

John Bennett has sculpture showing

by Faith Poole

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Bennett of 7958 Dixie Highway, Clarkston were in New York City over the weekend. Purpose of the trip was to view the one-man showing of their son John's sculpture works. The showing was held in the Fischbach Gallery on 57th Street in Manhattan.

Exhibitions of his sculpture are common for John who is a Clarkston High graduate. Last year when the new $800,000 wing of the Flint Institute of Arts opened, he had a piece of work on exhibition there. After the Flint showing the piece was displayed at the Whitney Museum in New York City. The Flint showing was by invitation only.

Mr. Bennett's studio and home are located at 300 Canal Street in New York. His work is presently handled by the Fischbach Gallery and the Brusberg Gallery in Hanover, Germany. He has several pieces in art museums and in private collections in Germany. One, entitled "Cellibary" has been exhibited at the New York Museum of Modern Art. Another, "Little Ear Muff" was shown at an invitational display in the Westmoreland County museum near Pittsburgh.

For five years John studied in Hamburg, Germany at the College of Fine Arts. While there he met and married his wife, the former Gabriele Fischer of Hamburg.

such as the Detroit newspaper strike, a better way of settling disputes must be forthcoming. Compulsory arbitration, though I don't favor it, could be used if both sides would accept it and honor the decision of the arbitrator. Generally, one side or the other isn't happy with such a decision.

I favor the idea of having a judge and jury rule on justness of contracts. Various Bar Associations have encouraged using the court system as a means of settling disputes. This method is being considered for resolving differences in public employee contracts so a strike won't disrupt services.

The court system has been in use longer than any other peaceful means of settling disputes and would be the most adaptable. It would certainly be much better than a battle by ordeal where if two sides can't agree they fight it out on a battlefield.

There is some emphasis being put to the idea of settling international disputes through the court system. How much better it would be for a judge and jury to render a decision than having young lives sacrificed.

Practically all strikes are eventually settled now, some in the courts. The closedown isn't forever.

So, let's quit having crises after crises, giving no consideration to the consuming public. Management and union are losing the battle to favorable public opinion.

Last day to register, Jan. 19

The last day to register for the Village Primary Election is January 19. Registrations are being taken at the home of the Clerk, Artemus Pappas at 55 W. Washington Street.

The Primary Election is scheduled for February 19. Petitions were filed by the deadline last week for the following offices: President: Frank Russell and David Leak Trustees: Harry Fahrner, Donald Cooper, E. Nelson Kimball and Jack Hagen.

Petitions were also filed for Art Pappas as Clerk, Mary Ann Pappas for Treasurer and Ralph Thayer for assessor.

Pappas will accept registrations on any day except Sunday and a legal holiday. On the last day, January 19, he will accept them from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m.

Objects to police parking, adopt roads specifications

Specifications for roads in the village of Clarkston took much of Monday night's council meeting time. However, prior to this item Bud Reichert voiced objections to having police headquarters next to his house on Clarkston Road.

He said there is a 20 foot easement serving his house and the neighbors and it is frequently blocked by cars at Police Chief Phillip's house. Councilman Keith Hallman said maintaining police headquarters at the Chief's house was less expensive and probably more serviceable than having it in the Village Hall. And, some of the equipment used by the police came at no expense to the village.

He agreed, along with other councilmen that something should be done to keep the driveway clear. Councilman Fahrner who is a council appointee to work with the police, was instructed to check with the police to get the matter straightened out.

President Bob Wertman also asked Reichert to take the matter to the Board of Appeals for a ruling.

Specifications for roads in the village were adopted but with reservations. They are the same as those used by the Oakland County Road Commission. However, in adopting them council members inserted that they not be effective until such time as annexation took place.

Discussion among council members regarding proposed annexation took place until after midnight.

Approve vocational center, offer library site, study safety

The Clarkston Board of Education agreed Monday night to operate a vocational center in the district. The center is one of four proposed for Oakland county. Two are scheduled for construction in 1968 and two in 1969. The Clarkston center is one of the latter.

The Vocational centers will be established from the millage voted last year in an election conducted by the Oakland County Intermediate school board.

The resolution adopted by the local Board of Education states that the district agrees to operate the training school with the contingency that federal funds become available.

It is expected to accommodate about 405 students at the senior high level. Some four school districts in the county would use this facility. It will be designed by the local district, which will also do the teacher recruiting.

Superintendent Dr. Les Greene said he couldn't be specific about the program. "It will probably be on a trial and error basis at first," he said. Neither has it been established what type of student will attend the technical school.

There are some in the county who favor the school being more or less selective, making it a privilege for students to attend. Others would like to see the new school accept students of all levels including probably dropouts.

Yet to be established also is the class scheduling. Similar schools elsewhere operate on half days with students taking basic high school subjects one half and vocational training the other half day. Others have students attending each school two weeks of each month.

WILL OFFER LIBRARY SITE

Two and one half acres of school property on Clarkston Road will be offered to the Independence Township Library Board for a site for the new library.

The Board of Education agreed Monday night to offer to sell the property following an independent appraisal.

A lay-out of the library has been studied by school architect Richard Prince and it was agreed the character of the building would blend with adopted architecture of Clarkston schools.

The site has 300 ft. frontage on Clarkston Road. Parking is provided in front of and alongside the 4,000 square foot library and room is available in back for future expansion.

Dr. Greene said it wouldn't be possible for the school board to donate the property to the library since some school tax dollars used to purchase the property came from residents outside the township.

He also pointed out that it wasn't their intention to make a profit from selling the parcel.

SAFETY STUDY

A State Policeman, who lives in the Clarkston area has volunteered to spend a couple of days a week checking pedestrian and vehicular traffic on Waldon Road near the schools.

A 12 member safety study committee has been studying various ways to improve safety conditions in this elementary, junior high and senior high area. They ruled out guards, lights, and law officers for different reasons, and suggested concentrating on education of the students and parents, plus volunteer state policemen.

George Barrie, administrative assistant on the committee, said they found junior high students to be the biggest pedestrian violators, and parent parking along Waldon adding to the problem.

The state policeman will not have regular hours. He will ticket persons who park illegally and stop speeders. He will also talk to students who do not walk properly on the high way, get their names and report them to the parents.

Board member Richard Funk asked Assistant Superintendent Floyd Vincent if conditions had improved in the High School parking lot since village police had been patrolling. Vincent said it had been a big help on game nights, "There isn't as much fooling around, the lot is emptying faster," he said.

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

There are certain days when reporters experience the complaints mentioned recently by Bill Hill of the Everett, Washington, Herald. They're called the days of whine and neurosis.

"If I attend a meeting, I'm being nosy. If I don't, I'm not interested. If I write an in-depth story, it's too long. If I condense one, it's incomplete. If I take sides on an issue, I'm prejudice. If I don't, I'm a coward.

"If my suit is clean and pressed, I think I'm a big shot. If it isn't, I look like a movie-land newspaperman. If I've been on the job for a short time, I lack experience. If I've been around awhile, it's time for a change.

"If I don't stop and talk (deadlines, you know) I'm too big for my britches. If I do, that's all I've got to do anyway. If I ask for advice, I'm incompetent. If I don't, I'm a know-it-all. If I make a mistake, I hear about it for weeks. If I don't, I never hear about it.

"If I accept a social drink, I'm an alcoholic. If I don't, I'm antisocial. If I express an opinion, I want to run the show. If I don't, where did I go to school? If I misspell your name, you never forget it. If I don't, you didn't read the story."

I missed printing one prediction in our last issue of 1967. That concerned the Detroit Newspaper strike. It will end February 1, 1968. Remember, that date is the strike ends. If it doesn't, don't call me, I'll call you.

About the newspaper strike and strikes in general. It seems the consideration of the public is too lacking. Company and union representatives get wound up in their differences giving no thought to the welfare of the public.

Only when a strike threatens the nation, such as in rails, steel, or some such area, does the public get consideration. Because so many strikes have a direct result on the people,

Food cast on the waters brought this floating treasure to the Frank Russell home on North Main.

Prayer vigil scheduled

On Thursday, January 18, at the beginning of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, the Clergy-Laymen's Association of Independence Township will sponsor a twelve-hour prayer vigil.

To be held at Church of the Resurrection - Episcopal, the Vigil will run from 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m., with each church participating, responsible for two hours of prayer during the day. Members of all area churches, as well as people from the general community, are invited to go into the Episcopal church at any time of the day to pray.

Materials will be available, suggesting appropriate themes, such as world peace, the brotherhood of man, the spiritual unity of the churches, the oneness of mankind, the mission of the Church, and so forth. Sample prayer will be available as well, and of course free prayers are also welcome.

At 7:30 p.m. that night, a half-hour Prayer Service will be held, at which time anyone who wishes may join together with persons from other denominations and publicly witness to their faith through prayer.

Those churches and pastors participating are: Church of the Resurrection - Episcopal, the Rev. Alexander Stewart; Calvary Lutheran Church, the Rev. Arlon Stubbe; Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Mark Caldwell; St. Daniel's Roman Catholic Church, Father Larry Kaiser; Drayton Heights Free Methodist Church, the Rev. Frank Cozadd.

The people of Clarkston and the area are invited to make use of the opportunity for prayer and worship this coming Thursday, January 18.

The barbershopping voices of Homer Richmond, Dick Leaf and Rawley Hallman will join forces with other Pontiac Chapter members on January 20 in the anniversary show of the Barber-shop singers.

"Silver Show Boat" to feature Barber shop singers

Pontiac Northern High School Auditorium will be the scene on January 20 of the 25th annual parade of quartets. Sponsored by the Pontiac Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, the show will be entitled "The Silver Show Boat."

Headlining the show will be the "Four Statesmen," the 1967 International Champions. Recently returned from entertaining troops in South Vietnam will be the "Midnight Oilers" from Chicago. The show will also introduce Pontiac's new "Merry Motor Men" as well as the "Harmony Knights" and the "Resonaires."

A special guest attraction will be Buddy Sanders and the Driftwood Band. Much of the proceeds from the show will go to The Institute of Logopedics in Wichita. This service project assists persons, mostly children in the study and correction of speech defects. Such afflictions as cerebral palsy, aphasia, stuttering, deafness, dysphonia, and other handicaps which inhibit normal speech, are affecting the lives of more than 8 million persons in North America.

The Barbershoppers say that "while enjoying our God given talent of singing, we can assist those who cannot even speak." Tickets for the show are available locally at the Professional Center Pharmacy on M-15.

Senior High skiers found their smiles frozen last Sunday after they vacated the warm busses which had just returned them from their weekend trip to Boyne Highlands. Forty students made the skiing trip, which was chaperoned by six of the teachers from the school.

WHO SCORED? - There's never any doubt when Clarkston scores. The cheerleaders go wild. They did lots of cheering Friday as the Wolves downed Holly 60-46.

SPORTS

Mel Vaara

Clarkston Bombs Holly

Clarkston played their 2nd good game in a row and walked away from Holly 60-46. Clarkston gave Northville a tussle before the holiday and lost by only 6. Coach McGrath will be looking for another fine performance when they travel to Milford this Friday.

It was evident that McGrath put his chargers through a rather rigorous practice schedule since the Northville game, because the team played with a minimum of errors. Previously the squad had to play over 30 turnovers a game, they cut by 50%.

Last year Coach McGrath had a great running ball club, but the Wolves have had trouble with the fast break so it called for a change of strategy. Coach McGrath decided to slow the game down and this should cut down the turnovers. Even though they slowed the tempo of the game, they still scored their 2nd highest output of the season. Clarkston scored 64 in a losing contest to C'ville.

This was the last time that we will be playing Holly on the Clarkston floor. Holly will be playing in a new league and Waterford Kettering will be taking Holly's place in the W.O. League. It's too bad that they are leaving the league, as Clarkston and Holly have been very good rivals. I hope Dom Mauti can schedule Holly for some non-league games. It would be interesting to find out how Clarkston and Holly have fared throughout the many years of competition.

This last Holly contest started rather slowly, with both teams looking for the better shot. Clarkston outscored Holly 11-9, Mark Erickson had six of the points.

Things started to pick-up in the 2nd quarter, as both teams opened their offensive attack. Eric Hood took 5 shots and made 4 of them for 8 big points. Eric always seems to do well against Holly. When he was a freshman playing for the J.V. he hit for 42 pts. in two ball games.

The Wolves missed 5 free-throws in this quarter, but Holly could only 5 out of 12 attempts in the 1st half. One isn't going to win many games hitting only 42%.

The 3rd quarter was the most productive for both teams, Clarkston netted 22 pts. and Holly 19. At the 3rd quarter break the Wolves led 49-38.

Chuck Granger provided the big scoring punch, as he too dumped in 4 buckets (ala Hood). He made one of them on a fine tip-in and the other three were jumpers from the side, which were set-up by screens from Hood and Erickson.

The fourth quarter was more of the same as the Wolves increased their lead to 14 pts. Holly's fine freshman, L.M. Thomas, scored 5 pts. in this quarter, but the Wolves bottled him up for the first three quarters and held him to a total of 8 pts.

Mark Erickson continued his fine outside shooting and led both teams with 19 pts. Mark leads the team in scoring with 86 pts., averaging 14 per game.

As a team Clarkston has scored 342 pts. and the opposition has scored 348.

J.V. WINS #2

Coach Hanson's fired up boys whipped Holly. This was one of their finer games of the year. They ran better, took better shots and rebounded with authority. Coach Hanson had some added rebounding power in freshman, Don Brown, and his addition will help the cause.

Steve Warman and Bruce Hardy led the team in scoring, but they had a lot of scoring help from Tom Grace, Mark Walters, Rob Chapman, Steve Kratt and Scott Robbins.

This win equalled the Varsity record of 2-4.

Will live in East Lansing

following Dec. 30 wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Howey are making their home in East Lansing where they both are students at Michigan State University. They were married on December 30 at First Methodist Church in Clarkston.

The bride is the former Jacquelyn Leonard, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.J. Leonard of Waldon Road and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R.C. Howey of Snowapple Drive.

The Rev. Frank Cozadd officiated at the 2 P.M. ceremony. Carnations and holly decorated the sanctuary for the marriage vows.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father was attired in a gown of white antique satin. Antique braid and seed pearls were used as trimming on the dress which was styled A line. A Dior bow secured her illusion veil which was elbow length and sequin encrusted.

Full length red velvet gowns made in the A line style were worn by the Maid of Honor, Mari Dengate of Clarkston and the bridesmaids, Pat Schroeder of Wyandotte and Lynn Howey of Clarkston. Their costumes were completed with red velvet pill box hats.

Serving as best man was Len Howey and ushers were Mike Crowley of Clarkston and Wes Patterson of Portales, New Mexico.

last few days of December. This, coupled with mountain driving, put an extension on their holiday. While there they spent Christmas Day with the senior Robert Baynes in Washington, Pennsylvania, going on to Sheffield afterwards for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Omar Barney, parents of Mrs. Baynes.

The Baynes children were among those that rode to school the other day, then turned right around in the same busses and came home. Seems some water pipes in the Andersonville School burst due to the extreme cold. Mark Baynes used the resulting free day to do a little indoor football practice and the ball bounced a sugarbowl off the table, giving Linda a cut on her leg that required five stitches to close. No report that it has slowed her down to any great extent, but we wish her a quick recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wilson of 6701 Pear Street saw son Clayton off to the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor on January 2. This starts the second semester, those students having polished off all finals for the first semester before the Christmas holidays. Clay was a 1967 graduate of Clarkston High.

George and Pat Durci, who only recently moved to their home at 4825 Clarkston-Orion Road, had dinner January 3 with Pat's parents, the Bud Verhey's of 6607 Plum Drive. When they ar-

Miss Joyce Louise Pine became the bride of David Alan Myers in a ceremony performed at First Methodist Church in Clarkston on Saturday, December 30. Joyce is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Pine of Clarkston Road and David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Myers of Mary Sue.

The 7 P.M. double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frank Cozadd in a candlelight setting in the presence of 100 guests.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of lace over satin, floor length fashioned empire style. Her satin train was attached to a satin bow at the waist in back. A pearl and lace headpiece secured her elbow length veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of red roses interspersed with white carnations.

Maid of Honor was Miss Anne Barkley of New Waterford Ohio. She was attired in a floor length linen gown in gold with crocheted lace inserts on the sides and a matching headpiece. Bridesmaids were Misses Bonnie Marquette, Drayton Plains, Sandy Walts and Kathy MacGregor, both of Clarkston. They wore green, blue, and pink gowns respectively fashioned the same as the Honor Maid's.

Best man was Steven Henning and serving as ushers were Vernon Myers, James Adkins, and Phillip Myers, the groom's brother.

A reception followed in the church parlor after which the couple left for a honeymoon in West Virginia. Upon their return they will reside in the Independence Square apartments in Waterford.

Ever hear about all these countries where half the population goes to bed hungry every night? Well, that's what is happening in Clarkston. Only its the wife half (or maybe the wide half) of the population that is going hungry. Seems everyone is on a diet after all that holiday feasting. It was a pretty good holiday season and we are still getting reports of all the fun and frolic.

New Year's Eve the Paul Woodworth's of 6314 Church Street along with grandson Craig Mitchell drove to Port Huron where they were hosted at the supper club of the Motor Inn by an old family friend,

Mr. Jerry Keesler who is also the manager of the Inn. The evening's dinner was a fabulous treat complete with all trimmings plus music by a trio. While in Port Huron, the Woodworth's visited her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Krenke.

The Robert Baynes of 6939 Tappan Drive with children Mark and Linda weren't able to head home from their holiday vacation until Tuesday, January 2, the day on which they had intended to be safely back in Clarkston. Driving to Pennsylvania to spend Christmas, they encountered fourteen inches of snow that fell during the ing the past few months at the South Pole on a naval expedition. A ham operator in Pontiac, Mr. Ralph Woodside, had been contacted by Mrs. Curtis to try to get in touch with her husband. He was unable to do this at the time, but another operator in the Buffalo, New York area, Mr. Don Keene, heard the attempt and offered to help. Thursday before Christmas, he made contact with the operator at Lt. Curtis' base and telephoned Nancy. By putting a phone patch on his radio, Nancy and her husband were able to talk. Needless to say this was a thrilling experience. Nancy is presently making her home with her parents, the Grady Steele's of 6721 Pear Street.

New Year's Eve the Frank Durso's of 6676 Almond Lane held open house for a host of friends and relatives that included son Dale and daughters, Debbie Kay and Michelle as well as daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brown from Ann Arbor. Also present for the evening celebration were Jack and Helen Hooper of Andersonville and son Michael. New Year's Day found the Durso's in Andersonville for dinner with the Hooper's.

Saturday night, December 6, Ruth and Paul Woodworth of 6314 Church Street attended the annual open house in Mount Clemens of the Richard Marshall's of Huntington Drive. They have a delightful custom in the neighborhood. For two weeks before Christmas and two weeks after New Years, six couples in that area take turns having open house for friends, relatives and neighbors. A wonderful way of stretching out the holidays.

Eleven little girls trotted over to 6815 Almond Lane last Saturday January 7 to help Ann Fairse celebrate her birthday. Ann, daughter of the C.W. Fairse's, was five years old. She welcomed friends Kim and Lori Cheswick, Kimmie and Sheila Kline, Cathy Dewey, Donna and Diane Nicholson, Karrie Haddrill, Julie Drobek, Gayle and Cheryl Bland into a room decorated with a multitude of colored balloons. With ten year old sister Nancy giving an assisting hand, the girls played games. Ice cream and birthday cake topped off the afternoon.

Dale Humbert, son of the Keith Humbert's of 6440 Snowapple Drive, returned to Ferris Institute at Big Rapids Wednesday. He missed the birthday celebration for his sister Diane who was fifteen on Saturday January 6. A family dinner for the occasion also included the Malcolm Humbert's of Pontiac, the aunt and uncle of the honoree. Sunday January 7 the Keith Humbert's motored up to Saginaw 'midst the ice and snow for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Harzen Beach of that city.

Davis Jr. of Churchill Road, Auburn Heights. The Melville Kings of Lakeview Drive, Clarkston are the grooms parents.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

On December 26, 1967, some of troop 501 went to Mrs. King's house at 2:00 p.m. on Chickadee Lane for a Christmas party. The girls who attended were Judi Tilley, Lorrie and Delynn Miller, Lorrie, Linda and Patti Olney, Cindy Justice, Cindy Heazlit, Cynthia Perry, Sigred Gruenberg, Kelly Lou Burnette, Katie King, Pam Stalker, Cathy Gussie, Diane Dodd, and Jim Breckinridge.

A committee of girls who were working toward a part of their Sign of the Star badge planned the party. They entertained the other girls by putting on a skit about "The Night Before Christmas." Afterwards they played games and exchanged gifts. The girls ate cake and ice cream and had some punch. They ended the party by singing Christmas carols.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard W. Birehett of Sunnyside Drive, Clarkston are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Ava Louise to Larry Lee Dean. He is the son of Mrs. Eleanor Dean of Cecelia Ann, Clarkston and James Dean of Mason. The bride-to-be will graduate with the 1968 class at Clarkston High School. The mail brought in the 6's a day late

Elizabeth Ronk, Clarkston Postmistress said Tuesday morning that the stamp situation was getting better. At least on Tuesday there were 6 cent stamps for sale. Monday was pretty hectic as clerks counted out stamps that would add up to the required 6 cents for first class postage.

The 1 cent stamps to match with the old 5's soon ran out and from then on it was whatever combination they could come up with.

The Post Office was also relying on the mail to bring in the new stamps, and for some reason that was fouled up too.

Why not controls?

Chances are still very much against it, but there are growing calls for laws to regulate wages and prices. Such controls, it is being argued, are the only sure way to avoid ruinous inflation and economic disaster because of the cost of the war in Vietnam and rising inflation.

Congress is traditionally slow to consider price and wage opposition to such economic controls by so many Americans. President Johnson is no doubt aware of the certain reaction to any such call from the White House.

Thus chances are, slim such controls will be enacted. Nevertheless, if the cost of the Vietnam war continues to rise and the pace of inflation continues to pick up, and federal expenditures continue at their present pace with new tax revenues, an economic crisis will arise in 1968. The nation then, with a public debt of over 300 billions, will be looking at a record one-year deficit of about 30 additional billions.

This will compound concern in international and domestic financial circles caused by the dwindling U.S. gold reserve—at a time when foreign nations could call for payment of over thirty billions in gold. U.S. reserves are now down to thirteen billions.

One recalls the early days of the Korean War when Bernard Baruch, among others, came to Washington to testify before congressional committees in favor of immediate enactment of price and wage control laws. Baruch warned that slowness in imposing controls would cost the nation untold billions in inflation—just as it had in World War II.

Congress listened and didn't act—fearing voter reaction. And Baruch's prophecy came true. The same script is being played out today in Washington. Many Senators and Congressmen know controls are economically justified—and also that such a vote would cost them their jobs. And thus the ship of state heads into dangerous economic waters.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Color me red, with CRAYOLA

It was the first registered letter I'd ever received and I was naturally excited, gee. Someone had paid 90 cents for a signed guarantee that I had received his message.

Before I was excited, of course, I was worried. I figured it was a dun, probably from that record club whose computer won't believe I resigned in 1952 because I couldn't wash the sugar off their Doris Day records.

But the return address said this letter was from C. W. Montgomery, corporate secretary of Binney & Smith Inc., which is on Madison Avenue in New York City 10017. I didn't owe them any money. This was obviously a really important communication.

"Some big outfit probably wants the international rights to my column," I said to the mailman.

"What column?" he asked.

Boy. It is always comforting to know that our mail is being delivered through rain and snow and sleet by illiterate mailmen.

Anyway, to make a short story long because this is a slow week, it was with trembling fingers that I tore open Mr. Montgomery's 90-cent letter. It was a 2-pager! Eleven paragraphs with one enclosure and the initials CWM:je at the bottom to let the world know that Mr. Montgomery does not type his own letters, je does it for him.

(Leave us pause a moment to ponder upon the anonymous je, a big city secretary, jean eagle? joan east-way? Perhaps Janice, an enclave, a pouty blond who used to be a Playboy bunny until she was fired for refusing to allow a staple in her navel. Does Mrs. Montgomery understand Mr. Montgomery? Is je Jacob English?)

(And how come je has no middle initial? Big shot CWM has one. And how does he rate the capital letters while je is lower case? Who types all the lousy letters without any mistakes, anyway? What kind of discrimination is this? The riot begins at noon in front of Binney & Smith's, girls. Don't forget your signs, upper case.)

By now, you are doubtless going nuts trying to figure what old CWM had to say in his 8 paragraphs. I hope you are ready for this:

Mr. Montgomery said I have not been coloring with crayolas all these years. I have been coloring with Crayola crayons.

CWM reminded me that on Nov. 30, 1967 I wrote a terrible thing. I advised children to draw Christmas pictures with "red crayola."

"CRAYOLA is our trademark," wrote upper case CWM. "Ordinarily, it is preferable if our trademark is completely capitalized, i.e., CRAYOLA. If this is not feasible, we request that in addition to being followed by the applicable generic term, at least the initial letter 'C' of our trademark be capitalized."

How about that? For a guy whose secretary is je, Mr. Montgomery can get pretty stuffy about capital letters.

CWM concluded: "In the absence of hearing from you to the contrary, we shall assume that you are in agreement with our position."

I would not dream of being contrary about CWM's position on CRAYOLA. In fact, I have not been so ashamed since I spelled Cellophane with a dinky c; the same c I have too often used when writing Coke. I mention these other transgressions against non-generic terms so CWM will realize I have nothing personal against CRAYOLA. I have been a complete idiot about many words. I even used to call every refrigerator a frigidaire, may God have mercy. And I was a long time learning that all paperlike tape is not Scotch tape.

I am so dumb, in fact, I think a manufacturer should be pleased that his mousetrap is so popular the average consumer thinks there is no other way to catch mice. He should appreciate his good fortune ($$$$$) and forget the silly 90-cent letters about capital letters.

But what do I know? If I worked for Binney & Smith, I would surely be jf.

But maybe je would understand me. Δ follows: Do you share your shower? How do you enter your home? Where did you live in October 1962? How many babies have you had? Have you been married more than once? Did the first marriage end because of the death of the husband or wife? How much did you earn in 1966? How did you get to work last week?

These sociological and research questions we do not believe are of essence to the government—that was not the original idea behind the taking of a census every 10 years.

To quote McDonald, "To threaten an American citizen with a 60 day jail sentence or $100 fine for refusing to discuss the use or equipment of his bathroom amounts to nothing less than public harassment and invasion of privacy.

Legislation has been introduced to limit the questions to 7 simple ones dealing with population for congressional districting. Why not write to McDonald at his Washington office? I'm sure he'll be interested in your feelings.

I'll bet that Clarkston will be one of the first towns to have their Christmas decorations stashed away for another year. And the job was done in Monday's bitter cold. Nothing is more disheartening than to see Christmas decorations flapping in the wind in late January. The Rotarians deserve the town's thanks for having such an attractive display for the Holiday season.

"When USO is there, we know you care!"

Three million lonely, displaced men and women, serving our country, far from home. Who serves them, wherever they are? USO! The friendly hand, the touch of home, the traveling show... saying "thank you" from all of us, to all of them. Remember, USO gets no government funds; depends on voluntary contributions through your United Fund or Community Chest. Give more for our bigger job this year!

USO is there... only if you care!

When it comes to animals, Calhoon's sympathy knows no bounds. She has been known to rescue the buggiest of critters from the dumpiest of pet stores. What gets me is that she brings the scurvy beasts home, soothes my ire and gets me to find a fondness in my soul for the wretched things.

There was a time when I would thunder at her, "Listen, you! Absolutely no more animals are to be brought on this property! Do you understand?"

"Like a child who has just been caught with her hand jammed deep into the cookie jar, she turns her pretty blue eyes on me, gently nods her head and with almost the inking of a tear about to trickle from the corner of her eye, her mouth quivering, she asks, "No more animals?"

"Good grief, Calhoon, you've got more animals than the proverbial Carter and his pills," softly I say.

She wasn't listening to me, or, she was taking what I said as an explanation meaning that I would accept more animals around the house providing she could prove to me that she could take care of them. She says, always she says, "They are such a joy and they're really no problem. Just look how all of them have nice glossy coats, they're well behaved and they don't cause any mischief. It's only your parakeet that does all the damage around this house."

I don't know how she managed to take the zip out of my sting. As far as the parakeet is concerned, he's no pet of mine. I gave her that bird a couple of years ago as something to make up for not being able to bring an elephant home.

Since, long ago, I have quit telling her that she can't acquire any more pets to eat us out of house and home. She continues to collect them. Big ones, little ones, and some that are always in between something.

Just the other day, she called me on the telephone. I was at work. She said, "Clem, you're going to kill me, but when you see what I got, you'll understand."

"What animal did you buy," I snapped.

She said, "See, I knew you were going to kill me. But, Joan of Arc was burned at the stake and I'm ready for you to kill me."

I could just see her standing, back straightened, chin tucked in and lashed with a giant rusty chain to a post. Quietly I asked, "What kind of an animal is it this time?"

"You wouldn't believe it, not even if I told you," she said.

Without being asked, I joined her in her guessing game. Thinking of the most ridiculous, obnoxious animal, I could imagine, I said, "It's not a monkey, is it?"

"See," she said, "I knew that you were going to kill me. I can hear it in your voice and I'm frightened."

When she says something like that, I soften up and assure her that she can tell me anything.

"No matter what you do and how bad at the time it may seem," I told her, "you can always tell me."

"You're right," she said. There was a spark of brightness in her voice. "I couldn't help but buy this monkey. You would have bought him too if you would have seen the conditions he was living in. You're so understanding. When you get home, you can see him, he's soooooo cute."

Glad! When I got home, sure enough, there was this thing flapping around in a tree. She had really moved a tree into the house. I at least had the pleasure of giving him his name. Thanks to Bill Cosby, he's called, Old Wierd Harold, or something.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE MEMBERS OF THE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH OF CLARKSTON:

Dear Friends: It is a privilege for us to be associated in our community with our highly respected neighbor, the First Methodist Church. Not only it's important spiritual structure, but the physical beauty of its buildings are invaluable to Clarkston.

Those of us whose homes are close to your venerable church school building appreciate this advantage. We are sincerely pleased for you that funds will now be available for your new school building because you have two opportunities to sell the old one.

Of these two prospective buyers, the first is a church whose charity is admired throughout the world. It would be a blessing if you could share the good fortune that you enjoy in the ownership of two properties with your fellow Christians who would rejoice to be allowed to buy the building you have outgrown.

The building will be raised if you sell to the second buyer. Its value is inconsequential to the large amount of money involved by commercial precedence. It will be torn down to accommodate a private investor's contract with the Post Office Department.

You were asked by the Village Councilmen who favor the second buyer, to request of them that your church school property be rezoned and you have complied.

Rezoning your property to commercial use in the heart of a residential area is not allowed. To evade this deterrent the Councilmen have taken it upon themselves to rezone the contiguous homes of innumerable families most of whom do not wish to have their property rezoned.

Your church has set an example for integrity in our community. We feel that we may ask you in good faith to voluntarily, canvass those of your neighbors who will be affected by your change of zoning as they are described in Section 14 of Ordinance 34.

We are confident that our Methodist friends will withdraw their request for rezoning if the results of this canvass reveal an injustice.

May the new year bring closer communication among men of all faiths.

Sincerely yours,
Lysle Basinger

R. Baird Wasp May Stop Dutch Elm Disease. Scientists have found that a little wasp with a long "handle"—Dentrosoter protuberans—will kill larvae of the European bark beetle that carries Dutch elm disease. An entomologist collected the wasp in France. When released in Ohio and Missouri, it hunted out and fed on the bark beetle larvae exclusively. More specimens are being released. By the time you read this I should have much, much in common with Jack Benny. . . AGE. Obviously I don't (or didn't) care who knows how old I am, or I wouldn't be blabbing it all over. Next year will be the silent one, except for the sound of my sobbing. Of course I cried at ten, twenty and thirty too.

What positively scares me the most is the way the kids are treating me this year. . . like I have something they know about and I don't. Or maybe they're just feeling flush from Grandpa's Christmas money, at any rate it's kinda errie. The house has reeked with stay away spots since last Saturday, when the one and only daughter slammed into the house with this large breakable package from Bob's.

She was so mad at "that darn David" for not staying with her when she shot the works, which forced her to lug both gift and groceries home; that she was momentarily in a good mood to shatter my birthday. Apparently all seems held as it has now been wrapped and is sitting in the living room in a larger box (I like big presents) clearly marked Butter. The box is tied with my favorite color of ribbon . . . red . . . which looks like it may have been dropped in some water. With the official day of birth set for Wednesday, I had a heck of a time talking her out of talking me into opening her gift last Sunday, because "there's nothing else to do".

I also happen to accidentally know Dave has splurged and Beano showed me the letter he's writing as a school assignment. It's to his grandparents, thanking them for their money gift, and explaining that he plans to buy his Mom a birthday present with the money. . . if she pays it back to him in time. Talk about a blabbing family. . .

There's only one thing certain, I'm going to have a happy birthday, in spite of it all. I think.

Another Day

By Constance Lektzian

Lee Clark-Pioneer descendant

When young women in the 1880's were expecting an addition to their family, they didn't go to a hospital. They went home to mother - if she lived close enough. Hospitals in those days were at best havens of the homeless poor. So when Lee Clark first saw the light of day in 1881, it was in his grandmother's home on Holcomb Street, the home of Elizabeth Ann Vliet, a Civil War widow.

Lee Clark's family, for whom the village had been named, had been an important part of Clarkston since the early 1830's. Edwin, Lee's father, worked for the Detroit & Milwaukee railroad, as the Brush Street agent, and at one time it seemed more convenient to move to Detroit. No one was completely happy there - they missed the village life and all their friends and relatives. So back to Clarkston they came. Edwin built a house for his family on 52 N. Main Street, a big Victorian house with a backyard that ran down to Parke Lake, a house that still stands today. Even with only two children in the family, the house was filled with activity.

Lee Clark has many lively memories of that house and of his childhood in those Victorian days in the quiet little village. Most of the village dwellers had come from farms and there were a few that still kept cows. After a while this became a nuisance. An enterprising farmer worked up a milk route throughout the village. He ambled through the early morning streets, ringing a bell at each customer's house. Someone would run out with a pail or stone crock to be filled. The farmer, or occasionally his wife, would dip the milk out of the large cans that sat on the floor of the buggy. In the Edwin Clark home, this delivery seemed to come a little early. Sometimes, Lee or his sister Bessie would have to throw their clothes on and go running down Main Street, pail in hand, trying to catch up to the milk wagon. Edwin devised a method for a more automatic delivery. Standing before their house was a large flat rock that was used as a step up when mounting horses or getting into a buggy. Nearby was a large tree with low overhanging branches. Edwin would hook one end of a wire on a branch and the other end to the handle of a large pail. Come morning, the milkman would step up on the rock, pull down the wire and fill the pail. There, uncovered, it would swing gently in the breeze until someone came out and took it to the kitchen. A far cry from the modern pasteurized packaged service of today - but much more colorful.

Nothing could better point out the difference in our way of living than a look at the chores of a small boy in the days before the turn of the century. On the day that the laundry was done up he was a most important personage. Lee, being the only son, was kept busy on the day. There was comfort in the fact that most other boys were up early at the same tasks. They had to bring in extra wood, feed the big cooking stove, fill the reservoir and all the various kettles and boilers with water pumped up from the underground cistern. Lee's next job was to set up the saw horses in the middle of the kitchen and set up a stand on which to put the wash tubs. Scrubbing clothes on a washboard was one of the housewives most backbreaking jobs and she took all the help she could get. Children learned a healthy respect for staying clean.

The people of that yesteryear took their politics even more seriously than today. They became deeply involved in their feelings for their candidates. Milton Clark, Lee's paternal grandfather, was a vigorous Democrat - Elizabeth Vliet a staunch Republican. They both had their share of influence in the family. Not that it ever disturbed the closeness of the family ties. One day Elizabeth brought two large pictures of the leading Republican candidates and prevailed upon her daughter to hang them in the front windows of the Clark home. Shortly afterwards Milton walked by, took one look and then grimly refused to acknowledge this breach of political loyalty, but when he visited his son's home, he simply didn't look in that direction.

Milton was a successful merchant who ran his store for almost half a century. Located on the corner of Washington and Main next to the present location of the Clarkston News, it was the meeting place of the 'hot stove league' and there was probably more local issues settled there than in the township offices.

For years the Urch & Smith Drug & Supply store next door to Milton Clark's general store, had the town's only telephone. During the year Cleveland was returned to office for his second term, political feelings ran high. On election night, a group of Democrats gathered in the large meeting room above Milton's store. Every half hour Milton would dash down stairs and out to the phone and call Detroit to get the latest returns, then run back with the news. Long about midnight the calls were getting closer together, and in one last dash up the stairs to give the news that Cleveland appeared to be winning, Milton had a sudden heart attack and fell dead in the arms of one of his closest friends, Dr. Clark Sutherland.

Lee Clark can remember clearly the day a fire broke out, sweeping through the frame stores that stood on the present site of the Maccabees Building. The men fought desperately to save the buildings, beating at the flames with brooms and shovels. They formed a bucket brigade with the women and older children, passing pails of water to the fire from the flume from the Mill pond. In the end all they could do was stand and watch the stores, dry with age, completely leveled by the flames. This did much to arouse the people to realization of a need for better fire equipment. But for years to come, a gaping foundation was all that showed where these stores had been. A fence was finally put around it and later someone conceived the idea of building a platform across part of it. This became the town bandstand and for many years concerts were given here.

By the time Lee was ready for high school, his father had to move back to Detroit for business reasons. Lee chose to live with his grandmother in order to finish his schooling in Clarkston. In 1898 he graduated with the largest class up to that time - twelve people, the last class to graduate under Presiding at convention of Michigan Township's Assoc.

Duane Hurstfall, Independence Township Supervisor and President of the Michigan Townships Association is presiding this week over the 15th annual convention of that association. Being held at the Pantlind Hotel and the Civic Auditorium in Grand Rapids, it is expected that the meetings will attract more than 1,200 township officials from all 83 counties of the State. It is also expected that there will be township executives of the Township Associations of Illinois, Pennsylv-vania, Minnesota, Ohio, New York and New Jersey in attendance.

Problems to be discussed include the impact on township government of the new gas and weight tax increase; greater autonomy for townships; finance and taxation, assessments and equalization; senior citizens and veterans homestead exemptions, township ordinance making powers, annexation, incorporation and consolidation, metropolitan districts and authorities, councils of government, the new plat act and numerous other subjects of interest to local government officials.

A two-day Lawyer's Institute for township attorneys will be conducted under the direction of John H. Dauckham of Kalamazoo, legal counsel of the association.

The keynote address will be given by Joseph A. Parisi, Jr., executive director of the Association. It is expected to be a blueprint for the future role of township government in Michigan. Parisi will be remembered for his speech at the Public Hearing conducted by the Township last August, held at Clarkston High School.

Convention Chairman is Carl Ammerman of Genesee Township in Genesee County and he has arranged a Family Fun Night for Wednesday evening and a banquet on Thursday evening.

It is also expected that Gov. Romney will address the group. Mr. Hurstfall will relinquish the presidency of the organization at the conclusion of the convention, but will become a member of the Board of Directors.

Attending from Independence in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Hurstfall were Clerk Howard Altman and his wife.

Township board makes zoning map changes

The Independence Township Board last week voted unanimously not to join the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments. This is a voluntary association of local governments. The first meeting of the General Assembly is scheduled for January 13 in Dearborn. Counties represented include Monroe, Macomb, Oakland, Washtenaw, Wayne and St. Clair. Although the local township office does not have up to date figures on membership, as of last August there were 35 members in the group. "Seven townships out of 23 in Oakland County did not join," states Howard Altman, Clerk.

If Independence Township had become a member the initiation fee would have been $300. Fees are based on population count.

Local units of government and school districts participating in SEMCOG will have representatives serving in the General Assembly, a legislative group with final jurisdiction over programs to be recommended by SEMCOG. This organization is replacing the Detroit Metropolitan Area Regional Planning Commission. Delos Hamlin, Chairman of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors is serving as temporary chairman of the Executive Committee.

Board members in giving their reasons for rejecting membership at this time stated that "there should be considerable study of the issue." They said they might consider joining at some later date particularly if two issues were spelled out for them, "Do schools have the right to be in the organization? and shouldn't members be elected instead of appointed to positions within the organization?" There was also some doubt among board members as to just what the organization will accomplish.

In other action at the meeting, the board made some changes on the zoning map to conform with property classifications in surrounding properties.

However since that meeting a protest has been issued by one party which will be reviewed again. The board had changed the Whipple Lake Grocery from its present commercial zoning to residential. Attorney for this party stated that it would hamper expansion possibilities for its owners even though it was to be kept as a nonconforming usage.

A huge wooden structure in the Woodhull Lake subdivision which has been boarded up for years and at one time was used as a synagogue was changed to residential. Another piece of property at the Clement and White Lake Road intersection and owned by William Kelly was changed back to Suburban Farms. Approximately 10 years ago this parcel had been zoned commercial without knowledge of the owner. An 8 1/2 acre parcel in Section 18 owned by Robert Kraud was returned to agricultural zoning to conform to most of the other property in that section which is in the Reese-Holcomb Roads area. This particular piece of land was the only one to be classified "Suburban farms" in the whole section.

"Unusual Dogs of the World" exhibit

This year, the Clarkston, Ortonville, and Drayton Plains area will be represented at the "Unusual Dogs of the World" exhibit held at Northland Shopping Center in Southfield. The exhibit, now in its fourth year, is managed by Mrs. James Bortz of 8004 Perry Lake Road, Clarkston.

The Hungarian Komondor, rarest breed represented at the exhibit, is owned by the Joel Cohens of 6642 Wealthy Street, Clarkston. From Ortonville is Richard Thomas with his American Water Spaniel. Mrs. Neal Stranahan of Drayton Plains will be there with her Norwegian Elkhound.

In all, there will be over 50 different rare and unusual breeds of dogs. The exhibit is held January 11, 12, and 13, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. in Northland's Special Events Building off parking lot C. Admission is free.

Now here's a clock that beats them all... Big Ben, himself, watching the passing parade. Somehow, old Ben still manages to keep an eye on things while he's telling the time, and the stories he could tell might fill a book.

With today's atomic clocks, which mark the passage of time by atom vibrations, time now can be measured more accurately than ever before. Yes, we've come a long way since the first clock, which was simply the alternating periods of darkness and daylight.

Just as man has always relied on some satisfactory method of telling the time, so has he always been aware of a hunger within his heart for peace and meaning in life.

Discover this timeless source of unflinching strength... worship in church this Sunday.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL
ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
