Just as a blouse neckline should flatter the face of the girl wearing it, so should the style of the shirt collar flatter a man. Sharppointed collars with little spread lengthen the face while spread collars with short round points help fill out a thin face. Long collar points on low-set collars are best for a man with a short thick neck and higher collars flatter a man with a thin neck and face.

Chevrolet shows you some important differences in low-priced cars just by the look on its face!

There's a look of substance and character and quality about that new Chevrolet front end that reveals a lot. Feel the strength and solidity of the grille and you learn even more.

Wouldn't you say that most of the '57 cars look good from 50 feet away, but what about from 50 inches away? What does a close-up of the grille tell you, for example? Is it solidly made like the new Chevrolet grille? Or, in comparison does it look less rich in design—feel less strong and solid? Compare the quality and construction of the bumpers and headlights, the fit of the chrome

The more closely you look all around the car, the more clearly you'll see that Chevrolet has the edge in the way it's put together. You'll find, for instance, that Chevrolet is the only car in its field with a lacquer finish . . . that only Chevrolet Bel Air models give you foam rubber cushions in front and rear seats as standard equipment. These are just a few of the advantages of Body by Fisher. And Chevrolet, you know, is the only low-priced car that has a Fisher Body.

We'll be glad to give you a closeup, comparative look at this new Chevy any time you care to come in. This week, maybe?

AD EXECUTIVE SEES READER LOYALTY TO PAPERS STILL TOPS

Newspapers, despite the popularity of television and the rebirth of radio are at a record peak of public appreciation and loyalty, according to Ernest A. Jones, president of MacManus, John & Adams, Inc.

Jones, youthful president of the National Advertising Agency, spoke to members af the Michigan Press Association, opening their thirty-ninth annual convention at Michigan State University.

Quoting motive studies of newspaper reading, Jones said that the printed word appears to have a special authority lacking in other forms of communication.

"The fact that a newspaper is printed enchances all its social and moral functions for its audience, the researchers find", Jones epolica. "Inis accounts for the widespread reliance people place upon it.

"This authority, the researchers sav, is by no means confined to news or editorial columns. It ands to all areas af the paper, the feature page, the sports and society pages and to the advertisements."

Television and radio, Jones believes, should be given credit for stimulating and expanding the newspaper business through whetting the appetites of viewers and listeners for detailed information. "Every available measurement shows that appreciation of and loyalty to the daily newspapers are at record highs", he told the publishers.

"To my mind - and I believe the feeilng is shared by many in the advertising business - television, radio and the newspapers complement each other. As one advances all advance. I see no quarrel between them because the capacity of the public for entertainment and information apparently is limitless and bounded only by the hours required for of them are being driven more sleep.

By 1970 Jones estimates the population of the United States will have tripled.

"We are on the threshold of the Golden Era of Communication", he said. "Never before will there have been such a large and intellectually inquisitive audience. And never before will the rewards for serving it have been so

Mawby describes the leadermete as "an old, long-cherished idea coming to reality." Its purpose, he points out, is to give recognition to local leaders, to exchange ideas, to provide discussions on 4-H leadership and to give inspiration to local lead-
