NUMBER 40

Few things carry the mixed emotions of a child's entrance into school for the first time. The big step forward by the little people is bound to be a happy occasion that makes one just a little sad too. This Kindergarten Roundup scene was taken at the Clarkston Elementary school last Friday.

College night program for juniors and parents

The Guidance department at Clarkston High School are planning something different in the way of counselling for the present Junior Class. In the past, the counselors met with the new Senior Class the first week of September to discuss scholarships, college applications and other information pertaining to college.

This year the meeting is being moved back to spring of the junior year to give parents an opportunity to meet with the counselors. The meeting has been set for 7:30 p.m. on June 5th in the Little Theater.

The Juniors and their parents who are interested in 1, 2 or 4 year college programs are urged to attend. The meeting will include a discussion of scholarship programs, testing, financial aids and loans, expense planning, a senior year timetable and a question and answer period.

Failed to yield

Oakland County Sheriff officers report one accident in the area last week. That one occurred at 5:30 P.M. last Tuesday.

Raymond Hellas, 21 of 104 E. Maple in Holly was cited for failure to yield the right of way when he made a left turn in front of a car on the Dixie Highway at White Lake Road. The second auto was driven by William Jaynes 75, of 8240 North Whiteville in Clare.

Both men received type C injuries, but were not hospitalized.

ON ICE PATROL

Seaman Apprentice Thomas R. Hawke, USCG, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Hawke of 5553 Pleasant, Drayton Plains, is participating in the International Ice Patrol, while serving as a crewmember aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Evergreen.

The main purpose of the International Ice Patrol is to spot drifting icebergs which may threaten major shipping lanes of the North Atlantic.

The spotting of icebergs is done by Coast Guard aircraft when weather and visibility permit, however the Evergreen remains in the area with members of the Coast Guard Oceanographic Unit to study iceberg drift and deterioration.

Job testing for seniors

The Oakland County Personnel Office supervised by Mrs. Hoskins and Miss Van Houten administered a three hour testing program to 25 graduating Seniors and co-op girls on Wednesday, May 24 at the high school.

The test designed for hiring of file clerks, typists, and stenographers was under the sponsorship of the Business Education Department.

The program is one of many job opportunities offered students on a business curriculum at the local high school. Skills offered to the students include typing, shorthand, office machines, business law, consumer math, bookkeeping and the most recent, an IBM keypunching course.

HITS ROAD SIGN

A Pontiac man was arrested on a charge of being drunk and disorderly last Saturday afternoon. He had hit a road sign on Clintonville Road just north of I-75.

Sheriff officers arrested Lee Buhl 39, of 3434 Floretta in Pontiac. This occurred at 2:25 p.m. He had suffered type B injuries.

Area road to be paved

Seymour Lake Road east from M-15 north of Clarkston will receive 2 1/2 miles of paving this summer. Bids for this road work and 60 other projects will be opened on June 7 by the State Highway Commission.

This particular project has a completion date of November 1st. Estimated cost for the paving is $60,000.

Antique show to open Thursday

All is in readiness for the Clarkston Antique Show which will open Thursday morning at 11 A.M. at the Clarkston Methodist Church on Waldon Road. Dealers from Michigan and Ohio will be here to present their treasures from 11 A.M. to 10 P.M. on Thursday and from 11 A.M. to 9 P.M. on Friday.

The annual Senior Party will be held at Pine Knob following commencement. This annual affair is sponsored by the parents of the graduating students. Buffet supper will be served from 9:30 until 10:30 followed by dancing. Admission is by ticket at $5.00 per student.

Tennis Clinic

A Tennis Clinic under the sponsorship of the Clarkston Area Jaycees will be held at 10 A.M. on Saturday, June 3rd. To be held on the high school tennis courts, it will be conducted by Coach Larry Thibault and his high school tennis team.

Anyone, adults or children interested in tennis is welcome to attend this session which will deal with the fundamentals of the game, etc.

In case of inclement weather the clinic will be conducted at 2 p.m. on Sunday.

Fire causes basement damage

There was another house fire in Clarkston last Thursday! This fire was believed to have started in a basement bedroom. The house is at 6538 Wealthy--the Delwin Uban home.

The fire department was summoned at 4:22 P.M. Four trucks answered the call. All furniture in the basement was destroyed by the resulting smoke and water. There was considerable smoke damage to the upstairs portion. Firemen estimated the total damage to be about $3,000.

Athletic boosters name "Mother of the Year"

A special meeting of the Clarkston Athletic Boosters Club was held May 22 for the election of officers for the coming year. Richard Nicoson elected as president, Elwood Johnson, vicepresident; Mrs. Ethel Powell, secretary; and Paul Hinkley, treasurer.

Mrs. Ethel Powell was cited as "Mother of the Year" for her participation as chairman of the social get togethers for the football and basketball teams during the year and as an avid rooter.

Plans are being made concerning a summer dance benefiting the Athletic Boosters Clubs scholarship fund.

The June meeting has been cancelled as Commencement falls on the regular meeting night.

Financial study to cost township $15,400

An agreement between the Independence Township Library Board and Springfield Township is being worked out. Under this plan, Independence would furnish library service to approximately half of Springfield Township. Penal fines then, that normally would go to Springfield would be paid to Independence. These fines are forwarded from the State of Michigan. The Township board approved of this procedure at their May 23rd meeting.

They also gave approval to the Cranberry Lake Improvement Association who wish to have a 4th of July fireworks display.

A request was made by the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club for a special beer and wine license to be used on the 24 and 25th of June. Approval of this was given.

The Board also instructed the Planning Commission to proceed in accordance with state zoning laws to hold a public hearing. This hearing will be for the purpose of adopting a new and complete Zoning Ordinance for the township.

Representatives of Stratton Associates, Financial Planning Consultants were present at the meeting and presented the board with a plan whereby they would provide services in a 3 step program for the township. This would cost $15,400. In a resolution passed at the meeting it authorized Stratton Associates to render these services at that cost.

The first part of the program would entail economic base studies, long range capital improvement programs and the development of a comprehensive financial plan. The net cost of this phase would be $4500.

Part two would be for the development and preparation of a water and sewer system operating ordinance, encompassing suggested rates, charges and flow of funds. The cost for this part would be $2500.

In the third phase, Stratton would present a detailed discussion as to the possible methods of financing water and sewer improvements, including consultation in the establishment of special assessment districts. They would prepare and propose the time and amount to be bonded, along with suggested features to be included in bond resolutions and notices of sale. They would also submit schedules indicating the estimated revenue and operating expenses of the proposed projects. For this part of the study, the cost is $8,400.

In other recent action by the board a special assessment street lighting project was approved. It is for the south portion of Clarkston Estates #2. The cost of 12 lights will be divided by 89 property owners. They also approved the installation of a street light at the corner of Stickney and Sashabaw Roads.

Supervisor Duane Hursfall had recommended that Harold Bauer and Floyd Vincent be reappointed to serve a 3 year term on the Planning Commission. The board approved this action.

The arrival of fire trucks at the Delwin Uban home last week attracts neighbors and their children.

Mrs. Marsh's third grade class at the Bailey Lake School planted an evergreen tree on May 17, 1967. The tree was a tribute in loving memory of a classmate, Barbara Karbownik, who passed away January 26, 1967. The tree was presented by Mr. and Mrs. T. Karbownik.

Jim's Jottings

I tell you there's nothing like a vacation with the boys to put new life in the old body. Like I got home Monday evening and Tuesday I had a cold and sore throat. I should of stayed in the dear north country.

What ever the suffering, it wasn't much, it is worth it. Play a few cards, ridicule and chastise your companions, eat, toast the weather (etc.), shout, sleep, and occasionally wet a line in Millecoquins Lake.

Women probably don't understand how this can be relaxing and enjoyable . . . this shaving every other day or so, eating fried foods for every meal, dropping on the inner spring when we felt like it, and doing nothing in a hurry.

But, in just a couple days of being away from the telephone and pressures of deadlines the body gives way to deep sleep and intense relaxation. It's wonderful, and short.

Up too early a few Sundays ago, I switched on the radio and settled down to a cup of coffee. I was alert only enough to hear someone say on the "light one little candle" program that teachers have lost the respect of people.

I wish I'd heard what preceded this statement.

I'd like to know why teachers were singled out, and who singled them out. Also, I'd like to express to him my opinion of people who give a blanket, 100 percent inclusion of any group, or individual, or happening to anything.

In the first place teachers, 100 percent, have not lost respect of people. I assume this person meant generally this group doesn't have the respect it did 100 years ago. I remember the radio saying back then pioneers bowed, tipped their hat, and curtsied to the school marm.

To that extent maybe some respect has been lost. But, certainly no more respect has been lost to teachers than to editors, corporation presidents, elected officials, the United Nations, fisherman, hobos, merchants, ministers, doctors, lawyers, and every other profession or group I can think of.

It's just that attitudes have changed, and there are more of these groups. More and more of us have the feeling we're just as good as the next guy regardless of the position he holds. He got where he is by luck or inheritances. If I'd had the chance he had I'd be making $100,000 a year or be president, or something.

As I said, this is a growing attitude. Personally, I don't subscribe to it. So many people have told me I don't know what I'm doing I believe them.

We occasionally, in fact, frequently, disagree with people in various walks of life from the Supreme Court to other editors, but we still hold respect for individuals and groups, generally.

Wins prize for television script

John Slade, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Slade of Clarkston has won a $1000 prize in a national television script contest sponsored by the World Law Fund. The script is based on the need for a system of enforceable world law to prevent war.

John, who is a freshman at the University of Michigan entitled his play, "Ashes, Ashes, We All Fall Down". It was selected from among entries from 20 universities by a panel of judges who included Steve Allen, Richard Hanser, Roy Juggins, Merle Miller, Reginald Rose, Dore Schary, Robert Lewis Shayon, and Stanley Young.

The script, a dramatic fantasy, relates the trial of a man for the murder of civilization and emphasizes the responsibility of the individual in affecting the choice between war and peace.

Slade a CHS graduate in 1966 has previously won a number of prizes in public speaking and recently received an Avery Hopwood award of $500 for playwriting. He has also participated in the production of radio and television programs and of films and has appeared in several plays presented by the University Players, all under the auspices of the Department of Speech at Michigan.

Bill Hahn of Kessler-Hahn presents the keys to a Plymouth car used in the Trouble Shooting Contest at Flint Junior College recently in which 2 Clarkston High School students participated. Bill Dennis on the left, faculty advisor for the students and Principal Milford Mason accept the use of the car for the contest.

Participate in contest

Bill Bailey and Jan North, two Clarkston High School students participated recently in the Trouble Shooting Contest at Flint Junior College. Sponsored by Chrysler-Plymouth, it was open to teams of students in Auto Mechanics courses. There were 15 teams who took part, all from the central Michigan area, stated Bill Dennis, local faculty advisor.

The cars were set up with 14 faults--the boys were given two hours in which to locate the trouble and to get the cars running properly. Bill and Jan were able to locate 11 of the 14, but were topped by the teams from Port Huron Northern and Pontiac Northern.

The event was held on May 20 in Flint.

WILL UNDERGO COMBAT TRAINING

Marine Private Lynn H. Davis Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn H. Davis Sr. of 4850 Hillcrest Drive, Waterford, was graduated from eight weeks of recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot here.

He will now undergo about three weeks of individual combat training and then, after leave at home, will report to his first Marine Corps assignment.

The intensified Marine recruit training emphasizes rigid physical conditioning and survival techniques, both at sea and ashore, to develop self-confidence and endurance. Marksmanship with the M-14 rifle and 45-calibre pistol are equally stressed and close order drill instills the traditions of Marine Corps teamwork. A thorough study of basic military subjects; hygiene; first aid and sanitation; and the customs, courtesies, history and mission of the Marine Corps serve to polish the new Marine's recruit education and prepare him to join Marine combat forces.

Mike Dougherty had a bye and won three matches before losing in the finals. Mike will represent Clarkston at East Lansing next Friday. Mark Erickson won 4 matches before losing in the semi's. Kirk Beattie won one match in singles.

In Doubles competition Kim Beattie and Tom Bullard won two matches and Jack Sansom, Brian Gallipo, Al Ventimeglia and Dave Rowden teams each won one match.

There were ten teams in the tournament, with Flint Central in 2nd place with 8

-THE TEMPLE WITHIN-

Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you? I Cor. 3:16.

The pearl of great price, the pearl of eternity, is the temple of God within us, that consecrated place where alone we can worship the Father in spirit and in truth. Once we are well grounded in the inward worship we shall have learned to live unto God above time and place. From thence every day will be a Sabbath and wherever we go we shall have an altar ready within us. When the great God has all that He should have of our hearts, when we are wholly obedient to His spirit, to will only in His will, to be wise only in His wisdom, then it is that all of our actions shall be as a song of praise, and the common things of life shall conform wholly to His gracious purpose.

Eternal God, our Father: Refresh our spirits, we beseech Thee. Move us ever to seek and enable us to find the pearl of eternity, the temple of God that is within us. AMEN.

PEEKIN' into the PAST

25 YEARS AGO IN THE CLARKSTON NEWS

Frank King McIntyre of Clarkston will receive his BA degree from MSC at the annual commencement. 1000 Seniors will be receiving degrees.

The Red Cross group in Clarkston has just received wool for knitting army air corps and marine corps sweaters. Mrs. David Newlands is in charge.

Last Saturday morning a splendid crowd attended the Memorial Service held in Lakeview Cemetery. The Clarkston School Band marched proudly ahead of the members of the American Legion the Girl and Boy Scouts. Dr. Eugene Allen gave an appropriate talk after A.E. Butters had capably given Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. Lee M. Clark had read a list of the soldier dead and Rev. Charles Shock had offered a short prayer.

Our congratulations to all those responsible for making all of the down town windows so attractive in preparation for the Antique Show. We don't wonder people like to come here to the show when they are treated to a display such as this down town as well as at the show.

Fifty southern Oakland County school food service people, including representatives from Clarkston attended a Red Cross disaster workshop at North Farmington High School last Thursday. Purpose of the meeting was to determine the role of the school personnel in feeding victims in time of disaster.

We understand that plans are already afoot for the July 4th celebration in the Village. Watch next week's issue of the paper for more details.

Also coming next week will be the annual Graduation Edition. Watch for special congratulatory ads and other items pertinent to commencement activities.

This is one of the weeks that we could go along with only weekend holidays. Putting the paper together on Monday, so we can get it in the mail on Wednesday is no picnic! So short columns, short everything this week!

College Isn't for Everybody

by Jim Fitzgerald

I have a daughter graduating from high school this June which naturally reminds me that I hate commencement speeches.

Always there is some college professor extolling the virtues of education. By education, they mean 4 years at MSU or Wayne University or some other giant complex of splendid buildings filled mostly with kids who are more impressed by the modern plumbing than by the subjects taught.

I have nothing against university professors and I don't blame them for advertising. But just once I'd like to hear a commencement address from a garage owner who can't hire a decent mechanic; or from an electrician who wants to retire but can't find anyone to take his place.

It is way past time for this goofy nation to take the stigma off the blue collar. Ma and Pa must stop pushing Junior into a white collar job just so the neighbors will be impressed by "My son, the accountant."

Junior may well be fingering an adding machine for GM in a huge building full of white-shirted robots, each one wondering how to pay his milk bill. His parents are certain Junior is more of a success than dirty Hank, the boy next door who installs auto transmissions and comes home every night with grease on his pants. After all, Junior went to college. Poor Hank didn't.

But Hank smiles more than Junior, and he just bought a cabin cruiser, and he drives a new car every year. Dumb Hank must be working a lot of overtime, Junior's parents tell him.

But by this time, Junior probably knows the truth: He wasted 4 years at MSU taking varied subjects loosely grouped in a nebulous classification titled "Business Administration." Now he's choking in his white collar. He'd much rather be getting his hands dirty beside Hank and he'd probably be making a lot more money with which to buy sweet-smelling soap.

DURING MY YEARS at MSU, the biggest lesson I learned was that the place was jammed with kids who shouldn't have been there. Many of them flunked out but most barely hung on by taking snap courses and cheating and by retaining sufficient facts just long enough to pass a stupid true-or-false test.

They had a lot of laughs. The girls hunted husbands and the boys hunted girls. They didn't learn enough to stick in your eye. Dear Old Dad and the taxpayers paid the bills.

This was 17 years ago. I am certain the situation is even worse today, what with more and more parents pushing Junior to "make something of himself." A kid who doesn't go to college today is pitied. He's also drafted. His college friends call him "grease." Junior can even lose status by not attending the "right" college.

I don't blame Junior for all this foolishness. He didn't attach the halo to the white collar. And I have more compassion than scorn for his parents who can't see beyond their neighbor's bank account. Mostly I blame the educators who give Junior and his parents little choice.

How does a man learn to be a plumber? I can tell you quicker how to become a doctor. And I can get a doctor to my house quicker than I can get a plumber. This is incredible. I need a carpenter to put up my screen porch and I don't know where to look.

Industry and the unions should push our educators into giving proper emphasis to the teaching of vocational skills. Hank should be able to learn brick laying as easily as Junior can enroll at MSU. And you should teach your kids to have equal respect for the druggist and the garbage man. Prescriptions aren't going to prevent pollution.

Lastly, we need commencement speakers who will tell high school seniors that many of them shouldn't waste time and money going to college simply because it's the thing to do. In many cases, it is the dumb thing to do, no matter how much money Dad has got.

It is marvelous that our universities can produce the brains that invent the hardware to move us all to the moon. Such remarkable achievements require wheels within wheels within wheels.

But someone has to keep those wheels rolling or we'll never make it to the launching pad.

Another Day

Esidore Jossman- Clarkston's first bank owner

There were very few men who settled in this area who had a less auspicious beginning than Esidore Jossman, and there were very few who enjoyed greater success or were held in higher esteem.

Born in Berlin, Germany in 1838, Esidore saw early in life that no amount of hard work could guarantee him a secure future here in his native country. Faced with the prospect of compulsory army service, he decided at the age of 15 to leave Germany and go to the new world. Possessing no trade and only enough money to pay his passage, it must have been a wrench for this young Jewish boy to leave his family. His luggage consisted mainly of his courage and confidence in his ability to succeed.

He landed in New York and his first step toward survival in the new world was to find a job. And what a job! It was peeling slippery elm bark to be used for the medicinal purposes of those times--in teas and poultices. The wages were meager and the work messy. Esidore knew he didn't cross the ocean to spend his life at this type of work.

Through what must have been strict self denial, he soon accumulated five dollars. With this Esidore bought a peddler's pack of needles, emery bags, thread--small trifles dear to the heart of a housewife. For the next two years he traveled over the state of New York, visiting the scattered hamlet and farms. His bed was quite often the ground when he wasn't able to reach a farm by nightfall. But peddlars were welcome visitors, bringing with them the news and events of the town previously visited.

More often than not the talk of the evening eventually turned to the west where land was plentiful and opportunities great. Esidore listened, and along with hundreds of other young men, caught the fever. He replenished his peddler's pack and about two years after his arrival in New York, came to Michigan. It may very well be that he, as many another penniless youngster, didn't ride the Erie Canal to Buffalo but walked along the tow trails, using the path of the canal as a guide.

Esidore found the housewives in Michigan just as eager to buy his wares as those in New York and before long he made an important acquisition--a horse and buggy. By 1859 he had accumulated enough money to establish a tailoring business in Holly. The next year he was married to Sarah Lehman, a young girl of his faith, an emigrant from Wurtemberg, Germany. Following a couple of years in Holly, Esidore bought a general store in Goodrichville.

It was while he was here that he heard rumors that a man in the village of Clarkston was looking for a buyer for his store. Appraising the opportunities of the two towns, he and his growing family moved to Clarkston in 1864, buying the general store and producing business of Captain John Knox. Farmers lived with a constant only well-liked but trusted and respected. Never once did he bring a suit to court or foreclose a mortgage, and in his entire career only lost $300 to bad debts. He had several costly fires on some of his property but by then was financially secure enough to write off the losses.

Of the ten children born to them Esidore and Sarah raised five sons and two daughters to maturity--Joseph, Samuel, Henry, Ralph and Albert, and Carrie and Martha. Deprived of an extensive education themselves, the Jossman's saw to it that their children were well-schooled. The girls both became shortage of cash and most of Esidore's transactions were by barter. He took anything the farmer's land produced or any household item the farmer and his wife didn't need in exchange for items in his store.

On Saturdays business was especially booming. Everyone for miles around came to the village to do their trading. Fond parents thought they were, Esidore and Sarah early taught their children the art of selling in their family store. The oldest son Joseph, once remarked that he started helping his father at such a young age that he couldn't remember the first time he clambered up to the counter on an overturned packing box to wait on a customer.

Esidore continued in Clarkston except for one brief year-long business venture in Davisburg. On his return he bought another store and organized the Clarkston Exchange Bank a private institution with J.C. Bird. Esidore ultimately became sole owner. He was not school teachers, much to their parent's delight. Joseph, who later became a merchant in Oxford, married Clara the daughter of the town's beloved Doctor C.G. Robertson.

The Jossman's were strict adherents of their faith and raised their children in this belief. In the memories of some who were friends of the Jossman children in a long ago day, there is the picture of Sarah hair prematurely white, carefully covering the top of her cook stove with a layer of hot coals in one of the purifying laws of her religion.

Loving children, Esidore was well loved by them in return. Seated in the back of his store where his bank had its first beginning, he accepted the pennies of these young people and solemnly entered the transaction in their savings account. He is described as being a rather large man, heavy browed, dark eyed, with a never failing sense of humor.

Albert Jossman Esidore and

Sarah's youngest son, entered the service during the Spanish American War. He had attended the University of Michigan and was an electrical engineer. At the end of the war he enlisted in the regular army and later became a lieutenant. Personable and devoted to his duties, Camp Jossman in the Philippines was named for him, the only camp to be named for a soldier who bore a rank beneath that of captain. Severely wounded in a battle with the Moros he died shortly afterwards. A broken hearted Esidore could not be consoled, and at the age of 64, passed away himself.

At his death he left behind, besides his banking interests, 700 acres of village property and four farms--all from a nucleus of five dollars worth of household trinkets in a peddler's pack.

- who owned the first car in Clarkston?
- the name of the two sisters who owned and continued to run an electric car until shortly after World War II?
- if there are pictures available of the Irish family--including Washington and Fanny?
