

Key-No is coming to Clarkston

As a carnival barker might say... "Step right up ladies and gentlemen! Get in on this exciting new game! Just follow the few simple rules and you may win $500 and more. Much, much more."

This is no carnival, but the opportunity is here for someone to win a $500 U.S. Savings Bond plus more than $1,200 in other prizes for 10 big weeks.

Starting in two weeks, July 11, the Clarkston News will begin publishing 20 numbers that will bring prizes to 22 persons each week for 10 weeks.

This is done through the co-operation and sponsorship of Key-No by merchants in this area. These merchants will not only give away a prize worth from $3.00 to $5.00 each week, but will give a grand prize valued at from $30.00 to $50.00 at the end of the 10-week contest.

Then, this newspaper and C.R. Holmberg & Associates, will award a $500.00 savings bond to a lucky qualifying player at the end of the contest.

Someone will win every prize offered during the contest. You can play every game or as many as you like. It's free, it's fun. Make your own luck by picking your own numbers at the start.

Here are the rules to this exciting new numbers game:

1. The Clarkston News will publish each week, 20 different numbers from the total of 80 numbers on the playing form.

If a number is published that you have marked on your form, that number constitutes 1 Key-No. Each additional number so published and marked on your playing form is an additional Key-No. The total number of Key No's you have in any game determines your lucky chance to win.

2. Every participating firm will post a completely separate set of Key numbers each week. No 2 firms will have the same set of numbers. Each is a separate game and constitutes a new and additional lucky chance to win. Visit as many firms as you wish. Check your numbers with theirs. The more participating firms you visit the more lucky chances you have.

The rules are that simple. Just check your numbers against those in any or all participating merchants. Each store has potential winner's slips to fill out.

The instructions printed in the page advertisement in this issue and each issue throughout the contest will further explain how you can participate. The main point in the instructions is that you pick 10 numbers on a "playing form" and send a duplicate to The Clarkston News prior to playing Key-No.

Remember the contest starts July 11. Play Key-No at any of the following merchants here: Clarkston Equipment Company, The Clarkston News, Clarkston

Cafe, Auten Furniture, O'Dell Drug, Haupt Pontiac, Ritters Farm Market, Clarkston Standard, Beattie Ford, Berg Cleaners, Kessler-Hahn Chrysler-Plymouth, Inc., Robert C. Jones, Standard Oil Agent, Savoie's Gulf, Terry's Market, Deer Lake Lumber and Supply, Evans Equipment, Bob's Hardware, Clarkston Appliance and Furniture, Pine Knob Pharmacy, Al's Waterford Hardware, Town Shop, and Tom Rademacher Chevy-Olds.

THURSDAY, JUNE 27, 1968 3 SECTIONS NUMBER 44

Mrs. Robert Brumback scoops out some tasty publicity for the Jayettes Fourth of July Ice Cream Social, with the help of her co-operative children. Getting a taste of things to come this Fourth are Kelley, Scott and Rodney. The Social will be held after the parade at the vacant lot next to the Clarkston News, until one p.m. Rain will delay the event until the following Saturday morning.

Jim's Jottings

Memory of the public is short, they say, and being a public I believe it. Why can't I remember how sick at least one of my kids get when traveling. Before I started taking family trips last year the sickness didn't get a chance to become violent. They'd get uneasy in 50 miles, but that was all.

So, forgetful Jim heads toward North Carolina with his tribe. By the time we hit Toledo 2 were asleep and uneasy. However, that's about all that developed on the way down.

Coming back things got better. We had two taking turns so often it ended with old dad looking down the drain. And, before he healed up the other kid whitened up and emptied out. Only old Hazel escaped the convulsions of writhing.

You'd never know it by the smell of the car, but Hazel prepared for the accidents. Large plastic sacks for some and smaller ones for later episodes. Trouble is, when the seizure hits who cares about trying to hit the sack. "We'll clean up later. Get out of the way."

Of course, this happened each time we were traveling the inside lane of a freeway or in the heart of a town, also on the inside lane. We put into so many gas stations I decided next time I should either get a master key for all rest rooms before leaving home, or buy a convertible and let the other guy worry about the smell.

But, it was a family vacation, and I know what that means. The family that sticks together, gets sick together. The four of us who swam in that icy, dirty pool at the motel in Binghamton, N.Y. got sick.

A family that plays together, gets burned together. The first day at Fontana, N.C. left no one being able to laugh at the other for their foolishness in staying too long in the sun.

Another thing I learned about a family that plays together. Once in a while you catch them cheating.

You'll hear more of my trip next week if you wish. It'll be under the same heading, "Jim's Jottings."

School state aid disbursement

Disbursement of the State Aid money for schools for June has been made according to James Seeterlin, County Treasurer. Clarkston Community School's share was $294,964.47 of the total $10,765,650.24.

No water in Clarkston Gardens

Some residents in Clarkston Gardens wanted a drink of water and couldn't get it Monday evening—some youngsters went to bed without their nightly bath and probably were happy because of it. A transformer went out at the Pump station located there leaving nearly 400 homes without water.

This occurred about 8 P.M. Service was restored about 2 A.M. The emergency was compounded by the fact that there is a strike at Detroit Edison Company. Two telephone calls were made to Detroit for emergency service and supervisory personnel answered the call arriving in Clarkston about 1:30 A.M.

As soon as the transformer was repaired it took approximately another hour to fill the 5 M gallon tank.

July 4 parade to begin at 10 A.M.

The Independence Township Fire Department are still seeking float entries for the 4th of July parade. It is hoped that the parade scheduled for 10 A.M. will be one of the best and the biggest. Jack Hess has been named to head the event.

The parade will commence in the north end of town at Miller Road and M-15. The Color Guard from the American Legion will head the parade as it proceeds down Main Street. Participants are urged to be at the Miller Road intersection and ready to get in position at 9:30 A.M.

Three cash prizes of $10 each will be offered. Several surrounding fire departments will be sending their equipment, and there will be floats from numerous clubs and the recreational playground units.

The Jayettes will be conducting an old fashioned ice cream social on the vacant lot north of the Clarkston News office.

Grinding crash kills 3 area teen-agers

Three Clarkston young people were killed and one remains in fair condition following an auto accident on Dixie Highway Saturday afternoon. It occurred at 2:39 P.M. on Waterford Hill.

Sheriff deputies report that the driver of the car, Andrew C. Houck 18, of 2401 Opdyke Road, Pontiac, the driver and two of his passengers, Mark Fearnow, 16, of 4733 Monterey, Clarkston, and Maribeth Jones, 16, of 5856 Mary Sue were reported dead on arrival at the hospital.

Janet Dougherty, 16, of 4816 Mohawk, also is in serious condition.

The impact of the two-car collision was so great that the 1963 Tempest in which the youths were riding was torn in half.

Driver of the car, a '67 Dodge, which was southbound was Michael W. Hanel, 18 of 3294 Frembes, Waterford. His passenger was Wayne Beutler, 17, of 3529 Frankman, Waterford. Although they received type A injuries they were treated at the hospital and released.

Sheriff officers state that Houck evidently lost control of the car and it was skidding sideways into the path of the other car. Officers are investigating reports that the car in which the youngsters were killed and another auto were seen drag racing prior to the crash. Andrew was a recent graduate of Clarkston High School and was employed at the Fisher Body Plant. His services were conducted at 1 p.m. Wednesday from Roth's Home for Funerals in Romeo. Burial followed at the McCafferty Cemetery in Romeo.

He is survived by his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. James Boughner of Clarkston; three brothers, including Robert at home; two sisters, Mrs. Jeanne Biolette of Pontiac and Wendy at home.

Services for Maribeth Jones were held on Tuesday morning at Our Lady of the Lakes Catholic Church. Burial took place in Lakeview Cemetery with arrangements by Donelson-Johns Funeral Home. A Rosary was said at the funeral home on Monday evening.

She was to be in the Junior Class next year at Clarkston

High School. She was a member of the School Chorus and was also a member of Our Lady of the Lakes Church.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard H. Jones of 5856 Mary Sue; three sisters, Mrs. JoAnn Allison of Rochester and Lynette and Jeanette and a brother, Leonard Jr.

Services for Mark who lived at 4733 Monterey were also on Wednesday. They were held from the William R. Potere Funeral Home in Rochester. Graveside services were at Batavia Cemetery in Batavia.

He was also a Junior at Clarkston High School.

His father Charles survives as do two brothers, Michael with the Army in Vietnam and Matthew at home; a sister, Beverly also at home; and grandparents Mr. and Mrs. William Tyler of Union City and Mr. and Mrs. Ford Green of Phoenix, Arizona.

Receives Silver Star for action in Vietnam of 5330 Cecelia Ann, Clarkston.

The action in which Baird was involved occurred on February 7. On that date, his company of the 1st Battalion, 12th Infantry, 4th Infantry division assaulted a heavily fortified enemy bunker complex near Kontum City.

On initial contact, the company sustained two casualties. A defensive perimeter was quickly formed to return the enemy's fire. Private First Class Baird, without regard for his own safety, moved from the perimeter through rocket grenade, machine and rifle fire to aid and evacuate his fallen comrades. Intense enemy fire was brought to bear upon Private Baird, and despite being wounded he continued to eliminate the enemy and help his wounded comrades to safety.

His citation reads as follows: "His courageous actions contributed to the saving of two lives and served as an inspiration to his fellow soldiers. Private First Class Baird's personal bravery and exemplary devotion to duty are in keeping with the highest traditions of the military service and reflect great credit upon himself, his unit and the United States Army."

Private Baird received injuries to his left arm and spent six weeks in the Base hospital near there following which he went to Taiwan for an extended R & R period. He is now back in the field again.

His parents are looking forward to his return home here in August. He was a 1966 graduate of Clarkston High School. He entered the service, February 14, 1967 and trained at Fort Knox, Kentucky and Fort Polk, Louisiana following which he went to Vietnam last year in August.

Private First Class, James D. Baird has been awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action in Vietnam. He is the 20 year old son of the James Bairds

Return from Boys State

Four Clarkston boys have returned from the 31st session of American Legion Wolverine Boy's State held at East Lansing.

They are Gary McMillan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McMillan of Seth Court, Mark Cowen son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cowen of Middle Lake Road, Richard Porritt the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Porritt of Bluegrass and Jim Navarre who is the son of the James Navarres of Wealthy Street.

The boys were selected to participate in a week-long "lab" course in government at city, county and state levels on the basis of leadership and scholastic standing. Over 1,290 youths got instruction from government professionals. The stress was on practical application rather than lectures and theory. They elected their own state, county and city officials in their own mythical 51st state.

One of the highlights of the week was an address to the boys by House Minority Leader Gerald Ford on Thursday evening. Ford is a member of the Legion Post in Grand Rapids.

Interwoven throughout the course was instruction in the many facets of government conducted by professionals — law classes were taught by attorneys; instruction in the court system was conducted by judges; and law enforcement by FBI agents and State Troopers.

Weekly Health Tip

from Keith Hallman

Are you concerned about aging skin? Recent medical reports indicate that excessive exposure to sunlight adds greatly to skin aging — more so than do the years of your age. Wrinkles and other signs of aging are more pronounced on areas of the body exposed to light. Excessive sun exposure is definitely harmful to the human skin.

Bear in the grease

BOB BEEMER

Like flies in the buttermilk, two by two ... only this was more exciting.

I said bears ran rampant every Spring in Canada. Big game angler, Carl Buechler from Oxford, can "bear" me out on it, too, (no pun intended).

Carl just returned from his annual trip to the wilds of Canada for fish with a true story.

Carl said he bought a tent a few years ago from a young couple. After a bear ran through it from one end to the other without opening the flap, they changed their minds about camping is a family sport. Now the tent is used primarily as a cook tent for Carl's fishing group. He said, "You have to be careful what you leave in the cook tent over night."

According to Carl all was quiet until 1 a.m. when the commotion woke the boys out of a sound sleep. Dashing out of their sleeping tents, flashlights showed Mr. Bruin charging out of a man sized rip in the back wall a-heading into the underbrush.

Early the next morning a check of the supplies revealed someone had left a large can of bacon grease on the table and the bear had ripped through the tent wall within four inches of the exact spot where the can lay. The well licked and empty empty can was found out in the bushes.

According to practice the incident was reported to the Department of Lands and Forests.

That same evening, the warden shot the bear, 300 pounds and prime in the peit which is unusual for spring bears. It appears as though the authorities in Canada do not like to have paying guests disturbed at their sport.

Michigan's Conservation Department will not recommend an elk season for 1968. The elk herd apparently is in balance with its range and there has been only one complaint of elk damage this year.

Under the Department's authority to hold elk seasons, it must be shown that the animals face food shortages or are causing substantial crop damage. Director, Ralph MacMullan, observed, "This just isn't the case, and that simply means we are not justified in recommending a season this year."

Fishing is not only great fun and sport for sportsmen but a real shot in the arm to our economy in Michigan.

Federal funds are currently being withheld from the lamprey control program here in Michigan. And the little devils are starting to get a good foothold again.

Much as we all hate it, we do need Federal aid and NOW. It's an election year and if your man in Washington is ever going to hear you out, this is the time.

Just ten letters from Clarkston can help. Will you be the writer of one?

Renewal of the program as being practiced before this lack of funds can mean as much as $20 million a year to Michigan's economy. Let's boost our sport and our state.

We waited a long time for a limited quail season. Finally the quail population became large enough to support a season.

Some of us are equally anxious to try our hands at dove shooting. And it would seem the Conservation Department may be headed in just that direction.

Field men for the Department are making a "coo" count right now in the Cadillac and Mio areas.

Personally, I counted eight pairs of doves between Metamora and Oxford on my way to the paper this morning. We may never see dove shooting like they have in the Southwest but even a four-bird limit on a permit basis would certainly be fun. Well, a guy can dream.

Breaks course record

Gordon Booker Jr. is hitting them again! Playing in the Riverview Invitational Junior Golf Tournament last week he took first place in the 10-12 age group. The tournament was played at Newton Falls, Ohio.

Coming in second was Chris Skellenger, another Clarkston youngster who attends school in Waterford.

Gordon even broke the course record by shooting 89 and 90.

On Dean's list

The Dean's List at Pontiac Business Institute for the spring term has been announced by Dean of Students, Howard Weaver. Named is Carolyn Trent, a graduate of Clarkston High School. In order to be eligible for the Dean's List a student must have a 3.75 average.

Leads group of Swiss executives

Families of the Waterford Rotary Club who hosted the seven Swiss men recently are enthusiastic over the success of the program. In cooperation with the Experiment in International Living, Putney, Vermont, these seven men arrived in Waterford on May 20. They spent until June 7 with the families, touring points of interest in the area and Michigan, and on that date left for the University of Massachusetts in Amherst where they will participate in a study program until July 19.

Following that, the group will be free to travel throughout the United States until August 7 when they depart for home.

Dr. Ashton Emery was one in charge of the Waterford program and the Emerys were hosts to the leader of the group, Mr. Hans Ulrich. All seven men were Junior Executives on a Training program. Ulrich is associated with Datwyler Ltd, a cable, wire and rubber works in the sales department. He has also had considerable banking experience, and is a Captain in the Swiss Army Reserve.

Following the completion of the college study in Amherst, which involves study of American business methods, Mr. Ulrich's wife will join him here in the States and following a period of travel, they will be returning to spend more time with the Emerys in Waterford.

Families who hosted the group were the Don Tatroses, the James Boazes, the Frank Williamsons, the Eldean Chews, the Russell Grinnells and the Carlos Richardsons. While here they toured an automobile plant production line and offices; a dairy farm and local processing plant; business offices of Waterford Township Schools; the State Legislature; regional offices of a large retail food chain; business offices of a large department store; the Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village and Cranbrook.

The "Experiment" is a non-profit organization with affiliates in 60 countries. This type of program has been in existence since 1932 and this year will find over 3,000 persons coming to the States from more than 100 different nations. Likewise there will be approximately 2,500 young Americans who will visit Europe, Latin America, the Middle East, Asia and Africa through similar programs.

Club tours Children's village

The Clarkston Child Study Club suspended their regular business meeting and on June 6 went on a tour of Oakland County's Children's Village and Children's Center School. After the interesting tour the group held a luncheon at Jaysons.

The newly elected officers are: President, Mrs. Robert Brumback; vice-president, Mrs. Robert Beattie; second-vice-president, Mrs. Glenn Brancheau; Secretary, Mrs. Joseph Gardner; and Treasurer, Mrs. Ripley Crandell; and historian Mrs. Cliff Irwin.

What would your wife say if you came home with an Olds tonight?

You've probably been talking new cars. So it's mainly the fact that it's an Olds she'll be reacting to, right? So...

If she's the practical type, she'll blow a gasket. Because she thinks an Olds is more car than you were planning to buy.

You'll have to talk fast and make the point that this Cutlass cost less than many of the low-priced "names" you looked at. Now, if she's the emotional type she won't care about details. She'll take one look at Cutlass and kiss you. Then she'll look at that plush Cutlass interior, and kiss you again. Either way, you'll be a hero tonight.

Gardening Tips

Editors Note—This is the first in a series of garden articles which will be presented as a courtesy to readers from the local Garden Club.

We may be late with this hint, but if you have not already cut back your tulips and daffodils, cut off only the dead blooms. The foliage feeds the bulb, as does the iris leaf, and should be left until it wilts down. Dead lilac blooms and seeds should also be cut off one month after blooming to promote better growth for the following year.

When using commercial fertilizers, bear in mind the numbers signify the proportion of ingredients: for instance, a 12-12-12 mixture indicates 12 parts nitrogen (for growth) 12 parts phosphorus (for bloom), and 12 parts pot ash (for root system).

The mixture however proportioned, is always in that order, nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. The 12-12-12 mixture may be used in setting out flower plants. Sprinkle ground where planting at rate of one teaspoon per plant, worked in well, with an additional teaspoon mixed thoroughly in the soil of the hole where each plant is placed.

As you cut flowers for use in the house, carry with you a container of water. Flowers form an air bubble in the cut stem very quickly and unless plunged immediately in water (better warm or tepid than cold), will be unable to absorb the proper amount of moisture.

County supervisor position to change in new plan

For the first time since Michigan statehood, the county supervisors will be elected next fall directly to the county boards from their own districts.

Dr. Alvin E. House, agricultural economics extension specialist at Michigan State University, says the new supervisor position is going to have new characteristics and prestige.

The authority on public policy and local government from MSU explains:

"The board will not be made up of members who are also township board chairmen, tax assessors or city officials. The make-up of the boards will probably hasten the trend toward handing over administrative details of county government to specialized administrative officials.

"Boards will spend more time considering alternative parts of comprehensive development plans for their areas. This should make the position more attractive to local leaders who desire to serve their community, but heretofore have not had the time or interest to serve under the old system.

"State and Federal government agencies are increasingly looking to county government as the key local programming link in the chain of governments," adds House. "County government is taking on functions of true area government. It is the only government jurisdiction we have which collectively covers the entire area of Michigan.

"This is vitally important to problems of regulating and serving communities which spill over boundaries of dozens of local government jurisdictions within the county."

The MSU specialist says, "It has been almost impossible to get all cities, townships and special districts to work in concert to solve urgent total community problems that cover several counties. Under the new setup, county boards, working individually and in groups, can become full partners with state and federal agencies in developing the kinds of communities the people desire."

Under the present time table candidates for the new position must file by mid-June unless some extension of time is granted, House explains. Some counties may be held up by legal questions, but the courts could allow the majority of counties to proceed to carry out their board reorganization plans.

Ma!!! Come and get us off this table, quick.

Calls for gun control

Gary R. Frink, Democratic candidate for Congress from the 19th District, has called for enactment of gun control measures presently pending in the U.S. Senate.

Frink, speaking Friday evening before a meeting of the Independence Township Democratic Club at the township hall in Clarkston, urged those present to support passage of the legislation by writing their legislators.

The 35-year-old Pontiac attorney also criticized the National Rifle Association (NRA), which has opposed restrictions on gun sales, and "all others who prefer punishment to prevention in matters of crime control."

"During my years in Washington, I saw no more vicious distortion of fact than that employed by the NRA in its fight against gun control," Frink asserted.

"In the past three months, America has lost two of her great leaders," the candidate said, adding that West Germany, by contrast, has had only one attempted political murder since World War II—despite having nearly half the population of the United States.

"How long," he continued, "can we allow the power of a privileged few to overrule the right of all our citizens to walk the streets of our cities in safety?"

Frink began his speech by citing statistics linking the indiscriminate sale of firearms with the growth of crime in this country.

Firearms are involved, on the average, in about 60 per cent of the murders committed in the U.S., he said, as well as two-thirds of all armed robberies, and nearly a fifth of all aggravated assaults.

"In 1965, there were 85,000 gun crimes; in 1966, there were over 100,000; and figures for 1967 indicate a comparable increase," Frink continued.

Such evidence, he added, coupled with an annual increase of 20 per cent in crimes of violence nationally, makes the leadership of Congress in gun control a necessity.

Receive degrees

Four Clarkston students took part in commencement exercises at Ferris State College on Sunday, June 16.

The record number of graduates (1,490) included students who had completed their programs of study in the summer, fall, and winter terms, as well as in the spring quarter. Approximately 7,000 persons attended the colorful ceremonies. Dr. Emens gave the commencement address.

From Clarkston the following received these degrees: Dale K. Humbert of 6440 Snowapple, A.A.D. General Education; Ward H. Robbins, 6495 Waldon, B.S. Trade-Technical Education; Carl W. Wilberg, 9520 Sashabaw, B.S. Pharmacy; and Daniel B. Williams, 9288 Sashabaw, A.A.S. Surveying and Topographical Drafting Technology.

Wayne State U graduates

Degrees were awarded to 3,578 candidates at Wayne State University Tuesday night, June 18. Two Clarkston people received their degrees at that time. They are Kris Suurna of 6103 Middle Lake Road who was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree and John Patrick Ryan of 6596 Maple Drive who received his Master of Education degree.

The program concluded the year-long observance of WSU's Centennial Year. As part of the University's Centennial celebration all those receiving degrees have been designated Centennial graduates.

Receives Masters

Henry L. Parsons of Clarkston has been awarded the Master of Science degree from the University of Oregon. It was the 91st annual commencement and was held on Sunday, June 9. The University is located in Eugene, Oregon. Nearly 1500 baccalaureate degrees were granted along with 54 advanced professional degrees, some 480 Master's degrees and 79 doctorates.

Attend services in the church of your choice

Frank A. Cozadd
First Methodist Church

You may be a church member who has trouble accepting the fact that the Church has a role to play and a word to say in social, economic, and political issues. You may think that the Church should confine itself to "spiritual" matters. (This is what the Communist wants the Church to do, too!) I don't know what solely "spiritual" matters are. Our spiritual life is not something that floats around in the air in a nebulous fashion, but rather it is the principle around which we order our material lives. Does not the whole world belong to God?

You may feel that the Church should not get involved because these matters are controversial. Is it not true that all important matters are controversial? The biggest failure of the Church is that it has been silent—silent before Auschwitz, silent before racism, silent before militarism; silent before the corporation, silent before labor.

God has a will for our community, our state, our nation, and our world as well as for each personal life. Our problem has been to discern what that will is. The only way is to become relevant in our thinking and speaking to the world we live in. This brings resistance because the Church has so often spoken in vague generalities. Read the Prophets in the Bible. Read the accusations of Jesus against the political, social, and religious leaders of His day. They were relevant.

May we have the courage to speak and to listen to the message that God has for us relative to our world today.

THE CLARKSTON (Mich.) NEWS Thurs., June 27, 1968 7

We can hardly wait

A study by the Southern California Research Council, a nonprofit organization for economic and social inquiries sponsored by educational and business groups, prophesies that within 17 years Americans will have to work only six months a year for the same standard of living that they have now. Presumably, this means that six-month vacations will be the rule by 1985.

Another recent press report quotes Special Assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs, Betty Furness, to the effect that one of the things that bothers consumers most now is trying to get an automobile or home appliance repaired. As our homes become increasingly automated and gadgetized, the problem of keeping everything in running order grows apace. Think of what it will be like when repair experts pace. Think what it will be like when repair experts work only six months of the year. It seems rather strange to contemplate millions of Americans spending six months of every year in leisure during the most productive time of life.

Watch those Saturdays

The Sunday driver has long been the target of jokes, but according to a survey by an insurance company the Saturday shopper may be more of a menace.

More fatal accidents occur on Saturdays (21.6 percent) than on any other day. Sunday takes "second honors" (18.3 percent).

A spokesman said drivers should pay attention to traffic — not store windows. "A moment's distraction can cause a lifetime of agony," he added.

More than 52,500 deaths and 4,400,000 injuries were caused by highway accidents last year. Of these, more than 11,000 deaths and 809,000 injuries occurred on Saturdays. Tuesdays recorded the lowest number of deaths and injuries.

Passenger cars were involved in nearly 80 percent of all fatal accidents and almost 90 percent of all non-fatal accidents. Commercial vehicles, driven many more miles per year than passenger cars, were involved proportionately in twice as many fatal accidents as non-fatal accidents. Motorcycles, which constitute less than two percent of all registered vehicles, were involved in more than two percent of all highway fatalities last year.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Bury me not on the lone fairway

By Jim Fitzgerald

A Massachusetts man has been buried beneath the 18th green at his favorite golf course. I guess he was dead.

If I am ever buried on a golf course it will be because I committed suicide there and no one would drag my body away.

Golf is an incredibly stupid game. Hit a ball and then look for it and then hit it again. I don't know why I play. Tennis is really my game but I can never get a court. It has been 24 years since I played tennis which will give you an idea how crowded the courts are — and how hard I've tried to get one.

I often tell people I was once tennis champ of Port Huron. Usually, I tell them after I play golf with them. I want them to understand that golf is too slow a game for an athlete of my vigorous abilities. Any old man can play golf, I tell them with a sneer as I pay what I owe for losing 18 holes, 3 balls and 1 friend who was my partner.

"Yes," the golfers with my money usually say, "but fat old men can't play tennis so it is easy to see why you switched to golf."

That's another thing I've discovered about golf — a lot of wise guys play it. They are always saying things that upset my game and my stomach.

For instance, I slam my usual drive smack down the center, at least 30 feet. "That won't hurt you," says Harvey Hustler. What he means is that lousy drive won't kill me, it will just leave me maimed and limping. It is the loudest shot he ever saw and 15 more just like it might get me on the green which is that pretty patch of grass with the hole in it in case I've never been there before.

Another thing Harvey often says is, "You had the distance." This means I should have hit the ball 200 yards and, by golly, I did hit it 200 yards. The trouble is I should have hit it north but I hit it south.

The reverse of this comes when Harvey says, "You hit it right on line." This means I pounded that ball straight at the hole, 350 yards away. But the ball went only 20 yards.

And at the end of the game as he takes my money, Harvey explains that I got a lot of tough breaks out there today, while he was lucky, and if a couple of putts had dropped for me it would have been a different story, fella, and my game is getting better all the time and I'm sure to get my money back next week.

Harvey knows it wouldn't help my game if I were Arnold Palmer's little brother. He knows if a long putt had dropped for me I would have got 7 on the hole, instead of 8. He knows I have been playing the stupid game for 15 years and I still address the ball as if I'm afraid it will attack my right foot. He knows all these things but he still mouths the bologna for fear I might quit playing him and he'd have to get his booze money by some more honorable means — such as pawing his mother's wheelchair.

The only time Harvey's language gets precise is when he asks for my score on a hole.

"Let's see," I say, and then I get a faraway look in my eyes and move my lips slowly as my mind backtracks through 2 traps, the right rough, the woods on the left, a rockpile, the freeway, the bushes by the pro shop and that lake where 2 fishermen threatened to sue. "I think I got a 5."

"You got an 11," Harvey says, and writes it down — in ink.

I don't know what bugs me worse, his fountain pen or the money changer he wears on his belt.

But back to the Massachusetts man. I wasn't kidding. His name was Edward Faber and his ashes are buried beneath the 18th green at Stow Acres Country Club in Stow, Mass. Cremation was necessary because the greenskeeper didn't want lumps in the green.

Faber requested the unusual burial site in his will. "He just loved the game so much and this is what he really wanted," his widow explained.

Owners of the club are so enthusiastic about the idea they plan to erect a plaque to mark the grave. The possibilities do appear promising. Why not a grave or two at every green, and perhaps some by the traps and rough? A guy wouldn't mind attending a funeral, if he could chip up onto the burying surface. Of course, the undertaker would have to add a few services — such as caddies for pallbearers — but I'm sure all such problems could be solved with a minimum of keening.

Just so long as slow funerals allow faster funerals to play through.

Onward and Upward.

Another Day

Turn of the century

There weren't too many telephones in Clarkston village close past the turn of the century. There were enough, however, to make it necessary to have a switchboard in town. Fourteen year old Jessie Lewis hurried from her last class at the brick school on Main Street to the phone office every afternoon where she worked as a sub operator. This was her Saturday job, too, and for all these hours of work she received $1.25 a week.

For many years, phones were only in the homes of the more affluent or in remote places where there were no near neighbors. In fact, before any installation of services came about, a certain number of people had to pledge to have phones put in their homes.

There was no separate building for the telephones office. In a small 6 x 8 area in the Henry Garter furniture store, stood the switchboard with its operator's chair. The space was not even enclosed, and young Jessie, when the board showed no incoming calls, was free to sit there and chat with the customers or watch the Saturday crowds clatter past on the board sidewalks.

Until long past the first World War, one of the things that drew farmers into Clarkston was the grist mill. From the time of the mills gave the area some of its economic security. Many of the farmers, such as Durwood Lewis, Jessie's father, would bring the sacks of grain into the mill, and return several days later for the flour. Some farm housewives, like Mrs. Lewis, wanted their flour ground to certain specifications, containing the quantity of bran suitable for their baking needs. Of course, it was possible to bring in the sacks of grain and take home an equitable amount of flour. The five Lewis children were delighted that their mother's pride in her cooking prompted a return trip to the mill at each grinding.

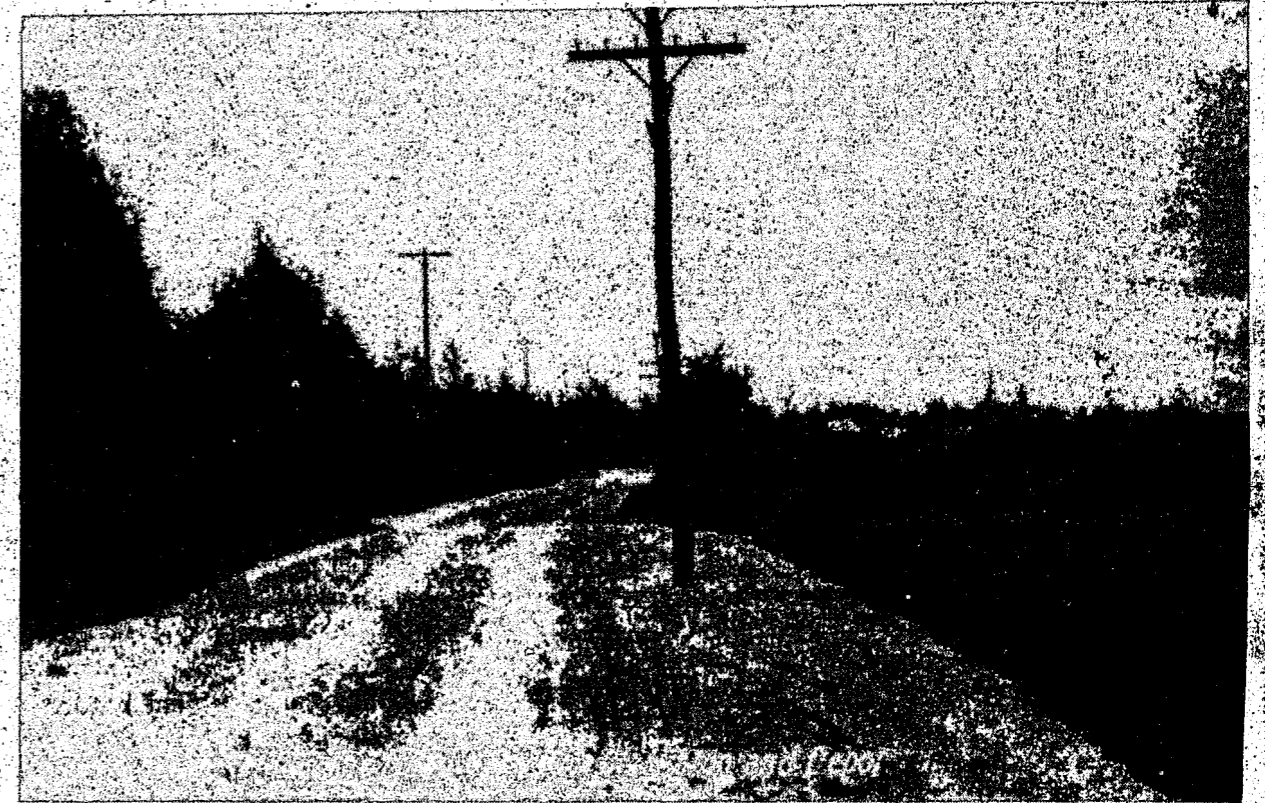

Jessie's grandfather, Ira Lewis, a French Canadian, had come down from Canada and York state many years ago to settle near Clarkston. Now his son Durwood lived on a farm located on the corner of what is now M-15 and Dixie Highway, opposite the present day shopping center. At that time, the highway was referred to as Saginaw Trail and was no more than a hard-packed dirt road, giving only enough room for two wagons to pass. The nearest neighbors were the Green family, Wash Green who lived on their side of the road in the square white house that is still standing, and Frank who lived on the other side of the trail in an identical house that fell some time ago to the call of progress.

Narrow little trails, nicknamed quail tracks led from the Lewis farm to Green and Dollar lakes where the children went for fishing and swimming. Saginaw Trail at that point, didn't follow the same route it does today. Crossing the Trail about a mile from the Lewis farm was an old wooden bridge that wouldn't take too much steady traffic. In order to go farther north, it was necessary to go into the village, down the planked Depot Road and out across what is now Deer Lake Road which wound back up to the Trail.

It wasn't until cars were beginning to be popular that a new bridge was put in and the Trail was widened. The Lewis children sat on the fence and watched as teams and wagon loads of workers came in to cut and drag away the trees and underbrush. The new portion of the Trail cut through on a more direct route but it was a sand road. For many years Durwood Lewis provided unofficial road service for improvident drivers. Many a night's sleep was interrupted by a plea to please bring his team and haul a car out of the sandy pits of the new road.

The Lewis's had a prosperous farm, with potatoes as their money crop. They raised their own horses for farming as well as riding and carriage horses. The one thing that marred the happy family life was Mrs. Lewis's health. A bad heart condition made frequent trips to the doctor necessary. Jessie, as the oldest child, was sent out, often late at night, to get the doctor. This meant many lonely, unlighted trips down the road to the village, past fields and woods, past the darkened and silent Fleming's farmhouse that sprawled on the west side of the road, past the Voorheis home, until she reached the Sutherland house. A small child, she could not mount the horse without assistance and she was afraid to dismount for fear she could not get back on the huge farm animal. On one occasion, unable to rouse any one by calling from the road, she drove the horse across the wide lawn, past the proud flower beds that were D. Sutherland's joy and up to the porch. Here she stopped and shouted until the noise brought the doctor to the window. The good doctor, who never refused a call, followed Jessie back to the farm in his own carriage, pushing past her along the road to reach his patient.

The Depot Road was an important link to the Saginaw Trail.

Long before the roads were paved, telephone poles lined the way to the village. In the left background stands the old Clarkston Mill.

In the winter, a half hour ride in a cutter took the Lewis family into Pontiac where they purchased the things that couldn't be obtained in the village.

There were yearly shopping expeditions to buy such things as their fashionable high button shoes for the girls and the heavy winter coats that protected them as their cutter and team struggled through the snowdrifts that clogged the road into the village. A time of living that despite its hardships, people still refer to as golden years.

Our thanks to Mrs. Jessie Kramer, the former Jessie Lewis, of Oakwood Road.

The Henry Garter store is now Bob's Hardware.

Preliminary plans for new sub approved by twp.

A bid was accepted at the last meeting of the Independence Township Board for two new chassis for firefighting equipment. The bid submitted by Tom Rademacher Chevrolet for $14,462 was the lowest of two bids. These had been received by Fire Chief Don Beach, studied by the fire department group and it was recommended to the board that the bid be accepted.

Preliminary plans for a new housing development to be located at the corner of Pine Knob and Clarkston Roads were accepted. They had already been approved by the county road commission, the health department and the drain commission.

To be known as Pine Knob North the development will contain 55 lots in Section 14. The applicants are Robert C. Dieball and Donald Arsen. Mr. Dieball is the township planning consultant and Mr. Arsen is with the Waterford School system.

Rezoning application fees have been raised from $75 to $150 with this added amount still not covering expenses entailed, according to township officials.

An attorney from the Greenfield Construction Company in Livonia was present at the meeting. His company wants to do gravel mining at the old Stickney Road gravel pit. It is located near Sashabaw Road. No action was taken by the board until they could hold an on-site inspection and talk with the township attorney and review the request. Work has been suspended there recently because of a Circuit Court judgment.

In other action, Supervisor Hursfall stated that another public hearing will be held next winter relative to closing parts of the township to hunting. Action already taken is too late to limit such hunting for this fall.

There was also provision made to establish a counting board for absentee ballots. This is necessary under a new ruling made in the state election laws.

SECTION THREE THE CLARKSTON (Mich.) NEWS Thurs., June 27, 1968 9

"Orbit launched successfully"

Twenty-two boys and girls in Clarkston Elementary School ended their careers as "poor readers" this year, thanks to Mrs. Hazel Moore and the ORBIT project.

ORBIT is a Federally funded project, a part of the Oakland Schools Title III program in improving teaching of the Language Arts. Mrs. Moore was responsible for the Clarkston phase of its operation. The project was intended to demonstrate the value of intensive reading instruction for boys and girls who were significantly below grade level in reading ability.

All fifth and sixth graders were tested early in the year, 98, as a result of the testing, indicated some need of extra help. The 32 children whose need was greatest were chosen for intensive help; 48 others were given one day a week coaching. The intensive group had four half hour sessions a week in groups of eight.

Mrs. Moore, armed with a stop watch, window shade scraps, ten series of basil readers and 13 series of workbooks, began with the children in September. The stop watch and the window shade scraps, on which she had written vocabulary words, turned out to be a most effective way of teaching rapid recognition of words. Boys who had been reluctant even to try to read words aloud worked to shave seconds off their previous times in calling out ten words.

"Plenty of reading and workbook material at the right level was equally important," said Mrs. Moore. "The boys and girls could learn immediately the uses of the words they had just learned to recognize."

The most spectacular winner in the ORBIT class was a boy whose reading ability jumped more than five grade levels. Twenty-four students registered two years or more of growth in reading ability when end of the year tests were compared with September tests.

Two children made no advances in vocabulary and four none in reading comprehension, despite the gains of their classmates.

"We have yet to find the 100 percent way to teach reading," concluded Mrs. Moore, "but as a result of what we learned in the ORBIT program we are closer to 100 percent this year than we were last."

All costs of ORBIT were paid through Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. Mrs. Moore received special training in working with poor readers during a two months session at Oakland Schools last year.

Brian G. DiPietro, a June graduate of Clarkston High School, has entered Michigan State University on June 16. Brian, in the past two years has been attending workshop courses in creative arts at Olivet College.

He has a brother John, who is a pre-engineering student at Eastern Michigan University.

Brian and John are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. John DiPietro of 6279 Snowapple Drive.

Their mother is a teacher in the Clarkston school system.

CLEM CLEVELAND

Seldom do I drive a nail into a board without bending it several times. I'm a total failure when it comes to using a hand saw and with power tools. I could completely demolish the house in minutes.

It figures that when I start a project around our house, the kids run for cover and Calhoun keeps a steady eye on my quivering hand. This last project was a beaut. Mainly I started it because I hate door-to-door salesmen.

Before I go any further and start getting telephone calls from the International Society for the Protection and Preservation of Doorbell Bangers... follows, there isn't anything that you can tell me about the service you perform, or how indispensable you are to the economy of this country. I know your business like I do my own.

Take for example a certain vacuum cleaner outfit that goes around twisting the arms of beautiful married women. They've visited our house many times. When I'm home, I throw 'em out. But, when Cal's there by her lonesome, she's sympathetic and will listen to their song-and-dance. She doesn't buy, but she's distraught when I get home. She feels that she has wasted her day. I don't blame her, I'd feel the same way.

Cal's old vacuum has reached the point of either being totally rebuilt or replaced. We were certain not to call that certain vacuum cleaner outfit that has turned many of our days into a living nightmare.

We're always game for something new and different. A friend of ours has a central vacuum installed in his house. At first the idea of a central vacuum sounded like something you'd turn on and everything in the house would be automatically sucked up including the children.

Seeing the friend's central unit, we were, at least I was, disappointed. It wouldn't suck up children and animals and make them disappear. It was just a large size vacuum tank that is attached to the wall of his garage and has pipes leading from it to outlets in his house. All he does is plug a giant snakey length of flexible hose to it and cleans his house. It works just like any other vacuum sweeper.

When Cal saw it, her eyes lighted up and she said, "This is the kind that I want."

I tried to convince her that our house is old. To install a vacuum sweeper like that would require the talents of a plumber, electrician and house wrecker. She agreed with me and said, "I don't see what the problem is, you're all three. Mostly the last."

I was convinced. The local dealer for this outfit is C & C Hardware. Bob, one of the guys that works around there assured me that there wasn't too much to installing the unit. He said that they were installing them all the time. He failed to say that they were installing them in homes under construction and that he had never installed one into an old house before.

All the junk got delivered. Trying to avoid the job, I spent hours pouring over the instruction manual. It didn't tell me anything that I didn't already know. The job was going to be a stinker.

Bringing the piping up from the basement to the main floor was no problem. Getting upstairs was. I decided to run the pipe through a utility closet and bored a hole through the ceiling.

Using a power drill, the dried plaster disintegrated into a shower of fine powder. I don't know from where the children came. They took one look at the clouds pouring from the closet. Fear lined their tiny faces. I was going to say something sweet to them when, I don't know which one it was, slammed the door shut. I heard them running to their mommy saying, "Hey Maw, daddy is blowing up the house. It's all right though, we locked him in the closet."

When I finally got out, I couldn't find a child around. They, including mommy, had disappeared. I was so discombobulated, that when I drilled the hole down through our bedroom floor, it was supposed to match up with the one drilled in the ceiling of the closet! I missed the lining the holes up by three feet.

Difficult to believe, I did get the thing installed and it does work. There is one satisfaction from getting a job like that completed. Chances are good that it won't have to be done again, ever, or something.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

With the coming of summer, we thought this would be a fine opportunity to thank you and The Clarkston News for the wonderful support given the Clinton Valley Council these past months.

Scouting is growing in this area. Currently we have more than 15,000 boys and adult volunteers involved in the program, and we hope to reach even more boys in the immediate future.

Again, on behalf of all the Scouts and their leaders, may I say how much we appreciate your help. We hope to continue to merit your confidence.

Sincerely,
George R. DeCourcy,
