ENTERTAINMENT WALL FOR FAMILY FUN

All of the entertainment and hobby equipment used by the whole family can be centered in this compact storage wall. It includes a fold-down desk, a niche for a TV set, and has plenty of storage space, both open and hidden. As shown here, it is a dividing wall between two rooms. Built-in hi-fi and electronic components are at the end of the wall. In older houses, the wall can be erected as a built-in against one side of a family room. General instructions on adapting the wall to your home are featured in Booklet B205, "New Faces for Old Rooms," available for 25¢ from Service Bureau, c/o this newspaper, 740 N. 4-H'ers Urge: 'Belt 'em For Safety'

"Don't be caught dead sitting on your seat belt," was the theme of a safety article by 4-H National Safety Winner Gayle Gillen, 17, Gayle was typical among eight national winners of $400 General. Motors scholarships for outstanding 4-H farm, home and highway projects. The winners also received all-expense trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

The "safety-prone" hoys and girls pointed out that all new model cars since 1962 are equipped with front seat belt connec-

Safety authorities estimate that some 5,000 lives would be saved annually if everyone wore a seat belt. Moreover, traffic accident injuries could be reduced more than one third.

"Despite increasing purchases of the belts and widely published information on their effectiveness, many people who have belts don't use them," said Gayle.

"They feel they're safe just driving to the store," she added, "but it has been established that three out of four traffic fatalities happen within 25 miles of home. Over half of traffic accidents resulting in either injury or death involve speeds under 40 miles

The national winners were selected from a group of 42 state safety winners. General Motors, now in its 19th year as safety awards donor, also gave state winners all-expense trips to the National Guardsmen all over

The grunts and groans of pushups and the voices of Guardsmen supporting youth fitness in their communities came first from fered this program to the States as a pilot program for the entire National Guard. Writing for the President, Mr.

Ted Sorenson, Special Assistant to the President, said to Major General Claude T. Bowers, Adjutant General of North Carolina: "The President is gratified by the program was have initial. by the program you have initiated. It should assure the physical fitness and readiness of each unit of the North Carolina National Guard as well as result in great personal benefits to the Guardsmen involved.... It may well set an example for other National Guard units to follow." National Guard units to follow."

It did set the example. Guard Fitness Project Officers, Adjutant Generals and Senior Troop Commanders flocked to National Guard Physical Fitness Conferences at Raleigh, North Carolina, and Salt Lake City, Utah to see the North Carolina program demonstrated for them by crack National Guard Special Forces troops.

Though some representatives came to the conferences with skeptical minds, they went home convinced and immediately began the task of instituting programs in their own states. Many states have already began their pro-in their own states. Many states have already begun their programs and the North Carolina program is already past its first testing period.

The North Carolina program consists of a specified number of repetitions of a series of six exercises administered at each regular drill period. The process is repeated at least three times a week by the individual at home.

Testing is conducted three times a year. Test scores are converted to percentiles which enables comparison and promotes individual and unit competition.

As the realization of the importance of physical fitness comes across to the Guardsmen they throw themselves enthusiastically in to the program.
