Board To Review Awards For Naval Personnel

A Board of Review for Decorations and Medals, headed by Admiral Frederick J. Horne, USN, has been appointed by Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal to prevent any oversights, injustices or omissions in the presentation of awards to officers and enlisted men of the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard.

The Board, composed of Regular and Reserve officers of the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, will review such cases as may be advisable "in order to assure, insofar as may be practicable, that there may be no oversights, injustices or omissions," Admiral Horne explained.

All present and former commanding officers, in service or released to inactive duty, should submit to the Board any recommendations for service during the present national emergency desired for members of their present or former commands who have not previously been recommended. Individuals who consider they merit an award for service performed during this period should communicate with their former commanding officer, setting forth pertinent details.

Coryza A Threat To Poultry Flock

When coryza breaks out in the poultry flock, immediate steps to prevent its spread are called for. Two forms of coryza are common—the rapid spreading form called simple coryza and the slower spreading type, chronic coryza or roup.

One of the first symptoms in an infected flock is sneezing and shaking of the head. Slimy material may be found in the nostrils and on the beak, and the eyes are usually watery. A thin, watery or sticky material may cover the face and eyelids. With chronic coryza the "running nose" stage is soon followed by a swelling of the sides of the face and accumulation of mucous or pus under the eyelids, often causing them to be pasted together. In simple coryza the condition does not progress beyond the "running nose" stage, but in most cases secondary infection takes place. The fluid in the beak and nostrils becomes "cheesy," accumulating in the sinuses causing characteristic swelling.

The department of bacteriology and public health, School of Veterinary Medicine, Michigan State college, recommends these steps to control coryza:

1. Immediately isolate the diseased birds. Kill and burn those badly affected.

2. Check the hygienic and sanitary conditions in the poultry house. If the house seems to be damp and the litter continually wet, determine whether it is caused by faulty ventilation or a defective floor. Recovery is hastened if birds are kept in rooms or houses which are comfortably warm and without excessive dampness. Secure suggestions on poultry house construction and ventilation from the poultry husbandry department, at Michigan State College.

3. To retard spread of the disease add calcium hypochlorite to the drinking water. Any good commercial chlorine disinfectant is satisfactory. Follow the manufacturer's recommendations as to the amount to be added to the drinking water. To be effective the water should be changed at least twice a day. Chlorine will not cure the disease, but will merely help to lessen its spread.

4. Clean the house thoroughly. If the weather is not too cold, apply a disinfectant to the floors, perches, lower parts of the walls, drinking vessels and feeders.

Sulfathiazole has shown some promise in control of simple coryza, but it is recommended that it be used only under the supervision of a veterinarian.
