Drive Carefully Over Week-end

Be cautious over the long Labor Day week-end, or your last fling at summer vacation may be your last fling, the Michigan Department of Health advised today.

The Department pointed out that while this week-end's hazards are similar to those of all the summer vacation time, the added hazard, that of excessively heavy traffic on the main highways of the state, makes added precautions imperative.

More cars will be on Michigan's highways during this week-end than during any other time of the year. Not only will Michigan people be enroute to a last vacation or enroute home for school opening, but myriads of out-of-state visitors will be similarly occupied.

Traffic on Michigan's main highways last Labor Day weekend stretched as far as the eye could see in either direction, without break.

Harvesting Methods Need Planning

The 1947 field bean crop has been going through trying conon, but the answer to whether there will be a good, fair, or poor harvest will come shortly.

H. R. Pettigrove, field bean specialist in the Michigan State college farm crops department, making plans now for harvesting, equipment prepared. There will be little time to decide when the St. Clairsville, Ohio. harvest starts.

The field stacking method is growers feel it is a rather hard and tedious job. Some prefer to threshing.

Well-built bean stacks provide effective insurance against weather damage, and threshing can be done when convenient.

Beans that are windrowed usually require at least three days of curing before threshing. This means taking chances with the weather during that period. Beans that become wet in the windrow discolor and more culling is necessary. Harvesting and stacking can be done at the same time with the beans immediately placed in condition to withstand unfavorable weather.

Prepare early after you decide the method to use, Pettigrove says. If you plan to stack your beans in the field, be sure and get your posts and equipment ready. If you are going to combint from windrows, be certain your combine is ready and avail able when you need it.

* An accurate case history is an invaluable aid in arriving at a correct diagnosis. In order to get the information needed to make an accurate diagnosis, the physician must ask you many searching questions. If you answer his questions frankly and accurately, he has a valuable group of facts with which to work. Withholding information from him only serves to obscure the very result you seek.

We are not diagnosticians, but we are skilled in the art of compounding and dispensing medicine at the order of your physician.

COULD YOU SEVER FORGET?

The way ahead seemed clear. In a moment of careless relaxation the driver swung his eyes from the road. In that same moment a ball bounced into the street — after it ran a little child. It was only a brief moment, but long enough for a lifetime of regret.

Last year more than 3,500 American children under the age of 14 were killed by automobiles, 160,000 were injured. This State, in some degree, contributed to that toll.

With school days here again, child casualties will rise unless every individual driver makes it his self-appointed responsibility to safeguard these young lives from harm.

When driving through school zones—and streets where children are at play—use extreme caution. Always be ready for split-second action, even though moving at moderate speed. Anticipate the unexpected.

There's no indemnity that can restore a human life. If, because of one careless act of yours, a child died or its young body were maimed—could you ever forget?

Avoid Smut

Farmers who have had trouble with stinking smut in their wheat fields this year can avoid the same difficulty next year by planning proper seed treatment for next year's crop, advises Karl D. Bailey, county agricultural agent. Seed treatment with New Improved Ceresan, a mercury dust, is valuable in saving wheat crops in areas where smut is present A small amount of money invested in the treatment may mean dollars saved. The product is available in most farm stores.

Heads of wheat that are infected with the smut are hard to recognize until they are threshed. Unsound kernels will break open in the threshing process and dis-charge small grey balls that contain spores of the smut fungus. These spores, in turn, infect healthy seed When the wheat seedling is developing, the fungus goes up through the wheat plant and destroys the head as it ma-

Seed cleaning, too, was advo-ated by agent Bailey as a good method to help in smut control, but it will not replace seed treatment. Care should be taken in using the dust because it is a poisonous compound. Follow manufacturers' directions closely. After seed has been treated women actively saving used cooking fat, according to the latest continuing survey made every 60 days by the American Fat Salvage Committee.

Forty-two percent of the women interviewed had containers of used cooking fat on hand, while 54 percent were actively salvaging in May, 1947 the time of the last

"Primarily" says a spokesman for the committee, "the findings reflect a normal seasonal decline which has occurred each year during the hot summer months when meat consumption is lower. However, in part, it is also due to the erroneous feeling that salvaging of used cooking fat may not be as important as it formerly was, and to lack of interest, now that the prices paid for used cooking fat are leveling off.

"Recent, statements from government officials show that the need for conscientious fat salvage is still great, as world supplies of industrial fats and oils are depleted. Every woman is urged to conserve all fats and oils, reuse what she can in cooking, and sell the remainder to her meat dealer."

FARMERS SHOULD LOCATE VHEAT FERTILIZER NOW

Fertilizer for winter wheat will farmers should be on the lookout for their supply, according to Dr. C. E. Miller, head of the soil science department at Michigan State college.

On the whole, Michigan farmers are using about double the amount of commercial fertilizer they used in 1940, Dealers should be contacted immediately and delivery of available fertilizer taken whenever it appears on the market.

Fertilizers containing 12 percent or more potash are desirable for wheat planted on sandy loam soils. However, many of these are not available. If dealers cannot supply high potash content fertilizers, farmers are advised to accept the 2-12-6 or 0-14-7 fertilizers for use this fall on sandy loam soils.

For clay soils the 2-16-8 is good wheat fertilizer. If this grade is not available, straight superphosphate may be used for wheat on soils well supplied with humus or soils receiving manure in the rotation. On unmanured or deple-
