(continuted from last week) Situated on the brow of a hill, and surrounded by a park of 120 acres is the $14,000,000 Capitol. It can be seen from every direction, and is by far the most impressive building we saw in Washington. Before a guide took us on a tour of the building, we had group picture taken with the capitol as the background. We found enough attractions within the capitol alone to make the visit to Washington worthwhile. The bronze doors of the main entrance, by Randolph Rogers, are a work of art. Within the main entrance, one finds himself in the rotunda with the vaulted canopy of the great dome 180 feet overhead. On the wall of the rotunda are eight large paintings by American artists. Four of them depict events in the early history of America. The other four portraying Revolutionary War subjects, are the work of Col John Trumbull, aide-de-camp to General Washington. Of special interest, too, in the rotunda are the wonderful frescoes and paintings by Brumidi, a distinguished Italian artist. Especially fascinating was the Statuary Hall at the south side of the rotunda. It contains a fine collection of statues of illustrious American and historic associations, and is noted for its peculiar acoustic properties. The Senate chamber and the Hall of Representatives, where our statesmen orators have held She is from Schlesswig-Holstein their audiences breathless, was also found to be quite interesting to the local group. A few blocks farther down the street is the Lincoln Memorial another place we visited in historic Washington. The Lincoln Venus," the Michigan astronomer Memorial, designed by Henry Bacon, is an outstanding attraction. It is a beautiful rectangular temple of white marble with a colonnade of thirty-six Doric columns — one for each state existing at the time of Lincoln's death. Within a central hall is a colossal statue of the martyred President. On opposite walls are two memorial tablets, one containing Lincoln's Gettysburg address and the other his second inaugural address. Above the tablets are two large mural paintings "Emancipation" and "Reunion"; by Jules Guerin. The Lincoln Memorial stands, most fittingly, in a setting of dignified grandeur on the banks of the Potomac, at the western end of the Mall. It has an impressive approach of broad steps and wide terraces. A pool lying between the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington rear of the Memorial, the magnicrosses the Potomac and joins the District and Virginia shores.

Once again we arrived back at the hotel, where an appetizing dinner was waiting for us. We had the afternoon free. During this time several of the students went shopping for last minute souvenirs - others went to visit historic buildings - others preferred to just walk around sightseeing - while still others stayed at the hotel to pack suit cases, relax, or play cards.

At 5:00 o'clock we checked out of the hotel and boarded two buses for a final drive-of sightseeing.

The Golden Text is from John 4:23): "The hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshippers shell worship the Father in spirit and in truth." Among the Bible citations is this passage, (Matt. 5:23, 24): "Therefore if thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath ought against thee; Leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be recenciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift. Correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include: "If the disciple is advancing spiritually, he is striving to enter in. He constantly turns away see them. from material sense, and looks toward the imperishable things of Spirit." (P. 21)
