Combining an interesting and profitable series of Bible lessons with a live-wire program of recreation and handicraft, this year's Bible school will meet a real need in providing a fascinating and worth while summertime interest for boys and girls of pre-school through intermediate age.

An excellent series of Bible lessons, un-denominational in character, and properly graded to each age of children, will be presented by a fine staff of volunteer teachers under the direction of the pastor of the church, Rev. Wright VanPlew, and Miss Elizabeth Jencks and Mrs. Stephen Petteplace, children's workers.

Each day's program will begin with a worship period, and will include missionary stories, handicraft projects, samples of which are now on display at the church and at Jacober's store, game periods, memory work, and contests, with never a dull moment from the first day until the last. The entire school will parade through the community on Monday morning.

All children are invited to enroll in the school. No charge is made for enrollment, except that each child is requested to contribute 12 cents toward the cost of his work book. Free bus service will be provided for those living at a distance and who have no transportation, and offerings received at stated times during the school will be sent to mission fields of the scholars' choice. Every one attending on the first day will receive an award, and various other awards will be made at the close of the school term. For further information call 31-1714 or 31-1425.

HOPP-SUTLIFF
 St. Trinity Lutheran Church of Pontiac was the scene of a pretty candlelight service when Carol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hopp became the bride of Richard Sutliff of Oakland Lake on Saturday night of June 29 at 8 o'clock.

The double ring ceremony was performed before a flower banked altar. The young couple spoke their vows with the Rev. Walter Heyne officiating before 200 guests.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Pearl satin with a sweetheart neckline, long pointed sleeves and fitted bodice and short train. Her veil was fingertip length, held in place with a crown of pearl satin hearts. She carried a white prayer book with a bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Bernice Wood, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a pink net gown accented by a peplum and a garden hat. Irene FitzPatrick and Jean Allison, bridesmaids, wore identical gowns of pink net with fitted lace bodice and sweetheart necklines with short sleeves. They wore a head-dress of pink caught with pink flowers, all carrying colonial bouquets.

Elwin Brown, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, acted as best man. Ushers were David Ruelle and Howard Brinker.

Mrs. Hopp chose a beige dress and straw colored accessories for her daughter's wedding and Mrs. Sutliff wore a beautiful moss green dress with white accessories and both wore corsages of tallisman roses.

A reception was held in the church parlors following the wedding. For going away the bride chose a white suit with matching accessories. The couple has gone to northern Michigan for their honeymoon and will reside in Pontiac upon their return.

Out of town guests were from Ann Arbor, Alpena, Wayne, Eloise, Dearborn, Detroit, Brighton, Goodrich, Drayton Plains and Pontiac.

Farm Pest Control Starts at Home

From the viewpoint of the farmer, orchardist, florist, nurseryman or the livestock man, pest control begins at home. It is nothing new, says Charles Figy, director of the state department of agriculture, but is a struggle that has been carried on by the farmer and his forebearers since agriculture began. In the beginning he had only to contend with native insects and diseases as commerce in nursery stock and plants did not involve transportation over long distances, thus spreading pests and plant diseases from one section of the land to another.

The individual control operations of the farmer on his own land may be considered the first step in pest control. He is aided in this work by public funds and by information made available to him through various agencies as to the best methods to accomplish control most economically and effectively.

With the increasing volume and speed of commercial movement of agricultural plants and nursery stock, it has become apparent that the second step is to adequately protect the plant industry in the state. The recognition of the hazards imposed on agriculture by the introduction through commerce of new pests and diseases has prompted establishment of quarantines to protect these producers from further invasion of new pests.

The third phase of pest control may well be considered the suppression or eradication of pests which are newly introduced. Careful planning and extensive research to gain technical knowledge of the character of the pest or disease is needed to maintain effective control and eventual eradication.

The control of emergency outbreaks which cannot be economically controlled by individuals or local agencies alone, may be named as the fourth phase of pest control. Such control is best accomplished through co-operative activities between individuals, local, state and federal agencies, according to the needs and the abilities of the co-operating agencies. Excellent examples of these emergency outbreaks are grasshoppers, mormon crickets and chinch bugs which are important from a quarantine standpoint.

WAA Offers Surplus Insect Repellent

Here's good news for fishermen, vacationers, picnickers, and incidentally, for veterans of World War II. War Assets Administration announces that 70 million bottles of insect repellent, "potent enemy of flies, gnats, mosquitoes, chiggers and other insect pests", are offered for sale, with 18 million bottles set aside for exclusive sale to veterans. Only fly in this continent is that minimum quantities to veterans will be 10 cases, with 108 bottles to the case. But, on the other hand, the veteran gets a special low price of five cents a bottle.

Milkweed floss, which was collected and processed in large quantities in northern Michigan during the war, is now finding its way into civilian uses, through the efforts of the WAA. A buyer for 120,123 pounds of the floss, which was used as filling for life preservers, was found in New York by the Detroit WAA office. It will go on the civilian market in the form of boat cushions, bedding and furniture upholstery. Incidentally, the sale returned $21,021.61 to taxpayers.

Change for a dollar bill and checks for as much as $65,000,000 are part of the everyday business of the War Assets Administration, in its efforts to save billions of dollars of taxpayers' money through the sale of war surplus goods. A firm in Grand Rapids recently purchased a lead wire for 80 cents. At the same time, the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. was completing negotiations for the purchase of a plant for $65,013,000.

Red Cross Offers Aid In Filing Vets' Claims

According to Mrs. Sheldon Noble, chairman of home service of the American Red Cross, the local chapter is ready to assist veterans with their claims as well as any other problems, which may arise. "It is impossible to emphasize too strongly the importance of each veteran filing a disability claim if he came out of service with any condition which was incurred in or aggravated by service during the war."

While a monetary award may not be forthcoming at the present time it is most important to establish service connection now while records are still fresh and available. A veteran may not be affected too seriously by a disability now but chapter experience with veterans of World War I shows that in later years the disability may become worse. If service connection has been established an ex-serviceman will be more immediately eligible for benefits from the Veterans Administration.

It is suggested by the Red Cross that each veteran have a complete physical examination by a civilian physician sometime within a year after date of discharge. There are many disabilities which are considered service connected if they appear within a year after separation from service. Veterans who wish questions answered may call either of the two chapter home service offices. One office is located at 410 Pontiac State Bldg., Telephone 4-3575; the other which serves southern Oakland County at 321 W. Sixth, Royal Oak, Telephone Lincoln 2-6700.

The home service committee which meets once a month and assists Mrs. Noble with the program of the local chapter consists of Mrs. T. W. Eustus, vice-chairman, Dr. John S. Lambie, Birmingham; C. G. Rudderham, Mrs. Harry Hoey, Bloomfield Hills; Mrs. E. P. Turner, Mrs. Frances Mally, Kenneth McQueen, Southfield; H. Russel Holland and Mrs. Claire Gaukler, Pontiac.

DETROIT CPA REJECTS BUILDING APPLICATION

LANSING — Flat rejection by the Detroit CPA office of conservation department application to build a $60,000 masonry structure in Rochester-Utica state recreation area is the first formal ruling on such construction that the department has been able to obtain since the building priority system was established.

The application was in the nature of a test case, to guide the department on the extent of development permissible in urgently needed southeastern Michigan park facilities. The Rochester-Utica building, which would have housed sanitation facilities for the large number of persons using this area, is part of a building program for which the Legislature appropriated several hundred thousand dollars. It was deferred first by wartime conditions and now by the building material shortage.

Since building priorities were announced, the conservation department's parks and recreation division has turned to park development jobs like road building and grading which require little material, and to use of temporary construction such as small clothing-changing booths instead of bath-houses.

THERE ARE MANY "DON'TS" IN OWNING WILD PETS

LANSING — If you must have a lawn for a pet, get one from a licensed game breeder, the conservation department is telling as many as 10 inquirers a day. That goes for bear cubs and baby raccoons, too. To stay out of costly trouble, the pet fanciers must leave the baby animals found in the woods alone.

No wild animal may be kept under a pet permit unless it has been legally obtained, and deer, bear and raccoons are safely out of the pet stage when it is legally possible to obtain them in Michigan in the fall hunting seasons.

Game men for years have repeated the facts about the woods being "home" to young wild life, but misguided persons still kidnap fawns and other helpless young animals though the law against molesting them is strict. At Tawas City one man was fined $25 plus $6.85 costs for such a trick.

Three Million Trees Planted in Michigan

Three million trees were planted by farm co-operators of Michigan soil conservation districts in 1945. Karl D. Bailey, county agricultural agent has received this information from R. G. Hill, secretary of the state soil conservation committee and Michigan State College extension specialist. In Oakland County, farm co-operators with the conservation district planted approximately 11,000 trees during the past year.

Hill reports that since soil conservation districts were started in 1938 more than eighteen million trees have been planted in the soil conservation districts.

Most of the planting has been of white, jack, red and Scotch pine and Norway and white spruce, although in some localities, shrubs were used. Plantings have been confined largely to small areas on farms which are not sur-able to cultivation or pasture. However, in many localities, plantings have been made to reduce wind and water erosion.

In some soil conservation districts, harvesting of Christmas trees from early plantings started last winter. This is especially true in the West Ottawa district.

NO COMPETITION ? . . . THERE'S PLENTY OF IT

More than any other private business, the utility is in direct and continuous competition with the theories and, in some sections of the United States, with the works of those who would turn private business into government business.

The Detroit Edison Company competes for your business in your home, because there is nothing which compels the use of electricity exclusively in the operation of many household appliances.

Industries are free to build plants for the manufacture of their own electric power, and a few have done so.

Because of the existence of real competition, The Detroit Edison Company is required to produce so efficiently that the industrialist cannot afford to generate his own power.

Detroit Edison is required to serve the home so well that its occupants will PREFER electricity.

Beyond all this is the ever-present fact that our customers—you, the householder, the farmer, the merchant and the manufacturer—expect nothing less than the BEST from The Detroit Edison Company. We are in constant competition with that standard of price, dependability and service which you fix for us—with your idea of what Detroit Edison should be.

Upon our ability to meet that competition depends our right to survive and prosper. Direct competition by another electric company is eliminated by law as a matter of public policy. That policy permits exercise of the economies of mass purchases and mass production without wasteful duplications. The safeguards of public regulation are combined with the enterprise and efficiency of private management.

The objective and the result—extraordinary service at reasonable cost.

Pressure Cooker Is Good Investment

A pressure cooker can be a good investment which pays off in more than one way during one canning season says Mary Woodward, home demonstration agent of Oakland County.

According to 1945 canning records compiled by Michigan State College, the average Michigan farm family canned 188 quarts of vegetables and fruit and 22 quarts of meat and poultry during the year.

Most vegetables, chicken and meat, if canned in water-bath, must be processed at least three hours after the water starts to boil. Using a pressure cooker with ten pounds pressure, the time necessary for the same products averages a little more than one hour. This does not include the time to reach the pressure point and the time for the needle to reach zero again (which is usually about an hour).

The hours saved in the average family canning by using the pressure cooker amounts to at least 24 hours. This saves money by saving fuel and time. While a water-bath must be kept boiling, a pressure cooker, once the pressure has been reached, uses little fuel.

In addition to the greater amount of fuel needed for the water-bath, all non-acid vegetables, meat and poultry canned by the water-bath method must be boiled at least 15 minutes before being consumed. This is to destroy any harmful bacteria which may be present. Such bacteria are already destroyed, if present, in the high temperatures reached in pressure cooking.

Using the pressure cooker for cooking is an excellent way to save time and fuel in preparing tough meat, chicken, beans, soups and stews during the entire year.

Pressure cookers are becoming increasingly easier to obtain, and are recommended for the home-maker by Miss Woodward.

Bag Limits Fixed On Most Game Birds

Fixing of the seasons and bag limits on pheasants and northern upland game birds has been postponed to August, but the conservation commission at its June meeting in Pigeon River state forests approved other small game and deer season dates and regulations in practically the same form as they were last year.

Regular season on deer, bear, raccoon, cottontail rabbits, snowshoe hares, gray and fox squirrels, muskrat, mink, opossum, skunk, badger and woodchuck have been approved for the coming season exactly as they were in 1945, and bag limits are unchanged.

Allegan state forest's special antlerless deer season December 1-10 will be limited to 300 hunters chosen by lot and archers in the Allegan bow and arrow season October 1-December 15 may take a deer of either sex. In the rest of the state, archers are limited to antlered bucks in the October 1-November 5 season, and gun hunters may take only bucks in the regular deer season November 15-30.

Postponement of the decision on pheasants, ruffed grouse, prairie chickens and sharp-tailed grouse will permit consideration of the success of this season's hatch when making regulations. H. D. Ruhl, game division chief, told the commission the division has distributed 25,000 pheasant eggs and hopes to plant 10,000 pen-reared birds in the areas hardest hit by last season's pheasant slump.

At the same meeting the commission approved purchase of 59 acres in Flat River state game area, Montcalm County; 585 feet of frontage on King Lake, Baraga County and 2,500 feet frontage on Milakokia Lake, Mackinac County; and 722 acres in Holly, Proud Lake, Ortonville and Pinckney state recreation areas, in Oakland and Washtenaw counties.

Revision of the boundaries of Hardwood, Black Lake, Pigeon River, Alpena and Presque Isle state forests, after consultation with local land use planning committees, added 40,000 acres to these units.

Conservation News

Pressure of the housing shortage is evident in applications for state lands to be auctioned July 29-August 3, when 600 platted lots and 9,228 acres in 31 counties will be made available.

Many of these lots have been withheld from sale by the conservation department since 1940 on recommendation of the municipalities, because of their remoteness from utilities such as electricity, gas, sewerage and water supply. Increased demand for building lots has returned them, with municipal approval to the market. Some applicants want the lots for gardens.

News that an English wife of a returned American soldier could not get a fishing license for a certain section of Ohio because she was an alien has prompted the Michigan department of conservation to invite all Ohio's alien war brides to fish in Michigan. Michigan fishing and hunting laws make no distinctions because of citizenship, but differentiate only between residents and non-residents. Aliens who have been residents of Michigan more than six months may hunt and fish on equal terms and for the same fees as the native born.
