Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

Regular followers of this column or even occasional glancers know that I have been known to wet a line in waters of the UP and Canada. I have been free with tales of these tribulations.

You also know that I have had no reason to seek out a taxidermist to prepare a trophy for over the mantel. To adequately show the extent of my usual catch, all the taxidermist needs to do is put another coat of wax on the plaque background.

After writing of my travels into completely virgin streams and lakes and coming out empty-handed after 7 days, some readers have told me, in the presence of Hazel, I could have caught more fish within a mile of home.

My family's welcomes when I return from hunting and fishing trips would be downright insulting to lesser men. "Didn't get anything again, huh, Dad?" "Why don't you take me next time and I'll show you how to catch 'em?" "That's all right, dear, I didn't leave a place in the refrigerator, anyway."

They break themselves up with laughter.

Well, Friday night I went fishing in a local lake. It wasn't within a mile of town, but it wasn't much farther. It was a private lake, so I'm not going to tell you where to poach.

We were on the water about 5 p.m. Caught an 8-inch blue gill on a 4-inch Rapala right away. Then things went back to normal. The editor of the Leader, Bob Gregg, was along and caught several 7-inch bass . . . or else he caught the same one 12 times.

About 7 p.m. the fun began. I haven't experienced fishing like that since I was a wee lad. The Rapala would hit the water and a fish would hit it. You could get four to six hits winding in the first few feet of line. It went on for an hour. I had forgotten the feeling of reeling in a keeper. I had forgotten that there is more to a fishing trip than fellowship. It was really great fun.

But it was more fun when I went home. The skeptics, the cynics, the comics were all there. They had even primed a couple guests to get ready to give me the business.

They were speechless as I held up the stringer. Their eyes lit up. Their mouths hung open. I have no modesty anyway, but if I had I

School election June 8

Smith, Leak seek school board seat

On Monday, June 8, Clarkston voters will have the opportunity of choosing between 2 candidates who are seeking to fill the vacancy on the Clarkston School Board.

The vacancy has been filled by Walter Wilberg, a veteran member, who has decided not to seek re-election.

The candidates are Mrs. William (Ingrid) Smith and David Leak.

Mrs. Smith lives on Eastlawn with her husband, a teacher at Clarkston High School. They have 8 children. She attended medical school at the University of Heidelberg and the school of education at the University of Michigan.

She has been involved in many projects related to the promotion of better government and is presently the chairman of the Right to Life Committee.

Mrs. Smith numbered these areas of prime importance, in her estimation, to attain better schools.

"I believe that we should make better use of our school facilities throughout the year and that the remedial reading program should be re-established."

It is her belief that a sincere effort should be made by the Board of Education to settle the contract with the teachers before school starts in September.

Mrs. Smith supports the need for adult crossing guards at the Waldon Road bottleneck and other hazardous crossings.

She believes that a physical education program should be instigated in the elementary schools, and that the community should get maximum use of school dollars by utilizing all facilities in such areas as counseling and academic curriculum.

"I do not think that concessions on smoking in the lavatories can be condoned. Teaching citizenship and obedience to the law is a prime responsibility of a public institution," said Mrs. Smith.

David Leak, 39, lives on Middle Lake Road with his wife and 3 children. A graduate of Clarkston High School, he holds a B.A. degree from Albion College.

He is presently employed as the comptroller at the Bower Roller Bearing Division of the Federal Mogul Corporation, where he has worked for the past 16 years.

Leak outlined 8 areas on which he bases his candidacy.

He believes that school policy should be flexible; discipline in the school should be firm, and curricula should tax the ability of the students at all capacity and grade levels;

He believes in the conservative handling of money, maximum use of school buildings and prefers that salaries relate to performance rather than to years of service or course credits.

Leak believes that the taxpayer in the Clarkston area receives more educational value per dollar than any other district in the metropolitan area.

"I believe it is the schools' main purpose to HELP THE PARENT in the education of his children and the quality of education they receive depends as much on the parent as the school system."

According to State Police records, the boy was dead on arrival at Pontiac General Hospital.

Charles was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Priebe who had just moved into their new home at 5930 Paramus late in April.

The bus was driven by June Guye of Springfield Township. There were no other passengers on the bus.

Funeral services were held on June 2 from the Manns-Ferguson Funeral Home in Livonia and burial was in Lakeview Cemetery.

Zoning hearings stirring residents

By Jim Sherman

Should the zoning change request of last Tuesday night be approved for Independence, the population would increase about 50 percent from present figures.

Nearly everybody in the audience, estimated at 250, seemed opposed to that happening and many of them said so.

This was another public meeting of the Planning Commission where citizens hear of proposed development plans and voice their opinions on same. Attendance at these hearings has been increasing rapidly.

This request came from attorney-developer Irwin Cohn of Detroit, with his engineer Bernard Feldhauser of Feldhauser Associates, 5775 Dixie helping present the plan.

619 acres are involved. They border Oak Hill Road on the north, Sashabaw, Perry Lake Road and the west shore of Crooked Lake. The present zoning is agriculture. The request is to change 154 acres to mobile home sites, 141 to lakefront apartments, 295 acres of single family residential and 2 commercial areas.

Estimated capacity is 7,000 residents.

One other fact about the property that may involve the state is that a portion of the acreage is considered a natural flood plain, and headwaters for the Clinton river.

Acreage to the north and east side of Crooked Lake is now owned by Oakland County Parks and Recreation and a park is planned.

As in past public hearings concerning mobile home zoning requests, residents were concerned about what they called low tax base and rapid depreciation of trailer homes.

Objections were also raised on: Increased costs for expansion of services, crowding of schools, traffic congestion, general density of the township, and that a zoning change in this area to anything but recreational would differ from the master plan of 4 years ago.

Next step for the request is further study by the planners. It is then sent to the county coordinating and planning committee. From there it goes to the township board for final zoning decision. Any step beyond the township board is through the courts.

Because of the size of the audience Tuesday night, the planners may have to pick a school or some other large building for future zoning hearings. Many were unable to get into the basement meeting room at the township hall. At least one who did make it had to sit atop the piano. That was candidate for trustee, Keith Humbert.

7 candidates for OCC

Voters will have to pick 2 candidates from a field of seven to fill the 2 trustee vacancies at Oakland Community College at the June 8 election.

David M. Preston and Earl M. Anderson are presently filling the positions. Both are seeking re-election.

Other candidates are:

Alexander J. Kloster, 44, Bloomfield Hills, married with 2 children, school superintendent, Hamtramck;

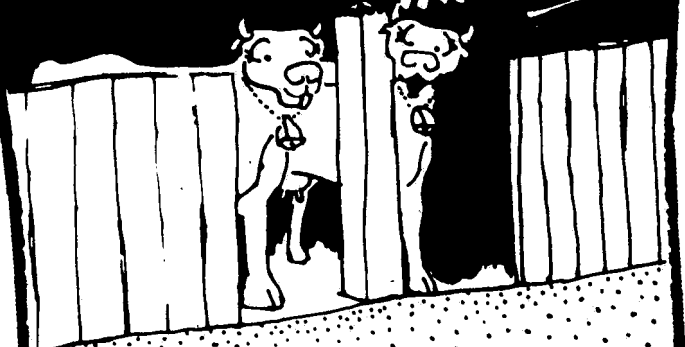

Raymond M. Genick, 34, Huntington

Woods, married with 3 children, Associate Director, Credit Programs at Wayne State University; Charles P. Holmes, 40, Bloomfield Hills, married with 3 children, Deputy Director OCCCO;

Donald Loper, 45, Pontiac, married with 5 children, self-employed in women's apparel business;

Eugene L. Johnson of Pontiac is also seeking election but his background information was not available.

Signs of vandalism not peace

A new dimension was added to the Memorial Day celebration in Clarkston last week. It indicated that the day has a different meaning for some people.

The American Legion, who has sponsored the program over the years, has based its belief and practice in tradition. This tradition calls for services to be held honoring the memory of men who have given their lives in service to the United States of America.

Accordingly, they plan a dignified parade and solemn ceremony in the cemetery where many of these men have been buried. To guarantee the dignity for the occasion, even bicycles, horses, antique cars or anything of a frivolous nature are barred from the parade.

Flags, flowers and spectators add the only splashes of color.

This year a new element was added.

Sometime, in the early hours of Saturday morning, the town was decorated for Memorial Day. It was decorated, not with flowers and flags as is the custom, but with painted signs and symbols. The signs and symbols were painted on buildings and sidewalks.

The signs said, "end the war." The symbols were ugly fists. Some were accompanied by printed vulgarities.

To think that painting signs on public and private property will help end the war is an infantile approach to the problem. To threaten, with clenched fist, is a redundancy of the philosophy of war, "the strong will overcome."

The plan reeks of immaturity and stupidity. In our eyes it is a pure case of vandalism. It reeks of the furtiveness and vileness found in underground papers and organizations.

Merchants and citizens are hurrying to remove the paint from the streets and buildings. The ugly scars may be more difficult to erase.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Listen here, America

"America, you have underarm wetness. But I don't care."

That's what I'm going to tell America when I go on national television.

Avco Corp will send a camera crew to my home to film me while I talk. Avco will pay the network bill. All I have to do is pay for redecorating the house. Our tattered drapes and flecking paint aren't going to be seen by millions of dust-checking housewives, my wife said.

You probably read the Avco offer. In page ads in hundreds of newspapers, Avco said: "If you have something important to tell America, we'll put you on national television to say it."

It's hard for the little guy to be heard, Avco said. But he should be heard. So Avco is turning over its TV commercial time to "individual Americans like yourself."

Not all of you. In fact, just 50 the first year. I don't know who the other 49 will be. In truth, I must admit that Avco has not yet agreed I should be one of the persons to tell America something important. But the actual inking of the TV pact (that's show biz talk) is just a formality.

"If you have something to say and the guts to say it, write us a letter," Avco said. The Avco brass will decide what is important enough for America to hear. This column is my letter and it can't miss. But, in case I forget, would you please mail it to "An American Speaks, Box 878 New York, N.Y. 10017."

Like I said, America should be assured that underarm wetness does not mean the end of the world. TV commercials have scared America silly of all the wrong things. What could be more appropriate than to correct this through the use of Avco commercials?

It's really not so terrible, America, if you smell or burp or sweat. Girls may like you even if you don't drive a sporty car. You can insist that "Winstons taste good like a cigaret should" is poor grammar without fear of 12 howling men tap dancing on your head.

I even know a woman who had nerve enough to call a repairman to fix her Maytag. She still lives.

So phooey.

What we need are commercials warning that Pentagon generals may be hazardous to the health of your 18-year-old son. Each body counted in our military body-counts was once a human being who loved and was loved. His family misses him.

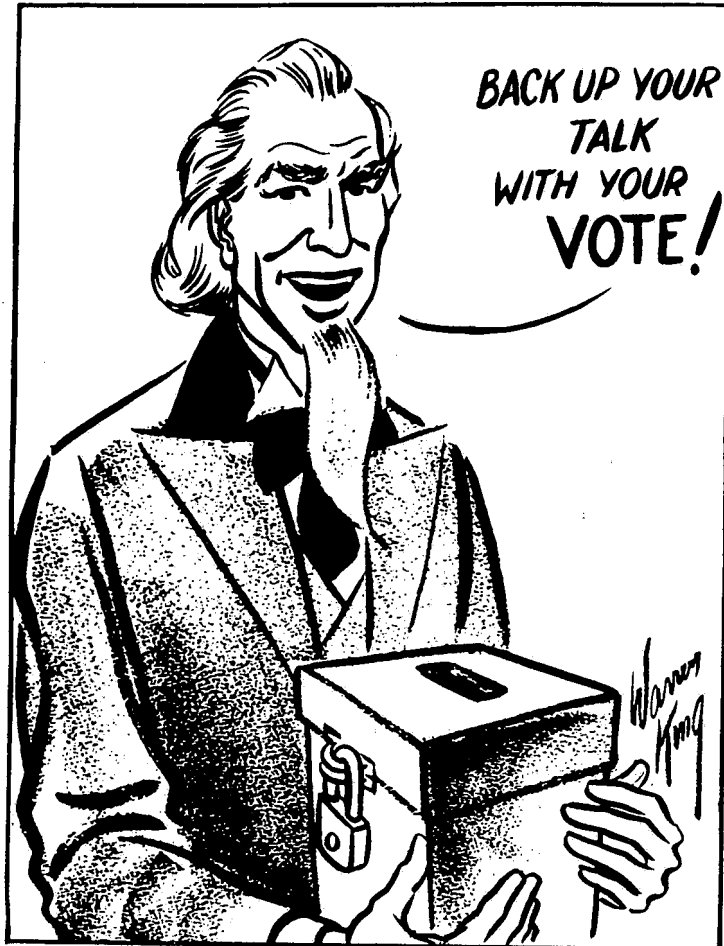

You should not judge a man by the length of his hair or the color of his skin. No more "back of the bus." All of us bleeding liberals know that. But the same yardstick should be applied when your daughter picks a date, or a husband. Otherwise, the whole idea is phony and will never get off the ground.

White racism has caused countless problems and misery. But black racism, although more understandable, is just as stupid. The only real hope is that enough black men will forgive and forget. Which is more than many white men deserve.

And until these problems of war and race are solved, everything else is peanuts. Pollution hurts and there's glory on the moon. But first, people must learn how to get along with people.

See you on TV? Don't bet your spray deodorant on it. †

DON'T BE A POLITICAL DROPOUT

Your one vote is important

Don't be a political drop-out. Vote in the school election on Monday, June 8.

There is more to local politics than just "talk." Each one of us should back up our "talk" with a vote.

Do your homework and cast your ballot.

We could go back in history to the many elections decided by one vote. We don't think it necessary. The way you can prevent becoming a political drop-out is to make sure that you cast your vote.

Sleep

Some experts are alarmed over the rapid rise in the use of barbiturates by people who are convinced that they can't sleep without being drugged. The main cause of concern: most people are harmed more by their anxiety over the loss of sleep than by the "sleepless" nights.

First of all, not everybody requires eight hours of sleep per night. Our individual needs are different, and our sleeping patterns vary. One man will sleep nine hours a night, while his neighbor does quite well with six. Just lying awake in bed is almost as good for you as "sound sleep," if you don't fret about it.

Now that scientists can measure the way in which we slumber and dream, it appears that most people are poor judges of their own sleep patterns. You may believe you've "tossed and turned all night," while you've actually slept for hours.

Or we imagine that it takes hours for us to fall asleep, when we actually drop off into a light slumber after only a few minutes.

Sleep comes in waves; the soundest (and most beneficial) sleep occurs in the first three-hour wave, which is probably reflected in the old adage, "An hour of sleep before midnight is worth two after." But when you retire isn't vital; regularity may be much more important.

If it makes you restless sleepers feel any better, people with high IQs appear to go along with less sleep than others do.

A FRAME FOR YOUR LIFE

"Take heed, and beware of all covetousness; for a man's life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions."

Luke 12:15

One year our family spent two weeks living on a farm while its owners were taking a trip across the country. It was unusual for me because it was the first time I had ever spent on a farm without working hard. But it gave me time to think about farmers and their possessions and all of man and his possessions. Most young farmers starting from scratch don't have to worry about too many possessions. But sometimes farmers make it rich either by their hard work or by inheritance or by subdividing.

The parable of the farmer whom Jesus called the 'rich fool' brings up the question of covetousness and the meaning of life. No farmer wants to be 'framed' as the culprit for all man's ills, but farmers and all men need a frame for life, a perspective, a setting in which life fits.

Let's face it, some things are necessary to life in this world. We inhabit material bodies, we have to meet the demands of a material world, we live not in a vacuum but in a realm of things. Possessions are needed to enhance man's freedom and it is doubtful if a man's character in this world can really be complete without some things to call his own. The Lord once commended a centurion who built a synagogue for a town out of his 'things'.

But things are not the meaning of life and the man in the parable was called 'thou fool'. We assume to give the benefit of the doubt, that the man in the story came by his wealth honestly. He was farsighted, practical and successful. Yet the Lord called him 'thou fool'. This was because he failed to keep a clear space between himself and his possessions. A man must keep things at their distance. When a man passes beyond collecting things and the things begin to collect him he is in trouble.

So beyond the necessary things, we must look farther for a 'frame' for life. The Lord once said, "I have meat to eat that ye know not of." The awareness of who put the things here for us and why is part of this 'frame'. Awareness of the needs of others besides ourselves for their 'things' is part of this 'frame'. Awareness of God's view of this world is involved. The Psalm writer put it in a couplet:

"The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof,
The world and they that dwell therein."

Kipling wrote, "because we know we have breath in our mouth and think we have thought in our head, we shall assume that we are alive, whereas we are really dead..." Whitman said, "I love God and flowers and little children." The 'rich fool' seemed to have no such love. All the lovely things we collect need a frame and if some spill outside the frame perhaps that's where they should stay.

The poor rich ones

by Haslett Hemmor

Remember when folks were saying that everyone complained about the weather but nobody done nothing about it? Guess that old proverb isn't even good for a chuckle no more.

Nowadays it seems more like everyone is complaining about taxes, and nobody does anything about 'em except to keep on raising the rates higher and higher.

Can't win for losing. Sure can't. Turn down millage issues and all you hear is how some old goats must hate kids. Couple months pass and up comes the bond issue again, only now for more dough on account of building prices went up meanwhile, while the rotten taxpayers twiddled their thumbs.

Them that's got school age kids whoop it up pretty good about half days, and they shame folks about how at best, half days only give the kids half an education and practical pushes them to a life of crime.

Now there's no denying that there's some mighty fine folk who been doing for their kids and their kid's kids for half a century, but just plain don't have the money to pay these gosh awful land taxes now.

Take old Vern Colter for example, Vern and Hattie are pushing 75. They got that 80 acre farm just north of Howser's Corners. Used to be a fair sort of farm when it paid to have apple orchards, but old Vern hasn't been able to keep it up too good for near 15 years.

For quite a spell the Colters tried to do all the spraying and trimming and picking and sorting by themselves. Couldn't afford to hire good help and it got so they couldn't keep up even working 12-14 hours, seven days a week.

More than they could handle, so they stopped setting out new trees and gradual the whole orchard just sort of petered out.

Now about all they have for income is their raspberry and strawberry patches, and the two of them are about as weatherbeaten and broken down as the old apple orchards. Some days one or both of 'em is flat in bed - bad backs and arthritis and all.

for this year. Took the last of their savings to pay that shot.

Guess it depends on a fellow's personal viewpoint when you try to figure out how an old couple like that should be helped. Talk to some that work in a shop and bring home maybe $160 a week, and they'll tell you that if they owned acreage worth upwards of $75,000, they wouldn't exactly consider themselves poor. Matter of fact, though, the Colters figure their place is home, and they'd like to pass it on to their kids. Why, old Vern and Hattie live on less income than most couples on welfare, but they're too darn proud to ask for help. Won't even take nothing from their own children. Maybe couldn't pay the income tax if they did sell.

Township super told 'em right out that they couldn't get no tax relief as long as they had any savings at all. Told them they'd be better off to sell and buy a little place in town or maybe live with their boy Jim. That would be nice. No income at all, and they'd feel total useless.

Like old Vern said, 75 didn't used to be so old, but maybe now folks should be shot when they get too weak to pull a plow.

High protein golf

by Jean Sura

The protein fad has struck the golf world. I realized this the other day along about the 10th hole.

"Do you want some space food?" said my partner.

"Space food? What are you talking about?" I answered.

With that, she dug down in her bag and pulled out some objects that looked like small cigars and proceeded to eat one.

"These are great," she said, "all protein and non-fattening. Gives you that surge of energy that you need."

One hundred yards further and another girl in the foursome said, "Would you like a protein pill?"

"A protein pill?"

"Oh, yes, I could never make the last nine if I didn't have something to bolster me up."

Well, I didn't like the space food, and I choked trying to swallow the protein pill.

Suddenly I realized that I was just going to fall over in a dead faint if I didn't supplement my golf with a little charge.

The next week, being a realist and practical as well, I boiled some eggs for myself. If protein would make me a better golfer, I could do something about that immediately.

The idea was fine except that when I leaned over the trunk of the car to get my clubs, I crushed one of the eggs which was in the pocket of my sweater.

This didn't upset me too much. I just peeled what I could salvage and ate what was left. I still had one egg left for the 10th hole. That was when you really got tired and needed the lift.

The match was a close one. The score was all even as we went down the ninth fairway. My opponent missed a shot, it took a lucky bounce off a rock at the side of the green and caromed back, hit the pin and came to rest, a tap-in, (gimme, even for a gal) putt.

I had chipped on the green but left myself a long undulating putt to tie the match. This required some study. I got down behind the ball to line it up with the hole.

As I leaned over, the egg rolled out of my pocket and plopped on the green at my feet.

There was silence. With the blood pounding in my head, I slapped at the ball with my putter. Four strokes later it fell into the hole accidentally.

At lunch that day there was a new topic of conversation.

"Did you hear that Jean laid an egg on the ninth green? That's really the truth. I saw it with my own eyes. She missed the putt to lose the match, too."

Chicken Little was right. The sky did fall.

Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria following the ceremony with the Senior Scouts serving as hostesses. Articles the girls have made this year will be on display.

Junior Girl Scout Troops 453 and 210 went camping at Columbiere College in a lodge located on the college grounds. They had campfires, a one pot meal, and learned knife care.

The 40 girls started their adventure Friday, May 15 at 5:00 and ended it Sunday, May 17 at 12:30.

The girls took hikes. Bedtime and lights out at 10:30 and getting up at 6:00 a.m. rules were not too closely observed.

Catholic girls had a church service at the college church and Protestant girls held a hillside service.

TROOP 453

Junior Girl Scout Troop 453 had a play honoring Mother's Day on Saturday, May 9 at the Clarkston Methodist Church.

The Clarkston Junior, Cadette and Senior Troops have been busy with troop camping. Some of the things learned in connection with this include choosing a suitable campsite; planning, shopping and preparing outdoor meals; making a bedroll; choosing suitable clothing; first aid; putting up tents and other outdoor activities.

Clarkston Day Camp plans are under way. It will be held at the Oakland County Sportsman's Club from June 22-26 from 9:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. More adults are still needed to help. Contact Mrs. Burnette if you wish to help.

Physical exams for Day Camp will be given at a clinic in the near future. Parents will be notified of the time and place.

The Girl Scout Bridging Ceremony is scheduled for Thursday, June 11 at the Methodist Church.

Clarkston Neighborhood annual Girl Scout Bridging ceremony will be held this year at the Clarkston Junior High School on Thursday evening, June 11 at 7:30 p.m.

A rehearsal is scheduled at the Junior High on Monday, June 8 from 4 p.m. - 5:30 p.m.

Bridges advance Girl Scouts from one level of Scouting to a higher level. Brownies become Junior Girl Scouts, Juniors become Cadettes, and Cadettes move on to Senior Scouts.

New girls interested in Scouting will also be welcomed to the Scouting program at this ceremony. Girls interested in joining next year should call the troop organizer, Mrs. Vastine at 625-3961.

All the Scouts will receive their membership star denoting another year of Scouting completed and a colored disc representing the level of Scouting.

Brownies receive "wings" before they move up to Juniors. Juniors going into Cadettes receive cockades.

All the Scouts will have a part in the program which will include a flag ceremony, the bridging, the promises, short talks on an interesting project their troop completed this year and a song by

Clarkston nine look to next year

The unimpressive record of the 1970 baseball season failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the players and coaches at Clarkston High School.

The team ended the season with 7 wins and 15 losses but the fact that much experience had been gained by a promising junior squad made it a rewarding year.

Bob Klann is the only player to graduate from the starting line-up. Other seniors who will not be returning are George Bennett and Ron Sova.

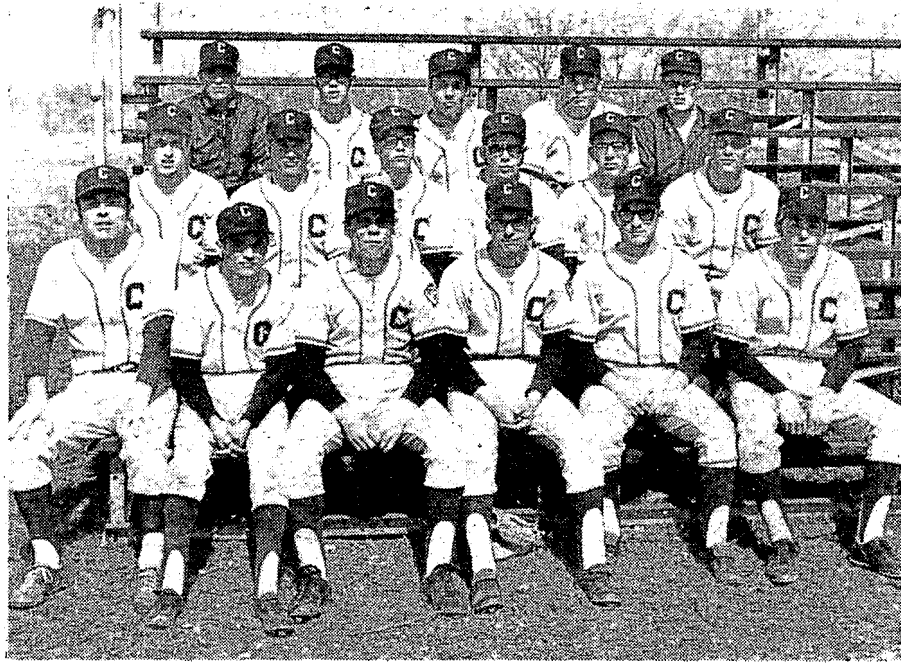

The most outstanding achievement of the year was the 7-3 win over Lansing Sexton and the defeat of Waterford-Mott after that team had won 16 games in a row.

"Next year this team should do a good job," said Coach Paul Tungate, "as all the pitchers will be returning and with the aid of the Junior Varsity (who had an 11-5 record) much depth will be added."

Mike Turk was named to the 2nd team of the Wayne-Oakland All-League team and Rick Prasil was given honorable mention.

Statistics for the year show Prasil leading the batters with a .316 average. Hoy followed with .246 and Turk hit .236. Swanson led the team in the power department with 4 homeruns and 11 RBI. In 55 innings, Hoy managed to pitch .500 ball with 4 wins and 4 losses.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Schroeder and their 3 daughters, T.C., Julie and Carrie, are wearing big smiles now that they are back in town.

The Schroeders have spent the last 3 years in Syracuse, New York where Mr. Schroeder was sent to work by GMTC.

Welcome back.

Mrs. Robert (Valerie) Tannehill was surprised to receive a phone call from her husband who is serving with the armed forces in Vietnam. Bob has been in Vietnam since January and is scheduled to remain there until January of 1971.

Same to you

Shel George

Since the publication of my first column in the May 14th issue, several comments have come my way. For instance, one neighbor lady wanted to know why I hadn't written about her kids. Another neighbor lady wanted to know why I had written about hers.

My wife's mother wanted to know what was so bad about kissing a mother-in-law. You may recall that I compared this with the neighbor kids' reaction to my singing. I told her "nothing" as long as you were the father-in-law. Two or three people had sundry comments about the picture.

My only response to them was "the same to you." Some were polite in their comments, but I surmise not too truthful. Flattery will get you anywhere, friends.

A few who know me just shook their heads with rather quizzical expressions on their faces. One dear lady from out of state seemed most fair in her comments. She said that in all of her 62 years she had never read a better column. Thanks, Mom.

I have asked myself "why?" My background isn't one of journalism as most of you can tell. In part, my motivation came from a sense of frustration. This stems from the feeling that "one can't fight city hall."

Granted, when the decision has already been reached, this saying is all too often true. But writing gives me an outlet.

I don't plan on using this column as a crusading stick, but sometimes perhaps I will have something to say.

Many of you share this feeling, but the difference is that I now have a method of "sounding off." I have learned very quickly that thinking I have something to say and saying it are often two entirely different matters.

Something else became evident very quickly. A dictionary is indes . . . , indy . . . , uh, absolutely necessary.

Most of all, however, I wanted to write because it seemed like fun. So far it has been. The humorous abuse from the office people was expected. By and large, their comments have been helpful. No doubt I have become a little harder to live with around these people.

My friends will just have to put up with the complimentary copies of the News that I force on them. After all, it's only logical that I should attempt to help build circulation.

If the end result is that notoriety should come my way, I'll learn to ride my bicycle around the neighborhood incognito.

My source of information is having been alive for 34 years. Almost daily something happens that is amusing, interesting, informative or related to an experience I once had.

For example, this week I learned that a honey bee can cruise at 7 miles per hour. This would probably be classified in the human intellect as trivia, but to the bee it is important.

For the most part, I trust the column will be readable. Some of what I say will be fabrication, solely for the sake of amusement. I think that type of information will be obvious.

At other times, the thoughts recorded will represent a rambling mind. Sometimes the central point will be an issue that I think is important.

I have come to realize the difference between opinion and conviction. Opinion is "something we hold to." Conviction is "something which holds us."

My deepest conviction is that I'm opinionated. If you follow this column with any degree of regularity, you'll soon know this.

Signs used to aid anti-litter drive

Anti-litter warnings will appeal to the better side of human nature as motorists travel two Michigan freeways this summer, the Department of State Highways said today.

Signs reading "$100 Fine for Throwing Trash on Highways" will appear along the U.S.-27 Freeway in Clare County and along the Interstate 696 Business Spur (John C. Lodge Freeway) in Detroit.

The signs are part of an experiment to determine the effectiveness of anti-litter signs on urban and rural freeways. After one year, the cost of litter pick-up on the signed sections will be compared with costs for the previous year.

Local law enforcement agencies and courts will be asked to cooperate in the program.

The Highway Department will spend more than $1 million this year to pick up after careless motorists who discard everything from dentures to bed springs along our highways. The great bulk of litter is composed of bottles, cans and paper.

The Department maintains litter barrels at 59 freeway rest areas, 100 roadside parks and 1,000 picnic sites along the 9,240 mile state highway system.

The anti-litter signs, to be erected by July 1, are three feet wide by four feet high, and have black lettering on a white background.

Clarkston trackmen end season with win

Fred Seyler broke a school record when he was clocked at 4:22.7 running the mile in the State finals at Ann Arbor. The time was good enough to capture a 9th place in the meet.

The Clarkston track team closed the season with a dual meet record of 2 wins and 8 losses.

The last meetings of the season were against Milford on May 19 and West Bloomfield on May 21.

In the Milford meet, Seyler picked up another school record in the 2-mile run when he was timed at 9:36.3. The time won him a first place.

The final score was Milford, 63,

Clarkston, 55.

Clarkston swept the long jump, won both relays and broke 3 school records defeating West Bloomfield and closing the season on a high note.

School records tumbled when Carlsen, Ballough, Humphrey and Seyler ran the mile relay in a record 3:33.2; Kurt Carlsen sped to a 51:0 in the 440 yard dash; and Fred Seyler covered the 880 run in 1:59.89.

The sweep of the long jump by Bill Svetkoff (18'2½"), Doug Kath (17'5¼"), and Rich Klein (17'4¾"), broke the back of the opposition as Clarkston ended the season with a win, 67 to 51.

Nursery school ends year

The Clarkston Nursery, Inc., a cooperative nursery, is now registering pre-school children for its fall sessions. Nursery classes are held at the Clarkston United Methodist Church, Waldon road.

Next year the nursery will be expanding its program to include an additional 2 afternoon a week session for 4 and 5 year old children. The present sessions, a 2 morning a week session for 3 and 4 year olds and a 3 morning a week session for 4 and 5 year old children, will continue unchanged.

The Executive Board, headed by President Ruth Vecsei, is making arrangements for a new teacher for the afternoon session as well as arranging the school calendar and informal coffee hours to acquaint new members with the cooperative.

The Clarkston Cooperative Nursery is a non-profit organization administered and maintained by the parents. They assist in the nursery under the supervision of the teacher and are actively involved in a Parent Education Program.

It offers the child opportunities for social, emotional, intellectual and physical growth under the guidance of trained teachers, at a cost within the means of most families.

For enrollment information, interested parents may contact membership chairman Carole Rausch at 625-3802.

The school year came to a close at the Clarkston Nursery last week when the children and their mothers spent the day picnicking at Wildwood State Park.

The previous week had been filled with special activities. At Upland Hills Farm the children were allowed to pet the animals and ride on the horse-drawn wagon.

Earlier in the week, a walk to the Mill Pond was topped off with a stop at the ice cream parlor for treats.

All the activities brought the year to a successful close.

C.E.A. Report

By Larry Rosso

The negotiating representatives of the CEA and the Board of Education met Tuesday, May 26th. The Board presented counter-proposals to the CEA proposals of May 13.

The Board re-submitted four unchanged proposals out of a total of seven it presented at a previous negotiation session. As this might indicate, no significant progress has been achieved in these unresolved areas.

George White, CEA President, stated: "A spirit of compromise must exist on both sides if an honorable solution is to be realized."

The CEA and the Board will resume negotiations Wednesday, June 10.

The CEA urges all eligible voters to exercise their voting privilege by going to the polls in Monday's (June 8th) school board election.
