How to Speed up P. O. Deliveries

Using Zone Numbers Is Great Help to Service

Transportation and communication systems are important necessities in any emergency. The present emergency is no different, in fact its magnitude has severely burdened these systems.

Despite the loss of experienced help the Post Office Department has not only shouldered this additional burden but also encouraged the sending of frequent morale building gifts and messages to the armed forces, both in the United States and overseas.

Ways and means have been and still are sought to simplify mail handling, in an effort to avoid delay of this added burden. Many have been suggested and adopted, others have proven to be of no benefit. Many require the cooperation of the mailing public in preparation, presentation and addressing of mail.

The greatest boon to prompt mail delivery has been the Postal Unit Numbering System, which was inaugurated in 122 large cities about 15 months ago to offset the loss of experienced mail clerks to the armed services. Addressing mail to these cities with the zone number, the name of the city, identifying the street, and the apartment or room number, has most effectively provided an opportunity for inexperienced help on a part-time basis. Currently a good share of available help is school youngsters, working only a few hours each day or every other day, in order that a book may also be kept up.

Thus far a fine response has been shown by the mailing public in accepting the numbering system. Without it and this cooperation serious mail delays would be common and prompt handling extra ordinary. While the results have been achieved, there are still many mailers who fail to address mail in this manner. This has been a monthly trial with respect to mail sent by people residing in cities where the numbering system has not been instituted. To correspondents living in these cities have:

There are six cities in Michigan which mail service should be so addressed: Detroit, Flint, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Lansing and Warren. The following are the zone numbers for these cities: Detroit, 48100; Flint, 48700; Grand Rapids, 49500; Kalamazoo, 49000; Lansing, 48900; Warren, 48090.

Hayseed Crop Is Now Important

Farmers Are Urged to Increase the Harvest

Farmers are urged to harvest all the hayseed they can this year. A serious shortage of legume and grass seeds has developed. Walter R. Cook, Oakland County AAA Chairman, said this week that Congress has appropriated 12½ million dollars to encourage the harvesting of hayseeds. Farmers can earn 3½ cents a pound for red clover and 2½ cents a pound for alfalfa and alsike seed they harvest this year. This is in addition to the regular AAA soil conservation payments of $3.50 an acre for harvesting approved seeds. There are no limitations on the number of acres for which payments can be earned.

Grasses and legumes are vital in livestock production. They are especially important now because of increased wartime demands for meat. The seed harvested this year will also determine to a great extent how many acres of overworked land can be planted to soil conserving crops.

Mr. Cook pointed out that even if farmers in this area harvested only enough hayseed for their own needs, they would help out a critical situation. The amount of seeds they normally buy would then be available to farmers not in a position to raise their own seeds.

Mr. Cook added that in addition to the increased demand for hayseed in this country, the United States will also have to supply large amounts of grass and legume seeds to liberated nations so that the farmers in these areas can reestablish their forage crops. This will be necessary before they again can raise the livestock they did before the Nazis overran their countries.

Of the eight million tons of paper needed for salvage in 1944, the War Production Board says that 38 per cent is in hiding in American homes and farms, while the other 62 per cent is to be found in the files and store rooms of American industry. If the Boy Scouts or Girl Scouts don't find these home-hidden hoards of waste paper before next fall, school children hope to dig them out.

Fall Gardens Are Recommended

Should Be Started by August 15 for Best Results

If the Victory gardener seeks variety in his summer job of combating weeds and insects and hoping for rain, let him plant a fall garden, suggests Keith C. Barrons, associate professor of horticulture, M. S. C.

For best results, fall garden planting should be done by the first week of August in the upper peninsula and by August 15 in the lower peninsula. Crops that are especially adapted for summer planting, to be harvested in the fall, are radishes, leaf lettuce, spinach, kol-rabi, mustard, and turnips, says Barrons. If desired beets may be sown to be harvested for their green tops.

Some of these crops are fairly frost-resistant and may be harvested until late in the fall. As an extreme case, Barrons explains that spinach has been harvested on the College farm regularly in December. If the crop is raised on well-drained sandy soil, it is possible to winter-over spinach satisfactorily.

If the soil is so dry that there is doubt that the seed will germinate, Barrons suggests making the required number of furrows in the usual way and then soaking the soil in the furrow before sowing the seed. His method is to tie a rag over the nozzle of the hose and place the hose where the water is required. After the water has soaked down into the soil somewhat, then he proceeds to plant.

To give the fall garden crops a boost, Barrons suggests adding a Victory garden type fertilizer, even though the ground has received an application earlier in the season.

HOLLY THEATRE

For exacting movie patrons who like their fare loaded with music and comedy, Paramount's "And the Angels Sing" due Tuesday at the Holly Theatre promises to deliver the perfect mixture. It's got a top trio of ranking stars in Betty Hutton, Dorothy Lamour and Fred MacMurray with two charming ingenues, Diana Lynn and Mimi Chandler, lending capable support.

A story about the four Angel sisters who trail band-leader Fred MacMurray in an attempt to recover some borrowed money, this film is due to provide belly-laughs all the way. Certainly, four more alluring young women than Betty, Diana, Mimi and Dorothy would be difficult to find in any family. With Papa Angel portrayed by Raymond Walburn the complications which arise are said to be slightly bombastic.

Betty Hutton's back again with those inimitable renditions of swing songs by Johnny Burke and Jimmy Van Heusen while Dorothy Lamour lends her vocal talents in singing the torch songs by the same duo of tune-makers. In all, eight new songs said to be slated for the honor list are presented in the film.

Comedian Eddie Foy Jr. gets his chance at a featured role and, reporters say, turns in a job which will boost his stock considerably. Directed by George Marshall who turned out

"Riding High" and "Star Spangled Rhythm", this latest musical frolic from Paramount is one which automatically gets checked on the movie-goer's list.

Leatherneck Washing Machine

Laundry problems on Pacific outposts are not as difficult as one might expect. An example of Leatherneck ingenuity is demonstrated above by Corp. Billy G. Alexander of Amarillo, Tex. The clothes are placed in the half-barrel, with soap and water, and the plunger does the work. When an especially good job is desired, a fire is built under the barrel. The power? Oh, yes, propulsion is supplied by a hand-made windmill.

The proudest title in the Army.

IT CONSISTS of two simple words.

Yet every soldier who's worth his salt covets it.

This title is simply:

"Good Soldier."

It isn't just happenstance that so many women in the WAC have earned this title—the proudest in the Army.

For wherever Wacs are working, both here and overseas, there you find a job well done. And done with a spirit so gallant and fine that high Army officers everywhere say of the WAC...

"They're soldiers. Good soldiers!"

Mr. Macaroni -- Meat Extender

By BETTY BARCLAY

You can get some meat without points--if your butcher has meat. Other meats require points--and you may get such cuts if you have points. No matter how you are situated, there is still a meat problem and meat-stretching foods should be used regularly.

Macaroni, spaghetti and egg noodles, which go to make up Macaroni Products' famous "Energy Trio," are ideal protein foods to combine with meat--another food rich in protein.

And don't for a minute look upon a macaroni dish as a winter food alone. This is a mistaken idea. Such a dish supplies vigor and energy to the human system, builds body tissues and gives strength. Our bodies need nourishing foods in summer, particularly during these working, war times, but they need food that is easily digested and quickly assimilated so that the digestive system will not be overtaxed. That's why our friend, Mr. Macaroni, or Spaghetti or Egg Noodles, should be called upon frequently as a real war-time meat extender.

How? Just try any or all of the recipes below and you will add them to your permanent recipe file:

Noodle Goulash
One of mother's admonishments was--"It is sinful to waste." Here's a fresh or left-over meat favorite.

1 lb. egg noodles
1/2 lb. ground left-over meat or fresh-ground hamburger
1 onion, cut fine
3 tablespoons green pepper, cut fine
1/4 cup celery, cut fine
1/2 cups tomatoes and juice
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
1/2 cup grated cheese (optional)

Cook egg noodles in four cups of boiling water, salted, until done, and all water has been absorbed, turning fire lower as cooking proceeds. Fry meat until brown, add remaining ingredients and let simmer until vegetables are tender.

Mr. Lewis' first introduction to 4-H Club work in Oakland County is the 4-H Foundation which will be held in Clarkston, Mich. from 2 miles north of Clarkston, Mich. on August 17-18.

Dried Corn Is Good Eating

Directions on How to Prepare Winter Food

When the ears are dried and the husks are removed, the corn should be left to dry further for several hours on the kitchen table before being put in storage containers. The grains should be stirred occasionally during this time to insure thorough drying. The corn should be stored in tin cans with close-fitting tops or in old glass fruit jars that can no longer be sealed tightly enough for ordinary canning.

of preserving corn when no pressure cooker is available, although it is not practical except for comparatively small quantities, she says. The chief advantage of dried corn is in the novelty of the product.

Any variety of good sweet corn may be used. Gather it in the milk stage but only in small quantities that can be prepared at once. Husk the ears and remove any worm in juices. Dip in hot water from 10 to 15 minutes, to "set" the milk. Young corn will require all of 15 minutes, while older corn will need only 10 to 12 minutes. Then drain, cool, and cut the grains from the cobs. Spread 1/2 to 3/4 inch deep on trays and dry at a temperature of 130 to 140 degrees F in the oven. Stir the kernels during drying to break up masses and to insure even drying. When sufficiently dried, the grains will be hard and will break with a clean, glass-like fracture, Miss Hershey explains.

It is important that the temperature be maintained from 130 to 140 degrees. That is a slightly warmer atmosphere than one would care to keep his hands in for any length of time. To regulate the temperature, leave the electric oven door open about 1/2 inch and a gas oven door open about 8 inches. In the case of ovens in wood or coal-burning stoves, it will be necessary for the housewife to determine by experiment how to regulate the temperature.

After the husks are removed from the oven, the corn should be left to dry further for several hours on the kitchen table before being put in storage containers. The grains should be stirred occasionally during this time to insure thorough drying. The corn should be stored in tin cans with close-fitting tops or in old glass fruit jars that can no longer be sealed tightly enough for ordinary canning.

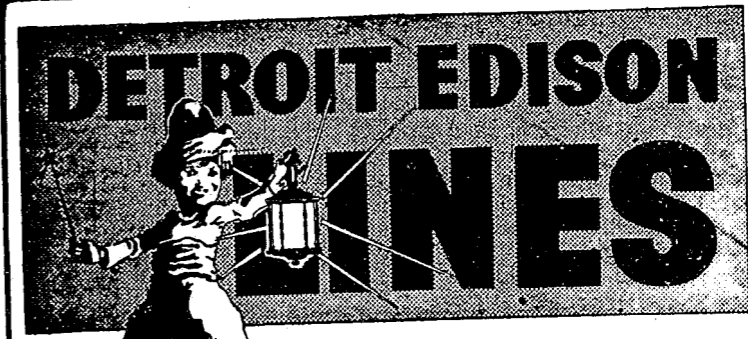

To insure seed supplies, at least for their own use in 1945, Michigan farmers are urged to harvest for seed this year all available acres of the common, yellow forages, says Carter M. Harrison, associate professor of farm crops, M. S. C. Legume seed harvest for the last three years has been sufficient to supply the state's needs.

Pre-cut indications are that there will be a lot of alfalfa and clover crop, Harrison says. He urges that care be taken to harvest this seed with as little waste as possible.

Before cutting for seed, it is advisable to remove weed seeds such as chickweed, etc. Stalks and other plant parts should be removed in such a way as to leave a high quality product. The legume seed crop is worth special attention during harvest. Legume seed should be stored in a cool, dry place and the cut portion be stacked in a covered area until it can be used.

Every extra cord of fire wood American farmers supply for fuel can save from one-half to a ton of coal, WPB advises. Coal supplies this year will be short and vitally needed by essential War Industries.

Learning a Job at GMC IS AS EASY AS A-B-C

The chart in the picture above is a concrete example of how GMC makes it easy for women to learn vital war jobs. This visual aid or motion analysis chart illustrates each step in the job this woman is doing. By picturing what each hand is supposed to do in the operation, the chart will quickly familiarize her with the work and save her time and energy because it eliminates unnecessary motions. The GMC Training Center uses the most up-to-date training methods and is constantly introducing new and better ways of teaching. Recently, movies and slide films were included. And every woman starts earning a good wage the minute she begins this training. With these advantages, and many others, GMC is the place where every patriotic woman in this area should apply for a war-winning job.
