
Now let's go over our food chart to see what ones of our daily food needs were neglected in those two meals, so that we can make sure that they are included in the dinner menu. A check with the food guide shows that we need to round out the day.

Minimum Daily Food Needs
Every day we need three vegetables, at least one serving of green or yellow and potatoes; two fruits, one serving of tomato or tomato juice and one raw fruit; two to four servings of whole-grain and enriched bread and cereal; one serving of meat, fish, poultry or beans; two to three servings of butter or vitamin enriched fat, and part of the four to seven eggs which must be eaten every week; as well as a pint of milk for adults and a quart of milk for children.
Looking back at our breakfast and lunch we see that we haven't had vegetables or enough butter fat or milk, or any of the meat or meat alternates. Let's make it all up at dinner with a good substantial meal.
How about this?
Creamed codfish
Baked potato
Glazed carrots
Cabbage and onion salad
Enriched bread and butter or vitamin enriched

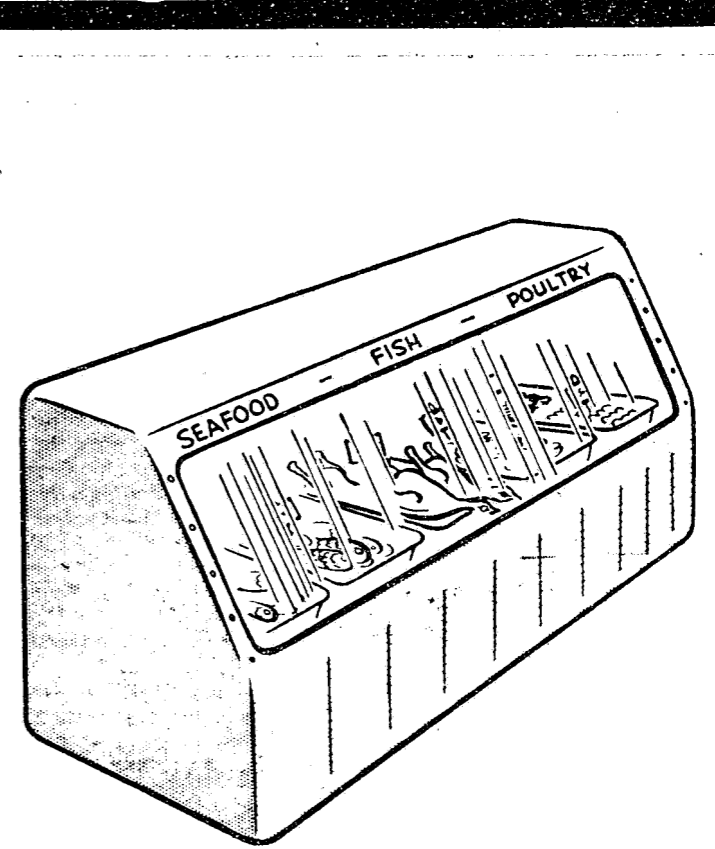

Rice custard pudding—Cookies
Milk (Tea or Coffee if available)
No Can Opener Needed
The dinner doesn't require a single tin can of food, but it means a little more work—more work in planning than in cooking—a very little price to pay for the health we need to work for Victory.
Shopping needs more time too because we can't always get the things we plan. Then we must substitute—one vegetable for another—fish for meat or beans for fish—cheese for milk. To make our meals successful we must plan ahead, know our food chart thoroughly—learn all the alternate dishes and all the ways of stretching meat. It requires skill and ingenuity to cook the meals we need in war-time.

A SHARP KNIFE cuts through a hind quarter of beef. On one side are the "fancy" rib roasts and tenderloin steaks, on the other the short ribs and flank steaks.
There is no difference in nutrient values on either side of the cut. On both sides of the knife, the meat is rich in proteins, minerals, vitamins—iron, phosphorus, thiamine, niacin. You don't have to buy expensive cuts of meat to secure these needed food values. These cheaper cuts actually pay you dividends: They are just as healthful, but they cost much less and you save money on your meat bill.
And remember: If you have an electric range or electric cooker in your kitchen, electric cooking makes even cheaper cuts of meat tender. Some of these cheaper cuts may not always be available. But, when you can buy them, they make appetizing and patriotic dishes: BEEF: Round Bone Chuck Roast—for pot roast with vegetables. Flank—hake and stuff, or use for Swiss Steak. Ox Joints—braise with vegetables. VEAL: Breast—bone and roll, or pocket and stuff for baking, or use for stew. LAMB: Shoulder—roast or pot roast. Breast—stuffed and baked, or use in stew. PORK: Spareribs, with sauerkraut. Pork Feet—cooked in water, baked or served with vegetables. Hocks—cooked in water with cabbage.
Poultry, fish and seafood (scallops, clams, oysters, shrimp, crab) are excellent for adding variety to your menus. Consult your cook book for dozens of ways of using them. The Detroit Edison Company.

Wait!

Don't make that Long Distance call unless it's really necessary!

Mrs. Housewife, you and your family are patriotic citizens—eager to aid the war effort in every way you can.
Long Distance telephone lines are communication channels that help make America's war production fast and efficient. Many of them are crowded with essential war messages today, and the less important civilian calls must not interfere.
You can do your part by following these rules:
Do not make a Long Distance call unless it is really important.
Keep every call as brief as you can.

You soon enter into a giant chamber. Overhead you can see an occasional stalactite. The path is all the time descending and the stalactite becomes more numerous. Soon you see the first stalagmite and are now about 750 feet below the surface. What a sight it is!

You continue on winding paths with flood lights lighting your way. You see a frozen waterfall and remark on the beauty of the water being frozen in midair. You enter the King's Throne Room. The walls seem draped with taffeta and a long stalactite is known as the King's Bell Cord. You leave this land of wonder and continue on your tour seeing many things that look like birds, snakes, and other animals all white and well formed.

Then you enter the Queen's Room and there at the entrance are the "King's Boots" in the wrong room. This room is similar to the King's Throne Room but the scallops hang like velvet and are thin enough to let a light shine through. In this room you find the first helectites which are horizontal formations.

Beyond the Queen's Room is the Papoose Room with a miniature Indian Village and formations that look like hitching posts.

The cafeteria is a big room, the world's only underground cafeteria. Here you find good food and are able to get acquainted with other members of the party.

The party forms again and you go into the Hall of Giants. Here you squint and the stalagmites appear as rumies, dogs, giants and many others. You move silently on into the Big Room where you are faced by a great mass of limestone, Giant Dome, the world's largest stalagmite. You pass on, seeing totem poles and faces glaring at you. You are now in Fairyland. Bald-headed men watch you pass and an occasional gnome nods at you.

The ranger said, "Down there is the lower cavern." You peer over the rail and look into a gloomy haze and can barely make out figures. Some day that will be fixed by the Government and one can explore the lower cavern.

The lights are turned out only once during the tour. You stop in front of a large natural amphitheater that faces a huge stalagmite, Rock of Ages. Everyone sits down facing the Rock. You are told that when the lights go out you would be in complete darkness for the first time in your life.

Everyone is silent, the lights are dim and go out. There is an afterglow for a few seconds and then complete blackness. You can't see a thing, not even the hand before your face. Then far down the room a glimmer of light appears. You hear men singing and as the light advances the music becomes louder and louder, Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me. When the song reaches its loudest, the lights are all on again and it is as bright as day.

The show is over. You proceed to the elevator which carries you to the surface, up 754 feet in 66 seconds. When above the ground after a seven mile hike in the underground world, you are surprised to see the sun above the horizon.

This is an original nature essay from the American Literature class.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"How do you feel about this idea of stopping 'em from selling liquor anywhere near army camps, Judge?"

"I was just talking about that with Will down at the barber shop about ten minutes ago. Tell you what I told him, Ned. I say it's up to the Army to decide. Why should we walk in and tell the Army how to do its job

...any more than I should tell you how to go about putting out a fire? And here something that strikes me funny. All this worrying seems to be about the boys' conduct around the camps here in this country. You never hear a word of worrying about them drinking when they go abroad. Kind of queer, isn't it, Ned?"

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES "Substance" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, March 14.

The Golden Text (I Chronicles 29:11,12) is: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty: both riches and honour come of thee, and thou reignest over all."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Proverbs 3:13-14): "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding. For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p.451): "Man walks in the direction towards which he looks, and where his treasures is, there will his heart be also. If our hopes and affections are spiritual, they come from above, not from beneath, and they bear as of old the fruits of the Spirit."

Thin Not Thick For Buttering

Even spreading the butter on the bread takes on a new meaning in wartime, since it's now a question of spreading thin, not thick.

The use of other fats for cooking gets encouragement from the home economics extension staff at Michigan State College. Some households are even adopting tricks learned in the war of a quarter of a century ago. Then it was price, now it's patriotism.

In cooking, for instance, some of the butter substitutes may include liquid fats such as salad oils, or hard white hardened cooking fats or pan drippings from cooked meats.

For stretching out the household butter, here are some tips useful to that end:

Serve thrifty servings, one pat to a person, or even half a pat.

Members of the family should eat up all the butter they get, or not take as much from the table supply.

Cooks should make flavor count by using butter only where it will taste the best, on bread or on vegetables.

No butter should be lost by poor storage. Tight covers and storing in cool places will protect the food from strong odors.

Butter spreads farther if creamed or slightly softened, but not melted. In lunch buckets, the butter goes farther when helped out by mayonnaise or peanut butter. Some families mix butter with milk, or milk and gelatin to make a whipped blend.

Farm Facts Briefly Told

An adequate supply of burlap and paper bags will be available for packaging the nation's 1943 wool clip, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The wool containers include a half million used burlap bags, 600,000 new paper-mesh bags and enough new burlap cloth to make an estimated 400,000 bags.

Parrowing pens and all equipment should be thoroughly washed with boiling water, soap and lye and all litter removed before spring pigs arrive. Wormy pigs lose the race to market to healthy pigs which mature four to eight weeks earlier.

For refrigerator care, clean with warm water and baking soda. One level tablespoonful in a quart of warm water is recommended during the defrosting process. The inside and outside of the evaporating unit should be washed carefully and all of the inside of the refrigerator including the inside walls, shelves, fruit trays and vegetable containers. Similar care is recommended for an ice refrigerator.

It is only when the cold season comes that we know the pine and cypress to be evergreens.—Chinese Prov. Buy U. S. War Bonds and Stamps
