Audrey Bowman, Ohio farm girl (center), is one of thousands of Americans who have made friends of needy children around the globe by contributing milk, and other farm commodities, through the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP).

Last year Americans gave 75,668,000 pounds of farm commodities through CROP. Included in this amount were 4,470,000 pounds of milk. This food, distributed in 22 countries, principally to children, widows, the aged, and the ill, has done much to promote world-wide goodwill and Christian brotherhood.

During the present harvest season CROP officials expect to assemble Friendship Food trains in 30 agricultural states, including this one. CROP is sponsored by Catholic Rural Life, Church World Service, and

Questions about shrinkage, washing, color fastness, and moth proofing we can answer only by reading the labels. Florence Rann, extension specialist in clothing at safety. Michigan State College, believes that we need definite statements on woolens as we have on cotton labels. Labels should tell whether the fabric is permanently shrunk, whether it will not shrink more than one or two percent, or whether it will begin to shrink after six or eight washings.

According to recent news we are assured that these questions will be answered by at least one company, The same company which developed the sanforizing process for cottons has now announced a similar shrinkage control process for wool called "sanforlan". This company states that wool garments bearing the trademark, "sanforlan" will not shrink out of fit.

This process is being used on sweaters, hosiery, sport shirts robes, slacks, skirts, mittens, infant's and children's wear and yard goods. Soon you will see it on many other wool items also. Other characteristics we would like described on the label are whether the fabric is moth-resistant and for how long and whether it is color fast to light, perspiration days is the beginning of the foot-ball season. Old and young alike are enthusiastically making plans to drive to Lansing or Ann Arbor for a "big game" — or to the neigh-boring town to watch the high school teams "battle it out".

Of course you're looking forward to the trip—and so are the young-sters—but will all of you return home safely? It's up to you and every driver in Michigan to insure that safe return. How? By careful common sense driving . . and by discussions of driving safety that will help to make everyone aware of the tragedies that can result from

Many scoldings would be unnecessary if some room or corner in the house were given over entirely to the children, says Josephine Lawyer, home demonstration agent. And having play space for children may also be the solution for parents whose children get "on their nerves and under their feet."

In small homes and apartments, a place to play indoors isn't easy to find but perhaps you can find a corner that they can call their own with shelves and drawers for their toys.

It is better, especially for older children, if they have a separate room, Sometimes an attic or basement will do if it has good light and ventilation, A very young child needs a space close to where his mother is working.

Outdoor play space is important too. Homemade apparatus doesn't need to cost much money and will provide hours of fun for the children. Boards, sturdy boxes and swings are good equipment.

Farm families can often provide gardening space and maybe even a place for water play. It's better to tell children about the things they can do than constantly remind them of the things they are not allowed to do. SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS.

ivities in the future will be centered where there is enough community or neighborhood interest in soil conservation, so that neighbors will meet as a group to solve their problems. Experience has shown that those who understand soil conservation district programs are anxious to cooperate with the district. Soil conservation includes all things known which will increase the efficiency and production from farm land, and while at the same time will not allow permanent injury to the fertility of the land.

Frank Ruggles, District Director near Milford, says: "The neighbornood group approach idea is better because in this way soil conservation plans can be explained to several farmers at the same time, this date be allowed for creditors to rather than spending the same amount of time with each one time, this date be allowed for creditors to present claims against said estate.

WHYTHE MISSOURI PACIFIC RAILROAD STRIKE?

N. Main St.

Over twenty years agu, the Congress of the United States passed the Railway Labor Act. It was hailed by union leaders as a model for the settlement of labor disputes.

THE LEADERS of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, Order of Railway Conductors, and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen on the Missouri Pacific Railroad have refused to avail themselves of the peaceful means provided by this Act for settling their disputes. They insist that they be the sole umpire of their own disputes over the meaning of contracts.

There is no Need for Strikes

With all of the available methods for the interpretation of contracts, there is no need for a strike or even a threat of a strike, but the leaders of these railroad unions have ignored the ordinary pro-cedures established by law and insist upon imposing their own interpretations of their contracts by means of a strike.

The wheels have stopped rolling on the Missouri Pacific. They may stop rolling on other railroads at any time. Recently the Wabash Railroad was forced to discontinue operation for several days under similar circumstances.

What are These Strikes About?

These strikes and strike threats are not about wage rates or hours. They result from disputes over the meaning of existing contracts. They cover claims for a full day's pay for less than a day's work, or for payments for services performed by others who were fully paid for the work done.

President Truman's Board Condemns Strike

There is an established legal method for handling disputes involving existing written contracts—just as there is such a method of settling any contract dispute which you may have in your daily life. The President of the United States appointed a Fact Finding Board to investigate and adjust the Missouri Pacific dispute. This Board reported, in part, as "... it is with a deep sense of regret that we are obliged to report the failure of our mission. It seems inconceivable to us that a coercive strike should occur on one of the nation's major transportation systems, with all of the losses and hardships that would follow, in view of the fact that the Railway Labor Act provides an orderly, efficient and complete remedy for the fair and just settlement of the matters in dispute. Grievances of the character here under discussion are so numerous and of such frequent occurrence on all railroads that the general adoption of the policy pursued by the organizations in this case would soon result in the romplete nullification of the Railway Labor

Provisions of the Law which are Disregarded

There are five ways under the Railway Labor Act to settle disputes over the meaning of contracts. 1-Decision by National Railroad Adjustment Board 2-Decision by System Adjustment

Board for the specific railroad. 3-Decision by arbitration.

4-Decision by neutral referee.

5—Decision by courts.

The Missouri Pacific Railroad has been and is entirely willing to have these disputes settled in accordance with the requirements of the Railway Labor Act. Regardless of this fact, the union leaders have shut down that railroad

Innocent pystangers Suffer Losses and Hardships

There are about 5,000 engineers, firemen, conductors and trainmen on the Missouri Pacific. They are known as "operating" employes, and are the most highly paid of all employes on the nation's railroads, but their strike action has resulted in the loss of work to 22,500 other employes of the Missouri Pacific. In addition, they have imposed great unconvenience and hard. ship upon the public and the communities served by that railroad.

The Railway Labor Act was designed to protect the public against just such interruptions of commerce.

If these men will not comply with the provisions of the law for the settlement of such disputes, then all thinking Americans must feet equethen all thinking Americans must fe tion, "What is the next step?"

FLEA POPULATIONS EASILY ROUTED

Some Michigan vacationers are returning home to find the house inhabited with a welcoming committee of fleas, says Ray Hutson, head of the Michigan State College entomology department.

If the fleas reach the adult stage while the house is empty and have gone without food for some time, a large population is usually ready for the returning vacationers.

Control, Huston says, isn't particularly difficult. A popular method is to apply a generous coat of Rotenone dust, as used in gardens, to the floor and leave it overnight. It can then be picked up with a sweeper along with the dead fleas. DDT dust can be used in the same way. One treatment usually effects control but if not, a second application about a week later will furnish the elimination
