Dangerous Criminal Captured

A daring chase on Dixie Highway Saturday afternoon between I-75 and Fremdes Rd. climaxed the robbery of the Hamady Food Store No. 7 in Flint.

Marvin James Jesse Jackson, a 38 year old negro from Detroit wanted on narcotic charges, driving a stolen car and carrying a stolen gun was apprehended in back of the Primrose Lane Bowling Alley on Dixie Highway. Five troopers from the Pontiac Police Post helped apprehend the criminal. They were Trooper Howard Kelly, John Sibel, Harold Wade, Richard Weeks and Duane Gerstenberger.

According to Trooper Kelly, a Clarkston resident, he saw a car answering the description of the one used by the robber of the Flint market travelling south of the Dixie Highway, near the I-75 interchange.

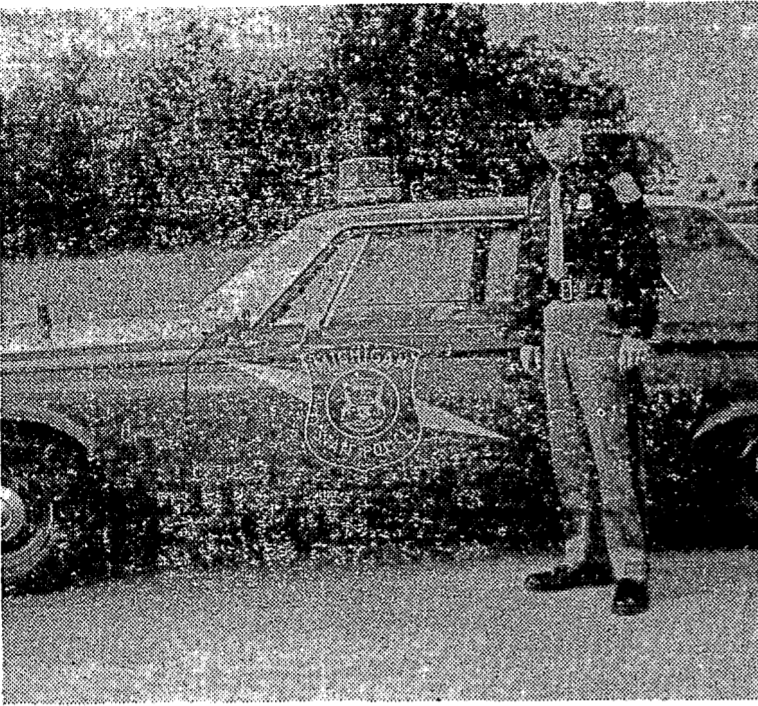

Kelly gave chase and was joined by Trooper Sibel's patrol car at White Lake Rd. The cars reached speeds in excess of 90 M.P.H. At M-15 Kelly pulled alongside the Jackson car and pulled his gun. Jackson slowed down to 50 M.P.H., indicated he wanted to surrender, then pulled a gun and sped away.

At several points throughout the chase, the Jackson car went into the oncoming traffic lanes nearly hitting other motorists.

Hitting a red light at Frember and Dixie, Jackson pulled in front of Burke Lumber Co. and hit a car driven by Mrs. Mildred Lloyd of Hatcher Rd. She was not injured.

Jackson left his car and ran down Fremdes followed by Trooper Kelly, still in his patrol car Kelly fired six shots, left handed, at Jackson, while Jackson returned three shots, one of them hitting a tire on the patrol car. Jackson then ran in back of the bowling alley and was apprehended by the five troopers.

Jackson, who was believed to be under the influence of narcotics, was arranged before Justice John McGrath of Waterford, Saturday, on a warrant for "assault with intent to commit murder" (gun fight with Kelly). He demanded examination and was held on $50,000 bond.

"Bobbins" From Bob

Downtown Clarkston is due to see three new businesses within the next few weeks.

Opening next Monday in what is often referred to as the Chesemen Ice Cream Parlor building will be Clarkston Appliance. A Clarkston resident, Ronald Sandage, will operate the business and has already joined the Clarkston Businessmen's Association.

The offices formerly occupied by Glenn Ellerthorpe Bookkeeping Service will soon house a toddler shop. The former Clarkston Radio and TV offices will soon be occupied by a yarn shop.

We have been very pleased to see the proprietors of these soon to open shops already attending the Clarkston Businessmen's Association meetings. The exact dates of their openings will be announced as they are known.

Clarkston Sidewalk Sale days will soon be upon us, with very nice prizes and bargains galore. September 4 and 5 have been set as the sale days which will include carnival rides sponsored by the Jaycees, musical entertainment, the firemen, prizes and especially, sidewalk sales.

Watch this paper for further details on this 4th annual affair. To round out the holiday week-end, the annual Labor Day parade will be bigger and better than ever.

A report just in from the Detroit Regional Planning Commission shows that in the first six months of 1964 Independence Township saw a net gain of 154 new dwellings. The village of Clarkston had a net gain of 8 new dwelling units. The apartment house recently completed on Holcomb St. in the Village would account for these eight new dwelling units.

After seeing these figures it is obvious why the Independence Township Board saw the need to appoint a Planning Commission.

One can't help but label Trooper Kelly a hero for the fine job he did helping to apprehend a dangerous narcotic addict last Saturday. Howard Kelly, who lives on Snow Apple Dr. told me in an interview Monday, that he was never afraid for himself, but for the lives of the people who were on the highway during the 90 mph chase. The Clarkston area Jaycees, are undoubtedly proud to have him as a member of their organization. (see related story this page).

On to the cookers the kernels travel where after, they are sent on a conveyor belt to the dryer. Following the dryer, the corn is sent to the flaker, and finally to the toaster where the kernel that begins the day is now a flake.

Larrie Walter would like to thank drivers, Mr. and Mrs. Elvis Slinkard Mrs. Kath, Mr. and Mrs. Sparkman, Mrs. Walter, and Mrs. Hess.

To be heard also is this statement from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (p. 256): "Infinite Mind is the creator, and creation is the infinite image or Mea emanating from this Mind. If Mind is within and without all things, then all is Mind; and this definition is scientific."

Future Post Office at World's Fair

Visitors to the New York World's Fair from Clarkston have an unusual opportunity to see a post office of the future, Postmaster Elizabeth Ronk said today.

A carefully-chosen group of 80 employees from New York area post offices man the facility which handles all the Fair's mail and some from the Flushing, New York area. The outside mail is used to keep the highly mechanized devices operating at "full tilt."

The post office handles approximately 250,000 pieces of mail each day.

Postcards to friends and relatives back home are a big item. About 30,000 are mailed from the Fair each day. One third of these are addressed to persons overseas.

Foreign visitors have no trouble understanding U. S. postal operations. The facility has staff members who speak twenty languages.

Postmaster Ronk notes that residents of Clarkston who attend the Fair and wish to try out their foreign language ability can either talk with the multi-lingual window clerks or listen to a tape recorded presentation in the post office lobby which features individual earphones for those who speak Japanese, French, German, Italian and Spanish.

New equipment on hand includes an experimental Pitney-Bowes Centrifed which spins envelopes rapidly around—a wheel-like mechanism and places them upright on their longest side. They then move into a machine which cancels stamps and postmarks envelopes at a rate of 500 letters a minute.

Letters are sorted to go all over the world by machines which position the mail so that the addressee are visible to an operator who sits in front of a keyboard similar to that on a typewriter. By pressing the correct buttons, 100 letters a minute are automatically directed to bins for 50 different destinations.

A larger device, the Burroughs sorter, drops letters and cards into 131 different bins at a rate of 58 letters per minute for each of the twelve operators. The work area is surrounded by a ramp and gallery for visitors which is open from 11 A.M. to 6 P.M., seven days a week. Tape recorded vignettes explain the action on the work floor and describe the operations of each machine.

Outside the building, mail boxes from 21 countries serve as background for the red, white and blue box of the United States. A prototype stainless steel mail box being tested as an eventual replacement for the standard box used for the past forty years is located at one of the Fair's busiest intersections.

Postmaster Ronk suggests that Clarkston area visitors to the Fair express their comments on the new express their comments on the new box by dropping a note addressed to the "Superintendent, World's Fair Post Office" through the modernistic mail slot. Postage is not necessary. If they wish, visitors may discuss their reactions with clerks at the post office building.

Michigan Lawmakers Study Boat Toilets

The state's joint house-senate St. Lawrence Seaway interim committee held its first 1964-65 public hearing here August 5.

Toilets on boats and the pollution they cause were the main topics of testimony from public and private interests.

The hearing was led by Rep. Oscar E. Bouwsma and coordinated by Frank E. Burch, executive secretary of the Michigan Marine Dealers Association.

The 113 participants at the WWJ auditorium saw a demonstration of a prototype chemical mixer for marine toilets. It is to be produced by the Holley Carburetor Co. Cost of the Holley chemical unit was estimated at between $100 and $200 including installation, according to Arthur Zaskey, Holley engineer.

Several experts giving testimony pointed out that sources other than boats are primarily responsible for pollution of the Great Lakes.

Ralph Purdy, chief engineer for the Michigan Water Resources Commission, said that the dumping of refuse and oil from commercial shipping on the lakes concerns the public more than boat toilets or the lack of them.

But he suggested that if laws are to be enacted, legislators should place the responsibility of pollution control enforcement on marina operators, rather than on individual boat owners.

To control pollution from ships that engage in interstate commerce probably would require federal laws, said LaRue L. Miller of the state department of health.

Opposing marine toilet laws was Keith Wilson, chairman of the pollution committee of the National Association of Boating Law Administrators, and director of the Michigan State Waterways Commission.

"Our committee," Wilson said, "believes there is a pollution problem. But it's like the difference between pollution coming from a mouse or an elephant. Let's get rid of the elephant first."

The elephant, he said, is industrial waste and untreated sewage, while the mouse represents pollution from pleasure boats.

When Sen. William Ford asked Wilson, "Which elephant should we shoot first?" Wilson came back with:

"I don't think we should single out the boaters -- a small source of the problem."

Wilson referred to a study made by the state's health department which showed that pollution created by small craft in marinas was so slight it could not be measured. "Of course, that was because the waters being tested were already so dirty that the technicians couldn't find they were being made any worse."

Low water levels hurt wild life by promoting pollution, according to Herbert J. Miller of the state department of conservation.

Besides Sen. Ford and Rep. Bouwsma, other committee members present were Senators Kent T. Lundgren and Stanley F. Rozycki and Representatives Alexander Petri, Gilbert E. Bursley, Homer Arnett and Milton Knabusch.

Others participating were Michigan United Conservation Clubs, the Metropolitan Detroit Safe Boating Council, the town of Riverside, Ont., Detroit River Yachting Association, U.S. Power Squadrons, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Wayne Co. Sheriff, and health authorities from Wayne, Macomb and St. Clair counties.

GOVERNOR ROMNEY REPORTS!

Last week I talked about the anti-litter campaign in Michigan and this week I want to talk about related subjects within the area of conservation.

Some time ago I announced appointment of a special task force on Water Rights, Water use and Pollution Control. I am confident that the work of this 22-man group will result in a water policy for Michigan that will be the envy of all other states.

Water is a common denominator of our natural resource wealth. Its variety of uses -- for agriculture, for manufacturing, for transportation, recreation, the public health -- makes it essential that we develop now, before it is too late, a comprehensive policy to serve as a guideline.

The task force will do this. And our water, like our forests, will be managed on a multiple use basis. There is no reason why it cannot be done. It must be done, and soon.

Peaceful coexistence among the users of water in this Water Wonderland is possible and very necessary. There is no need for serious conflicts of interest... no need for clashes between those who would put our lakes and streams to work and those who would put them to recreation... no need, that is, if water uses are placed in their correct perspectives.

I want the task force to define such perspectives and to make recommendations for action. And when they do this I will then do everything in my power to effect a workable, step-by-step procedure for water management... for today, of course; but most importantly, for what promises to be a very busy tomorrow.

Definite progress in conservation was made by the Legislature this year. Personally, I am proud of the record. By the close of the session, I had signed twenty-four conservation bills into law. There were disappointments, to be sure.

Certain water bills were defeated, as was the bill to abolish the fox bounty. And there were others; but the final result of legislative action was a strengthening of conservation. House Bill 401, pertaining to the liability of landowners who open their properties to hunters, fishermen and other recreationists, was especially significant. So too, was the elk hunting bill. Our Michigan United Conservation Club deserves much credit for the support they gave these measures.

All-in-all, I think conservationists throughout Michigan can be pleased with this year's legislative record. It was progressive.

The importance of all this, however, is not in what has transpired in the past few months or in what is transpiring now, but what will be done in conservation in the years ahead. Here is where the real progress will be made. Here is where we will move ahead.

There is a reminder here to all the people of Michigan: our Department of Conservation, as competent as it is, cannot go it alone. New directions, new programs, new goals must continue to be a widespread concern.

Apathy must be battled, interest and concern must be promoted.

It is then that we may talk confidently of the progress we have made... and the promise the future holds.

Should Your Boy Play Football?

Editors Note: This is the Seventh in a series by Bill Hanson, Line Coach at Clarkston High School.

In any discussion of football, the subject of injuries invariably pops up. I, therefore, would like to spend this week discussing the subject.

Football is a contact sport - man against man, brawn against brawn, and brain against brain. Concerning this, we must expect a few bumps and bruises to occur. The danger of serious injury is extremely remote, however.

The incidence of injury depends largely upon three factors, (1) conditioning; (2) equipment; and (3) attitude of the participant. It is rather difficult to separate these factors an detail where one leaves off and another starts, since they are constantly working during football workouts or games.

Conditioning is of utmost importance in preparing a squad for the rugged season of football. If it were not, why do professional teams spend up to five weeks preparing for their first exhibition game with so much of this time emphasizing squad physical conditioning. Surely the conditioning comes with drills and exercises that improve football techniques, nevertheless, the conditioning is a primary factor, not just a by-product.

Here in Clarkston, with the importance of conditioning ever in mind, exercises and drills are designed and run over and over to insure the best possible conditioning for our athletes. Special efforts are made to emphasize exercises that will strengthen and prepare the most vulnerable parts of the body for the shocks ahead. As an example, ankles, knees, shoulders are worked on constantly since they are called upon to take punishment.

In order to gain this all-important condition, we call upon the players to work hard. Nothing is gained unless the muscle is made to work after it would be willing to stop. We don't want it fatigued, but we do want it to be able to do just a little more than it might be called upon to do. If it can, we have the condition desired. Nothing will head off possible injury as will top physical condition.

We have the best equipment available for the protection of the athletes. Most of our resources are put back into protective equipment. The safety of the players is always foremost in our minds as we consider the year's outlay of gate receipts.

All helmets are equipped with face masks and each boy has a fitted mouth piece. This covers the most vulnerable portion of the body, the face. No boy is allowed to participate in any contact work or game without his helmet and tooth protector in place. By strict adherence to this practice, facial and dental injuries are very rare. The attitude of the participant can contribute greatly to the prevention of injury. The mental conditioning of a football player goes hand in hand with the physical. Without the proper frame of mind, it is very difficult to gain much physically. A player must be willing to "put out" in all situations whether it be practice or game. If there is an injury to occur, many times it is the fellow who is horsing around that gets it. There is always time for fun, but it is not during drills that lead to football game participation. The age old slogan of "Hit the other guy harder than he can hit you" will help carry the individual through many a rough spot.

Naturally, all injuries cannot be prevented. Some will occur in spite of all precautions. However, if the player is properly equipped, properly conditioned, and has a healthy attitude toward the game, his chances of escaping injuries, other than the normal bumps and bruises are greatly enhanced.
