A MEMORY OF THE 1881 FOREST FIRES

If chairs could talk, this one would stand proudly on its wobbly old legs and tell many hair-raising tales about the Michigan Forest Fires (1881) which claimed 300 lives. The chair was given to a family living in the tip of the Thumb Area of Michigan by the Red Cross in its first official disaster operation. It was presented to the Tuscola County Chapter, Mich., in 1950 as a historical reminder of the Michigan disaster and has its final resting place in the National Red Cross Museum in Washington, D. C. To the left of chair is Raymond T. Schaeffer, assistant to the President of the American National Red Cross, and at right is Gordon O. Stone, an official with the Federal Civil Defense Administration, Battle Creek, Michigan.

HANDY MANUAL OUTLINES TOWNSHIP BOARD ACTION

A pocket-sized manual of Michigan township board operations is being prepared by state officials and Michigan State University specialists.

Available by mid-November, the manual will detail township board powers, duties, methods of procedure and parliamentary rules, according to Prof. Norton E. Long, acting director of the sponsoring Governmental Research Bureau at M. S. U.

D. Hale Brake, president of the Michigan Institute of Local Government, and William D. Dennison, secretary-treasurer of the Michigan Association of Township Supervisors, are participating in the project.

The manual's author is Dr. James L. Blawie, attorney and member of the M. S. U. political science department. He is a specialist in local government and public law.

A three-part township survey is the basis of the new manual. The first step, nearly completed, involves gathering and analyzing all relevant legislation, court decisions and printed matter. Then Dennison and Dr. Blawie have been interviewing outstanding Michigan township board members. The final task will be writing, editing, publishing and distributing the book.

"This is a research job which has been needed for a long time", Dennison commented.

"The manual will combine the law, traditions and day-to-day practices of the boards into an understandable easy-to-read outline for ready reference."

TIME SHORT TO PUT '57 WHEAT IN SOIL BANK

Farmers who raise wheat face a decision within the next month whether they will plant their full acreage allotment or share between 6 and 7 million dollars in soil bank funds available to Michigan for reduction of 1957 wheat acreage.

Clarence Prentice, administrator for the Michigan Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, Lansing, announces this amount will be available for payment through county ASC committees to those farmers who harvest fewer acres than their wheat allotments.

Payments will be based on normal farm yields. For example, a farm with a 25 bushel an acre yield could return a farmer approximately $30 an acre for not planting wheat. Land put into the acreage reserve phase of the soil bank cannot be pastured, cut for hay, or used in any crop production, however.

Farmers have until Sept. 21, 1956 to sign a contract with their local ASC committee. Full information is available at these offices located in each county.

Prentice estimates that if enough land is contracted to take up the entire amount of the acreage reserve payments allotted to Michigan, the wheat crop will be reduced by about 20 per cent.

Future allotments will not be lowered because of reduction of acreage to come under the soil bank program, Prentice explained.

Wheat planting in Michigan starts in early September in northern Michigan and continues through the month into the southern counties.

SAGINAW FAIR OPENS SUNDAY

The annual Fall Flower Festival, long one of the most breath-taking beautiful features of America's "largest county fair east of the Rockies", will blossom forth again this year in a wild riot of gorgeous colors as the Saginaw Fair opens its gates Sunday, September 9, for its 43rd annual 7-day run.

The Flower Festival, staged in the huge Agricultural Hall on the Saginaw Fairgrounds, will be highlighted this year by a gigantic 100-foot floral display created and produced by members of the Northeastern Michigan Florists Club and the Allied Florists of Saginaw County. Built around a theme of a South Seas tropical garden, complete with a crystal clean, bubbling waterfall, the professional floral designers will artfully blend more than 5000 flowers from all over the world into an eye-catching, breath-taking panorama of living beauty in color. The two associations have invested more than 1000 man hours in preparation of this lavish display which is valued in excess of $5,000. This special professional exhibit is the largest and most comprehensive floral show ever staged anywhere in Michigan.

Special awards will be made by the Fair for individual arrangements within this display.

INDUSTRIAL CLINIC TO BE HELD IN DETROIT

A three-day industrial clinic aimed at increasing Michigan's share of defense contracts will be staged by the Armed Forces in Detroit's Veteran's Memorial Building Sept. 11-13, it was announced today.

The clinic will be a joint effort by 13 industrial, labor, government and business organizations to find ways to ease Michigan's unemployment problems and expand state industries that have defense potential.

The clinic will be conducted by the Department of Defense in cooperation with the Departments of Commerce and Labor and the Small Business Administration.

Army, Navy and Air Force procurement officers, with an eye to further diversification of defense industries, are scheduled to brief state manufacturers on opportunities in aircraft, guided missile and electronic production, much of which now is concentrated on the west coast.

MARS 'NEAR' ON SEPT. 6 REPORTS PROF.

Mars will draw closer to the Earth than it has been in 32 years, around midnight on September 6, a University of Michigan astronomer declares.

"At a mere distance of thirty-five million miles, Mars will cross the meridian around midnight at about 35 degrees above the south point", Prof. Hazel M. Losh, of the U-M Astronomy Department, explains.

Because of this year's relatively close approach, elaborate plans are currently under way for a detailed study of Mars, which will appear as a bright reddish object.

"It will especially be studied in the southern hemisphere where it may be observed at a much higher altitude than in the north", Professor Losh says. The reason for this is that in the south Mars will be freer from the Earth's dense atmosphere.

September also brings the official beginning of autumn and the season when night becomes longer than day. This year the opening will take place on Saturday evening, September 22, at 8:36, according to the astronomer.

"Autumn will be a little over eighteen hours earlier than last year", Professor Losh continues. This is because of the leap year day in February.

A "highlight" of September will be the Harvest Moon. "The full moon of September 19 will be the Harvest Moon of this year", the professor points out. It is defined as the full moon of the autumnal equinox.

The peculiarity of this moon, as distinguished from other occasions when the moon is near full phase, is a slight delay in rising for several nights in succession. "Due to this small retardation", Professor Losh says, "the evenings at harvest time are well supplied with moonlight and attract much attention".

Another point of interest will be the Great Nebula of the Andromeda constellation, known since the tenth century. Located above the third star in the row of Andromeda, the Nebula is now an object of intensive study by the world's largest telescopes, the professor points out.

This faint wisp of light is almost inconceivable in size and distance, being the most distant object that the unaided eye can perceive, about one and one-half million light-years from us. "Modern research shows this Nebula to be a universe or galaxy like ours, similar to our own Milky Way", Professor Losh explains. "Like our system, it may contain many billions of stars or suns, interspersed with nebulous material and dust."

NO WRINGING

FOR DRIP-DRYS

Homemaker appreciation runs high in the summertime for the minimum-care finish used for cottons and rayons, often described as drip-dry finish. Its great advantage in hot weather is that it saves on the hot job of ironing. It also helps the fabrics resist wrinkles and shed soil.

Dripping is necessary for smooth drying of minimum-care materials, say Michigan State University clothing specialists. After laundering the clothes should be lifted from the rinse water and hung smoothly on hangers with no wringing, twisting or squeezing to remove water. As the water drips off, it smooths out creases or wrinkles left from the laundering. A final touch-up with the iron may be needed to make hems, seams and edges as smooth as new.

Some of the synthetic fibers, such as dacron, also have this drip-dry quality. Clothes made of these synthetics will be wrinkle-free when dry only if lifted from the rinse water and hung to dry with the least possible handling. The more they drip, the smoother they dry. The fabrics dry fast, because they are non-absorbent and much of the water runs off the surface.

THIRD CINERAMA DRAWING LARGE CROWDS

Since the opening of "Seven Wonders of the World" at the Music Hall theatre, Detroit, three weeks ago, many inquiries have been directed to Lowell Thomas the producer, as to how he made his selection of his wonders.
To set the record straight Thomas answers that the wonders shown in the third Cinerama production are his own nominations and they are a personal choice. But, he replies that anyone may make a list just as interesting.

Through history, man has continually been composing a list of the wonders of his time. Those who have seen the third Cinerama production will not be the first to make a list of the wonders of their world.

No one knows for sure who first came up with the phrase, "Seven Wonders of the World". Actually, there was no reason to limit the wonders to seven. But historians agree that it is a great convenience to have had some sort of canon established.
The first known author of a list was the Greek philosopher, Philo of Byzantium. Philo, it is rumored by those in the know, prepared his list for an up-and-coming shipping firm that wanted to promote tourist travel throughout the Mediterranean.
The list reads like a first class American Express tour. Starting at Mt. Olympus for the statue of Zeus, Greek trippers next went to the Temple of Diana at Ephesus, The Mausoleum at Halicarnassus, the Colossus of Rhodes, the Pharos lighthouse at Alexandria, The Pyramids of Egypt, and finally across to Babylon for a two-day holiday at the famous Hanging Gardens. There is no record if the tour was an all-expense affair, or tipping extra.

Neither this list nor the wonders themselves were left in peace for long. In 550 A. D. controversy raged because St. Gregory changed Philo's list, striking out the Pyramids, Phidias' statue of Zeus and the Temple of Diana.
The reason for this change? All these wonders were monuments to pagan gods and the list was christianized. The beautiful Hanging Gardens of Babylon built by Nebuchadnezzar to please his wife, were changed into the Walls of Babylon. Monuments to women were also verboten. In place of the three left out, Gregory added Noah's Ark, the Temple of Solomon and the Theatre of Heracles. Gregory erred in this choice, because the Theatre was a well known home for pagan rites.
Gregory did not stop here, but added on another list, this one "created by the hand of God." Included were the tides, the marvel of growth from a seed, the rebirth of the Phoenix, Mount Aetna, the cycle of the sun and the moon, and the Springs of Grenoble. Both Philo's and Gregory's list have changed since then. Scholars of every century have wanted to get on the bandwagon.

In 1913, Scientific American Magazine chose as the century's wonders the telegraph, the airplane, the automobile, reinforced concrete, the X-ray machine, the phonograph and motion pictures. What would the magazine have thought of Cinerama?
Within the year, interest in the seven wonders of the modern world has been created. Recently, the American Society of Civil Engineers elected the seven wonders of American engineering.
They are: Chicago's sewage disposal system, the Colorado River Aqueduct, Hoover Dam, The Empire State Building, Grand Coulee Dam and Columbia Basin Project, Panama Canal and the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.
In "Seven Wonders of the World" there are hundreds of wonders to choose from. But as Lowell Thomas explains, the final choice is up to the audience.
Music Hall managing director, Frank Upton, announced this week that Lowell Thomas' "Seven Wonders of the World" has so far surpassed the attendance records of "This is Cinerama" and "Cinerama Holiday" with the theatre's log book showing visitors from 28 states and 12 foreign countries, so far. He recommends that out of town patrons write for tickets for the performance of their choice rather than come to the box office, as mail orders are filled promptly if ordered in advance.

TEMPLE OF A QUEEN: The date-palms of Luxor, on the banks of the Nile, wave enticingly all the year around but they wave with greatest vigor from November to April, when this fabulous site of ancient Egyptian splendor turns into a restful resort. Here are the ruins of the fabled "Hundred-Gated" Thebes, Greek for the ancient capital of Karnak, strewn with fantastic abandon on both banks of the placid Nile. The Temple of Queen Hatshepsut, the greatest of Egypt's woman rulers, lies on the West Bank of the Nile near the Valley of the Kings as shown here. The Temple, called Deir El Bahri, was once used as a monastery by early Egyptian Christians.
