Drayton Plains Picnic Aug. 10

To Be Held at Avon Park, Rochester; Many Prizes Listed

The tenth annual Drayton Plains community picnic is to be held Saturday, August 10, at Avon Park in Rochester. Sponsored by the business men of Drayton Plains in co-operation with the Drayton Men's Club, the affair is one of the big yearly events of the community and will draw a huge crowd.

An all-day series of games and races is planned, and many prizes of various types of useful merchandise will be awarded to the winning contestants. A ball game in the afternoon will be played.

The big prize of the day will be a boat—complete with oars, anchor, etc.—and a trailer to accommodate it will go to the lucky winner. The boat is built by the Harrington Boat Works and the trailer—a rubber-tired affair—is a product of the Higgins Boat Works of California.

Second prize will be a fine Thermos jug, and third prize will consist of a very nice folding camp table. Besides these main prizes there will be several gate prizes awarded in the way of various items of valuable merchandise.

All in all this picnic will be a grand one and everyone is guaranteed a wonderful time. The picnic committee has devoted a great deal of time and effort to make it a complete success and they are to be commended for a job well done. Chairman of the picnic committee is Charles Sniffen, assisted by Bud Gibson and Gordon Parker.

It will be noted that the picnic will be at Avon Park, Rochester, instead of Drayton Park as stated on the cover of the programs, the later being a typographical error that crept into print.

Wernet-Perry Rites Read Last Saturday

Last Saturday morning at 11:15 St. Michael church in Pontiac was the scene of a pretty wedding when Phyllis M. Wernet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius E. Wernet of Pontiac and Charles C. Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Perry of Clarkston, spoke their marriage vows in the presence of one hundred and fifty guests. The Reverend Elmer A. Mahoney performed the ceremony.

The bride was smart in a white crepe, street length dress with heart shaped lace inserts and a small white hat with a heart shaped crown. Her only jewelry was a gold cross, a gift from the bridegroom and her flowers were white gardenias and yellow roses.

Betty Saunders, the bride's only attendant, was dressed in silver blue crepe with black and white accessories. She carried a colonial bouquet of roses and carnations.

Assisting the bridegroom was his brother, Clare Rasmuson, as best man and seating the guests were Robert Wernet and Douglas Childs.

Mrs. Wernet chose, for her daughter's wedding, an aqua and black print dress with black accessories and Mrs. Perry wore a white eyelet dress with white accessories.

Following the ceremony a luncheon was served at the Hotel Roosevelt for the bridal party and the members of the immediate families. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on North Paddock street from two to four o'clock in the afternoon.

The newlyweds left on a short trip and on their return will reside on North Paddock street in Pontiac. For traveling she chose an aqua eyelet dress with white accessories.

Mrs. Perry is a graduate of St. Michael high school and is a member of Entrez Les Mieux sorority. Mr. Perry is a graduate of the Clarkston high school and the General Motors School of Technology. He recently was released from service in the U. S. Navy.

Guests were invited to attend the wedding from Ohio, Wisconsin, Coldwater, Jackson, Grand Blanc, Royal Oak, Flint, Detroit, Pontiac and Clarkston.

Swanee Taylor Appointed as MC To Rule Air Show

Swanee Taylor, dean of American air show announcers, has been appointed master of ceremonies of the AAF-CAP Michigan Air Show at Selfridge Field, Aug. 10-11, by Col. Ray Baker, Michigan Civil Air Patrol Commander. The colorful Taylor is known in Michigan for his participation in the Ford Reliability Air Tours and as a civilian pilot in the Ferrying Command at Romulus Air Base in 1942. He is an ex-member of the First Pursuit Group which was stationed at Selfridge Field after World War I.

A native Texan, Swanee Taylor served in World War I as a balloonist, having instructed intensively in free-ballooning. At the close of hostilities he transferred to heavier-than-air craft and graduated from flying school in the first class of cadets to graduate after the war.

Leaving the army in 1920 he entered a period of barnstorming, flying all types of early-day "crates" in every conceivable type of flying job.

In 1926 the management of the Philadelphia Sesqui-Centennial Air Races put him in charge of ground entertainment, a move calculated to amuse the audience while waiting for events in the air. While thus engaged he took it on himself to inform the audience through the public address system as to just what was taking place above. This made a bigger hit with the crowd than the planned entertainment and launched him in a new career.

Selfridge Field will be the 53rd location at which he has handled the microphone in hundreds of such appearances in the past 20 years.

Among his other activities the many-sided Taylor has done extensive magazine writing on aviation subjects and for a time was retained as aviation expert for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

His prize specialty is air shows and he is at his peak while sand-wiching comments in between stunts, maneuvers and formations.

Well acquainted with the major figures in aviation and familiar with the latest planes and equipment, Taylor has been asked to handle the microphone for both days of the two-day Selfridge Field show.

Gates at the show will open at 9:00 a. m. each day, with continuous events provided until 5 p. m.

LADIES' AID ENJOYS PICNIC

The Ladies' Aid of the Andersonville church enjoyed a picnic on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Fred Ware on Big Lake Road. The group enjoyed a dinner at noon which was followed by the regular business meeting.

In the afternoon Miss Minnie Mae Cook, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Albert Amhaus of Cleveland, who is her guest for a few days. Mrs. Amhaus, a former Detroit school teacher, gave a splendid book review of "Absent in the Spring" by Mary Westmacott. Her dramatic ability and personal charm made the story exceptionally interesting.

Clarkston Motor Sales Makes Bow To Public Today

Clarkston Motor Sales, dealers in Chrysler and Plymouth Motor Cars and International Trucks, are formally opening their new showroom and garage to the public today.

Located in a brand new, modern building at 32 South Main street, the new agency is owned and operated by two veterans of World War II—Albert Poole, a former used car dealer in Detroit, and George Lang, also of Detroit.

The grand opening of the new garage will see two new cars on the showroom floor—a 1946 Chrysler Windsor 4-door sedan, and a 1946 Plymouth 4-door Special DeLuxe. They will also be an International Truck, pickup model, on display. The public is cordially invited to come around and see this new Clarkston agency which is a credit to the community.

Mr. Poole, who will act as sales manager of the business, states that their garage is probably one of the most modern and best equipped in this section. Among the special features being Bear wheel alignment equipment, brake drum refacing machine, and a motor analyzer of the latest design. Mr. Lang, mechanical head of the firm, will be in charge of all repair work. He is backed by 17 years of experience on all types of cars, and during his army career he worked at the Packard Motor Car Co. in Detroit where he inspected equipment for the government.

The Clarkston Motor Sales will carry a full line of parts for all models of International Trucks. The building has the largest showroom in Oakland County and the entire building area covers 5,820 square feet. It is of cement block construction with large plate glass show windows across the front and side. Future plans call for air conditioning throughout as soon as such equipment is available once more.

Both Mr. Poole and Mr. Lang intend to move their families to Clarkston as soon as they are able to find housing for them.

Clarkston Defeated In 13 Innings-4-3

Clarkston's town team journeyed to Clifford, Michigan last Sunday to lose a tough battle 4-3.

The team started off with a bang in the first inning to take the lead 3-0 which they held for eight and one-half innings. Trouble started in the last of the ninth when Clifford came through with two singles and a home run to tie the score 3-3, sending the game into extra innings. The next four innings were a tight pitcher's battle with Ted Nesmith giving up the fatal run to the opposing team. The game provided many thrills although the hits were few for both teams.

Clarkston will play the Pontiac Rams Sunday on our home field at 2:30. A large crowd is expected.

Parents Reminded To Have Children Vaccinated Now

With the opening of school only a few weeks away, Dr. William DeKleine, State Health Commissioner reminds Michigan parents to have their children protected against smallpox, diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus.

"We do not want children to enter school without this protection," said Dr. DeKleine. "The dangers are too great. The opening of school brings children from widely separated areas into close contact. This means a greater possibility of exposure to these diseases."

"Parents should not wait until the last day or two before school opens to have their children immunized. They should do it now because it takes several weeks for immunity to build up."

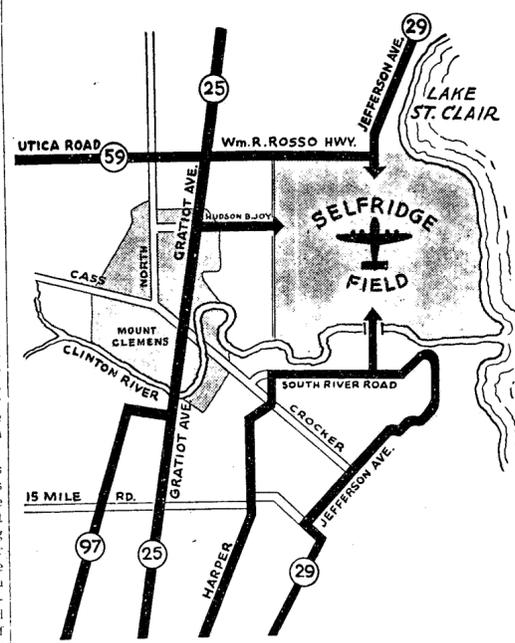

For those youngsters who have been vaccinated for these diseases during infancy, it is recommended that they have single or booster doses for all four. Children who have never been immunized should be given the full series of preventive treatments.

The Service Mothers' Club of Clarkston will hold their picnic Thursday, August 15 at Cranberry Lake. All members attending will meet at the Masonic Temple at 1 o'clock. They are to bring their own table service and a dish to pass. All members of the organization are urged to attend as a fine time will be enjoyed. Don't forget the date—Thursday, August 15, at Cranberry Lake.

How to Reach the Michigan Air Show

Cut out this map and take it with you if you drive to the AAF-CAP Michigan Air Show at Selfridge Field this coming Saturday and Sunday.

The Automobile Club of Michigan, in cooperation with the State Police, State Highway Commission, Macomb County Sheriff, Mt. Clemens Police and Selfridge Field authorities, has arranged for the use of gates and roads not normally available to automobile traffic into Selfridge Field. The map outlines the roads serving the four emergency gates being utilized for the air show as well as the main gate on Rosso Blvd. (M-29).

State Police patrols, sheriff's deputies, Mt. Clemens Police and CAP Cadets will be stationed at strategic points to route traffic over the least used highways in the immediate vicinity of the field. Spotter planes, in radio communication with the traffic squads, will assist in the direction of traffic.

Selfridge Field officials urge motorists to use those gates nearest their own normal approach to the field unless otherwise directed by road patrols in the vicinity.

Parking spaces for over 25,000 automobiles will be provided on the field. No congestion is anticipated at the gates or on the field.

There's Still A Place

It's nice to know, of places still where man can hide away a spell, where nature's waiting with a thrill beside a lake, or shaded dell.

In such a place, a man can shed the falseness of his padded self, and make upon the earth a bed becoming, most a woodland elf.

To kick ones' shoes from pampered feet and wade into a welcome pool, where quietness give souls a treat, or slumber where the woods are cool.

To wander off among the trees that nature planted with such care, then hear the whisper of the breeze, a stirring of branches here and there.

To watch wild ducks swim slowly by, unmindful of our presence near, with peacefulness on land and sky they know there's nothing they should fear.

I like to think, God meant to be our life so commonplace as this, so simplified and trouble free, so full of love and peaceful bliss. —ROBERT C. BEATTIE (All rights reserved)

Lowly Dishwashing Becomes Scientific Topic of Research

Not all scientists are engaged in atomic research—some of them are concerned with dishwashing.

Located at the University of Michigan, the National Sanitation Foundation is seeking to determine some of the essential factors of sanitary dishwashing, whether it be by machine or by hand, in the home kitchen, or hotels, restaurants and other eating places.

The research is concerned with determining the time and temperature necessary to eliminate all public health hazards from eating utensils, the mechanics of washing and rinsing, how effectively a cleansing agent will remove soil from utensils under actual working conditions and the possibilities of "cold sterilization" of utensils.

The non-profit Michigan incorporated foundation hopes results of its studies may help to unify dishwashing codes throughout the country and aid manufacturers in developing more efficient dishwashing machines.

The code of the U.S. Public Health Service recommends a rinse period of two minutes at 170 degrees Fahrenheit for hand washing of utensils but many communities and even states deviate markedly from this requirement, Dr. Henry F. Vaughn, dean of the University's School of Public Health and Foundation president, says.

Ten dishwashing machines are being tested in the foundation's investigation of time and temperature dishwashing standards being carried out at Michigan State College under the direction of Dr. W. L. Mallmann, Montana State College is doing research on the best way to rate cleansing agents.

Research on "cold sterilization" of utensils is under the direction of Dr. Thomas Francis, Jr., head of the Department of Epidemiology at the University of Michigan. By this method, utensils are cleaned by rinsing in chemically treated water at a temperature lower than 170 degrees.

Another important phase of the many-sided study is an effort to determine the effects of the various cleansing agents on the skin of the dishwasher and on the patron who uses the utensils which may contain traces of the agent used.

"The purpose of the Foundation is as broad as the whole field of sanitation," Dr. Vaughn says. "It is an organization supported by gifts, grants and bequests, where public health workers, industry and business combine their efforts to solve common problems. While the problems are extremely varied the solutions have a single objective: the improvement of environmental health in the U. S."

Sun Spots Are Back - In Record Sizes

Sun spots are back in the news but no one knows what causes them!

Dr. Orren C. Mohler, assistant professor of astronomy at the University of Michigan, asserts 1946 will be a year marked by record sized sun spots and foresees possibilities for brilliant displays of Northern Lights. Sun spot activity is now reaching its 11-year peak, he added.

Prof. Mohler is assistant astronomer at the University's McMath-Hulbert Observatory at Lake Angelus, near Pontiac, considered one of the world's leading observatories for solar study.

"Thus far, he reports the year has produced the largest sun spot ever measured. This took place Feb. 1, Professor Mohler says, while another one late in July, was only 10 per cent smaller. Although called spots, these dark patches on the sun are actually very large but seem small in comparison to the sun's huge size. Prof. Mohler describes the July spot as being 140,000 miles long and 40,000 miles wide.

Sun spots cause magnetic storms which seriously hinder long distance short wave radio transmission, Prof. Mohler points out. Normally layers of ions, which are electrically charged atoms, encircle the earth and act as a mirror to reflect radio beams. When the sun spots appear, electrically charged particles from the sun crash into these ions and in effect smash the mirror.

Two theories exist as to the reasons for Northern Lights, those wavering fingers of light in the skies, Prof. Mohler says. One is that ultra violet light from the sun spot strikes atoms high in the atmosphere and causes the light reflection.

The other theory is that the original bit of "atom busting" takes place as electrically charged particles from the sun bang into the ions, or atoms, and smash them to bits or cause a partial break up. The ions then reform and in the process emit light. The attraction of the earth's magnetic field causes these lights to appear in the northern skies.

three per cent sugar content and has been carried forward scientifically until the sugar beet of today has a sugar content of 15 per cent.

Plant breeding methods should now be concentrated upon selection and development of plant strains of high nutritional quality, Prof. Lewis believes.

HERBERT HEADS COMMITTEE

Professor Paul A. Herbert, head of the forestry department at Michigan State college, has been named chairman of a national committee of foresters which will study the problem of keeping the forestry teachers in the country up-to-date in their methods.

AN IMPRESSIVE RECORD

★ Although tuberculosis is one of the oldest known diseases, its cause was first conclusively proved when Robert Koch isolated the tubercle bacillus a little over fifty years ago. The success resulting from vigorous public health measures, particularly in the last quarter century, is impressive. At the beginning of the century, tuberculosis led the list of diseases as the most frequent cause of death. Today it has dropped to seventh place. There is no reason why it should not drop completely from the list of important causes of death.

This splendid record has resulted from the combined efforts of many agencies. An enlightened public opinion with respect to the value of the physician's services has contributed immeasurably. Have that long-delayed physical examination today. We are prescription specialists.

Plant Breeding Improves Products

Plant breeding to develop agricultural products of high nutritive value is recommended by Howard B. Lewis, director of the University of Michigan College of Pharmacy.

Most plant breeding work has been intended to develop larger and more palatable fruits or to produce a plant strain hardy enough to resist unfavorable climates or attacks by insects and plant diseases, Prof. Lewis explains.

The only notable plant breeding experiment which produced a plant of higher nutritive value was that which produced the present sugar beet, he declared. Work began with a beet of approximate-

How do they do it?

Could you produce one-third more crops with 10% less manpower? The farmers of America did it during the last full year of the war.

How? Partly by working themselves and their machines longer, harder. Partly by assisting hired help with wired help.

Electricity has taken over more and more farm chores. It pumps water, grinds feed, cures hay, fills silos. It steps up milk and egg and pork production. It eases farm housework, too.

Cheap, dependable electricity has done more than any other force to make farming efficient and farm life comfortable.

Who electrified the farms? Rural electric service didn't happen overnight. It started more than 25 years ago—with America's business-managed electric companies. These companies did the pioneering—the pick-and-shovel work.

The advantages of electricity on the farm were many. The problem was to get it to the farmer. Distance and weather called for new methods and materials. New farm machines suitable for electric drive had to be developed.

Each problem was licked in turn by American initiative and ingenuity. Service grew steadily better and cheaper. Farm by farm, area by area, the web of wire expanded.

What of tomorrow? Today Detroit Edison serves 35,278 farms (about 95%) of all farms in our territory and more than 100,000 other rural customers outside of incorporated towns. That's real progress.

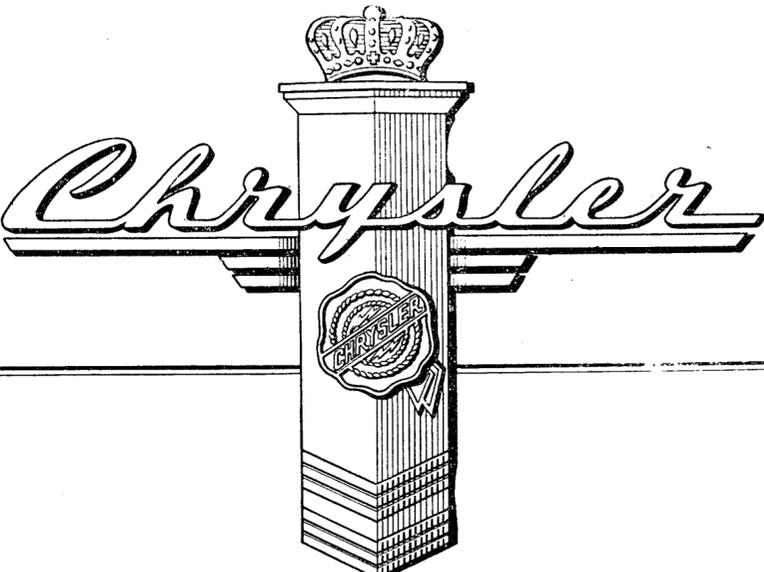

But the job isn't done. As fast as transformers, wire, poles and other critical materials become available we are extending reliable, low priced electric service. It is our goal to make this service available to every home, farm, business and industry at the earliest possible date.

For your listening pleasure tune in The Electric Hour every Sunday at 3:30 over WJR featuring Anne Jamison and Bob Shanley with Robert Armbruster and his orchestra.

Surplus War Goods Going to Veterans In Bigger Quantities

Veterans of World War II are fast becoming the largest buyers of war surplus goods and those who are taking advantage of the government's program to aid them in establishing their own businesses are not only good customers, but satisfied ones.

This is the conclusion of the Detroit Regional office of War Assets Administration, which announced this week that veterans are now buying more than half as much surplus property in one month as they formerly bought in six. Sales of consumers goods in all regions in June amounted to $221,915,000, of which veterans accounted for $77,789,000. This was an increase of 63 percent over the previous month.

Improvement of the veterans' buying position and better facilities for handling his applications and purchases have resulted in cutting the time for completing a sale from weeks to days, and in a few cases, to hours.

Michigan WAA officials pointed to two recent cases in which veterans obtained purchase orders and other documents and were on their way to take delivery of surplus trucks in less than an hour.

A former army captain, who had built up a butter and egg business since his discharge, was faced with a serious problem when his only truck broke down. He appealed to WAA and in an hour was on his way to Battle Creek to pick up a small delivery truck. Another veteran, an employee of the Automobile Club of Michigan, cleared a transaction for purchase of a panel truck in 55 minutes and obtained his vehicle the next day.

Under WAA regulations, motor vehicles, tractors and some machinery items are on the list of goods set aside exclusively for veterans, either for personal or business use. Other goods are sold under the veteran's second general priority in purchasing items to set up or maintain his own small business, agricultural or farming enterprise, or for use in his employment.

Batwing Jumper Featured in Air Show At Selfridge Field

Dan R. Bost, batwing jumper and parachute specialist, will give a batwing soaring and delayed parachute opening exhibition as a special feature of the AAF-CAP Michigan Air Show at Selfridge Field this coming Saturday and Sunday, August 10-11, Michigan Civil Air Patrol Headquarters announced today.

A trick parachute jumper before the war, Bost enlisted in the 305th Parachute Infantry Regiment of the 82nd Division and saw service in Sicily, Normandy and Holland. In the Sicilian invasion he was the third man to bail out in the opening assault.

While stationed in Germany after V-E Day he was awarded an on-the-spot decoration by the Russian army for a spectacular delayed-action jump before assembled American and Russian troops at Ludwigsburg.

Trailing a bed sheet to give the appearance of a defective parachute he fell within 500 feet of the ground before horrified spectators before opening his regular parachute. In return for this thrill a Russian general of the 5th Cossack Guards immediately presented him with the Russian Guard's Medal.

Bost started his career as a parachute specialist in 1938 and made 10 public batwing jumps before his enlistment in the army.

The batwing is a cloth and metal framework which permits the jumper to soar and maneuver while descending from a plane. Jumps must be made from a considerable height and a parachute is required to check the speed at the end of the drop.

The Michigan Air Show gates will open at 9:00 a. m. both Saturday and Sunday, with continuous entertainment provided until 5:00 p. m.

War is On Against Japanese Beetles

Approximately 6,000 Japanese Beetle traps were set out the last week of June and the first week of July, according to a report received from Charles Figg, Director of the State Department of Agriculture. Traps have been placed at the following locations: Detroit 2,000, Flint 516, River Rouge 285, Ecorse 200, Melvindale 100, Wyandotte 25, Ypsilanti 25, Ann Arbor 50, Bay City 50, Port Huron 50, Jackson 50, Lansing 100, Saginaw 50, Adrian 25, Kalamazoo 500, Cadillac 50, Reed City 25, Big Rapids 25, Newago 25, Grand Rapids 1,500, Muskegon 100, Muskegon Air Port 25, Grand Rapids Air Port 25, Holland 25.

As a result of extensive control work during the past few years, says C. A. Boyer, Chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, fewer beetles are being found than a year ago on the same date. The Department is desirous of picking up every beetle which might already be present in the state or might be introduced by means of a common carrier. The beetle is a great "hitch hiker" and with the flow of tourists into Michigan, it has many avenues of entry.

To date 2 beetles have been found in Kalamazoo, 9 in Detroit, and 6 in River Rouge. Soil treating programs were started this week in the areas where beetles were found. This treatment calls for the use of 500 pounds of arsenate of lead per acre and one soil treatment is good for a period of 6 to 8 years.

The flight season of the beetle usually extends from July 1 to August 10, with the height of the flight occurring around the middle of July.

Garden Harvest Is Best When Crops Are Entirely Ripe

One of the skills of a good gardener is the ability to harvest crops at just the right time. Jack Rose, Michigan state college extension specialist in home gardening offers some suggestions on harvesting.

Here are some of the general rules he suggests you follow:

Harvest garden produce just as near the time it is to be used as possible and keep it cool until ready for use. Sweet corn, for example, steadily loses sweetness and flavor the longer it is held after picking. Pick sweet corn when it is in the milk stage—when a little pressure from a fingernail will cause white milky juice to squirt from the kernels. This stage is about the time most of the silks have turned brown, but the husks are still green.

Harvest mature crops when the proper size, and remove tops as they are harvested. Tops only cause the roots to dry out and lose quality faster. Leave parsnips and salsify in the ground until after the first few frosts to improve their quality. Cut broccoli buds before any yellow flower color begins to appear. Broccoli should be a solid green color at harvest. Use kohlrabi while still young and tender.

Remove the stems from tomatoes as they are picked and less punctured fruit will result. Avoid injury to squash and pumpkins at harvest to reduce spoilage in storage. Cut the stems, leaving them about an inch long. Pick cantaloupe when the stems separate readily from the fruit. Tap the finger on the surface of the watermelon. A dead, solid sound means it isn't ready. A somewhat hollow, drum-like thud means the inside is red ripe and ready to eat. To check the thumping method, try peeling away with the fingernail just a little green surface. If it separates readily, the melon is ripe.

Late Ray S. Baker Donates Books To MSC Library

Ray Stannard Baker, the noted author and biographer who died at his home in Amherst, Massachusetts, on July 12, was one of the most distinguished graduates of Michigan State college. He was a member of the class of 1889, married Jessie I. Beal, of the class of 1890, daughter of one of the college's outstanding early faculty members, and maintained his interest in the college throughout his life.

In fact, at the time of his death, Baker was preparing for shipment to the college library his collection of books on bees. A son, James Baker, completed the task afterward, and Jackson Towns, college librarian, received the books late in July.

Baker always was interested in bees from his early days when he lived in Michigan. He resided in East Lansing from 1903 to 1911 during which time he began his famous series of "Adventures" books, written under the name of David Grayson. Throughout these books there are passages in which he refers to his experiences as a beekeeper.

And as recent as 1942, in "Under My Elm" he devoted three chapters to the bees on his Amherst farm. The notes he kept on index cards on this subject were also sent to the Michigan State library, as was the correspondence concerning his search for books on the subject. Oldest in the collection of 60 books is one by Thomas Hyll, published in London, 1568.

Incidentally, Baker's father-in-law and close friend, Dr. William J. Beal, was honored at the college at the recent conference of official seed analysts here from throughout the country. The group memorialized Dr. Beal and voted to erect a plaque in his memory in the new Natural Science building now under construction on the campus.

POULTRY SHORT COURSE

More than 60 poultrymen are expected to attend the annual flock selection and blood-testing school at Michigan State college, from August 19 to 23. Major items will be the selection of breeding stock for 1947, and the proper methods of conducting the whole-blood stained antigen test in the eradication of pullorum disease.

WRITES ARTICLE

H. M. Bendler, formerly of the Naval Observatory and now an instructor in the department of physics and astronomy at Michigan State college, has written a 5,000 word article on the chronograph, an instrument for measuring the precise time of occurring of astronomical events, for the 1946 Encyclopedia Americana.

DR. EUWEMA LEAVES

Dr. Ben Euwema, director of the division of language and literature and professor and head of the English department at Michigan State college, has won recognition for his outstanding work at East Lansing. He has been named Dean of the School of the Liberal Arts at Pennsylvania State college and will assume the new post this fall.

WAIT UNTIL YOU HEAR IT BEFORE YOU DIAL

The "hum-m-m-m" means "Number, please?"

When you dial before you hear that steady hum-m-m-m of the dial tone, chances are you'll get a wrong number — or no number at all.

These days, there may be a brief delay before the dial tone begins. That's because the central office dial equipment at times is so overloaded that it can't always handle every call instantly.

You see, we're temporarily crowding present facilities to the hilt to provide service for as many waiting applicants as we can, as fast as we can.

So remember — always wait for the dial tone before you begin to dial. You'll get better service . . . and you'll avoid tying up vitally needed switching equipment.

Thank you!

"Brass" Doesn't Carry Much Weight In Michigan Parks

"Brass" may carry weight in the army, but it does not mean a thing in Michigan state parks, particularly when the park ranger is an ex-Marine enlisted man and he finds two army officers violating park regulations.

William R. Hill, park ranger at Muskegon state park, four years a Marine and a participant in the initial landing at Guadalcanal, had occasion recently to turn the tables and give orders to a major and a second lieutenant.

The two officers, in a playful mood, drove their jeep down the sidewalk and across the bathhouse yard, digging deep ruts in the sand. Hailing the jeep, Hill promptly produced tools and set the major and lieutenant to work filling up the ruts and leveling off the area they had dug up.

Amid cheers and jeers from their lady friends in the jeep the officers completed the job, though the major had to do his share a second time before it met with the approval of the park ranger.

BEAUTY NOT MARRIED

There is no reason to fear that the famed beauty of the Michigan State college campus will be marred by the extensive building program now under way on the campus. Harold A. Lautner, landscape architect and head of the department of landscape architecture of the college, already has made plans for blending the new structures into the remainder of the campus.
