At Fifty-Three

At fifty-three I've learned to be Content to sit and listen. I've come to know how people grow,

And many jewels don't glisten

It only takes a few mistakes To change my line of thinking. I profit well and learn to tell A boat that's doomed to sinking.

I look afar from where we are And see the constant battle. I pray to God to spare the rod When lives are used as chattel.

I know true love is well above Material modes of living. I cannot find a minute's time When I am not forgiving.

At fifty-three I think I see, Why all the earth's confusion Is based upon the greedy strong

And ignorant collusion. I cannot fight the way that's

Nor can I win by gamble. That I must serve, if I deserve

Near Tahiti the Yankee sails into the island we would all vote to live on in a South Seas setting out of a dream, and ties up to the cocoanut palms. The cameraman follows the hula girls till he gets all the pictures he wants including closeups. On remote coral stolls we find children playing in the water with large sharks.

The climax in the crew's adventures and also in the pictures come in the New Hebrides where Michener laid the scene of "South Pacific". It is described in the January, 1955 issue of National Geographic, but you will have to see it in the amazing slow motion movies to believe it.

On Pentecost Island the natives dive off a tall, jungle-built tower head-first onto the ground below from the height of 78 feet. At the last instant they are saved from suicide by long vines attached to their ankles which tighten with a snap as their head strikes the ground.

Tickets will be on sale at the door the night of the program.

SHEEP BARN DAY TUESDAY, MARCH 13

To keep Oakland County sheep farmers abreast of the latest developments in sheep management, a sheep barn day has been scheduled for Tuesday, March 13 starting at 10:00 o'clock in the morning, states John K. Trocke, Assistant County Agricultural Agent.

Sheep are a good way to convert roughage into dollars, Trocke says, and they are ideally adapted to Oakland County in many ways. They fit into a program where hilly land and pasture are the best crop. They are also an ideal type of livestock for the part-time farmer.

To help those already raising sheep and those who are interested in starting, a Sheep Barn Day has been arranged as foll-

Special Stop, 8:00 P. M. for part-time farmers at Arthur Charlick's farm, 2165 Clyde Road Milford, located just about two miles west on Clyde Road from the village of Clyde. A nice flock of ewes bred for early lambing. He will demonstrate docking and castrating methods.

Graydon Blank, Michigan State University sheep specialist, and known as Mr. Sheepman, will be present. Materials to be covered will be diseases, parasite control, what crosses for best lambs, corn is hereby appointed for hearing said and grass silage for sheep feed, new ways of docking and castrating, foot rot, and sheep manage ment for the future.

SPIDER MITES CAN HURT HOUSE PLANTS

If the leaves of your house plants are turning yellow and falling off, look for spider mites. These tiny pests like indoor warmth and they're at their peak on house plants in winter.

Julius Hoffman, a Michigan State University entomologist, says that washing the plants once a week with a forced stream of water will keep the pests under

If spider mites are the only pests bothering the plants, almost any miticide like aramite, malathion or chlorbonzilate will take care of them, Hoffman notes.
