

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

Bud Guest, WJR's Sunny Side of the Streeter, got me to thinking the other day about jobs I've had. I couldn't top the number mentioned by a printer in Lapeer, but it was fun recalling some of the ways I've earned coin.

As you read this, maybe you'll think back to some occupations you tried your hand at. If you do, why not jot them down and send them to me.

The first job I recall having was cutting asparagus. Had to cut those stems about 6 inches high starting a half-inch below the ground.

The first sales I tried was selling corn cobs for kindling. Some of us 10-11-year-olds would fill a gunny sack or two with corn cobs given us by Bancroft elevator and go door to door seeking a nickel for our product. Sales were few in 1936-37 and I can't remember what I bought with the money.

To earn money to buy some "goodies" at the free show I'd pick up discarded bottles along M-78 and turn them into cash. One day I worked as a corn husker and for a few days I picked potatoes.

While living in Owosso, I caddied at Owosso Country Club the summer of 1940, and that same summer three of us hitch-hiked to Traverse City to make a killing picking cherries. I never earned a dime.

I think of that trip often. I was 13. I wouldn't think of allowing my son to do that. And, I wonder why my folks did. Probably times and people both have changed.

For a couple years I peddled the Owosso Argus Press for George and J. Evans Campbell, though I didn't know them personally then.

I also mowed lawns at various times, clerked in Kaufman's men's store in Owosso, worked in a book store on campus and as a bus boy at the Burdick Hotel in Kalamazoo, while at WMU in 1943-44.

For a while I tried selling insulation door to door, but I quit after 3 weeks without making one sale.

Then to the newspaper business, first selling ads and printing and now running the joint.

I may have had more jobs, but I can't remember them. It was fun thinking of them, though.

Parade time 10 a.m.

Memorial Day observance

The celebration of Memorial Day originated about 102 years ago when General John A. Logan, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, gave an order that every post of the organization should conduct suitable exercises and should decorate the graves of its dead comrades with flowers.

The order, issued in 1868, now extends to the memory of the dead of all wars in which the United States of America has been engaged.

Gradually the custom has grown and become part of our lives and now includes decorating the graves of families and friends as well.

"With these thoughts in mind," said Adjutant Floyd Tower, "the Campbell-Richmond Post 63 of Clarkston invites everyone in the community to join us in our Memorial Day observance honoring those veterans."

The parade will start at 10 a.m. at the Salvation Army Church on Buffalo and Church Streets, and will end at the Veterans Plot in Lakeview Cemetery.

The parade will be headed by the Legion's color guard and rifle squad. Following will be WWI Veterans riding in cars, Independence Veterans, Civil Air Patrol, Clarkston Senior High, Clarkston Junior High and Sashabaw Junior High School bands. They will be joined by Sea Scouts, Explorers, Boy Scouts, Webelos, Cub Scouts, Girl Scouts, Brownies, Campfire Girls, Boy's Brigade, Pioneer Girls, DeMolay and Job's Daughters.

Several years ago Terry Thomas, a local veteran, enlisted about 18 friends and neighbors who had been in the service but were not affiliated with the Legion. They showed their respect as they joined the Veterans in the parade. These men and any other veterans are urged to again join the Veterans. For uniformity they are requested to wear dark trousers, white shirts and dark ties.

For the 29th year, Everett Butters will recite the Gettysburg Address. Duane Hursfall, Township Supervisor, will deliver the Memorial address and Commander Paul Pety of Post 63 with John Lynch, president of the Veterans' Association, will present memorial wreaths.

Special music will be provided by a vocal group from Clarkston High School, assisted by the high school band.

Children who participate in the services will be treated with popsicles when they return to the Village immediately following the ceremony.

Spokesmen for the Legion remind parade viewers that the flag should command their respect. They hope that this respect will be shown as the flag passes. They further suggest that children riding bicycles be careful and not ride through the ranks.

Because the purpose of the parade is patriotic and respectful, antique cars, floats, horses, pets or decorated bicycles will not be permitted to participate.

Groups that are marching in the parade are asked to form at the meeting place at 9:30 a.m.

Four of Clarkston's Legionnaires, Veterans of World War I, who took part in last year's Memorial Day observance are, from the left, Orrie Adams, Herbert Baynes, George Hanson and Cliff Waterbury.

Meet the candidate

The Clarkston Education Association, according to its president, George White, will sponsor a public forum "To Meet the Candidates" who are running for the vacancy on the school board in the June 8 election.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Clarkston Senior High auditorium on June 2.

David Leak and Mrs. Ingrid Smith, the 2 candidates, will answer questions that will be presented to them prior to the meeting. When these are completed, questions will be permitted from the floor.

Barton Conners will act as moderator.

Trail date set

At the May 22 examination of Gary Locklar, 18, on charges of selling marijuana, Judge Kenneth Hempstead bound him over to circuit court.

Locklar will be tried by Judge James Thorburn on June 11.

The youth was arrested along with Michael Taylor, 17, by the Oakland County Sheriff's deputies on April 20 in Waterford Township.

Taylor was charged with aiding and abetting. His examination, originally set for May 12, has been adjourned until June 16.

CEA says Board didn't follow rules

The public hearing requested by Richard Schadel, Clarkston High School band director, after he was denied tenure on March 9, was held by the Clarkston School Board on May 18.

The meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m. was called to order at 8:30. Approximately 40 persons attended the meeting in addition to the School Board, administration and legal counsel.

Early in the meeting it was established that the only thing to be discussed was the grievance. Thomas Schwartz represented the School Board.

Donald Cameron, Michigan Education Association (MEA) representative, who assisted Mrs. Carolyn Mosher, chairman of the Grievance Committee of the Clarkston Education Association (CEA) asked to read a brief filed by the CEA on behalf of Schadel.

The board agreed that they would hear the brief and inform the grievant of their decision on May 25.

Cameron then read the brief in which the CEA contended that the Board of Education had failed to adhere to specific contractual agreements. The CEA claimed that the Board of Education had not complied with terms of the master agreement in 3 instances.

The brief contended they had failed to evaluate Schadel at least twice during the school year. They contended that the observations were not conducted openly and with the full knowledge of the teacher. And, thirdly, they contended that a written evaluation was not completed and signed by the principal and the teacher within 2 weeks of said observation.

On May 25, Board Secretary Walter Wilberg, in the absence of President Weber, called the meeting to order.

A small audience of about 15 people heard Mr. Wilberg say, "In as much as this is personal business, as is his personal file, we have decided not to read our answer to Mr. Schadel's grievance publicly."

Wilberg then presented Schadel, Mrs. Mosher and George White with copies of the board's answer to Schadel's complaint.

With no further business scheduled, the meeting was adjourned.

It was learned from Mrs. Mosher (with Schadel's permission) that the Board of Education affirmed its decision to terminate Schadel's services. They contended in their answer that at least 2 evaluations had taken place, that the observations had been conducted openly and with full knowledge of the grievant and that the written evaluation was given to Schadel within 2 weeks.

After Monday's meeting Walter Wilberg said, "The answers to the CEA charges were all covered by the Board at the March 9 meeting when the decision to deny Mr. Schadel tenure was originally reached."

The next step open to the CEA in defense of Schadel is to ask for arbitration. They have 10 days to make this request to the Board in writing. After that, 10 more days are allowed for agreement on an arbitrator.

Letters to the Editor

Think in township terms, support life's investment

Dear Editor,

The home owners of Independence Twp. had better wake up to what is going on. The master plan we originally adopted and paid $7,000 for (our share), is now in the hands of another planner. Any proposed changes should be scrutinized very carefully. There was little political overtone, and I believe an honest effort was put forth by Mr. Deibold on our original plan.

I am of the opinion that people do not realize that the municipality has a great deal of authority in governing itself since the zoning act 184 P.A. 1943 was passed.

We also have a Planning Commission, which I doubt we need after hearing the Director, Mr. Parker, state "that you can't keep a man from doing what he wants to do with his own property" at the public hearing on the Waterford Hill Shopping Mall.

The fact is we do need a strong Planning Commission to protect our property rights. A home is the biggest investment a family makes in its lifetime, and spends from 15 to 35 years paying for it.

Yet, in a few years we may look back and say "what has happened to our once beautiful and quaint surroundings?" as we stare at a midway of lights with every franchise from Catfish to Uncle Dukey's Duck, with apartments and trailer courts glaring us in the face.

The time has come for every home owner to be concerned enough to attend the meetings and voice his feelings. The best remarks I have heard thus far have been the spontaneous voices of those who had to come because these developments were being put in their back yards.

Do not wait until you need help and are faced with such a dilemma, but think in terms of the township and support your life's investment. Be united as a township instead of just local neighbors fighting a losing battle.

This might mean financial help also, to fight court battles. With close to 18,000 residents in Independence Twp., an average pledge of $5.00 would bring in $90,000 for round one. This would be a small asking price for what can be accomplished. Do not think for a moment that it cannot be done.

Recently I made mention of the conflict of interest in regard to an engineer of Kieft Eng., Inc. of Clarkston sitting on the Planning Commission. This, however, has apparently been ignored by Mr. Hursfall, who appoints them (with Board approval), for he still sits on the commission.

You people might also be reminded that at the annual township board meeting it was Mr. Howard Kieft who made the motion of giving a $2,000 raise to Mr. Hursfall, who has more than once been criticized in public for after hours dealings in real estate.

The attitude of today is "don't get involved," or "let him have his say, then ignore him, he'll go away."

Therefore, I say to you, "There are millions of people who lie six feet under who never once took issue with anything in their life, but friend, when you are living in this world today, life is an issue."

Weeps while reading Fitz

Dear Editor:

I rushed through The County Press and failed to read your column (which I usually read). Today a friend in Dryden was talking with me on the telephone and asked if I read it. She said I must do so at once for it was great. She wept while reading it. (About youth wounded in Vietnam.)

I looked it up. I confess the same reaction. I wish it had larger circulation, for it may well prove to be a classic. Thanks for writing it and congratulations on a heart and an art that is of real value to others.

Poppy sale successful

Dear Editor:

Commander Paul Tety, and Lou Seffens, Chairman of the Campbell-Richmond Post 63 Poppy Sales, report that it is a pleasure to work with people as generous as those in the Clarkston area. This generosity made this year's poppy sale a huge success.

The women's auxiliary plays an important role in assisting with the sale, and business people are to be commended for allowing us to stand at their front doors.

Of course, we especially appreciate the courtesy shown by the Pontiac State Bank in staying after closing hours to assist in auditing our collection.

Questions school, Board

Dear Editor:

Is my son, Alan, suspended, expelled, or just what, from the high school?

As of yet, I have not been notified in writing as to the particulars. I've been told varying reports.

Isn't it expected to be informed in writing from the high school principal or the school board if he has been suspended or expelled and if so, for what reason and for how long?

Two weeks have gone by for this vital situation to be put in writing and signed by someone up there.

Iva May Caverly

Editor's note: Mr. William Dennis, principal, was contacted and informed the News that Mrs. Caverly had been notified of her son's circumstances, by mail, during the past week.

Please extend my subscription for another year of pleasant reading.

Thank you,

Fame is mowed down

By Jim Fitzgerald

I bought a lawn mower. Oh, how the mighty have fallen.

A man earns only a few claims to fame in the ordinary lifetime. My claims have always been negative. That is, I've been proud of myself for the things I HAVEN'T done. Anybody with the usual quota of bones and brains can do things. It takes a man of real character to resist all temptations and NOT do things.

For instance, I have never seen Bonanza. Not once. Can you imagine? This has been one of the nation's most-watched TV shows for years. Everyone who is anyone knows about Pa Cartwright and his boys on the Ponderosa. I've read reams about them. I've even heard Pa sing on the Johnny Carson show (Anyone who sings like that should carry a gun).

But I've never seen a Bonanza show. The reason is simple. By the time I was 12 years old, I'd seen umpteen-thousand cowboy movies. They starred guys like Hoot Gibson, Buck Jones, Ken Maynard and Johnny Mack Brown. They were real men. Then along came Gene Autry and Roy Rogers and the Sons of the Pioneers. They sat around on their horses and sang, for gosh sakes. Can you imagine Buck Jones singing "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer"?

It was then I swore off cowboy shows for good. I haven't seen one since. Especially I haven't seen Bonanza, no matter how many awards and rating races it wins. I suspect Hoss Cartwright is hiding something under that ridiculous hat and it might be Gene Autry.

BUT I DIGRESS. This started to be about a lawn mower. That has always been my proudest negative. In over 15 years of home-owning, I never owned a lawn mower.

In the 1st place, what's wrong with long grass? If God had wanted the grass short, He would have given us goats instead of children.

In the 2nd place (my wife's rejection of 1st place was inserted in her wedding vows), the boys in our neighborhood needed the money they earned cutting my lawn with their mowers. And I didn't mind limping horribly whenever I paid them so they'd understand I'd be doing the job myself if it weren't for the German shrapnel in my knees.

In the 3rd place, I had no place to keep a lawn mower. Another negative claim to fame is that I've never owned a garage. A man can't be too careful. Every garage I've seen is full of shovels and saws and drills and hammers and other terrible tools of slavery. I much prefer a carport that converts into a porch for the summer. If I can get someone to convert it.

And in the last place, I'm lazy. I remember when the self-propelled mowers became popular. "You don't even have to push it," my wife said. "Yes," I answered, "but I'd have to follow it."

But despite all these sterling reasons for not owning a mower, last week I bought one. I got it for my son who said he was embarrassed when I hired boys half his size to cut the lawn. He wants to mow it himself and he'd also like to make money cutting neighbors' lawns. This kid has obviously picked up some weird ideas from his mother who washes his brain more than his socks.

So anyway, now there's a mower in the family. It cost $190, for Lord's sake. And no garage. Which gives my son a claim to fame: the only kid in town whose dad makes him sleep with a lawn mower.

Onward and upward. †

Armchair travels

by Hazel Moore

Part 2

The terrain is jungle in northern India and southeast Nepal. It is terraced clear to the top of mountains. The Himalaya mountains are in a tropical area, so tropical foods are grown at the base of the mountains and as they ascend they become foods of temperate zones, etc. The terraces sometimes are as narrow as 3 feet in the steep areas. There are lots of little villages with no connecting roads.

As we were nearing Nepal, we suddenly realized that not all that white we were seeing was clouds. The Himalaya mountains are very high and are covered with snow.

We landed at Katmandu at 1:30 p.m., arrived at the hotel and were ready for tour of the village and temples at 2:30.

They have 35,000 gods, our guide didn't believe in any of them. He is of the Rana caste, the highest of the Nepal caste system.

We saw a leper who was walking around behind our tour group. His finger ends and toes were rotted off. He had a ragged blanket wrapped around him and pulled partly over his head. He was a terrible sight.

He followed us to the car and begged with his diseased eyes. Our guide said he belonged in an institution they had for them but he would not stay. He said he was the only one he knew who walked around among the people.

There seemed to be much tolerance for everyone in Nepal. They are a very superstitious people but kind and humble.

We returned to the hotel at dark for a rest before dinner. We were so tired, we slept through to morning call without dinner!

Our tour used no buses, only 7-passenger station wagons similar to the ones used to take people up Mt. Washington in USA.

Our guide was 27 years old, a college graduate of Katmandu University, and spoke almost perfect English.

The first place we visited was the Tibetan refugee camp. These are people who escaped from Communist Tibet before they were stopped. The camp was very impressive.

As the men and women worked in a long brick unheated room, they chanted a religious song. They were wrapped in heavy clothing and sat on pillows on the cold concrete floor. Some were carding wool, others were spinning or weaving the wool. It is the only place in the world to get their goods of raw, untreated wool.

Everywhere we walked, someone was trying to sell his goods. I bought mostly from the children, who spoke enough English to talk with tourists.

English is taught in their schools. One old lady wanted my used camera flash cube. Her toothless smile showed me how delighted she was to have it.

They are honest people. One man motioned for me not to give a child money, but for her to go get change for a ring. When I told her to get the change first and come back he was pleased. My heart went out to those people. They are an honest, humble, happy people.

The Nepalese people own their own land and are proud, busy workers. The houses have no glass in their windows. There is little electricity used. Shops have a single light bulb, Coleman-type lanterns; or candles. Many of the people have no shoes.

School is closed for vacation during the winter when it is cold. The pre-school children wear only a shirt, there are no diapers or training pants, the child merely urinates or defecates wherever he is. The older people are somewhat more modest, especially the females. The adult females often cover their faces when they meet neighbors or strangers. Babies were often without clothes, even in the cold!

We rode and then walked to a spot where we could see Mt. Everest. Three little girls begged for rupees all the way up the narrow trail and back down.

There were temples everywhere in the villages and cities. They were carved with gods and goddesses and sex pictures. An ancient way to get the people to visit the temples (so our guide said).

The next morning we saw their current living goddess. She is 2½ years old. The previous girl reached puberty recently so had to be replaced. These goddesses are never allowed outside the temple except one day a year.

We visited Patan, a very ancient village. We saw shops, more temples, and took pictures. The children's eyes are made up with charcoal, but their hair is seldom combed. The professional beggars were everywhere. They asked for one rupee to take their pictures, or for no reason at all.

There are very few cars in Nepal even today. In 1950 there were no roads. Red China, in 1965, built a black-top road to Katmandu after India had built one from the Indian border.

There are primary schools for students to the age of 10. They teach Hindi and English languages. Our guide said it was compulsory education. Then there are the secondary schools for those who can afford them and a university.

The public baths in the streets were a popular place, but the temperature was cool enough to warrant warm coats. I didn't ask if the water was heated, I am sure it was not.

There was very little glass in any of the windows except government buildings and our hotel. There were planks above doors and window openings so that they could close them or hang up blankets.

The guide said there was very little crime, most of the people had what they needed and everyone worked.

The shops had a single electric light bulb, kerosene lanterns, or candles and were open for business at night. There was a sidewalk on one side of the street next to the shops but the other side had a wide area of ground where farmers who had walked into town with their produce were selling their food. Radishes were at least 2 feet long.

***

Our hotel was built in about 1965 and was very modern even by western standards. It had air conditioning, carpeting, good beds, excellent food and services. The cows were not allowed to enter the building. Elsewhere they went pretty much anywhere they wanted to, in the street or homes.

The Nepalese eat no beef, but they have water buffalo, chicken and duck. They do not serve beef in any of their restaurants. It is taboo. The jacula meat loaf was good. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Michigan's Regents-alumni scholars named cycle law

Under the state's new motorcycle law which goes into effect June 1, cycle riders must be qualified Michigan motorists and have a valid driver or chauffeur license.

"The first thing we want to get across is that the new law goes into effect June 1 but motorcycle drivers do not have to qualify for an endorsement until their driver licenses come up routinely for renewal or they obtain their first driver license, whether it be a regular three-year operator's license or the one-year chauffeur's license," said James Hare, Secretary of State.

The best way to become acquainted with the state's law on motorcycles, as well as getting some helpful safety tips on operation, is through a new booklet, "What Every Motorcyclist Must Know," available at examining stations throughout Michigan, or by writing: Michigan Department of State, Lansing, Michigan 48918.

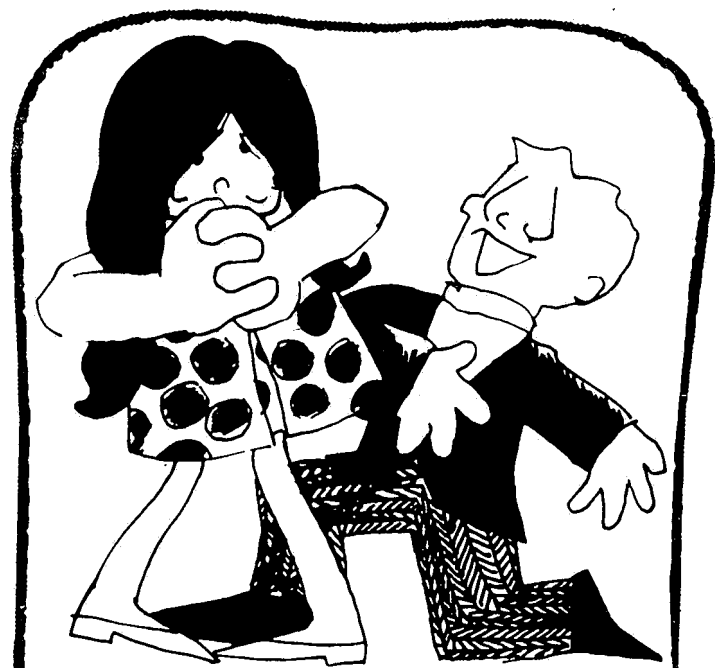

The University of Michigan has named more than 1,000 high school seniors throughout the state as Regents-Alumni Scholars, recognizing their outstanding academic achievement.

Although the awards are primarily honorary, each designated student will receive a token $50. Ronald M. Brown, financial aid director, said that this year applications for financial help have been entirely separate from the Regents-Alumni awards. In fact, students do not now apply for the Regents Alumni designation. Those honored are selected from freshman applications.

Alumni volunteers throughout the state participated in the final selection process by conducting interviews with students.

Entering freshmen from Clarkston High School who have been singled out for this honor are:

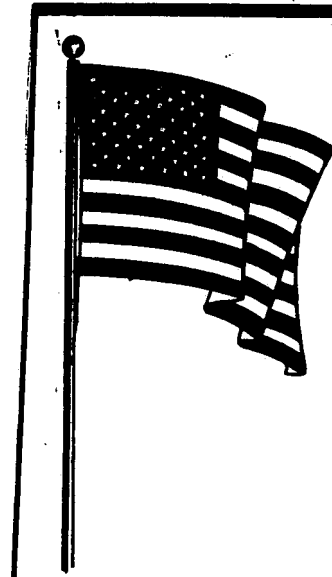

Deborah Dee Davis, 9509 Pine Knob Rd.; Stephen Scott Kratt, 6169 Lakeview; David Drew Lehman, 10290 White Lake Rd.; Scott Hill Robbins, 6495 Waldon Rd.; Richard Lee Ruelle, 5510 Mary Sue.

Mrs. Floyd Gordon, General Chairman, right, and Mrs. Ronald Walter, publicity committee member, are busy getting the Fellowship Hall at the United Methodist Church ready for the 4th annual Antique Show and Sale that will be held on June 4 and 5. The sale is sponsored by the Women's Society and will run from 11 a.m. until 9 p.m. each day. Advance sale tickets at $1, or $1.25 at the door, will privilege the holder to view the merchandise of over 20 dealers as well as to see many antiques from homes in the Clarkston area that will be on display. Snacks and a buffet lunch will be served throughout the show. It is not necessary to attend the show to be able to enjoy the special food that will be served.

Antique show & sale in final planning

The flurry of activity in the village is caused by the members of the Women's Society at the Clarkston United Methodist Church who are preparing for their 4th annual antique show and sale.

Clarkston residents are loaning their antiques to decorate store windows in the business section. Mrs. Gary Duncan is the chairman of this project and she will assist Mrs. Ronald LePere in providing background settings for the show.

Geraniums will be used in profusion to add a country atmosphere.

Mrs. Fred Mast, chairman of the food committee, has assembled her committee at the home of Mrs. Sam Vascassenno on Middle Lake Road, where they have prepared and frozen homemade spaghetti sauce, which will be served on the days of the show.

Sandwiches will be prepared and served by Mrs. Roy Gundry and her committee and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Boyns will have a fresh supply of coffee available.

St. Daniel's women install officers

The Women's Council of St. Daniel's Church held its election of officers this week.

Sophie Bailey will serve as president for the coming year, with Jo Nicholas as vice president, Betty Schulte as secretary and Joan Paulson treasurer.

Plans are being made for the June installation of officers which will take place at the Sveden House in Pontiac.

Members are requested to make reservations by contacting Jo Nicholas at 625-4764 any day after 4:00 p.m. or by dropping a deposit and reservation in the collection basket during church.

Mrs. Ralph Kenyon, Mrs. Robert Jones, Mrs. David Stewart and Mrs. Ralph Thayer will also serve homemade cookies, pies and cakes in their dining room concession.

Mrs. Floyd Gordon, president of the W.S.C.S., is also the general chairman of the show and Mrs. Richard Bullen is the special treasurer. Mrs. Milton Cooney is in charge of tickets and is being assisted by Mrs. Henry Woolfenden. Mrs. Charles Beach is publicity chairman.

Twenty-three dealers have been selected to present their specialty. Mrs. Cooney, Mrs. Ronald Spohn and Mrs. Howard Huttenlocher have worked to make it a well rounded presentation.

Tickets are on sale for $1. They will be $1.25 if purchased at the door.

"Folks who are not interested in the show are still welcome to come and enjoy the food that will be served during the show hours of 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. on June 4th and 5th," said Mrs. Ron Walter, publicity committeeman.

Graduate

President Wayne H. Buell will present diplomas to 368 graduates of the Lawrence Institute of Technology at the 38th annual commencement exercises Sunday, June 7 at 3 p.m. in the Ford Auditorium of Detroit's Civic Center.

James M. Darby will be a candidate for an Associate in Engineering degree in Industrial Supervision Technology.

RUNS AGAIN — Senator L. Harvey Lodge, senior senator from Oakland County and Lapeer County's only senator, will seek re-election to the 17th District of the Michigan Senate. "I have many continuing programs for the people of my district and the people of this state and I will seek re-election in order to complete the programs I have been developing," Senator Lodge said.

Explain new school service

Special services in the Clarkston School System were explained by Milford Mason, director of the service, to the Clarkston Child Study Group.

Some of the programs covered, according to Mr. Mason, are special education, deaf program, speech correction, homebound students, counselors and social worker.

Hostess for the meeting was Mrs. Robert Jones of Robertson Court. Dessert was served from a table following a spring motif.

There were 14 members present and 2 visitors, Mrs. Mason and Mrs. Mike Thayer.

The next meeting will be June 10, 12 noon, at the Spring Lake Country Club.

Skin Disorders

An American drug company recently conducted a survey to see how much we spend on six common skin disorders: acne, dermatitis, eczema, fungal diseases (such as athlete's foot), psoriasis and warts. The study included only prescription drugs, but the annual total was over 100 million dollars.

In addition, millions more are spent on other skin disorders, such as hives and impetigo, and on over-the-counter lotions and remedies, such as zinc oxide and calamine. Despite the wonder drugs and new treatments, skin disorders are still a major medical problem.

Dermatologists have some helpful advice for those suffering from such disorders:

1) If a rash or sore continues after the suspected cause has been removed, or if any growth bleeds, becomes sore, increases in size, or changes its color or appearance — seek medical help. Applying home remedies may only mask the true condition, or convert a simple problem into a chronic one.

2) Avoid scratching as much as possible, since this speeds up inflammation. Calamine lotion is better than a back scratcher.

3) To avoid a rash spreading or re-occurring, discard or disinfect anything that has come in contact with the affected area.

4) Never borrow another person's medication. Both your condition and your reaction to the drug may be different.

5) If you have a dry skin itch, you may be taking too many baths. Cut them down to one a week, plus daily sponge baths.

Varnish or vanish

by Jean Sura

It's a bad time of the year. In fact, it's a bad year. Our house needs varnishing.

This is the year when my husband, in a freak moment of looking around the old homestead between golf games, will notice the ravages of the sun and weather on the outside of the house.

Our family calls it the "shellac syndrome." I don't argue the cause, but I sure do suffer from the effect.

"Guess we'll have to put a coat or two of varnish on the house this year," he announces when the craze strikes.

"Who's we?" I answered.

"Oh, come on now. It isn't that bad and you don't contribute that much effort."

"Okay, I'll make a deal. You do the window frames this year and I'll do all that nice flat stuff. Then we'll see who does the most."

"Either get a brush or get out of my way," he said as he headed for the basement.

Of course I know that he is right. There is no disputing that he covers a lot of ground. He covers the driveway and the grass, the shrubbery, the trees, the car and all the glass in the windows. We are the only people I know that live next to a varnished woods, on a varnished lake and have a varnished lawn and drive a varnished car.

The last time he varnished around the windows, we thought that our Armageddon had arrived. We didn't see the sun for over thirty days. Probably never would have, but some kids took a razor and scratched, "Rejoice, you have one more chance! You might start out on the right foot by letting us use the car tonight."

Our neighbor to the north hasn't done anything to the south side of his house in eighteen years. We don't get any thanks for the upkeep, either.

Whenever the "shellac syndrome" hits Gene, the neighbor walks around with an umbrella over his head. He wraps his car in cellophane to drive out of his garage and does strange weather dances (with chanting), to keep the wind down.

You would never believe that there is about an acre of woods separating our houses.

We have a friend, Old Uncle Bud. He is sort of a philosopher. Uncle Bud said, "Gene paints so fast that if you are doing the scraping and sanding, preparing the surface for him, you have to be very careful."

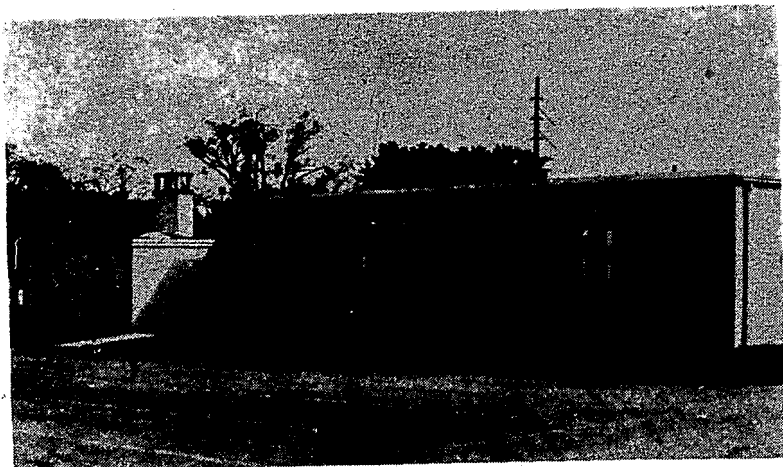

"If you aren't terribly alert, he'll paint right up your dad-burned arm."

I hate to let the word out that it is that time of a bad year. All the neighbors will be lining their boats and canoes in our yard for their new varnish job.

I'll say one thing for old Dad. I'll bet he will finish the job in time to play at least nine holes on the same day. I seldom make it. I'm usually cleaning my hair with turpentine.

Maybe I'll try wearing a bathing cap this year!

"Fore."

MEMORIAL DAY A DAY FOR HONOR AND PRAYER

Our nation has set aside Memorial Day for honoring all who died in the service of their country. It also decrees that on this day we pray for permanent peace. It was on April 24, 1961 that the late President John F. Kennedy urged everyone to celebrate May 30 "by invoking the blessing of God on those who have died in defense of their country and by praying for a new world of law where peace and justice prevail."

War is a terrible tragedy. It is an evil created by man. But the greater evil is not war itself, but the hatred rooted in men's hearts. Because hatred goes against God's law of love, it breeds death.

So many innocent people have died because of man's hatred. Have they died in vain? Was the sacrifice of their lives a horrible waste?

The men and women we honor today have gone before us with the sign of faith and sleep the sleep of peace. "To these, O Lord and to all those who rest in Christ, we earnestly pray that you grant a place of rest, light and peace." They shall not have died in vain if we who mourn them remember our duty to live by God's law of LOVE.

Wrinkled weinee

Shel George

Recently I attended an all-time first. The first Coney Island Olympics was held at the Tel-Twelve Mall. About thirty of the best Coney Island makers in the Detroit area participated.

It was designed as good clean fun with the object being to see which one could put together the most sandwiches in a given period of time. Believe me, everything was first class.

Bob Talbert sorta ram-rodged the whole "shebang" and the judges were well known to lesser known radio, TV or newspaper people. I can vouch that no judge took anything under the table. Trophies were awarded, fans cheered their favorite, pop was downed, admittance was free and best of all, the spectators ate the results.

I would estimate 1,000 were in attendance, give or take a couple of hundred. A good time was had by all.

I didn't hang around until the last "dog" was hung, but when I left, the last run-off was in progress. Some of these boys were good. One man put 30 together in 3 minutes.

As good as they were, however, I never yet have met anyone who had the "wrinkle in the weinie" business like one of my friends, Granddad. Granddad was primarily a farmer, but he always fancied himself to be a razzle-dazzle salesman. About the only time he had a chance to develop this talent was during the late August county fair.

He would rent a space from the concession manager and set up his hot dog trailer. Nothing fancy, mind you, but clean and serviceable for this annual event. He ran the show himself.

In those days the only thing you put on a hot dog was catsup (or ketchup) and/or mustard. Granddad bought this in gallon jars and used plenty of both. The amazing thing was that he could run the entire five days on two pounds of weiners.

My friend and I found out one day how he did this. We decided to go by the stand for a bite to eat. As usual, several people were waiting for a sandwich, listening to Granddad's never-ceasing lingo about "nice fresh tube steaks" and "get 'em while they're hot."

We went to the back door and slipped inside. Granddad didn't see us, so we figured we'd help ourselves. In the process of making our own sandwiches, we had our eyes opened to an ingenious business man.

The hot dogs and buns were behind Granddad along the back side of the trailer. Six or eight hotdogs would be cooking in a skillet with the buns stacked on the table in their cartons.

As people would order, Granddad would turn around, grab a bun and approach the skillet. Of course, all this time the lingo was still going. It appeared to the customers in front that he would pick up a hot dog from the skillet and pop it into the bun. He then would ask "Mustard or catsup," slap on a little of one or the other, turn back around and hand the sandwich to the waiting customer;

What he really did when he had his back to the customer was this: Rather than pop a hot dog into the bun he would lay his index finger in the slice. When he covered it with mustard or catsup, and turned around to hand it across the counter, you couldn't tell the difference. Naturally, as the customer took the bun the "weinie" stayed attached to his hand.

This system worked especially well when the crowd was large. Most of the time after the first bite, the people were well away from the trailer and figured they had dropped the hot dog out of the bun someplace on the ground. Granddad sold that finger over and over again.

You might question his ethics, but not his ingenuity.

SAFETY HINTS POISONOUS PLANTS — LOVELY AND LETHAL

Poinsettia, Lily-of-the-Valley, Iris, Azaleas, Mistletoe, and many, many more common house, yard and wild plants cause over 12,000 cases of poisoning a year... many of them fatal. Shocking isn't it? Ordinarily we think of poisonous plants being merely poison ivy, poison oak and others like them that cause an uncomfortable skin rash on contact. BUT — there are actually more than 700 species of plants known to cause death or illness when ingested.

Many of this group are very deadly. A single poinsettia leaf — a few daphne berries — just one castor bean have been the cause of death. There are cases where people have died from merely eating steaks or "hot dogs" speared on oleander twigs and roasted over an open fire. Below are listed but a few of the most common plants known to be dangerous:

FATAL
SEEDS, BERRIES & NUTS - Rosary Pea, Castor Bean, Daphne, Jessamine, Lantana Camara (green berries), Yew, Mistletoe.

LEAVES OR FLOWERS - Oleander, Poinsettia, Rhubarb, wild and cultivated Cherries (including twigs), Yew.

ALL PARTS - Laurels, Rhododendrum, Azaleas, Water Hemlock, Nightshade, Poison Hemlock.

TOXIC - LARGE DOSES MAY BE FATAL

BULBS - Hyacinth, Narcissus, Daffodil, Autumn Crocus, Star-of-Bethlehem.

SEEDS, BERRIES & NUTS - Golden Chain, Moonseed, Wisteria, Oak, Larkspur.

LEAVES OR FLOWERS - Foxglove, Lily-of-the-Valley, Bleeding Heart, Black Locust.

ALL PARTS - Dieffenbachia (dumb cane), Elephant Ear, Larkspur, Jack-in-the-Pulpit, Mayapple, Buttercups, Jimson Weed.

ROOTS - Monkshood, Iris.
Small children are particularly susceptible. Extra effort is needed to keep these plants out of reach and to educate them to the dangers of putting any plant or berry into their mouths without an adult approval.

Diagnosis and speedy treatment is essential if ingestion does happen.

Recognition of symptoms is important. Check for indigestion, dizziness, headache, nausea, convulsions, abdominal swelling, irrational conduct and considerable pain. Call a doctor at once; try to identify the plant and do not attempt treatment of any kind without the doctor's advice.

Weather doesn't foul "Walk for Mankind"

Thirty-five students participated in the Jaycees Project, "Walk for Mankind" on May 23. It was the first time that any Jaycee Chapter in Michigan had undertaken the project, so the results of Clarkston's "Walk" will be valuable for the rest of the state to use.

The day had cool temperatures and rain, but these did not affect the walkers. All finished the twelve miles and while legs were tired, they all said they would walk again if Clarkston was to have another project next fall.

The first group of walkers left the high school at about 7:30 a.m. in a downpour. The final group left at 8:00 a.m.

The first finishers beat the Jaycees back into town completing the route 30 minutes earlier than expected. The first four: Dan Fancher, Howard Phelps, Gordy Mason and Bob Garner finished the walk in a little over three hours.

The junior high schools provided the following walkers: Dan Fancher, Howard Phelps, Stephanie Altman, Steve Mauti, Gary Mason, Mike Dennis, Toni Waterbury, Ann Birtsas, Scarlet Hysen, Kim Christie, Michele Richmond, Sally Kee, Nancy Violette, Esther Hoffman, Becky Zachos, Kathy Coates, Candy Crane, Beth Tower, Gayle Jorgenson and Sonia Mills.

The senior high was represented by: Gordy Mason, Bob Garner, Nia Kraud, Dan Wagner, Lynn Tower, Jan Easton, Claudia Christie, Debbie Zachos, Sue Carlson, Pat Saile, Kathy Smith, Bev Hanson, Chris Frick, Cindy Gerber, Dienne Weeks and Jeff Kitson.

The Jaycees had hoped for a much larger turnout, but a combination of reasons kept the number low. Now that the project has been tried once, it is hoped that if the Clarkston area joins the rest of the state next fall, many more students will accept the challenge of the "Walk for Mankind."

Little Barbie (or maybe we should say big, brave Barbie) Kevern flew, with her mother, Mrs. Donald Kevern, to Boston on Monday morning. They will be there for a week to ten days, during which time Barbie will learn to walk again. Eight-year-old Susan will stay at home and keep us posted on the progress.

The Jaycees were disappointed last weekend when their shipment of trash liners wasn't delivered in time for their house-to-house sale. As a result they ran out before they even got warmed up to the job. They will have them in time to set up a booth in the parking lot on Memorial Day and hope that people who were missed will patronize them when they come to town to see the parade.

Two birthdays falling on the same day kept the Darrell Blacketts busy several weeks ago. Daughter Jill celebrated her 8th on May 9 and daughter Julie followed suit on May 11 with her 6th.

"We used to do it all up with a 'bang' on THE day," said Mrs. Blackett, "but it got to be too much. Now we spread it out a little."

Jill, of course, will never have a present to match the baby sister she received on her second birthday.

There are days when there just isn't time for anything. Especially if you are in the school production of "South Pacific" it is hard to find time, even for a birthday celebration. So Rebecca Byers just decided to wait until there were either more hours in a day or fewer interruptions. Happy Busy Birthday, Becky.

Brad Beattie celebrated last week too. Between watching for Grandma and Grandpa Beattie (Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. ### Dean's list

Pamela Gerber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Gerber of Maybee road, was among the more than 1,300 Western Michigan University students who have won recognition as scholars by being named to the university's Dean's List for the recent winter semester.

To win the honor, students must have taken at least 14 hours of class work and maintained a point average of 3.5 out of a possible 4.0 (all A's).

"Ma" to you

by Haslett Hemmor

Bessie Newsome is her real name, but maybe 9 out of 10 guys here in town — leastways them that's under 40 — know her as "Ma" Newsome.

Guess she's run her little restaurant, The Cup and Saucer, for maybe thirty years. Plump and pink, Ma is, and even though her hair's been white for twenty years or more, she's more of a kid than most the young 'uns that hang around her little place.

Mostly it's the boys that make Ma's place their second home. Go in any time from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. and the joint's jumping with kids, particular kids in their middle to late teens.

Fact is, that if you wanted to wallpaper a room any time in the last quarter century, Ma could cover it with IOU's signed by her boys. Sometimes for a Coke and sometimes two or three bucks for a date. Easy touch, sure enough, but I'll just bet that without ever once reminding her boys, they all pay her when they get a job if not sooner.

Not to pay Ma would be like spitting in church. Probable thing, it would be more of a sin to most of those hellions. Some of these creeps might steal — even from each other — but not from Ma.

Sure shook the guys up a year or so ago when she put up a No Loitering sign. Like always, the place is full when she hangs it. All kids. Nobody says nothing. Then two fellows get up and leave without a word. Left their half-finished pop on the counter and the money. Don't even go up to the cash register. Then a couple more whisper for a minute and suddeh-like they stand up to leave.

"Look, kids," Ma tells them all. "I've got to make a little money to keep this place open. Look around you. This little place just has 9 counter stools and 8 chairs at the two tables." She acts like she's about half set to cry.

"Right now it don't matter too much, but at noon — maybe 11:30 to 1:00 and from 6:00 to 8:00 I could serve a few meals and pocket a few pennies if people — old fuddy-duddy people — could find a place to sit for a full meal. The word has even leaked out that my home-made pies are super. You should try one some time."

She tries to sound tough, but spoils it all by sniffing. "Gotta cold," she says sharp-like, and stalks off into the little kitchen.

Within about ten minutes the rest of the crew files out, but by dinner time there's a new gang in and each new one that comes in she greets by name and welcomes them like they just got back from the wars.

On account of the sign's already up and she's even more jolly than usual, if possible, they don't pay too much mind to the NO LOITERING. If a kid runs out of pop or coffee, she gives him another and says it's on the house.

Big guy comes in after parking his truck direct in front. Stands right behind Sonny Pace for maybe two-three minutes while Sonny is dawdling with the last half-inch of root beer in his glass. When Sonny absent-minded stirs the little bit remaining with his straw, it really ruffles this guy.

"On your way, Bub," he tells Sonny. "Been waitin' 15 minutes while you play. Go get your girlie hair cut. Can't you read that sign? I want a T-bone."

"Sit tight, Sonny," Ma barks. "This here big lug can go get his T-bone where they don't mind bad manners." Then she turns and takes down the sign and wheels out into the kitchen. In a minute there's a crash as the sign lands in the trash can and she comes back smiling real big.

"We'll make it," she announces. Somehow we'll make it."

James Tyrrell and Joe Ruhala ready a balloon for the weather experiment conducted by Mr. Tyrrell's classes at the Clarkston Junior High School.

The last class of the day launches its balloons which will, hopefully, bring information that will provide data for the class experiment.

The bright side of students

By Jean Sura

Contributed by Mr. James Tyrrell of Clarkston Junior High School

The classes of James Tyrrell at the Clarkston Junior High School launched an experiment on May 22 that will enhance their studies of air currents, principles of flight, aerodynamics and will contribute information to the study they are making about weather.

On that day approximately 180 students, three 7th grade classes and three 9th grade classes, filled balloons with helium gas, fastened self-addressed cards and liberated them from the school playground.

The cards bore the message, "This is a weather balloon experiment of Clarkston Junior High School. Anyone finding this card is requested to answer questions below and drop in any mailbox. Thank you."

The questions requested information about the date, location and weather conditions.

When the cards are returned to the senders, a large chart will record the information and the classes will draw conclusions from the statistics.

"Some of the studies that we cover in these classes," said Mr. Tyrrell, "are the same areas that I covered in college classes. The wonderful part of it is that with today's information, materials and background, it is well within the students' scope and level of interest."

Avoid heavy traffic peaks

With good weather, the Memorial Day weekend may be a repeat of last year's holiday when it seemed that everyone who owned a car was on the highway.

Department of State Highways traffic analysts predict that motorists will drive an estimated 610 million miles in Michigan during the holiday period, from Thursday through Sunday.

That would be only 10 million miles short of a year ago when unseasonably warm weather put droves of travelers on the highway. The result was more traffic than during any comparable period in the state's history.

The department said there will be congestion on all major north-south highways, and travelers are urged to plan their trips in an effort to avoid peak travel periods.

Generally, northbound traffic will be heavily concentrated Thursday from 2 to 10 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 4 to 9 p.m.

Southbound traffic Sunday will be concentrated in a much shorter period, from 2 to 9 p.m. Traffic peaks will occur in the northern lower peninsula from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and the big wave of homeward bound motorists will cross the lower part of the state from 5 to 7 p.m.

Clarkston High School presents "South Pacific"

Letters

More applause

May 24, 1970

Dear Editor:

It was my great pleasure to be present last Saturday night at the final performance of the production of "South Pacific" presented by the Clarkston High School Drama Dept.

The performance was in the finest tradition of the theatre. The cast was superb and the music was excellent. The audience felt as I did by showing their appreciation with a standing ovation. The cast was in tears when they came forward for the several curtain calls.

Clarkston should be and is proud of our teenagers. They have proved to us that our faith in young people is well founded. They are interested in doing things that are worthwhile and constructive.

My sincere thanks to the cast, backstage crew and the directors and Mrs. Gibson for giving us all a fine performance of a great show, "South Pacific."

Yours Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newlin

Enthusiasm shows

C.E.A. Report

By George White

Over the past few years, America's schools have been feeling the effects of a changing values system. Taking a look at Clarkston, you can see the same thing happening. Students are more concerned with being a part of the crowd than showing any individual talent. Athletics are faltering, senior trips are being cancelled; all because students think it is "uncool" to be part of a school activity.

One of the areas that Clarkston's students have not neglected is the dramatics and play production area. Years ago musicals in high schools our size were unheard of, but over the past few years Clarkston's students have met the challenge and put on such splendid productions as "My Fair Lady," "Boyfriend," and "Oklahoma." This year's production of "South Pacific" was a real show-stopper.

Work began around the first of the year but went unnoticed by the community until just a few weeks ago when publicity came out. Now that the final performance is over, it is the talk of the town.

Clarkston found that there is more talent in our school than just that on the athletic fields.

These students, working hard and working together, have brightened the picture of the '69-'70 school year. They did not lose any enthusiasm when the rest of the activities of the school seemed to be faltering. While this year won't be remembered for its winning teams, the production of "South Pacific" will always be remembered by those who saw it.

The seniors in the cast can be proud of their accomplishments. For those who follow Clarkston school activities, the names of Tammy Mahar, Mark Taylor, Mike MacAlpine, Jim Decker and Kirt Willard won't be forgotten. The others in the cast were also marvelous, and they can feel a great sense of pride having done an excellent job.

The underclassmen have had some great examples set for them, and it seems sure that they, too, will meet the challenge of next year's production.

Congratulations are due the faculty directors of the production. This year has been a very trying one, and it would have been very easy to have become discouraged. But these people, with their keen interest in students, worked their hearts out.

The cast members showed their appreciation in the emotional finale on the final night. The presentations received from the cast had much more meaning to these faculty members than the token reimbursement received from the school.

To everyone involved in "South Pacific," thank you for your tremendous display of enthusiasm. You have made the community very proud to have such fine young people in our schools.
