

Marine Lance Corporal Ned Seath displays the Bronze Star awarded to him last week. Now discharged from the Marine Corps was awarded the Star for gallantry in action while in Vietnam.

Twice-wounded Marine awarded Bronze Star

A World War II marine veteran and winner of the Purple Heart himself watched proudly last week as his son received the Bronze Star for courage under fire in Vietnam.

Marine Lance Corporal Ned E. Seath, 23, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Seath of 6473 Cramlane Drive in Clarkston and recently discharged from the Marine Corps received that award in Pontiac last week. To this Marine who volunteered for service in Vietnam, awards and medals are nothing new. He holds the Purple Heart for being twice wounded while fighting there. He has also been awarded the Vietnamese Cross for Gallantry with Palm, the National Defense Service Medal from our own country as well as the Vietnam Service Medal.

Service in the Marine Corps is a tradition in this family. Mr. Seath served with the Corps during World War II. In the Pacific theater, he received the Purple Heart following duty in Guadacanal and Bougainville. Mr. Seath is a State Police Detective stationed at the Pontiac post.

Another son Mark, who is 21 is currently stationed with the Marine Corps in the Phillipines. Mark, who is a Clarkston High school graduate enlisted in 1965 following his graduation. He also is a Lance Corporal.

The citation which was from President Johnson, but issued by Lt. General V. H. Krulak USMC read as follows:

"For heroic achievement in connection with operations against the enemy in the Republic of Vietnam while serving as a machine gun team leader with company K, third battalion, fourth Marines, 15 July 66, bravery, and daring were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service."

Seath with his machine gun.

The Hastings Operation lasted for 18 days. Seath's battalion took part in it for 5 days. Out of the 140 group members, there were 62 casualties. This group were given credit for "most kills."

Ned, while stationed at the Federal prison in Albany, Georgia volunteered for service in Vietnam. He was sent to that country early in January, 1966. His time was to be up in July and just before that Ned was wounded while fighting in Quang Tri Province. A grenade had been thrown into his hole—in attempting to throw it out, the grenade exploded. As a result Ned received shrapnel wounds in his hands, arms and legs. He quickly recovered from that incident and on July 18 was again wounded.

Following this he was quickly sent back to the States and was discharged on October 9th.

The three years spent in the Marine Corps were colorful ones for Ned. He enlisted on June 19, 1962 following his graduation from High School in Reed City. Following Boot Camp training, he was assigned to the Fleet Marines aboard the U. S. S. Kearsarge. While on duty aboard that ship, the crew helped pick up Astronaut Gordon Cooper from the space flight in which the astronauts landed in the Pacific.

There was one year out of the three in which Ned served in Cuba—being stationed at the Guantanamo base there. Following that he had duty in Albany, Georgia from which he volunteered for service in the Far East.

Happy to be home with his family again, Ned is presently working at Pontiac Truck and Coach while making plans for the future, which could include further schooling. And happy to have him home are another brother and sister! Ann Marie is a 10th grader and Philip a 6th grader in the Clarkston schools. The family moved to Clarkston 3 years ago. They had formerly lived at Reed City when Mr. Seath was attached to that Post of the Michigan State Police.

No Ceiling!

The large group lecture room at Clarkston High School is still not in use. For all outward appearances it might look complete. The furniture is there and the floor tile is down, but there just is no ceiling!

Supposedly it is to be shipped from the supplier on January 10, but school officials are taking no wagers that it will be there.

This room was one of the additional ones at the High school which was constructed last summer and fall.

Hursfall defends Irons in jail row

"Sheriff Irons is doing the best he possibly can in the facilities he has to work with" stated Duane Hursfall, chairman of the human relations committee of the Board of Supervisors. "The sheriff is making the prisoners as comfortable and as reasonably happy as he can in a jail that is not up to date and is simply too old", the Independence township supervisor went on to say.

Burton Levy, director of community services for the Michigan Civil Rights Commission has warned Irons about racial segregation of his prisoners and says that it is unlawful. Levy also questioned hiring practices in the sheriff's department.

At an early December meeting of the human relations committee of which Hursfall is the Chairman, Daniel Monley, chairman of the Oakland County Human Relations Coordinating Council appeared and gave the committee a four-point discrimination indictment of the sheriff's department and its jail operation.

As a result of this meeting, Hursfall and his committee scheduled a tour of the facilities which was held on Wednesday last week. Those who visited the jail were: Hursfall, Levy and Monley and human relations committee members, Mrs. Harriett Arnowitz, Mrs. Marguerite Simson and John D. McKinlay. Also present were two Civil Rights Commission officials, Abraham Uhlmer Jr. and Richard McGhee.

During the tour prisoners themselves seemed little concerned about the policies but used the opportunity to complain about the food. The main complaint seems to revolve around the bullpen segregation. Irons stated that this was the practice when he became sheriff

Will appear before Liquor Control Comm.

A hearing will be held at the Michigan Liquor Control Commission office in Lincoln Park on Monday January 9. Scheduled to appear on that day will be Joe Fodor of 6761 Dixie Highway in Clarkston. His hearing is scheduled for 2 P. M.

Fodor is charged with selling to a minor; a minor consuming and for allowing employees under 18 years of age to entertain. Investigators on the case were Stooks, Hybarger and Zielinski.

Scheduled to appear at 1:30 P. M. on the same day is Frances N. McPeck of 10193 Highland Road, Pontiac. The Oakland County Sheriff Department lodged a complaint against that establishment for the licensee being intoxicated on the premises and for the premises being occupied after the legal hour.

Five in family hospitalized as result of New Years accident

A grinding crash which occurred on the night of New Years Day sent an entire family to the hospital, all with serious injuries.

The John P. Brown family of 3220 Cranbrook Circle in Flint have all been hospitalized at St. Joseph Hospital in Pontiac with type A injuries.

Also injured were two youths in the other car, Lynn Winkleman 18, of 19128 Delaware in Roseville who was the driver and Leroy Schroeder 18 of 18205 Rainbow in Fraser.

In the Brown car were John P. Brown 28, the driver, his wife Barbara 26, and their children Kelly 1 1/2, Pamela 4, and Julie 3 1/2.

Mr. Brown told sheriff officers who investigated that he was travelling very slowly on Sashabaw road at the I-75 overpass. The road was icy and suddenly he noticed the boy's car coming toward him sideways, blocking his lane of traffic. The accident happened at 11:55 P. M. Mr. Brown was driving a new Buick station wagon.

The boys were returning from skiing and Winkleman was driving a Mustang which was a total wreck. They were taken to Pontiac General Hospital where the 13 years ago. For the protection of all prisoners in the jail which was built in 1922, it appeared that the sheriff was not about to change his policy. He predicted that there could be real trouble when so many prisoners have to be put together.

Hursfall's 6 man committee will study the results of last week's meeting and could make recommendations to the Board of Supervisors. However, Hursfall told the News last week that his personal recommendation would be for "bigger and better facilities."

driver, Winkleman was later released. Their injuries were classified as type A also. The driver was unable to make a statement.

Sheriff officers cited Winkleman for driving at a speed which was too fast and for driving to the left of the center line.

Girl Scout fund drive falls short

The response to the Girl Scout Community Appeal in Clarkston fell far short of the goal which was set at $3,000. At this time the contributions total $920. However, there are many people in Clarkston who have not been contacted because of a shortage of volunteer works, states Mrs. Walter Norberg.

"The need for funds in order to continue the program and services to the 200 Girl Scouts in Clarkston is very great." If you have not been contacted and wish to make a contribution please call Mrs. Walter Norberg at 625-2314 and she will call on you.

As of December 31, the Girl Scouts will no longer receive support from the Pontiac Area United Fund. Therefore, a drive for $70,000 in funds was launched in November to raise support for the organization.

Only incumbents file for village election

When the deadline for filing nominating petitions for village offices had passed at 4 P. M. on Tuesday, January 3rd only the incumbent village officers had filed. Artemus Pappas, Village Clerk for Clarkston told the News that the following persons had filed for the offices: Robert Wertman, President; Ralph Thayer, Assessor; Artemus Pappas, Clerk; and Mary Ann Pappas, Treasurer.

Filing for the 2 year term as trustees were: Willis E. Cushman, Keith W. Hallman and E. James Mahar.

Because there is no opposition for any office, the need for a February 20th Primary election does not exist. The General election will be held on Monday, March 13.

To be valid the petitions had to be signed by not less than one percentum and more than four percentum of the electors of the village as shown by the registration books.

March 13, is also the date of the Village Annual Meeting.

BOOSTERS TO MEET

Clarkston Athletic Boosters Club will meet on January 9 at 7:30 p. m. at the Senior High School. All members are urged to attend.

It's a long pull up the hill, but a great ride back down! Taking advantage of last week's school vacation and good snow these youngsters engaged in a favorite winter sport—tobogganing. Pictured (l. to r.) are Mary, Karen and Kevin McCann and Rich Mahar.

Jim's Jottings

Peter Lind Hayes, the comic, has one routine where he portrays different characters as suggested to him by changing hats. The derby, straw, beret, etc. transform him into a fitting personality.

I believe the various manufacturers of men's colognes have adopted this approach in promotion of their products. By pasting fitting names on their bottles they give the male any personality he might want when he splashes on his shaving lotion. Of course, the packaging people have added their bit by designing bottles that round out the desired atmosphere.

During the gift-giving season, almost sinfully, the female of the specie sees that her children give Dad a bottle of fragrance befitting of what she invisions her idol.

In my case Hazel had one of the darlings give me a bottle of "Brut". I don't know right now if she has an idol who's a brute, think's I'm one or wants me to be one so I'm using English Leather. This was my choice because I usually feel like a piece of worn crupper by the time I finish shaving in the morning.

One time I changed to Russian Leather only to find I felt like a piece of Russian crupper.

For years the cologne people have tried to appeal to the outdoorsmen by marketing "Sportsman" and, of course, pine or menthol scents very much in evidence in the ads.

In recent years the accent has been on the secret agent. The labels fitting this mood just had to be designed for the evening shaver. I can't imagine putting on "007" or "Passport 360" or "Jaguar" in the morning. Though the employees probably think I'm sneaking in on them sometimes I hardly ever feel like a secret agent at 8 a.m.

I should undoubtedly feel like putting on "76" in the morning to approach the day like the "Spirit of . . .", or, being the head man around here, dash some "Top Brass" below the sideburns, or, if I really expect a big, bragging day, liberally slosh on some "Swagger".

I think the right time to use "By George" is Sunday morning just before tackling the comic pages.

The name dreamers might as well save their printing costs on some of the labels. The very few, and getting fewer, times that some would be fitting my mood, or condition, there wouldn't be any of the stuff in sight. I'd have to have a crystal ball to forecast telling me when I should cart along some "Aphrodisia", "Jade East", or "Inferno".

Someone could probably make an entire sentence out of colognes. . . "Brut, Swagger up to the Top Brass and show him your Passport 360, and get his Jaguar to go to Seven Seas for Old Spice, and take Currier and Ives with you. And, By George, pound English Leather around Right Guard and be back in '76."

Hursfall to head MTA

Duane Hursfall, Independence township supervisor will be installed as President of the Michigan Townships Association on January 13. The installation will take place at the close of the M. T. A. convention at the Jack Tar Hotel in Lansing. It will be the 14th annual convention of the Association.

Mr. Hursfall has served this year as First Vice President of the Association which represents over 1200 Michigan townships. In his new capacity as President he will serve as Chairman of the Board of Directors and Officers. Previously he had served 4 years on the Board.

Hursfall, who was re-elected in the November election, has been the supervisor of Independence township for the past 10 years. In that capacity he serves on the County Board of Supervisors where he is Chairman of the Human Relations committee and also chairman of the Airport Zoning committee and is a member of the Board of Equalization.

Previous committee assignments have included the Roads and Bridges committee, County Building and grounds committee and the County health commission. He is a past President of both the Oakland County Assessors' association and the Township Supervisors Association.

Attending the four day convention with Mr. Hursfall will be other Independence township officials. Serving on the Nominating committee for the meeting will be Kenneth Johnson, Independence township treasurer.

Milton DeLancey, Executive Secretary of the Pennsylvania State Association of Supervisors will deliver the keynote address. A champion of local government, he made such an impact on the delegates last year that he was asked to return to speak this year.

Township attorneys are urged to be present also as there will be a 2 day Lawyer's Institute conducted for them during the session.

For the benefit of the Clerk's Robert Montgomery, an election expert will conduct a session discussing the effect of the new constitution and the new statutes on the township election process.

The Chairman of the Michigan State Tax Commission, Robert Purnell will lead a discussion for supervisors on assessment equalization and other related tax subjects. A study will also be made of Senior Citizens and Veteran's tax exemptions.

"Handling of Funds: and Bond Retirement" will be discussed by the Bureau of local government services for the benefit of the township treasurers.

Governor George W. Romney will address the group as will Joseph Parisi, Jr. the Executive Director of M. T. A. He is expected to make clear the present and future position of Township government in the dynamic growth and expansion of the State.

Also scheduled for the delegates and their families is a Night of Family Entertainment with a tremendous array of professional talent.

Food specialists at Michigan State University suggest you leave the skin on sweet potatoes when you boil them. The thin skin of the sweet potato is easier to peel when its cooked and it takes less of the potato with it. Some of the sweetness is dissolved in the cooking water when the protective jacket is gone.

THE CLARKSTON (Mich.) NEWS Thurs., Jan. 5, 1967 3

Going skating?

"Use caution when choosing an ice skating site," says Southeastern Michigan Chapter Red Cross Safety Services Chairman Frederick K. Cody. "Although the first ice of the season may look good, it is generally thin and not uniform in thickness. Red Cross recommends the following:

1. Skate in supervised areas, preferably a shallow pond or lake where the water is no more than waist deep.
2. Skate with a buddy.
3. Build fires on the bank, not on the ice.

For ice rescue:

1. Keep a length of rope, pole, ladder or plank handy.
2. When rescuing someone who has fallen through the ice, lie flat on the ice, edge forward and push the rescue equipment toward the victim. When he has grasped it securely, pull him to safety. Do not stand on the ice while performing the rescue act.
3. If there is no rescue equipment available, several persons can form a human chain by lying flat on the ice, holding the ankles or skates of the person in front of them. They worm their way toward the victim; the lead man grasps his wrists and the whole line wriggles back to safety.
4. If alone and you fall through the ice, don't try to climb out. Instead, extend both arms along the surface of the ice and kick vigorously. This will help lift your body onto solid ice. Then roll to safety. It is a good idea to carry ice axes or a knife with you when skating. Then, if an accident occurs, you can use such tools to aid in pulling yourself onto solid ice.

In 1812 the government claimed two million acres of land in the Michigan Territory for the soldiers of the war with Great Britain. Early surveyors sent back word that Michigan, riddled with lakes and swamps, was unfit for settling. Fortunately, these gloom reports didn't stop the surge of pioneers.

It was these sources of water power that determined the location of Clarkston. In 1831 the first Butler Holcomb took up government owned land covering part of the village and by digging a half mile ditch from the river along the east side of the present mill pond site, was able to operate a saw mill, the first business to be set up in Clarkston.

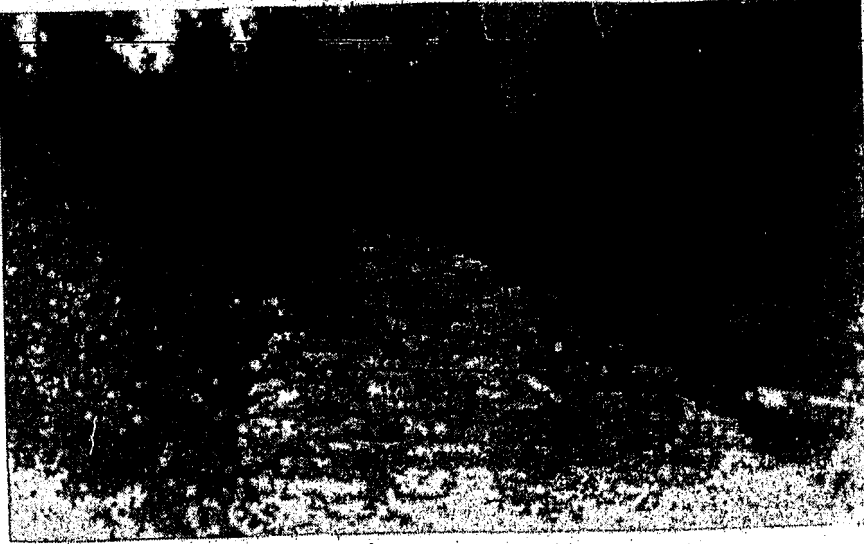

A new township for this area came into being in 1836, and a homesick Joseph Van Syckle from the town of Independence, New Jersey gave it a name. Up to that point this had all been part of Pontiac Township. In April of 1837 the first township meeting was held in the home of Arthur Davis and it was here that it was voted "A lawful fence is one which is 4 1/2 feet high and strong enough to turn a fifty pound hog.

Linus Jaycox, among the first to make the trek from Detroit to this area in 1831, put up a shakepole shanty for shelter during his first winter. A dwelling that was as rickety as its name implies, it surprisingly withstood a good many winters and provided housing for a number of pioneer families while their own cabins were being built. But Thomas Beardsee put up the first house worthy of the name, an 18 foot square structure of logs. At that time, there were so few families living near him that he couldn't get any local help, making a trip into Drayton Plains, he managed to hire enough men to get the job done.

There was a trail, really not much more than a foot-path, that skirted the edge of the village. In 1832 this was widened and named the Territorial Road. Trees were cut and trimmed and these huge logs, laid closely together in the mud and dirt, formed the roadbed. This provided a jolting, bone-shaking ride for anyone making a trip by wagon or buggy to, any point between Detroit and Saginaw. But except in places where the road lay across swamps and had a habit of disappearing every spring during the thaw, this was pretty durable construction. Today the road that follows this same trail is called Dixie Highway.

After first settling in Detroit, Jeremiah and Nelson Clark, in 1837, came to the village that was later named for them. A sparse little community with nothing more than a wagon track cutting down the middle, it had been known simply as Independence. These two brothers, fresh from the bustle of the big city, put their talents to work in the formation of the village proper. They bought out Butler Holcomb's saw-mill interests and in 1839 built a flour mill. This building stood until the early 1920's. Intelligent driving men, Jeremiah served in the Michigan legislature in 1839 and 1841; and Nelson in 1850 built the first two-story building specifically designed for a school on the site of the present township building. This became a 12-grade school in 1898 and stood until 1911.

Not everyone came to Clarkston through intent. Take Thomas McGurn for instance. Fresh from Ireland he was just passing by on the Saginaw Turnpike, another name for the Territorial road, keeping his eyes open for a likely looking bit of land. It seemed that Independence would be a good place to settle so he turned off the pike and bought some acreage. Not so fortunate was William Daniels, an emigrant from Wales. He arrived here without a cent to his name and that fall and winter he split fourteen thousand rails to earn money to buy a farm; a record no one else ever tried to match.

But by the end of the first quarter century of settlers, from about 1831 to the mid-1850's, a lot of progress had been made. True there weren't sidewalks but the wagon track had widened into a firm packed dirt road, and a great many people were able to move into larger frame homes and leave their log houses for the use of the farm animals. There were several schools besides the academy that Nelson Clark had built. A general store had been established by the Axford brothers, John and William and in 1842 Nelson Clark opened a store where the Clarkston Bank stands. Milton Clark, son of Jeremiah, started a third store in 1844 that he ran for about forty years. There was, at the end of this first twenty-five years, a feeling of achievement and a certain hard earned prosperity.

Rabies prevention is everyone's responsibility

According to the Oakland County Veterinary Medical Association, there are more than 30,000 Americans exposed to some form of rabies each year. And almost every year in a majority of the states there are reports of one or more cases of laboratory confirmed rabies.

To the average pet owner, a resident of a community which has never reported a case of rabies, these statistics may seem startling, and somewhat frightening. Fortunately, because of the availability of effective anti-rabies vaccines and the undertaking of rabies control programs by local communities, epidemics of the disease in dogs can be avoided, but if occur can be checked.

What is Rabies?

Rabies is a virus disease that can be contracted by all mammals including man. It is generally transmitted by a bite or scratch from an animal, whose rabies-infected saliva enters the bite wound. Once the disease becomes established, there is little hope of checking it.

The symptoms of rabies vary and depend on the form of rabies infecting the carrier animal. If an animal contracts the furious form of rabies, it becomes vicious and violent, and is likely to attack without warning or motivation. In dumb rabies, the passive form of the disease, the most common symptoms are a paralysis of the lower jaw and an attitude of drowsiness and depression. In contrast with furious rabies, there is no irritability or tendency to bite in dumb rabies unless the animal is particularly provoked.

Every individual pet owner may help to prevent rabies in his community by doing the following:

1. Have your pet vaccinated if you have not already done so. Veterinary medical scientists have developed vaccines which are safe and effective and which give your pet maximum protection against rabies. To insure continued maximum protection, follow your veterinarian's advice and observe your local rabies control regulations.

2. Obey all leash and licensing laws in your community.

3. Make sure your pet is identified by a license tag.

4. Report all stray dogs to the police or local pound department.

5. If bitten by an animal, contact your physician, Board of Health, or police department immediately.

What Should You Do If Bitten?

As a first aid measure, wash the wound thoroughly with soap and water, or an antiseptic solution, and encourage bleeding to carry away any infected saliva that may be in the wound. Contact your physician immediately. If bitten by a stray or wild animal, the police should be notified. Do not kill the animal. If it is a pet animal, it should be confined for a period of 10 days. If wild, it should be captured and confined likewise.

If the animal remains alive and well during the time of confinement, it was not rabid at the time of biting and therefore, there is no need for vaccination. On the other hand, if the animal shows definite signs of rabies, or if it cannot be captured and is suspected of being rabid, then proper medical treatment should begin immediately.

A Shocking Future Awaits You, Men

by Jim Fitzgerald

Motorist Fee is Unfair

THE APPROACHING license plate deadline is a reminder that most of the motorists in the state will again be tapped for an extra dollar for the uninsured motorist accident claims fund. And, as last year, those who have already protected themselves with auto insurance will question the fairness of their being made to pay that extra dollar.

Last year a total of $10,670,016 was paid into the fund. Insured motorists paying the extra dollar accounted for $3,927,406 of this total, while those who chose to pay the $35 fee paid in $6,720,000.

As of Nov. 15, the fund had paid out in claims a total of $229,260, set aside a reserve for claims in process of $1,935,179, and invested approximately $6 million. That leaves $2,505,577 unaccounted for, and presumably allocated for administrative expense.

It seems unfair to continue the $1 charge to the insured motorist.

Not only does he pay the $1 fee, but every auto policy now sold in the state now costs $3 extra because there is a mandatory provision for private uninsured motorist coverage. Add to this increased premium expense for the enormous amount of help the insurance companies have had to add to handle all the additional detail, and the cost is probably boosted several more dollars.

It would seem much fairer to increase the $35 fee charged to uninsured motorists to a more reasonable figure. If the 192,000 persons who paid this fee were charged $50 instead of $35, the revenue from this source would jump to $9,600,000 annually—just a million short of this year's total. Add to this the interest from the $6 million invested—which now goes into the state general fund—and total revenues should certainly be adequate without tapping the guy who has already done his share—the insured motorist who is now unfairly assessed to pay the bills of the uninsured motorist.

Enjoy Old Man Winter

We have now reached that portion of the year as the saying goes, "when the days begin to lengthen the cold begins to strengthen." Since we cannot all escape to happier climes even if we so desired, now is the time to check again on preparations for living comfortably through the short bleak days that lie ahead.

How is the family car? The tires should be in good shape, chains should be carried, anti-freeze should be checked along with windshield wipers, lights, heater, etc.

Leaving the car for a moment, next on the list should be the fuel supply, protection of house plumbing against freezing and checking of furnaces, flues and chimneys. Haven't we all heard the chilling sound of a siren in the middle of a bitter winter night?

After all the preparations have been made, we may look forward to winter as a time of surcease from the chores and exhausting fun of summer.

There is nothing like the security of a warm fire and perhaps a little popcorn on a cold dark evening, when old man winter is howling around the eaves of your house. You may as well relax with a good book and enjoy it. For most of us, summer is some thousands of miles away—somewhere to the South, where whirling snowflakes never brush the palms and silver beaches with winter's mantle.

(Those capital letters, dear readers, are my last pun of the old year. My one resolution for the new year is to somehow earn your forgiveness).

It happened in London, England. A married man had an affair with the woman next door. His wife found out, he repented, and she forgave him. And everything was duty again except . . .

The gal across the hedge still looked good to our hero, who I will call Cyril just to see if I can spell it. Cyril felt guilty about this continued attraction. He came depressed and remorseful. He went to a doctor for help. This is when things got shocking.

The doctor put Cyril in a dark room. Pictures of his wife and the other woman were flashed alternately on a screen. Every time the photo of the girl next door was shown, Cyril was given a 70 volt electric shock in the rut.

I am not making this up. Two psychiatrists wrote about it in a medical magazine. They call the shock treatment "aversion therapy." Cyril took it for 30 minutes a day, 6 days straight. And it worked. The doctor swears that Cyril is now totally indifferent to that other broad.

Well, Any discerning husband can see what all this crud means. Aversion therapy is merely more progress—another so-called improvement of this marvelous Automation Age. The voltage treatment will soon replace the icy glare, the kick in the shins under the table, and the elbow in the ribs.

Your bride will buy her Home Aversion Kit at the supermarket for $4.98. It will be portable with rechargeable batteries. No direct connection with the husband will be necessary. He will have a steel receiver button permanently inserted in his navel at his wedding. The wife's shocket will be easily tuned to her husband's button through an electronic process too complicated for you to understand.

No dark rooms and pictures will be necessary. Myrtle will apply the treatment directly in the face of whatever is tempting Horace. Her shocket will be carried easily in her purse. For dress-up occasions, there will be shockets disguised as costume jewelry. Rich dames will probably have diamond shockets that also tell time and give weather reports.

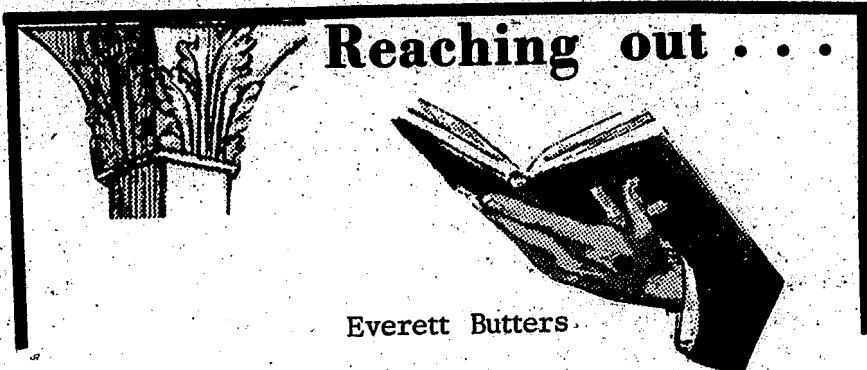

When Horace begins to stray toward the go-go girl in the corner cage, Myrtle has only to activate her shocket. Zap! Horace gets 70 volts in the stomach. He reaches for that th'd drink. Zap! He starts to tell an old joke for the 156th time. Zap!

In time, some egghead studying under a Ford Foundation grant will add TV and radar to the shocket. Myrtle will be able to curb Horace from afar. And that will be it. It is easy to avoid an icy stare across a crowded room (Isn't that a song?). But no man can ignore 70 volts below the belt. Horace will quickly learn that no go-go girl is that going. Soon, as in the case of Cyril, no shocket will be needed. Horace will be indifferent to all temptations. Myrtle can make an ash tray out of her shocket, and Horace's receiver button will get rusty.

It is a bleak future, meh, but there is one consolation. Undoubtedly, women will continue to demand equal rights. The inevitable result will be double-button wedding ceremonies. Myrtle will get a button in her navel, too. Couples will live happily ever after, shocking each other into mutual submission.

Onward and Upward and Happy New Year if she'll let you. Δ

-GOD DOES SURELY LIVE-

Seated opposite the great Preacher in his study the young man suddenly asked the question, "Sir, can any real good come of all this talk about the Death of God?" The quick and affirmative answer surprised him, but then the Preacher proceeded to point out that it is vitally important that men of every generation evaluate their religious experiences and their beliefs to determine whether or not God still is for them the basic fact of life and the governing law of conduct, whether or not He still lives for them. If it appears to a man that his God is in eclipse it may be just a sign that he is growing up, finding out at long last that God's Word and Will do not come spelled out on stone tablets, but from the inner counsel of his own heart.

Quite certain it is that some of us would welcome news of the demise of the God who asks that we strive with all our strength for social justice and for workable world law, frightening to realize that the God we are sure we have tried to serve well requires a radical change in our thinking as our first response to His pleading.

Those of us who say to ourselves that perhaps God does not exist at all fail to face the issue squarely, for the only alternative to Great Mind behind the Universe, at its beginning and in its continuing existence, is blind chaos. There is Mind behind the Universe, propose running through it, ultimate meaning in it, and destiny ahead of it. The denial of God is the denial of all four, which would render our World meaningless and put it on a one-way street.

The affirmation of God implies the acceptance of His great Law of Life, stern and magnificent, which says . . . Go out into God's World and fulfill His conditions. If you desire physical, mental and spiritual health, fulfill the conditions of health, for as a man soweth, so shall he also surely reap. Sow friendliness and unselfishness and reap an enlarged life. Sow good will and reap a better life for all men. Sow worship, the lifting of the heart and mind toward God and reap that unending consciousness of Him which was the mainstay of Jesus. He who is the author and the finisher of our faith and whose consciousness of the Father was the highest among all His children.

Eternal God, our Father: Move us to know well, we beseech Thee, the power of Thine ever living Spirit, in Jesus' Name. AMEN.

Ripples from the Pool

By Faith Poole

We thought that we bought a lot of wild bird food until we talked to Jess Berg. Mr. Berg is doubtless one of the most ardent of the "bird feeders". Each winter he buys a half ton of wild bird feed plus about 350 pounds of scratch feed. He is well rewarded for his efforts though as he tells us that one morning last week there were 130 birds breakfasting in his back yard.

For a quick and easy treat for the wild ones comes this tip from my aunt. Mix household discards of grease with cornmeal and pour into cottage cheese containers. These are easy to unroll and seem to be a real delicacy for the birds. She also informs me that once you start feeding the birds during the season that you must continue. Birds have a way of becoming used to eating at one place, and when the food is not made available, some of them literally starve to death.

To me, there is nothing more colorful than watching the gay Cardinal scratching for the feed that the other birds have carelessly scattered on the ground! For some reason they seem to be attracted to our yard only when we have deep snow. But perhaps it is our superabundance of sparrows that frightens other birds away.

Travellers to Florida tell us that the new freeway around Dayton, Ohio really hastens the trip. For many travellers who do not mind long hours of travel, the trip has now been pared to two days.

Great enthusiasm is being put forth for the Barber Shop Quartet Show. Ticket sales are going good and a real bang-up show is in the works. For a delightful evening's entertainment and to benefit a good cause, don't fail to see it at Pontiac Northern's Auditorium on January 21st.

The Women's Club are at it again—making plans for their Rummage Sale. The Community Center is the place and Saturday, January 14th the date!

Scrambled Eggs

By Rustie Leaf

Thoughts about 66/100 per cent serious had been given to a column head before last week. When Mr. Jim asked "What are you going to call your column?" my first urge was to calmly panic and deny all knowledge of the deed. But the urge was resisted (showing what a strong willed writer I am) and out popped scrambled eggs.

It should be said now that any resemblance to the dubbing of Scrambled Eggs and eggs laid or things scrambled is accidentally intentional (or is it intentionally accidental?).

Seriously, the job of calling a column something different led down some pretty dead ends. With Jim jotting and Mrs. Poole rippling it left Rustie to rant-rave-rattle-recite-or roar. There seemed to be no end to what a Rustie could do, but somehow they all sounded too refined, not to mention misleading.

At one dark point I considered using my real name, but who would believe it.

Somewhere in the dusty files of reject pen names that name must cringe. Now that a little mystery has been injected a nuf said declaration is made. One final thing in behalf of the title. If the eggs stop moving in the stores, we'll draw for a new name from the aforementioned list.

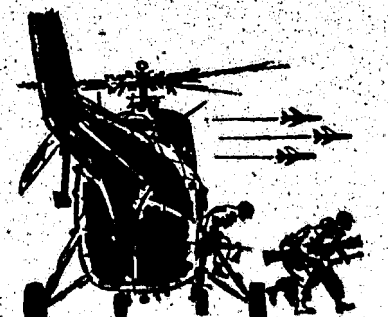

Well the week-end that the kids thought would never get here, did. The colds we hoped would bypass us, didn't. But in spite of this and the suspense of wondering how it would all get paid for, the day was thoroughly enjoyed.

This was the year everyone in the family learned something. The younger ones discovered why mistletoe isn't hung on door knobs, and the older ones how to space their steps to be under the archway once the mistletoe was moved. It all depended on who was where and why.

Mommy discovered that Daddy secretly wished she wore a smaller size, that her eldest son didn't care as long as she shared the box of candy he gave her, that if her daughter doesn't watch it she'll be baking better cakes in her little oven than Mommy and that #3 son better stop using said oven for a foot warmer.

By this time it's all over with but the clean up, fix up and repairing. Wasn't that fun though? All those wild bright eyed children running hysterically around the house for ten beautiful days. At night when I'm sleeping I still miss having them around. But then their education must come first and I always did say first things first. Just discovered a consoling thought. In 81 days, 2 hours and 45 minutes the little darlings will be out for their Easter vacation. Let's see now 81 days at three pills a day . . .

New nature sanctuary in Springfield township

Establishment of the 160 acre Timberland Swamp Nature Sanctuary near Andersonville, Springfield Township, was announced this week by the Eastern Michigan Nature Association.

Located in the center of a 920 acre lowland forest, this wilderness area is now dedicated to preserving native birds, animals, rare plants, and their forest habitat just as they are, with a minimum of human interference.

Threatened by rapid urban and suburban expansion, all such natural areas are in danger of destruction in southeastern Michigan the Association reports. So future generations can enjoy them, the E.M.N.A.'s six present sanctuaries and 19 others in the proposal stage will save examples of native forest type found in this part of the state. The sanctuaries are open to the public, though purchased and held by the Association.

Much of Timberland Swamp is now returning to prime mature forest, though most of it had been cut heavily during the past century of lumbering operations. Scattered virgin hardwood trees are still found here. The home of many rare birds and plants, Timberland Swamp Nature Sanctuary's greatest attraction is a show of millions of wildflowers between April 25 and May 20 each spring.

Access is by footpath only and a compass or guide is essential. There are no roads into this remote tract and none will be built.

The Timberland Committee of E. M. N. A. announces a campaign to raise $4,000.00 to help pay for the initial 160 acres. Oakland County businesses, organizations, and individuals are invited to send contributions to the Timberland Committee, Box 128, Davisburg, Michigan 48019.

Members of the Timberland Committee are: Hugo M. Burman, Davisburg; Mr. & Mrs. James Card, Pontiac; Mr. & Mrs. W.L. Criger, Davisburg; Mrs. S.P. Halsey, Davisburg; Mr. & Mrs. R.R. Grinnell, Pontiac; Mr. & Mrs. Claude A. Trim, Davisburg; Mrs. May D. Obenauf, Davisburg; Ralph O'Reilly, Jr., Davisburg; Mr. & Mrs. R.G. Parrott, Clarkston; David V. Pilkinton, Pontiac; Mrs. Elizabeth Siddall, Clarkston.
