VOLUME 38 10 CENTS

CLARKSTON, MICHIGAN 48016

THURSDAY, JUNE 13, 1968 3 SECTIONS NUMBER 42

Vote light, Board boosts salaries

Just a small number of school electors bothered to go to the polls on Monday to vote in the annual school election. In the only contest, that for a position on the Board of Education for a 3 year term, Incumbent Fernando Sanchez defeated Mrs. Ingrid Smith by 24 votes.

A total of 407 votes were cast in the nine precincts and the voting went like this:

Four year term;
Arthur Rose	407
Thomas Doremus	351
Three year term;
Fernando Sanchez	257
Ingrid Smith	233

Electors were also voting for trustees for Oakland Community College but these figures were not available to the News by Tuesday morning.

Following the vote tabulation, the Board of Education held their regular meeting. Contracts were approved for Secretarial employees of the school as well as the Bus Drivers. The secretarial contract which runs over a 3 year period calls for the following schedule: Elementary secretaries will receive from $80-$110 per week in 5 steps; Secondary secretaries and clerical librarians will receive $90-$120 and the Board Office secretaries $100-$130. Next year there will be an automatic $2.50 per week across the board raise and the following year the same.

While approving the bus drivers contract, it was noted that the starting pay in that field is $2.40 per hour going to $2.85 in 5 steps. In the 1969-70 year, it will jump to $2.55-$3.00 per hour.

In other action, the board approved a contract between the Clarkston District and the County Intermediate District relative to the Special Education program. Under that arrangement the county pays for the room area which is used in the local school system.

Tentative approval was also given to re-surfacing one outside wall of the Junior High School.

It was also announced that property has been purchased on Waldon Road as a future school site. 19.3 acres were purchased at $1750 per acre. The land is near the Caverly home and backs up to the expressway.

An option of $1300, has been placed on land on Big Lake Road for the County Vocational Building. It is near the intersection of I-75 and U.S. 10. The 75 acre parcel is priced at $3500 per acre. County voters two years ago gave their approval to the construction of area vocational schools and the Clarkston district was selected as one of the districts in which one of these facilities would be located.

The deed for the property for Stevens property and it will be used as a play ground area for children at the North Sashabaw School. This is the only house in the immediate area.

Salaries were also established for the 7 principals and the 3 assistant principals in the system. Elementary principal personnel will start at $12,700 and run to $15,000 while those in secondary education will have a starting salary of $13,750 and run to $17,250.

A report was also given by the Language Arts Committee who have been studying for many months the Language text books used. They came up with a recommendation that a new textbook be inaugurated. The board accepted this and the change-over is expected to cost the district between $2500 and $3000.

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

If someone were to tell me in advance the kind of weather we were to have during our 5 days in Canada fishing I probably would have delayed the trip.

But, while weather can ruin some vacations it didn't this one. Even in the drizzle on the trip from Thessalon to camp 60 miles north the scenery along the Mississagi river was great, and the fellowship equally great.

We went in on Wednesday and came out Sunday. It rained almost all the time except Friday. That day was absolutely gorgeous. To me one of the most beautiful scenes in the woods is rapids in a river on a sunny day.

It was while sitting on a rock along side the rapids in the Aubinadong that I caught my fish. There I was nearly asleep when I spotted a trout nearby. I pointed it out to partner Pansy Baldwin and he suggested we get to work.

With my Mitchell 33 spinning reel tightly attached to a Shakespeare Wonder rod, and using the new Independence Township Library was presented to the board for signatures. When these are secured they will be presented to the proper Township officials.

Dr. Greene, Superintendent reviewed for the board the districts position relative to debt retirement and other matters relating to the building program within the district. The board then acted to set the tax rate at 7 mills.

The last item of business before the board went into Executive session was to vote approval of purchase of a larger dust collector for the Senior High Building. The one in use there now is not sufficient as to size and so will be moved to the Junior High School shop. The new one will cost $2,235.

Following the executive session, the board made the following report. They agreed to purchase property at the corner of Maybee and Pine Knob Roads. This is known as the former 4 pound monofilament line (no leader) and a small Rapala lure weighted with 1 shot for weight 9 inches ahead of the lure, I set about catching Mr. Speckled Trout.

I dropped the Rapala in the rapids, the trout hit it, I flipped it up on shore, and right then the fishing part of the trip had reached it's peak and only success.

As I said later I happened to have my hook in the water during the major feeding phase one day. The next day Pansy had the same experience. His hook was in the water during the major feeding phase and I missed again.

This was our second trip into this area of Canada as guests of McFadden Lumber Co. a division of Domtar Ltd. Someone said Domtar was like the John-Manville company here. Our first trip was Memorial Day, 1965.

And it will be our last as guests of McFadden. The company is being phased out. Several reasons were given for it, ranging from too far from bush to mill to inefficient operation, but regardless it was sort of sad to note that the last run had been made on the Aubinadong, Mississagi, and White rivers to the Blind River Mill.

Because of a land use law in Canada the camp sites of lumber companies have to be returned to as near natural as possible when no longer of use. The camps will be burned. Some have been already and more will be after some snow has decreased the danger of fire next fall.

Fire, too, was one of the reasons McFadden's is through. In 1942 fire destroyed 15 years supply of pine in area considered close to Blind River. The fear and respect of fire is extremely strong in Canada. Though it had rained for days it was suggested we not build a cooking fire. Wet as it was there were 10 fires reported in the general area Sunday.

This year fishermen will find access to the many lakes and streams easy in the Lumber company lands. McFadden has kept the roads up for their own use and built bridges. Nature will take care of these. Even now there are washouts that nearly stop cars. In a year or two the roads will be impassable and access will go back to the plane.

There is a possibility the land will be sold and maintained, but at least our party has probably seen the last of the Aubinadong river, Dunkerly, Dead, Hound, Samoy, Gong Lakes and the many other lakes within a few miles of Aubinadong Camp of McFadden Lumber company.

Deer Lake beach

now open every day

"The Deer Lake Beach will now be open seven days a week" stated Howard Altman, Independence Township Clerk this week.

The Township this summer has taken over the operation of the beach. But adequate personnel has been found to operate the facility, and the original plans for closing the beach on Mondays and Tuesdays has been abolished.

In order to use the beach for swimming, boating, fishing or skin diving a permit is necessary and these can be obtained at the Township Clerk's office by paying a fee.

The recent hot weekend brought crowds to the beach which is now limited to residents of the township.

Following are some of the rules that are being enforced. There is to be no picnicking, food or drink there, no dogs and no boats or skin divers in the swimming area.

No children will be allowed at the beach at any time under the age of 12 years old without their parents. Guests will be allowed at no charge, but there is to be no softball or baseball on the beach area.

Hours which the beach will be open are from 1-9 p.m. through the week and on Saturday, Sunday and Holidays from 10 A.M. until 9 P.M.

A complete schedule appears elsewhere in this issue.

WHAR picking up members

There is now a local unit of WHAR. The initials stand for Why Have Awful Roads and branches of the organization are springing up rapidly throughout the county. It was founded in Rose Township—there are now groups in Addison and Highland Townships as well as here.

Ben East, staff editor of Outdoor Life and one who has spear-headed the group appeared at the Township Hall for the organizational meeting here on May 28. Invitations had been sent to concerned individuals in the township who had expressed an interest in forming an organization which by its combined voice could become effective.

Purpose of the group is to protest the deteriorating rural road system. By their efforts the group wants to be heard and gain some cooperation from the Oakland County Road Commission. The commission has been charged with neglecting the roads in the northern area while concentrating on the more populated areas in the southern sections of the county.

At the first meeting, temporary officers were elected. They are as follows: Chairman, William Spence; Secretary, Mrs. James Blumen-schein and Treasurer, Howard Altman.

Another meeting was scheduled for Thursday, June 6 at which over 150 were in attendance. Also present were Frazer Staman, Chairman of the Road Commission and Robert Osgood of the Traffic engineering department. There were many irate citizens present and many more memberships were gained for the organization.

According to East, "Through united action and strength, we can improve the communication between the people and the road commission. Rural roads increasingly suffer from urban traffic. Many subdivision roads must be maintained at the expense of residents, becoming an almost impossible burden, when a share-cost agreement would be far better."

A long-range plan of the committee is also to see that someday the Road Commission will be directly answerable to voters by means of the elective process.

Parade to highlight July 4 celebration

The traditional Fourth of July celebration in Clarkston is once more being planned. The Independence Township Fire Department, however have announced that they will not be having the fireworks display this year. Chairman, Jack Hess is urging citizen participation so that the parade will be one of the biggest and the best that the village has ever had.

The parade is scheduled for 10 A. M. on the morning of the Fourth. It will commence in the north end of town at the corner of M-15 and Miller Road. It is hoped that Associations, Clubs and organizations will enter floats in the parade. The firemen also hope that there will be a lot of youngster participation, 'also old cars and horse units.

Any clubs who want to participate should contact the News office so that publicity can be given to their efforts. The Jayettes have already announced that they will be holding an old-fashioned ice cream social on the vacant lot just north of the News office.

At a recent Board meeting, the Clarkston Area Jayettes announced that starting in 1969 that their group will take over the direction of the 4th festivities, thus relieving the Fire department of a task which they have shouldered for ??? number of years.

Haupt expanding across M-15

There's an expansion program underway at Jack W. Haupt Pontiac Sales and Service, Clarkston.

The auto agency has leased frontage across highway M-15 from owner Rudy Schwarze. Filling and grading has been taking place on the site for a year or more. Rudy had considered building a new grocery store until costs made it prohibitive.

Now an area 120 x 100 will be blacktopped for used car display and arch lighting installed. Costs are also being gathered by Haupt for constructing a building that would serve as sales offices, stalls for cleanup and servicing area.

The lot is directly across the highway from Haupt. The area south of the present salesroom will be used for displaying ready-to-drive away brand new Pontiacs. Haupt hopes to keep around 40 new Pontiacs serviced and ready for immediate delivery.

Special day planned for Webelos scouts

Hundreds of Webelos Scouts will invade Camp Agawam near Lake Orion for a special Webelos Day from 1 to 7 p.m. Saturday, June 22, sponsored by the Clinton Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America.

During the afternoon, the boys will have an opportunity to see and take part in demonstrations of Boy Scout skills in axmanship, knot tying, lashing, first aid, marksmanship, waterfront activities, firebuilding, cooking, hiking, compass use and nature. A tour of the 115-acre camp near Lake Orion will be included.

Webelos Scouts are 10-year-old boys in their last year of Cub Scouting. Many go on to become Boy Scouts at age 11.

All Cub Scouts 10 years of age or older whether in Webelos dens or not are invited to attend with their fathers. Webelos den chiefs and den leaders also are invited to attend with their dens as well as Cub pack committeemen, cub masters and assistants.

Reservations should be made no later than Tuesday, June 18, at the Council Service Center, by phoning 334-2509. A charge of $1 per person includes all materials and an evening meal.

Scout plans for June announced

Boy Scout troops will follow the Wood Lore and Star Study theme during June with a Bi-cycle Camp-Out as a special highlight, but each troop's boy and adult leaders will plan the "extra action" that gives even more depth to the month-long schedule of meetings.

"This won't be classroom learning," Juan J. Vargas, 24200 Murray, Mt. Clemens, Scout commissioner of the Clinton Valley Council, explained.

"This theme can mean a bicycle check and repairs, bike games, a bike rodeo, making bike saddlebags, and riding bikes to an overnight campsite. Then, the Scouts may make an oatmeal box constellation projector and slides for star study, make plaster casts, see movies or filmstrips on nature subjects, and take part in nature games and field work."

The younger Cub Scouts during June will use the theme

When Dad Was a Boy, and den and pack activities may move outdoors. Suggested activities include making fun equipment like dad used to make, a father-and-son activity for Father's Day, backyard neighborhood shows, swimming, and observance of Flag Day.

The 10-year-old Webelos Cub Scouts in most of the packs will be working on the Geologist badge and will make collections, take field trips, and carry out special "pebble pup" projects, Vargas said.

Exploring for high-school-age boys provides for each Explorer post to plan its own activities, but many will be using suggested events such as a look at the business of real estate, a campus visit, and a refresher of the "Ready" emergency service program of the Boy Scouts of America.

Walter-Miracle vows repeated at St. Paul's

Richards officiated at the double ring afternoon ceremony. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Delmont Walter of Clarkston and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Miracle of Pontiac.

Baskets of lilies graced the church altar for the ceremony. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father wore an A-line gown of white peau-de-soie. Fashioned in the empire style, the gown had semi-bell sleeves and the train was lace trimmed with small clusters of seed pearls. Her finger tip veil of illusion was secured by a petal shaped head piece. She carried a white orchid and roses.

Jodie Strother to be her Maid of Honor. Bridesmaids included Carol Thomas of Milford, Mrs. Harold Miracle of Pontiac and Linda Blust of Union Lake. Their gowns were of aqua, yellow, pink, and mint green respectively. The gowns were all of peau-de-soie trimmed in white lace. They all carried white rose bouquets with carnations tipped to match each gown.

The bride's cousins, Heidi Rembach of Drayton Plains and Brian Connors of Union Lake were the flower girl and ring bearer.

The groom asked his brother to serve as best man and the ushers were Lyle Walter, Wayne Miracle and Jerry Connors.

The bride's parents hosted a reception at the CAI in Waterford following the ceremony. For the occasion, Mrs. Walter wore an A-line gown of pale turquoise silk shantung. Highlighting the neckline and sleeves were clusters of seed pearls. Mrs. Miracle wore a pale blue silk dress and both mothers had white carnation corsages.

When leaving for a honeymoon in northern Michigan and Canada, the bride donned a yellow linen dress which was trimmed in avocado lace. Upon their return the couple will reside on Dwight Street in Pontiac.

Leslie Carmean of Ortonville assisted as maid of honor with bridesmaid, Mary Bogroff of Lake City. Best man honors were performed by John White, brother of the groom. Groomsman was Barnette Brown, the bride's brother.

Dial direct and let the savings roll in.

If you'd like to save some money, you'll be interested in Direct Distance Dialing. It's a more economical way to call Long Distance because direct dialed calls are all Station-to-Station instead of Person-to-Person.

It's easy, too. Just dial "1", then the Area Code, if it's different from your own, and the number you want. For an idea of how much you can save, here's an example. A 3-minute Person-to-Person call between Detroit and Chicago costs $1.30 at the day rate. Dial direct and the cost is only 85¢.

So whenever you're reasonably sure the party you're calling will be there, dial direct and let the savings roll in!

Error in figures

Dear Mrs. Poole:

In my letter to the editor which appeared in last week's issue (June 5), the following erroneous statement appeared, referring to class size in the Clarkston School District: "In many cases lower elementary school teachers have as many as 38 or 40 youngsters in their classroom."

These numbers exist in upper elementary classes, not in lower elementary, as the article stated. The mistake was mine.

Your comments in your column about the wild flowers is so true. On a recent afternoon a little neighbor boy was with me as I gathered wild asparagus. He had never seen a Jack-in-the-pulpit, so when we got home I got out wildlife books and magazines to show him. If I am able to get around next spring I will see that he gets to the woods to gather blood root, hepaticas, etc.

"Give instruction to a wise man, and he will be yet wiser: teach a just man, and he will increase in learning. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom and the knowledge of the holy is understanding." . . . Proverbs 9:9-10.

Reverend A. T. Stewart

This is high school graduation time and the thoughts of many of our young people are turned to the future, some to jobs, some to service in the armed forces and some to college. Some of them might be looking to short-term goals, others to far more distant ones, but I wonder how many of them have stopped to consider the overall purpose of life and how they might best endeavor to fulfill it.

In connection with modern man's pursuit of life's fulfillment, I once heard someone say that most people today are "majoring in minors." In other words, their time and energies are often spent on inconsequentials, on things of little or no lasting meaning or value. A sign we often see displayed in small restaurants or coffee shops says essentially the same thing in this way:

"As you travel through life, brother, Whatever be your goal, Keep your eye upon the doughnut And not upon the hole." And the person who "majors in minors" in this life indefinitely has his eye upon the hole.

Many of us can think back to an acquaintance of our college days who majored in elective subjects and extra-curricular activities, always choosing the easiest courses and the most pleasurable way. His goal, besides having fun, was the attainment of a diploma, rather than an education, of which the diploma is meant to be a symbol. If he lasted long enough to finally get that much-prized diploma, when he graduated and attempted to follow his profession, he discovered that his doughnut had any awfully large hole. He had short-changed himself in pursuit of an education. The courses he had taken and the manner in which he had applied himself did not fit him to assume the position in life he sought.

There are very many people today who are following a very similar pattern in pursuit of life's fulfillment. They are seeking a meaning to their existence, but they are seeking it in the "minors" of life and in "extra-curricular activities." They are hoping to arrive at an answer by trial and error, without first seeking a basic understanding and knowledge of their subject. They are hoping for much but putting forth little. They seek happiness as the goal of life, not realizing that happiness is not the end product of life, nor is it the means to the end. Rather, it sometimes comes as a gift from God while the person is in the process of pursuing life's goal, which is a whole and healthful relationship with God and with man. Our service to God and to our fellowman are the most exalting factors in our lives. All of our interests and relationships are colored by our relationship with God—or lack of it. Man's goal in life, whether he realizes it or not, is Almighty God, "in Whom he lives and moves and his being." There are many demands upon our attention and time but our relationship with God is the most important. We can rationalize this truth all we like, we can even deny it, but we cannot change it. Without a primary loyalty to God, there is no court of appeal by which man can resolve the contrary demands of life. Where worldly values are all that a man has, it is exceedingly difficult to determine an order of precedence. To "major in minors" leads nowhere in life but to ultimate confusion and despair. But, in the words of St. Paul, "We know that all things work together for good to them that love God."

"The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom and the knowledge of the holy is understanding."

PEEKIN' into the PAST

10 YEARS AGO IN THE CLARKSTON NEWS
June 12, 1958

On June 19 the annual Father and Son Dinner sponsored by the Clarkston Men's Club will be held at the Methodist Church. About 100 fathers and their sons are expected to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Gardner of 9461 Cherrywood are the proud parents of a 7 lb. 7 oz. daughter, Katherine Ann, born May 2nd.

The Senior Class of 1958 presented a gift of $400 to the high school. This will be used to purchase a score board to be installed in the new high school.

Among the graduates at Michigan State University last Sunday was Cherie Nan Littleton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Littleton of South Main Street.

25 YEARS AGO IN THE CLARKSTON NEWS
June 11, 1943

The Baccalaureate Service of the graduating class of Clarkston High School will be held in the First Methodist Church, Sunday June 13th at eight o'clock.

On Tuesday afternoon the Clarkston Literary Club closed the season with a picnic on the lawn at the home of Mrs. Pearl Urch with Mrs. Forrest Jones as hostess.

One hundred and three young people attended the Roller Skating party Tuesday night which was sponsored by the Senior Hi Youth Fellowship of the Methodist Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Wilson are announcing the birth of a 9 lb. 12 oz. son, Russell Ralph, on Saturday, May 22nd.

Just after the Memorial Day celebrations, Kevin set about to make himself an American flag. He got a piece of white linen. Using marking pens, as carefully as he was able, he sketched the red stripes, placed a field of blue and let the white of the fabric show through for the stars.

Getting a rose bush branch, he cleaned the thorns off and attached his American flag to the staff with safety pins. The same pins that had been used to hitch his diapers. When the job was all done my son said, "You know dad, I love my American flag. I've got to show it a lot of respect. It represents my country you know."

Thoughts of the past have a way of creeping in. I was just about his age and must have been in the first grade. I assume that they still do it today, like all school children, we used to stand straight and tall every morning and recite the pledge of allegiance.

I can't remember my teacher's name, but I do remember clearly what she said, "This is a wonderful country that you live in. Right now we are at war. Things weren't always this way. Soon, someday, the war will be over. You must study hard and soon, someday, even one of you in this very classroom might even become President of the United States."

Of course the rest of the day was spent talking about what a President is and how he becomes one. She told about all his responsibilities. From that day on she treated us all like we were presidents and we worked for her. That was all very long ago.

That war she had promised would someday end, hasn't. With the violence and chasm that appears to be dividing sense from sensibility, the problem remains the same. Hate mongers rub shoulders with us everyday. We don't listen to them, but we don't do anything to change their minds.

They defame race, creed and everything that most of us hold sacred. They do it and we let them, because we're all one of them. My generation was brought up to think that all Germans were dirty krouts and all Japanese were dirty Japs.

My generation grew up in violence, a topsy-turvy world of violence. Violence isn't anything new. We joined the scrap drives, paper drives, gave up Sunday rides and lived within the means of a ration booker.

Violence came home to us in the form of a letter telling of the heroic death of one of our family. There was sadness. But, the war remained on some other point of the globe. Newsmen doggedly told us about some latest front that had collapsed. Successes were reported without fanfare. There was always another bridge to cross, another town to be blown up and more letters to be sent home.

From my window, I watch my son running around his backyard. The flag that he made is now many days old. He's proud of it. There isn't anyone out there to watch him, 'cept for the critters. His flag flaps high over his head. The horses have stopped their grazing, goats appear like statues—just watching a little boy race around with a flag that he has made "all by myself."

In light of what has happened last Wednesday, I'm sad. Sad, because I can't go out and run around with my little boy. I can't share his enthusiasm. He's aware of the events of the last few days. But, he doesn't have the slightest idea of their implications.

He's a good little boy, brought up on love and the feeling of trust. Out of my generation will come a President. Let him too be

"If It Fitz . . ."

'Where did you get that scar?'

By Jim Fitzgerald

There was this guy on TV, with a devilishly attractive scar traced thinly across his cheek, and I wished I were him.

Ever since I saw Paul Muni in "Scarface" 30 years ago, I have wanted a scar. Nothing disfiguring, just something to let people know I haven't always been deskbound. I have a mysterious past I'd really rather not talk about, you know. A gentleman doesn't brag about his past glories—unless he is coaxed. That's where a scar comes in handy.

"Where did you get that scar?" she coaxes.

Man, what an opening. "It was in Tangiers, toward the end of the big war," I tell her, "and there was this dark-eyed dancing girl. How did I know she was married to an Olympic fencing champion? He slapped me with his mitten and, of course, I had no choice but to duel. Poor fellow . . ."

The first time I took my wife-to-be to the beach, she noticed the cruel little scars peppered across my back. She wanted to know what happened.

"I was only 18," I muttered. "World War II, Germany."

That's all I'd tell her and she was properly impressed with my bravery under fire, and my humility under adulation. We were married a year before my mother told her the scars were the result of a severe case of acne.

"Well," I explained, "I had the pimples while I was in Germany."

But enough of that. Back to Charlie. Rugged on TV. You've probably seen him. To go with the scar he has Viking-colored hair, a world-weary nose, eyes that have seen everything, and a turtleneck sweater knitted of steel cable. He is selling Command, the Tahitian lime spray deodorant for men.

The way Charlie says "Tahitian," sort of raspy and ssssy, makes me suspect he got the scar in Tahiti. He was probably slashed in a barroom brawl with a guy selling Five Day Deodorant Pads.

Charlie's pitch for Command is that other deodorants are for women, kids and men who dance on their toes. You know, the weakies who can run around the block 5 times in July, wearing overcoats, and still smell good. But Command is for the men who win wars, build bridges, seduce women, and make your eyes smart when they walk into a room.

"Leave those weak deodorants for the wife and kids," says Charlie, scar quivering, "you TAKE COMMAND."

All of a sudden I didn't give a darn who stole my Right Guard. By golly, I thought, maybe I'll never have a romantic scar but at least I can smell like a man who snubs elevators and climbs stairs just because they are there. I went out and took Command, 3 cans, off the drugstore counter. That purchase gave me the same feeling I had when, at the age of 12, I wrote to Charles Atlas about the girls kicking sand in my face.

The first day I sprayed on so much Tahitian Lime I could only move my arms from the elbows down. I really didn't expect a scar to grow across my cheek. I didn't expect the FBI to revoke my passport, for fear I'd start trouble in Cuba. I didn't even expect the woman next door to ask me to fix her washing machine. But I did think my wife might be somewhat aroused by the electric aura now oozing from her husband.

I did notice her sniffing once. Then she went into the kitchen and turned on the blower over the stove.

I'm doing something wrong, I decided. I read the directions on the Command can and it said to spray 2 seconds under each arm. Not 1.5 seconds, or 2.5 seconds, but a flat 2 seconds. That's it, I decided, my timing is off.

Looking carefully at the second hand on my wrist watch, I sprayed into my left armpit for 2 seconds. Then I tried to do the same thing under my right arm. But my watch was on my left wrist and the can was in my left hand. Try it sometime. While straining to see the watch, I lost track of the spray. I got an eyeful of Tahitian lime.

So maybe I don't have a devilish scar but did I ever tell you why I have to sleep with my right eye open? It was on Iwo Jima and there was this Japanese with a sharp bamboo stick.

Onward and Upward.

Another Day

By Constance Lektzian

Major John Knox— Civil War Hero

John Knox was only a year old when he came west to Michigan from York state with his parents in 1832. For them, this was the second uprooting for their family. Jane and Walter Knox had, four years earlier, come to the new world from Hawick, Scotland. There was the same reasoning behind this second journey as there had been for the first. Greater opportunity for their children—and more land. Coming from the crowded lowlands where Jane had worked as a weaver, Walter had built a dream of one day owning a farm. A farm of vast acres, not the small crofts of Scotland.

The struggle to clear a farm in Independence township was a long and hard one. There were heartaches as well as hardships for Jane and Walter for two of their eleven children died in infancy. At that, these faithful Scotch Presbyterians counted their blessings. They hadn't expected the way to be easy in this new raw land, and sad as it was to lose these two sons, they knew of families who never saw any of their children live to grow up.

Most of the Knox children followed in their parent's footsteps and became farmers, hardworking and prosperous. All of them had as good an education as the community permitted but their love of the land had precedence over going further with their schooling.

Johnnie Knox was the exception. Bantam sized in a family of husky people, he never in his life weighed over 95 pounds. What he lacked in size, he made up for in determination. After his graduation from the Clarkston Academy, Johnnie taught at Austin Corners, a little settlement north of Clarkston.

He was teaching in Meridian, Mississippi when the first rumblings of the Civil War were heard. Never one who will have the ingredients of wisdom and leadership. The little boy doesn't know the meaning of bigotry and hate. Let my generation forget the lessons that they were taught. Germans are not dirty krouts, Japanese are not dirty Japs.

More importantly, let this generation of little boys racing around with flags, continue in their belief that they love their country and must show respect for their flag. Maybe this is wrong. It might cost them, someday, their lives, or something.

MAJOR JOHN KNOX

to back down on his convictions, John Knox had made it clear that his sympathies were not with the secessionists. As a known Yankee sympathizer, he was asked to leave Meridian.

Back home in Michigan, John enlisted in the "Fighting Fifth" a volunteer Infantry unit. Starting out as a sergeant in June of 1861, he advanced in rapid succession as 2nd and 1st Lieutenant, Captain and then Provost Major, attached to the Army of the Potomac. Although he returned home on leave that fall of 1861 to marry his sweetheart, Emily Davis, he was not destined to spend much of what was left of his life in Michigan.

Not long after their wedding, the young couple were separated. While Lieutenant Knox returned to the battlefields in Virginia, Emily along with thousands of other wives, stayed home to wait. That winter, the union forces began to organize what was later known as the Peninsular Campaign, a series of battles that took place on an arm of land between the James and York rivers near Richmond.

The Union Army had suffered some humiliating defeats and the Northern press and the populace was demanding some action. The purpose of the Peninsular Campaign was to crush the Confederates who were protecting Richmond and capture the Confederate capital. The northern general's who were in charge, threw into action tactics, that, until the Civil War, had never been used, in the history of America's wars. Ironclad Federal gunboats sailed to within 8 miles of Richmond, adding much to the panic of the citizens there. Observer balloons, anchored behind the Union lines, were able to go high enough to see the church spires in Jeff Davis' capital.

It was in this campaign, in the Battle of Seven Pines, at Fair Oaks, Virginia that Johnnie Knox was wounded.

The fact that he survived must have been due to the young man's staunch, dour Scotch constitution for there could be no thanks given to the medical care he finally received. At the end of the day that May 31 in 1862 he was left for dead. Severely wounded in the neck, hours passed before someone discovered that he was still breathing.

It was in the spring of this campaign, that as many as 5,000 wounded were brought into a hospital where there was only one medical man and five hospital stewards to care for them. Out of this chaos were organized the ambulance corps that were used here for the first time.

Johnnie, who went on after his recovery to fight at such places as Gettysburg and Antietam, was sent to Plattsburg New York in early 1865. Just the year before it is recorded that he sold a general store here in Clarkston to Esidore Jossman. It isn't known if he ever actually had a chance to run this store which stood on Main Street or if he bought it for future use when the war was over. Possibly by the time he came to Plattsburg, he had word of the other tasks awaiting him. In any event, Emily was able to join him there and it was in York State, where years before Johnnie's parents had set out for the west, that their twin sons were born. Captain Knox's joy was short lived—Emily died a few months after the birth of her sons. Taken back to Michigan by a nursemaid, the twins were separated. Johnnie's brother William taking one, his sister Mary the other.

Captain Knox threw himself into his work. The year after the war, and until 1869, he worked in Georgia and Alabama as representative of the Freedman's Bureau, helping the Negroes get jobs and an education. In 1867 there was established the Knox Institute for Freedmen, in Athens, Georgia. In 1870 he was made Commissioner in Indian Affairs and it was during this year he married again.

Sent to Washington D.C. in 1875, he was given a position in the Pension Office. A personal friend of Ulysses Grant, Major Knox and his wife now took an active part in the social life of that post-war capital. As hard working and driven to accomplishment as ever, he functioned as a special and colorful reporter to the Pontiac Gazette. He found time as well, to finish a law degree at Columbian College.

His drive and ambition were too much for the frailty that had resulted from his war wounds his health failed rapidly. In 1877 his brothers, Walter and William, were hastily called from Michigan to be at his bedside. It was only sheer will-power that kept Johnnie Knox alive until they arrived, and in his last moments, he made final plans for the future and education of his two sons. In April of that year, Major Knox was laid to rest with full military honors at the Lakeview Cemetery. Home at last, this little, dedicated courageous man had many illustrious mourners. He left behind a record of bravery and determination, when possibly all he really wanted was to return to this quiet little village and be a store-keeper.

Our thanks to Mrs. Hazen Atkins (nee Jeannette Knox) granddaughter of Major Knox for preserving their family history. Mrs. Atkins and her husband just recently moved back to Clarkston. Another granddaughter, Mrs. Alvin Bearislee (Emily Knox) is now living in Detroit.

SECTION THREE THE CLARKSTON (Mich.) NEWS Thurs., June 13, 1968 9

No one had to teach these four the ABC's of June 12. They knew this was the day "all books and children" must part. Mindy Wedepner, Neal Hoxsie, Jimmy English and Katrina Johnson appear to be accepting the sad transition without tears.

Last on the list of area schools to be visited by the Flouride treatment team, was the Clarkston Elementary school. The efforts of this school's PTA program has made it possible for the Flouride Program to be held again this year. Marian Strilecky, Gloria Miller and Susan Gundry give the treatments while Julie Redwood (front) and Julie Poage receive.

On to Phoenix for Jaycees and wives

It will be on to Phoenix and the 48th National Convention of the Jaycees of 31 Clarkston people Sunday morning. The local delegation will be headed by the Immediate Past President, Dick Wilton and current President, Don Hamaker.

This is the largest delegation from any of the Jaycee clubs in the state — one of the smallest towns with a Jaycee organization.

Robert Tilley, local member is the Michigan Jaycee State Transportation Chairman. He has arranged for the delegation from Michigan to leave Metropolitan Airport at 8:30 A.M. on 3 United Airlines chartered planes. While in Phoenix, the group will stay at the Ramada Inn there and will return to Detroit on the following Saturday. There will be 350 Jaycees and their wives who will comprise the Michigan group.

For the first time in 20 years, Michigan will have a candidate for National President. He is Wendell E. Smith of Plymouth, Past President of Michigan Jaycees and a current National Vice President. The last candidate, 20 years ago was Paul Bagwell.

The group will be leaving Clarkston in a caravan on Sunday morning following a coffee and doughnut break hosted by Lew and Diane Wint.

College to offer transition program

DeLima Junior College, Oxford, Michigan's only liberal arts women's junior college, will offer a co-educational six-week College transition Program this summer, it was announced by Sister M Imelda, Academic Dean. The program is designed to give prospective college students a head-start in making the transition to college.

The COLLEGE TRANSITION PROGRAM, which begins June 24, will teach high school graduates to improve their reading speech and comprehension, their ability to listen and concentrate, how to take effective notes, and what to expect in college-level testing. The course is being offered to both men and women for the first time on the new campus and is open to all students regardless of the college they plan to attend in the fall.

"Last year in the U.S., more than 350,000 students flunked out of college," said Dr. Pitcher.

"One of the key reasons was the failure of freshmen to acclimate to the new environment and a new way of life encountered on the college campus."

The staff for the College Transition Program will include experienced college personnel and college student associates who have been successful in solving problems which plague freshmen. They have been selected for their ability to work with college-level students and have been thoroughly trained by the Education Development Center.

Participants in the study-practice program will meet with instructors two hours each day, five days a week. In addition to the instruction periods, the counselling staff will have time reserved each day to review the materials with each student, point out deficiencies, and make suggestions for improvement.

Students will have opportunity to enjoy the natural beauty of the campus by boating, fishing, and swimming in the spring-fed lakes on campus. Other recreational facilities include tennis courts and outdoor basketball and volleyball.

For further information and registration details about the college transition program, call 628-1888 or write COLLEGE TRANSITION PROGRAM, DeLima Junior College, 775 West Drahter Road, Oxford, Michigan 48051.

Local participants can go to Akron

Several Clarkston young people are already entered as Soap Box Derby contestants. The derby is sponsored locally by the Oakland County Parks and Recreation, Clarkston Area Jaycees and Rademacher Chevys.

Clarkston registrants are Dennis Ireland and Don Ireland, both of 4952 Mary Sue; John Reichert of 75 Orion Road and Mark Witherup of 5723 Chickadee.

"Derby Day" will be July 20. To these energetic craftsmen their work is worth the effort. The champ will receive a $500 savings bond, an impressive trophy and an expense-paid trip to Akron, Ohio to compete in the All-American finals for $30,000 in college scholarships awarded by Chevrolet.

Special efforts are being made by all entrants to complete their racers early because every boy who races in the Oakland County Derby will be taken via chartered bus to Akron to cheer for the local winner in the All-American race.

Last Saturday, Mark Cowen, the high school president for next year, held a beach party in his back yard. Everybody went swimming. Records were played and the main activity was dancing, eating (as usual) and swimming — oh, of course killing any predatory mosquitoes that dared land on anybody. In general, the whole thing was very neat and there was a good turnout of guests.

Sorry for not having a teen for the week, but between studying for finals, going to Mark Cowens party, studying for finals, packing for camp which I will be leaving for this Saturday, studying for finals, and studying for finals I've been too busy to even think very much about this column.

However, when I am at camp, if I find the time I will write a letter to Mrs. Poole and she can print it if she wants. Well, I have to get back to studying for finals.

Keep It Beautiful

If America hired people for the job, it would take the largest sort of army to keep our country free of litter.

But there's no need to hire anyone. It's a job we can do for ourselves. All of us. Every family that spreads a picnic lunch. Every boatman who cruises the lakes and waterways. Every motorist who uses our roads and highways.

It is the pleasure of the U. S. Brewers Association each year to give its fullest support to the Keep America Beautiful Campaign. Remember: Every Litter Bit Hurts. This is our land. Let's treat it right.

The convention lasted from Sunday through Friday but Hursfall and Altman attended only two days of the affair.

Do you belong?

By Bob Beemer

Individuality is the mark of the outdoorsman. Only one out of ten of us belongs to an organized outdoors club. And we seem to take great pride in this fact. We are wrong not to belong.

Without membership in a club like the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club in Waterford, we rarely find out what is being done in our State Legislature or Congress which can seriously effect our way of life and our sports.

Did you know a law is being considered in Lansing which would force any and all of us who happen to have a dog and sell more than one puppy or a dog a year to get a breeder's license? Not cheap either. $150 and plenty of records to keep and reports to make.

Our personal rights are being challenged every day by the law-making bodies of our country and state. We must have some way to discover these infringements and to fight back. Clubs are one answer.

Highly restrictive gun legislation was defeated in Detroit but became a fact in Chicago. Congress just passed a gun law. Did you make your views known to your Representative?

In Lansing, the news item read that an insurance pool has been created to provide fire insurance on an assignment basis. The normal fire rate will be increased by 10% and companies doing business in Michigan forced to cover these risks in Detroit. The Insurance Commissioner was told by the companies that they barely break even when they charge a 200% increase. His reply was that they would have to make it up some place in the rest of their risks. The Commissioner meant you and me in our homes, businesses and vacation cabins and cottages. Underline the last two. Fire protection isn't what you can call great up north. You could have voiced your opinion if you had known about this.

The list is long but we can do something if we only will. Pork barrel building of unnecessary dams is threatening some of our finest trout streams. Our ducks are dying in our rivers from industrial wastes illegally deposited by factories. Air pollution is rampant as witness J.P. McCarthy's report to us each morning in WJR.

Each succeeding pheasant and rabbit season brings on a lot of chin whisker chewing about the 'good old days'. Blame most often is levied at the removal of the bounty system on foxes. I don't believe this is the cause.

My place is only thirteen acres. Residents are two fox families, four cock pheasants with plenty of hens and at least eight rabbit families. Last year I took my limit of cock birds on opening day and shifted to other areas for the balance of my hunting.

Why such good hunting? Well, pesticide use is kept to a minimum and then only around the house for fly and mosquito control. Mowing is never closer than two feet to a fence line. One field where there is a supply of water is left completely wild. No air pollution exists because of the distance from any factories.

This all didn't just happen. I heard a talk at the Oakland County Club by a representative from the Michigan Department of Conservation. What's more, I did as he suggested.

Join a club yourself. Don't just chew on those chin whiskers. Write a few letters. If you haven't done it before, you will be surprised at the response from Lansing and Washington.

Hunting and fishing are our sports and if we don't protect them our sons and grandsons will wonder what kind of men we were.

Don't say beans don't agree with you, add ginger

Ever hear someone say "I like beans but they don't like me"? The answer to that is so easy it's hard to believe. The solution is the addition of powdered ginger to canned baked beans or those you make from scratch; to bean soups, navy bean salads and even chili.

More than likely your grandmother brewed ginger tea with honey to soothe a headache or an uneasy stomach. Cooks round the world have long been partial to ginger. Used both as a condiment and a medicine, ginger is rich and pungent in fragrance with a clean tangy taste.

It's a romantic spice that grew originally in Bengal and Malabar although they say the name derives from an Arabic word. Widely used in Polynesian countries and in many Oriental dishes, Marco Polo wrote of it in his journal in 1280. This aromatic root was said to aid digestion and to sweeten the disposition. In the 17th Century a pound of ginger was worth the price of a whole sheep.

All herbs and most spices come from the leaves, buds or fruits of plants. Ginger however is one of the few spices to grow underground and comes from the hand-shaped root of the ginger plant. It is also the very first spice grown in the Western Hemisphere.

When added to a dish, ginger accents the taste, brings out the best in each ingredient and gives character to the whole. Surprisingly, in many recipes as in beans, the taste cannot be detected but it works its magic just the same. It's superb on melon. You'll enjoy it on chicken, sprinkled on eggs and added to sugar when glazing carrots or sweet potatoes. When used in sea food it completely eliminates any fishy odor.

Beans in any style will endeavor themselves even to the most delicate stomach when you add ginger to the cooking. As a European would say "beautiful digestion without remorse".

Fly-Up and Court of Award ceremonies

Ten Brownie troops took part in Fly-Up Ceremonies held at the Clarkston Senior High School Little Theater on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 5 and 6. During Tuesday evening's ceremony 44 girls from Troops #984, #183, #9 and #24 received their wings signifying the transition from Brownie level to the Junior level of Girl Scouting. About 100 parents and family members were welcomed Tuesday night by Mrs. Shardon Allen. A flag ceremony was presented by 14 Brownies representing all four troops. Each troop was introduced and as each girl's name was announced she walked the stepping stones of Brownie program to a bridge on center stage. There she received her wings and crossed over the bridge where she received her Girl Scout pin from her leader. Then she walked the stepping stones of Junior Girl Scout program back to her seat on stage. The Girl Scout Promise and Laws were recited in a candlelight ceremony presented by 13 girls from the four troops. The program continued as these 44 girls and 21 of their first year sister Brownies each received a membership star representing a completed year of Scouting. The Brownies sang "Girl Scouts Together," "Song of the Great Lakes Region" and "Linger" for their families. The program closed with the retiring of the flags. Wednesday night about 100 family members were welcomed by Mrs. George Crossman to the second Fly-Up Ceremony. The program was identical to the previous ceremony. Fourteen girls representing the six troops, #152, #986, #193, #57, #985, and #154, posted the flags. Then 43 Brownies received their wings, crossed the bridge and received their Girl Scout pins. Following the Promise and Laws candlelight service these girls and 19 first year Brownies received their stars. The songs and flag ceremony closed the program.

The Fly-Up Ceremony is more than just the starting of Juniors, it is the beginning of a new set of responsibilities and duties where each girl re-dedicating herself to the Girl Scout principles and accepts the Girl Scout Promise and Laws.

On Sunday, June 9, at 3:30 p.m. about 75 family members attended Junior Troop 733's Court of Awards at Independence Township Hall. A flag ceremony opened the program, followed by a prayer and song tribute to Robert F. Kennedy. The troop presented an original puppet play on Our Cabana. Troop leader, Mrs. John Klyder, explained the meaning and achievement badges earned and Mrs. Alfred Watson and Mrs. Kenneth Lund presented the badges. All 19 girls received the Books, Citizenship, Home Health and Safety, and Drawing and Painting Badges. Three earned the Cook, 3 earned My Home, 3 earned Housekeeper, 1 earned Water Fun, 1 earned Backyard Fun and 1 earned the Collector and Magic Carpet Badges. All received the Sign of the Star.

The girls then said a special thank you to five women who have contributed time and help to their troop and presented them with carnation corsages. Mrs. Klyder gave her girls a farewell message as she is retiring as troop leader and these girls are bridging to Cadette level. Cadette Troop 877 then invited the girls to bridge to the Cadette level. As each girl stepped up to the platform under a green crepe paper covered the bridge she was welcomed by Cadettes. At this time 13 girls received their five-year guards and six received their membership stars. The program closed with the girls singing a number of songs and inviting their families to sing along. Then everyone retired to the dining room for a pot luck supper, where Mrs. Klyder received a farewell gift from the girls.

Local boy scouts signed for camping

More boys than ever before are expected to take part in summer camping activities of the Clinton Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Based on advanced registration, at least 1,500 Scouts will spend a week this summer at either Camp Agawam, near Lake Orion, or Lost Lake Scout Reservation, near Clare. Total attendance last year was 1,231.

The Council operates two camps. Camp Agawam, on Tommy's Lake, has 115 acres and was purchased in 1918. It is one of the oldest Scout camps in Michigan and is used on a year-around basis. Lost Lake will be in its third season of wilderness camping. The new, 2,200-acre reservation, with its unlimited opportunities for expansion, has won praise for its camping potential.

A full program is available at each camp, including swimming and boating, advancement, nature and Scouting skills. Troops at Lost Lake do all their own cooking, while Agawam provides central dining hall feeding although troops cook at campsites for a day.

Local troops signed up for summer camping (and their year-round sponsors) are Troop 126, First Methodist Church of Clarkston, July 14-20; Troop 134, Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church, July 21-27, and Troop 189, Calvary Lutheran Church, July 14-20, all at Agawam.

Revival scheduled

Evangelist Arnold Hoskins of the Dearborn Missionary Baptist Church will be conducting services at the Pine Knob Missionary Baptist Church next week.

Services will be held at 7 P.M. from June 16 through June 23. The church is located at 6013 Sashabaw Road. Pastor of the Church is Billy Morgan.

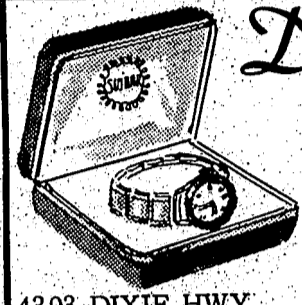

No more metro cards

The Detroit Metropolitan Library Project is being discontinued June 30, because of a cut-off of federal and state funds. All Metro library cards expire on that date.

During the project, all Metro card holders from a six-county area were entitled to free "walk-in" reference service and borrowing privileges from the Main Detroit Public Library, Woodward at Kirby.

Those who found the access to the Main Library useful, and who wish to have it re-instated in a future year, may wish to contact their state legislators and county officials.

The Detroit Public Library will continue to offer an annual non-resident card for a $10 fee.
