Board hears report on building progress

Education met for their regular meeting Monday evening. Some of the business related to the opening of school and delay in construction of the High School. Still needed is a part for a ventilator which the builders hope will arrive shortly so that construction the school system. can be completed and a full schedule of classes resumed.

Board members heard a report on the construction of the School track. It is nearly completed and blacktopping should be done later this week. Black-topping is now completed at all of the parking areas and entrances at the various Elementary schools. Also done were areas around the various basketball back-stops at these schools. This should simplify the task of keeping the buildings cleaner.

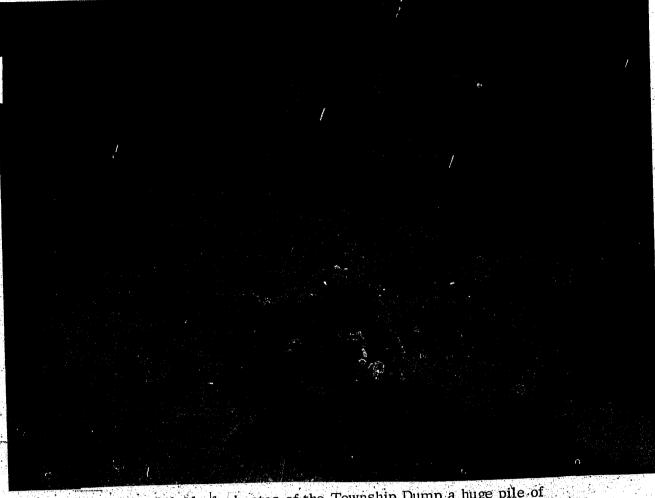

Discussion also took place regarding another parking area and the suitability of the land for building a bus garage. There

Governor George Romney came to Clarkston to campaign a bit on Saturday morning. Instead of staying the 15 minutes that his schedule called for he stayed for 45 minutes. Everything was set for Supervisor Duane Hursfall to introduce him, but the energetic campaigning Governor jumped up on the platform and started talking, introducing his entourage as he went along.

With him were a large group of State candidates and local candidates as well. Included in the group were Lieutenant Governor William Milliken, and Robert Griffin, the U.S. Senate aspirant. Also accompanying the Governor was George Washington, candidate for Secretary of State and James O'Neill, State Board candidate, Stockmeyer who is seeking the vacancy on the Wayne State Board of Governor's and Ken Thompson, candidate for the Board of M.S.U.

Locally there was Jack McDonald, congressional candidate, L. Harvey Lodge, 17th Senatorial District candidate and Loren Anderson who wishes to represent the people from the 61st District as Representative. On the township level there were candidates, Hursfall, Altman and Bower.

The Independence Township Republican Club served coffee and doughnuts with money from the sale going into the party coffers. It was completely sold out and estimates are that over 200 people were out to see and Do kids like ice cream?

The answer, of course, is a rousing YES! Model for model, electric dryers cost from $20 to $40 less than gas dryers. And every electric dryer is backed by Edison's No-Charge repair service. No charge for any electrical parts. No charge for labor. Edison is the only utility -company in this area that offers no-charge repair service.

Can you get this kind of worry-free assurance with a gas dryer? Sure—with a manufacturer's repair service policy. But it will cost you up to $120 over the first five years of operation alone! One thing more. Edison's No-Charge repair service applies even if you don't buy your dryer from Edison—so long as the dryer is electric and you get your electricity from Edison. And if you buy now from a participating dealer, the low price you pay includes the cost of wiring, if any's needed. So when you add it up, an electric dryer can save you up to $160 in just a few years. That can keep the kids in ice cream a good long time.

Detroit Tigers Bill Frehan, Willie Horton and Dave Wickersham pinchhit recently for Big Brothers of Oakland County when they provided tips for four boys awaiting assignment of Big Brothers by the United Fund agency. The boys learned about hitting, throwing and fielding a baseball instruction they can't get at home because there's no father or Big Brother available to work with them. More than 140 Big Brothers are currently active in Oakland County and: almost 500 assignments have been made since the agency was incorporated in 1954. But numerous boys 8-15 years old and fatherless still await assignment. Some have been on the organization's case list since 1965. All pairings are: on a one-man, one-boy basis, and are made after the volunteer Big Brother is specially chosen, screened and prepared for his particular assignment. There are boys waiting in all sections of the county. For specific information, contact Floyd Metz, executive director, 338-9281. Volunteers are needed to fill the void left by a father who "just isn't there."

The Wolves improved as the scrimmage wore on, and in the end coach Kenyon was pleased with the play of the boys. I was impressed with the lateral movement of Tom Woodard, the fine hard running of Cecil Caverly, the pass catching of Mark Richard, and the break away running of Gary Wade.

If you're going on a trip, you've probably heard plenty of advice about traveling light. A great idea ... but don't overdo it! Take plenty of make-up along - more than you think you'll need.

Because the latest news in make-up is that two shades are better than one. In powder base. Mascara. Lipstick. Even nail polish. And you'll find that you can create some entrancing illusions if you you just know how. Let me give a couple of examples. Let's say, for instance, that your face is a nice oval shape and pretty attractive but you'd like to make it. more so. You feel that there's a bit of puffiness just under your eyebrows. Your nostrils are a trifle wide. You'd like the look of hollows

So you smooth nice neutral base (bamboo beige is one that seems to be universally becoming) over your entire face and neck. Blend it in carefully. Then tackle the areas you'd like to minimize with a darker shade... blending again so no demarcation shows. Suddenly your face seems to have just the proportions you like! marvelously effective.

You adore the with navy blue! It's subtle, but soft lipstick shades like coral opal or pink opal, but feel wear the high fashion colors you like, and you outline (with brush or pencil) in a deeper color. Or maybe it's the other way around; you'd like to try one of the newer shades, like red opal or pepperoni, but want to mute them a bit. Soften either with a yellow or green undertoner (be brave; everybody's doing it) and you'll find you've got the effect you want.

Watch the little birds

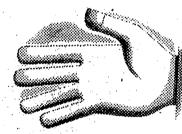

They are delightful sights. These, the most precious people in the world, with their hair freshly brushed, clothes neatly pressed and shoes shining, stand in the early morning light waiting patiently by the roadsides for their school buses to arrive.

The only thoughts in their minds are happy thoughts. Each day is a prize for them. They wait patiently to join the excitement with their classmates to learn, "What's new in school today?"

It doesn't take much to distract these little minds. Possibly, just the flutter of a bird in the tree is enough for them to forget where they are. Maybe, the treasured message method had to be devised to to teacher is caught in the wind and blows across the road.

Conceivably, these little roadside creatures don't mean much to you. In fact, you might just find them an irritation as you hit the road to go to work. Just because you're late, don't try to make up your lost time on them. They're all we have and we love 'em. Motorist, be careful not to hurt them because time isn't nearly as precious to you as it is to

-QUEST OF GOD-

Philip said unto Jesus...Lord, show us the Father; and Jesus replied... Philip, he that hath seen me hath seen the Father. John 14:8-9.

If God can be found He should be found in the highest and greatest thing in our world, the moral character of Jesus of Nazareth. Looking at nature apart from man one might well conclude that God is Law, but law does not suffice; we are not subjects seeking laws, we are children seeking a father, Nature does not reveal God clearly, nor does the full revelation come from the prophet; the poet, or ····· the teacher.

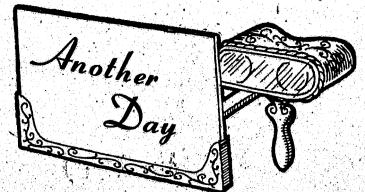

The full and perfect revelation comes by way of a life, a character, a Person able to show us what God is like, and that character is Jesus, the human life of God, that of God we are able to see and understand. The revelation we seek is seen in the face of Jesus.

Godisthe Spirit in Jesus, the Christ Spirit, and God's Kingdom is that Spirit reigning supreme in the hearts of men.

The Kingdom of God will come only on Jesus' terms. From Him it derives character content and personality content, and when we give ourselves to the Kingdom we give ourselves to the Person who embodies the Kingdom, even Jesus.

Eternal God, our Father: Constrain us to see, we beseech Thee, that Jesus is the Way and the Truth, and that in Him is the perfect revelation of Thyself. AMEN.

When William Van¹ Buskirk Vliet settled min. Clarkston in 1833, he broughter with him from New Jersey his wife Patty and a family of séven children. And it took all the hard work and ingenuity he had to keep them housed and fed, especially during the first few years when so much of their time was taken up with the job of clearing the land to make a farm. Fortunately, the streams and woods around Clarkston served as a well stocked pantry-deer, bear, squirrels, rabbits, ducks and geese were abundant. And twice a year, when the birds migrated, passenger pigeons provided a source of food that was thought to be endless and unlimited. At one time, these birds were so plentiful that when they made their journey from the south to their nesting places in Northern Michigan, the was literally darkened with them. They were actually measured in square

Clarence Vliet, who at 90 is living in Birmingham, is a grandson of the orginal settler. He recalls his father telling him how these birds were captured and preserved for winter use by the pioneers. Shot and powder were too costly and too scarce to use, so another A small cleared spot was selected, one that contained at least one young tall supple tree, generally an oak. Grain was spread on the ground and over this was placed a net woven from fine strong flax fiber cord. The net was a mesh of about two inch squares and one edge was attached to the bent sapling. A pigeon that had been captured previously was used as a decoy, and was tethered near the net. Hidden in blinds, the hunters waited until a cloud of pigeons appeared over Waterford Hill. Then the decoy was released and slowly pulled back to the ground.

. The leaders of the flock, seeing the captured bird, tried to light in the clearing, bringing in the other pigeons. At this moment, the sapling was released throwing the net over the birds. As the pigeons tried to rise, they became entangled in the mesh. The hunters rushed out and rolled stones over the edges of the net, keeping the birds from regaining the air.

Some of the pigeons were kept alive for future dining or as decoys the following season. The remainder were killed and de-feathered and the thick muscular breasts of the pigeon were cut out and sun-dried. Later these pieces were stuck on long thorns which were wedged between the shake shingles of the log house attics and stored for future use. Pity the poor pioneer housewife that had to climb up to her attic on a rickety ladder, chase away the insects and dust off a couple of pounds of dried pigeons for supper. A far cry from the

If we could print in color this week, you could color our faces red! Like most Editors I occasionally have nightmares in which I am scrambling for copy to fill what appears to be blank pages. After waking from one of these nightmares Sunday night I was relating it to the publisher at lunch on Monday. He assured me never to worry that there were always pictures.

Nearly ready for bed Monday evening I answered the phone to hear someone say, "Are you ready for a sleepless night? We have no pictures either!" My successes with a camera are not well known, but through the years I have managed to take news shots when I could not "con" someone else into doing it for me. But I sallied forth last week shooting pictures here and there and feeling very smug about my efforts as they would appear in this week's edition.

But alas I was not alone! Publisher Jim has a camera similiar to mine and as he went about his way Friday and Monday he took shots too. But when the developer emerged from the dark room he had not one single shot to show. Our films were both blank.

And so calling people and asking them to pose again is one of the most mortifying things you have to do. But many of the pictures that you are looking at this week are the result of these kind people doing just that. This time the results came from a Polaroid--my stock has always been high with that company. Any picture in hand is worth a roll of them in a camera that you can't trust!

The kindergarteners started to school on Monday. 'Twas a might confusing for the bus drivers they tell me. There really is an abundance of the little tots heading for school for the first time this year and the bus drivers had quite a time locating all of them. That was solved on. Tuesday when an extra person was assigned to each bus to spot where they lived and to make sure that they all got a ride.

Well, it's back to living rooms for something new. According to the TV guides etc. the reruns are over and it's on with the new shows. In that media they can get away with it. If newspapers spent every summer filling their pages and their readers with features that they ran through the "season" some = one would have our scalps, This has been a bad week, so guess I'll go home and watch one of the new shows.

by Dee O'Connor

Well, now it's Monday mornin' again! And it does take a little adjusting to after Sunday's leisure time. We did a little coin flipping yesterday (and no one misses a little nip off the edge of any coin) as to whether we should go out to the driving range or hit the hammock. Since the hammock was under the big oak in our yard and it took precedence over golf. I do think-O'Shaughnessy had a bit to do with it. If so, I want to publicly thank the wee imp.

There is no greater riches on earth than a shadowy secret place all your very own. Only a very special person could join you for it has to be approached in a very special way by a very special path or it looks much like any other spot.

This time of the year holds a magic for me. It becomes difficult to remember with absolute clarity the real from the unreal. For instance riding home the sunlight filters through the lacy branches of the trees and the rays stretch such a

Consequently we have surely met some wonderful people in the area. How nice it is to be told day after day that our efforts here at the paper are being appreciated. When passing Bob's Hardware today the old covered bridge mural took our eye for sure. It brought to mind our first helicopterride we took this summer, Arepeattrip over this locale in the fall would certainly be a treat, would it not?

Change in worship hour

Calvary Lutheran Church, at 6805 Bluegrass Drive in Clarkston, will hold Worship Services at 8:30 and 11:00 a.m., beginning Sunday, September 11. The change from the Summer worship time is being made primarily to facilitate attendance at Sunday Church School, now scheduled at 9:45-10:45 a.m. for First through Ninth graders and 11:00-12:00 a.m. for four and five year olds. But it is also hoped that the doubled worship hours will enable more persons to attend row that the regular cycle of Fall activities has begun.

The recently completed Vacation Church School at Calvary saw an enrollment of 106 pupils, with an average attendance of 64, and 33 non-members registered. In the near future an Adult Inquirer's Class will be held. Set for 4-5:30 p.m. each Sunday afternoon, beginning September 18 and concluding October 23, this class is for all persons interested in membership or desiring information about the Lutheran Church in America, of which Calvary Church is a part. The public is welcome to attend; for further details, call the Rev. Arlon K. Stubbe (625-7722 or 625-0340). The new worship hours, mentioned above, are also for the convenience of the community, and all are welcome.

family wood-working tradition

By Dee O'Connor

What finer heritage than the combination of God given talent and creative flair with which Mr. Merle Bennett has so richly endowed his remarkable son Paul. This "young man on the go" is truly a talented artist. His capable hands have produced an endless array of unique pine furniture. This exceptional craftsman takes a heart felt pride in his work. Consequently each item seemingly acquires an individual signature. Because of the wide range of design one could quite literally furnish a complete home from his shop.

As I wandered throughout the area I found myself unconciously forming a mental attachment to many of the lovely articles. The satin sheen and gentle glow of the pine seemed to mutely bid a welcome.

This unprententious personality is mirrored in the tranquil simplicity of pattern. A blanket chest seat and round coffee table seem to invite a chat. Warmth and vitality of the subtle finish makes time an accomplice to it's ceaseless charm. Many unusual and diversified finishes such as varnish and stain, antique paint in gorgeous hues of red, yellow, blue and green give an indication of the true appreciation of quality shared by members of the family.

Unfortunately, I did not have the opportunity of meeting his young wife, Marjorie, a "city gal" from Dearborn in the nursing profession. Aided by a gorgeous hand made jewelry box for her, complete with removable tray and a button tufted lush red velvet interior a successful conversion to his choice of furnishing was accomplished. This was the first of many gifts that were given with the solemn promise never to relinquish them to a future ardent admirer. It seems his Mother, a gracious hostess whom I chatted brief-

Adding to the wealth of practical and attractive surroundings are such items as an unusual pair of lamps fashioned from the separated ends of one antique bed post. The rope holes are still much in evidence. A remarkable job of compactly inserting a stereo inside a pine dry sink took very little effort he humbly informed

His work, from the huge seven drawered desk to the purely functional vanity are copies of the Shaker period.

I was fascinated by the approximately three and a half foot tall Shaker candle stand. My friendly, outgoing host informed me the assorted holes drilled into the wood were copied from its predecessor for the sole purpose of hanging on the wall of the meeting house in a by gone era. It seems everything in the Shaker style was made for pure function or comfort. Another display of talent is evident in the lovely double ridged wainscoting.

comes locally from nearby areas such as Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills. The advertising being "word of mouth" compliments.

I lost my heart completely to an adorable four footed tea chest complete with satin brass handled lid, wall spice shelf with indented porcelain knobs, and an ancient style noodle cutter. The latter resembled a grooved rolling pin.

Modern sculptured pieces, the work of a brother residing in New York, were evident in the room. Another brother, a native Californian is an author.

Paul's excellent bargain hunting ability was rewarded by the find of a one dollar treadle sewing machine. When he divulged the use of said item the current price soared to two dollars and fifty cents. It is now the base of an end table with a distressed finished top. A discarded sauerkraut crock complete with a thick pine cover has also been utilized as an end table.

Distinguished texture is created by a scorching and sanding process, used effectively on a small plank chair.

Ravages of time and sunlight tend to enhance the beauty of custom made products of pine.

An unfinished grandfather clock attests to the hours of skill that is part of each new undertaking.

Registration drive

The Clarkston Area Jaycees are working with Howard Altman, Independence township clerk relative to plans for a Voter Registration Drive. To be conducted toward the end of this month and in early October, detailed plans will be announced later. Plans call for a trailer to be set up at different parking lot locations during the drive. Deadline for registrations to vote in the November election is October 10.

In our opinion, the accompanying statement of revolving funds and internal accounts presents fairly the financial position Laof those funds at June 30, 1966, and the results of operations for the year then ended.

Independence township attorney Paul Mandel and Clarkston Village Attorney, Jack Banycky have been meeting preparatory to setting up an agreement between the two. units for the Deer Lake beach. Members of both governing bodies are in agreement that there should be no prime difficulty in wfinding a solution for maintaining the beach at the Lake.

It has been suggested ,that the Village issue a written license to the township of Independence to fence the Deer Lake property and to issué the necessary permits to allow residents of the township and the village to use the Deer Lake property for specific purposes. The principal use of the property would be for a swimming beach. There would be no picnicking--no alcoholic beverages would be allowed and no beverage containers.

The other use would involve limited boat launching--providing that it did not. interfere with the primary purpose, which should beswimming.

Whatever arrangement is forthcoming spokesmen say that "the area will still be in control of the village and their desires will be incorporated in its operation.
