Little Bobby Jones Escapes Drowning

On Monday afternoon when a terrific wind swept across Lake Huron the boat, which was moored on the beach, in which Bobby Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Jones of Clarkston, and a little boy from Detroit, were playing, drifted out into deep water and was gradually being swept farther and farther from shore. Cries for help went up from the two lads and by the time Mr. Jones got to the beach the little Detroit boy had jumped into the water and was lost. Mr. Jones managed to get Bobby to throw out the anchor and this helped to hold the boat enough to allow him to reach it and save the child. Mr. Jones tried in vain to get the other little chap's body but it was almost evening when he was found.

Rotary Club News

Next Monday the Rotary Club will have a Ladies' Night at Indianwood. Those wishing to enjoy a round of golf in the afternoon are welcome to do so. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock. Joe Seeterlin is in charge of arrangements. A program will follow the dinner.

Harold Cole Takes New Position

Harold D. Cole, a deputy sheriff for many years, both preceding and succeeding his term of eight years as postmaster of Holly, and who is now a member of the Holly Board of Education, has resigned his position to accept one with the Probate Court, Juvenile division. Recently he has been a plain clothes man in the detective branch of the sheriff's office. In charge of looking after the welfare of children in the jurisdiction of the Probate Court. Mr. Cole will bring to the job a wealth of understanding of the problems of youth and an inborn and cultivated manner of approach that will especially fit him to carry out a line of work in which Judge of Probate Arthur E. Moore is keenly interested.

Coming Events

Aug. 25th—Wednesday evening the Farm Bureau Discussion Group will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Beardslee.

Survey of State Scrap Needs

In a recent survey of Michigan's scrap situation, John D. McGillis, secretary of the state salvage division, disclosed today that Michigan's share of the iron and steel scrap quota is 1,180,000 tons for the six month period ending Dec. 31, 1943. This has increased 79,000 tons over the first six months of the year. Although Michigan has produced its quota before it will probably be more difficult to produce the same tonnage, let alone the additional amount, Mr. McGillis said.

Oakland county, in line with the entire state, tumbled in July in the waste fats collection. Henry Jansen, county chairman, disclosed that the county collection totaled 32,833 pounds, failing to meet the quota of 30,628 pounds. Mr. McGillis said that before this month the state had climbed steadily to 60.4 percent of the quota in June. Oakland county topped its June quota by 2,000 pounds.

McGillis attributed this shortage to the time of year but said that authorities had hoped the larger number of households contributing fats would make up the difference.

The state secretary continued that the waste paper shortage was definitely a serious one. "Paper is needed now," he said, "although we are confident that when paper now being saved begins to reach the market, there will be some relief, but the shortage exists now. Waste paper consumption far exceeds the receipts threatening the paper industry as well as war production," McGillis said.

No formal house to house collection is to take place in this locality but citizens are urged by O. Leo Beaudette, county salvage chairman, to sell their waste paper to dealers in the city or give them to charitable organizations.

McGillis said that the tin can salvage program was continuing satisfactorily although some complaints have been received that cans saved in remote areas had not been picked up.

In the county 68 tons of tin cans were collected in the drive conducted June 27. Pontiac contributed 51 tons, exceeding its quota by six tons. Four other communities in the county, Novi, Waterford, Farmington and Walled Lake, collected at the same time and contributed 17 tons.

Mr. McGillis concluded that the situation varies considerably with the nonferrous metals. Brass mills are working at capacity at present but copper refineries are in need of scrap. A copper drive is still held in abeyance and will be asked for only if it is absolutely needed.

You Can Help By Giving Blood

Arrangements are being made to set up the Red Cross Blood Bank equipment in Drayton Plains on September 13, 14 and 15 to accommodate blood donors from Waterford, Independence and White Lake Townships. The Red Cross finds it quite expensive to set up this equipment for just one day and so by three Townships working together more blood will be collected with less work and expense. However this means that everyone must cooperate.

In Independence Township, Mrs. John Shaughnessy is in charge and she will need the help of everyone. It is quite a task to have to contact donors, so you are asked to offer to give blood and save one person doing too much work. The hours will be from 2:30 in the afternoon until 7:30 in the evening. Keep the dates in mind and be ready to be a donor.

Saving Important as Growing Food

Surplus vegetables grown in Victory Gardens are liable to go to waste unless a community canning program is instituted.

Sturgis is showing how to solve the problem under a community canning plan instituted by the Food Preservation Committee of the Sturgis Council of Defense. Once a week the accumulated produce is canned by a group of women who gather at the Sturgis high school. Canning equipment is loaned and jars have been donated. On the first day, 67 quarts of beans were processed.

The season's "pick" will be placed on a "food bank", which will be drawn upon for special uses, as well as by the Sturgis hospital and the Salvation Army. In addition to canning, it is also planned to store other vegetables, such as cabbages, beets and carrots. Gardeners are being cautioned to contribute only surplus yields.

The plan, it is pointed out, might well be followed by other communities in which surplus foods have previously been wasted. Neighborhood War Clubs, the Women's Club and the American Legion Auxiliary are among the groups cooperating in the project.

Winds and Man

Winds that thru the oak leaves play,
Each limb and twig caressing;
Make enjoyable my day
With zephyrs so refreshing.
You cool the air from summer sun,
Whose rays so penetrating
Would spoil my chance of having fun
Without some moderating.

Yet, multiplied a thousand fold,
A cyclone stage a-reaching,
Things made of God or man won't hold

When you are howling, screeching,
A gift of God; a summer breeze,
So refreshing and so cooling,
In wintertime is set to freeze,
And it will do no fooling.

So like the wind the life of man
Is often times a blessing.
It rolls along its normal span
With nothing so impressing.

Unless it's stirred by violent force
Its temperance enraging,
Deflecting it from peaceful course
To where a fight's engaging.

Victory Gardens Being Judged in State Contest

With final inspections under way in the local, County and State contests, 8,000 Victory Gardeners in 42 counties in Michigan will soon know just how good they are as horticulturists.

The 8,000 represent the number of entries in the State contest as reported by Paul R. Krone, Chief of the Victory Garden Section of the Michigan Office of Civilian Defense. Six of the 42 counties are in the Upper Peninsula.

State prizes totalling $2,500 in war bonds and local and County awards of approximately $5,000 are offered. Two trophies will be presented by Governor Harry F. Kelly, for the best city and farm gardens.

According to Krone, nature has been in a contrary mood this season. Normally gardens in the southern half of the Lower Peninsula are the finest in the State because of weather conditions, but this year the situation is reversed. The southern section suffered from prolonged rainfall during the spring and plantings were delayed or given up. Conversely, the northern section of the Lower Peninsula and the Upper Peninsula have enjoyed favorable weather and the gardens in these areas are thriving.

The second and final local judging inspection was started this week, and a list of gardens is being selected for consideration in the State contest. State judges will visit the counties during a two-week period beginning August 30, after which the winners will be announced.

Many Victory Gardeners will have exhibits at harvest shows and county fairs, and the best will receive certificates from the Office of Civilian Defense.

Federal Benefits Do Not Hinder Farm Employment

Persons receiving benefits under the old-age and survivors insurance program of the Social Security Board may accept work in agriculture without such employment affecting their benefits, it was pointed out today by Albert W. Boehringer, Manager of the Pontiac, Michigan field office.

"Under the provisions of the Social Security Act and its amendments, agricultural work is not covered employment within the scope of the Act," said Mr. Boehringer. "Persons who are receiving monthly benefits provided for wage earners who have retired from active work or beneficiaries who are receiving survivorship payments are eligible to accept agricultural work at any time without such employment interfering with their benefit status. Farm work was not covered by the original nor the amended Social Security Act. Benefit payments for persons entitled began January 1, 1940.

"In view of the shortage of help in the labor market, no doubt many persons who had retired from service will return to work during the emergency, as the Government has appealed for those able to accept employment to do all possible in aiding the war effort.

"We shall be glad to handle any inquiries relating to the Federal old-age and survivorship insurance program at our local office at 502 Peoples State Building," Mr. Boehringer said.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Mind" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science Churches throughout the world on Sunday, August 22.

The Golden Text (Psalms 147:5) is: "Great is our Lord, and of great power; his understanding is infinite."

Among the Bible citations is this passage (Romans 11: 33,36): "O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things; to whom be glory for ever. Amen."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p.270): "Few deny the hypothesis that intelligence, apart from man and matter, governs the universe; and it is generally admitted that this intelligence is the eternal Mind or divine Principle, Love."

When perspiring freely, workers should plan to consume from one-eighth to one-fourth teaspoonful of salt for each glass of drinking water. This helps to maintain the salt balance of the body, explain foods and nutrition specialists at Michigan State College.

Some of the commercial fertilizer you weren't able to use last spring may be lumpy when you wish to apply it. This lumpy condition does not affect the value of the fertilizer, according to the Soil Science department of Michigan State college, but the lumps must be crushed before the fertilizer is used. An effective way of "reconditioning" this fertilizer is to spread it on a cement or board floor and pulverize the lumps with a lawn roller or similar device. To complete the job, the crushed fertilizer should be put through a gravel screen before being re-bagged.

Victory Canning Club Finishes Year's Work

The Victory Canning Club met at the home of Patricia Watson on Thursday, August 12th. Patricia and Marion Emery demonstrated the canning of pears.

On Wednesday of this week the Club held its final meeting for the season at the home of Marion Emery in Waterford. At this meeting all arrangements were made for the exhibits at the 4H Fair which is being held at the 4H Farm on M24 this week. The canning judging is being done this morning at 9 o'clock.

On their way they stopped at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Clark and were pleasantly surprised to find her brother, Arthur Clark, home from Corpus Christi for two weeks.

HOLLY THEATRE

In a little less than ten years the sovereign state of Alabama may expect a feminine governor—and a very charming and personable one at that. Gail Patrick, who currently ornaments the cast of "The Hit Parade of 1943", opening Sunday at the Holly Theatre, determined when she was a law student at Alabama University that in 1952 she would aspire to the gubernatorial seat.

A lot of things have happened—and will have happened—in the interim. For one thing, Gail won a beauty contest which removed her from a somewhat cloistered career as a woman lawyer of the gallant South to a more spectacular and colorful career as a glamorous feminine picture star. But on a recent visit back to her natal state, she was promised by the student body of her high school that they would stand behind her unanimously in her forthcoming political career a decade hence!

Gail was born in Birmingham. Her father came to this country direct from Ireland, but her mother descended from a long line of Southern ancestors.

As "Margaret Fitzpatrick" she attended grade and high school in Birmingham and enrolled in Howard College, where she won a Bachelor of Arts degree.

She graduated from the University of Alabama law school, but before hanging out her shingle she entered a competition staged by Paramount Pictures to discover a "Panther Woman." Although Gail's qualifications were not sufficiently "pantherish" for her to win the prize, she was brought to Hollywood and offered a term contract.

She has appeared in scores of films since that time, including "Death Takes a Holiday," "Mississippi," "Wanderer of the Wasteland," "My Man Godfrey," "Artists and Models," "Stage Door," "Suspicion," "King of Alcatraz," "Disbarred," and "Tales of Manhattan."

Gail is a favorite daughter of the Old South, and whenever she returns, the keys of the city are turned over to her. Crowds of children and grown-ups surround the Fitzpatrick home, and she usually makes numerous public appearances at civic gatherings. "I don't want my future constituents to forget me," Gail says.

In "The Hit Parade of 1943" she portrays a night club singer with strong personal ambitions in the direction of a certain personable radio singer, played by John Carroll. Gail loses Carroll to Susan Hayward in the picture, but only after a terrific battle.

New Slip Covers Tonic For Family

New slip covers can be a tonic for the family as well as the furniture, reports Miss Jessie Marion, home furnishings specialist at M. S. C. and anyone who can sew a straight seam can learn to make them. But time and patience are required—it is the skill and the time for which you pay a professional to make covers for your chairs.

In special interest meetings held in five Michigan counties during the past winter, 125 extension leaders made covers for davenport, day beds, and chairs large, medium, and small, and at an estimated saving of $625—a neat and patriotic economy when converted into war bonds, as Miss Marion points out.

Slip covers are important parts of modern home furnishing, and are never related to the ill-shaped coverings of former days. Harmonious colors, smart finishing, and perfect fitting make each cover a tailored-to-fit job. Smartly corded or welt seams give distinction to the cover, and mark the junction points where the kind or number of plaits used is governed by the type of furniture and the weight and pattern of the fabric.

Often the springs in cushions need repairing before a cover is fitted. A chair needing a new cover may be finished "in the muslin", and the cover used instead of permanent upholstery material. Miss Marion estimates that two good quality slip covers can be made for the cost of one fair quality upholstery job, and warns that it is never wise to put careful work into thin, sleazy materials.

Select fabrics to suit the chair and the place it is to be used. Cretonne, gabardine, denim, and ticking are durable enough for "his" chair, if the color and quality are suitable. Small chairs, or those used in rooms where the wear is not too hard may be covered with chintz, glosheen, crash, gingham or prints. Novelty cottons in a variety of patterns and colors offer a wide choice. Companion materials of a stripe and a floral design in harmonizing colors are often used on two pieces of furniture in the same room. One chair may be colored to match the draperies, or it may match another chair. A color scheme that repeats some color already predominant in the room, perhaps the dominant color in the rug, helps make the slip cover "belong."

Some timely tips to cover makers are: (1) Allow plenty of material for "tuck ins" and matching of the pattern; (2) All materials must be shrunk unless they are guaranteed not to shrink more than one per cent; (3) Pin-fit material to chair, then remove, baste, and stitch; (4) Put slip cover on chair correctly, and anchor it firmly.

Stretch Livestock Feed With Rye Crop

Stretch the winter livestock feed and save other feedstuffs and labor by sowing rye in late August or early September, suggest dairy and crops staff men at Michigan State college.

Such seedings will provide some late fall pasture and make available a nice growth for grazing animals next April, says H. C. Rather, head of farm crops. He advises sowing rye at the rate of 1 1/2 to 2 bushels an acre for pasture purposes. Beneficial effects of a legume may be obtained by adding 15 pounds of vetch to the acre.

Rather points out that sowing rye or rye and vetch as a pasture crop is a good follow-up practice for fields that grew small grain without other seedlings or field peas, early potatoes, or canning crops. In addition, there is considerable fallowed acreage that could not be planted because of the wet spring. After the rye pasture has served its purpose next spring, the land may then be plowed for corn, soybeans, field beans, potatoes, sugar beets, or any other adapted crop. Yields of such crops tend to be especially good on land that has grown the rye and vetch combination, Rather says.

Rye provides lush, green, appetizing, and easily digested material for dairy cows, says A. C. Baltzer, College extension specialist in dairy husbandry. Approximately one acre will be required for each cow. Baltzer cautions that the rye pasture is likely to influence the flavor of the milk. He suggests that the pasture be supplemented with hay and that the cows be removed from the pasture

Chronic Coccidiosis

Chronic coccidiosis is less easily spotted than either of the other two diseases. The symptoms are a loss of shank color, paling of the comb, and droopiness. A rusty colored diarrhea may be present. This type of coccidiosis is less acute than the earlier, bloody type, and the poultry raiser must be observant or the disease will steal the fall egg crop. Seldom will more than a third of a flock be affected at one time, but the disease persists until it has made cull birds out of a whole flock.

The size of the birds permits individual treatment for this type of coccidiosis, and the most effective treatment is to dose each bird with a half ounce of two per cent Iodine Vermicide as recommended for worms. A milk flush or intestinal astringent treatments are of little value. Weisner observed, but moving the flock to clean, less contaminated ground is recommended.

Infectious bronchitis can be identified by the noisy breathing it causes and the disease often runs so rapid a course that treatment is impossible. The disease is not very destructive of pullets at this time of year and the pathologist warned breeders not to be alarmed by the excessive amount of noise and gurgling characteristic of diseased birds. The greater the noise, the more rapid is the disease, and the fewer the death losses which will occur.

Save Poultry With Disease Symptoms

A warning to Michigan poultrymen about the prevalence of three serious poultry diseases—chronic coccidiosis, pullet disease, and infectious bronchitis—among flocks comes from E. S. Weisner, member of the Michigan State College faculty.

Pullet disease, Weisner said, is one of the greatest hazards to pullets on range, and the greatest losses occur from the age of 16 weeks until the birds are well settled in the laying house. Close attention should be paid all pullet and turkey flocks during this season, and corrective measures should be taken at once if symptoms of the disorder are noted.

The first signs of pullet disease are lack of appetite, listlessness, and usually a darkening of the comb. When these are observed, the flock should be given a dose of Epsom salts by removing drinking water at night, and dissolving twelve ounces of the salts in two gallons of water for the first drink in the morning.

The Epsom salts should not be left within reach of the birds for more than two hours, the poultry specialist warned, and it should be followed immediately with an intestinal astringent of a level teaspoonful of either potassium or sodium dichromate dissolved in four gallons of drinking water.

For turkeys, the dilution should be doubled—one teaspoonful to eight gallons of water. This treatment can be used until the symptoms subside. The drugs are not corrosive to metal containers, but care must be exer-

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Makes me feel extra good hearin' you talk that way, Judge... never realized I was contributin' to the war effort in the way you mention."

"You certainly are, Hank. Part of the grain you farmers grow is used by the beverage distilling industry to make alcohol for war purposes. Hundreds of millions of gallons are required every year for smokeless powder, medical supplies, chemical warfare materials, shatterproof glass, lacquer for camouflaging equipment, fuel to propel torpedoes and in the making of critically needed synthetic rubber. But, Hank, the grain used in distilling this alcohol is not thrown away. It is processed and comes back to the farm again in the form of distillers' dried grains or dried solubles which you use for dairy feeds, hog supplements and poultry mashies. This year alone it is estimated 388,000 tons of these much needed feed stuffs will be produced by the distillers."

"I can see now, Judge, why you say it's a mighty good thing we have a legal distilling industry in times like these."

ELECTRICITY
is a war material, too—

use it carefully!

If you have ever seen a big Detroit Edison power plant, you have probably noticed the large piles of coal heaped outside. Thousands of tons of fuel are required every day to produce the electricity sent out over a network of transmission lines to factories and stores and offices and homes. That is one reason why electricity is a war material. When you save electricity you save coal, and transportation, and manpower needed for war production.

There is no shortage of generating machinery in this area, and electricity is not rationed. But—use it carefully as you would any other vital war material. Prudent, economical use of electricity is a patriotic obligation today. Help conserve electricity by reducing your use. The Detroit Edison Company.

Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Rupp, of Lawrence, Kansas, have sold Ranch No. 2 and Ranch No. 3 near Big Lake to Mr. and Mrs. LaVern Church, of Royal Oak. This winds up the three ranches, as the No. 1 ranch was sold in May to Mr. and Mrs. Warrmouth, of Detroit. The Rupp's have taken up their residence at Lawrence, where the doctor has a fine practice.

Amateur gardeners will find it best to depend upon commercial seed growers for their 1944 seed requirements, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Reliable seedmen take precautions to avoid mixtures and to insure producing clean seed that is true to variety.

There's a new trick in washing painted walls, say home economics extension specialists at Michigan State College. Try powdered glue solution, prepared as follows: 1/4 cup powdered glue dissolved in 3 cups of hot water. Add this solution to 3 qts. of tepid water and apply to walls with a cloth, working from bottom to the top. No rinsing is necessary. When the solution becomes dirty, it should be discarded. The glue solution may be used also on tile or brick.

Let us cherish sympathy. It prepares the mind for receiving the impressions of virtue; and without it there can be no true politeness.—Beattie.

In memory of Mrs. Lillian Norton who passed away August 22nd, 1942.

A Tribute to Mother
In every old lady I chance to meet,
Wherever, who ever she be,
From her snow crowned head to her patient feet
My own brave mother I see.

In every old lady whose patient eyes
Are depths of a fathomless sea,
So patient and tender, kind and wise,
My mother looks out at me.

In every old lady, in silent prayer
To God on bended knee,
I vision my mother kneeling there
Praying a prayer for me.

In every old lady, I bend above
Asleep in death's mystery,
I whisper, "Please carry my lone heart's love
To my angel mother for me".

Gift of the Gods

By Frances Lee Barton

A chocolate sponge cake today is a veritable "Gift of the Gods". But fortunately it may be made without dipping as deeply into some rationed or scarce foods as we must dip for other cakes that taste no better. Cake is an American institution. We are accustomed to it. It's one of our "musts".

Delicate Chocolate Sponge Cake
1/2 cup sifted cake flour; 1/2 teaspoon double-acting baking powder; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 4 eggs; 1/2 cup sifted sugar; 1 teaspoon vanilla.

2 squares unsweetened chocolate; 2 tablespoons sugar; 1/4 teaspoon soda; 8 tablespoons cold water.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Place eggs in deep bowl, add 1/2 cup sugar and beat with rotary egg beater until very thick and light. Add flour, all at once, stirring well. Add vanilla. Melt chocolate over boiling water. Remove from heat and add immediately 2 tablespoons sugar, soda, and cold water. Stir until thick and light, then fold quickly into batter until mixture is completely blended. Bake in ungreased 8 1/2 inch tube pan in slow oven (325° F.) 60 minutes, or until done.
