Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

The irony of the GM strike. Skip Williams, a seller of Pontiac cars, pointed out the position he finds himself in during the shutdown.

He says the auto workers voted to put themselves out of work, which will in time take his source of income, yet he has to pay a portion of the food stamp money (welfare) that the strikers are allowed.

In effect, Skip says, he's paying to lose his job.

Such is the workings of a semi-democracy, semi-welfare, semi-socialist state.

Used to be at occasions like the first day of school, funerals, weddings, and more or less special and family events we had to have a haircut to attend. Now the more we need one the more we're in style.

Ninety-five percent of all failures in business are from the ranks of non-advertisers. Only 5 percent of those who fail are advertisers. End of commercial.

To be able to mark our gains through life we're told to set goals, then when these are achieved we should set new goals. I've been setting goals since I was first told I should. Few have been reached and none on schedule.

Some goals I've set could better be called "things I wanted to be." Did you go through this? Are you still wanting to be something different from what you are?

I've only recently passed the "wish" of wanting to be a major league baseball pitcher. This goes back to my pre-high school days. The closest I ever got to it was pitching for Owosso High as a freshman. When we moved to Morrice the coach didn't even try me . . . and was I good.

Even in my 20's in Gladwin I started working out with the White Star team east of town. A change of jobs to St. Johns stopped that goal.

I also had a yearning to play the piano. I wanted to be the guy who runs up and down the keys like Jimmy Durante while loud friends spilled beverages on the mahogany and ivory. I even took lessons for a while.

I haven't given up this goal, but I think I should.

Sitting here recalling things I wanted to be, I find myself

Richard Taylor

Clarkston youth dies in Vietnam

The third son of a Clarkston family to serve in the armed forces, an 18-year-old youth, Richard A. Taylor, was killed while serving with the U.S. Army in Vietnam.

He died on the morning of September 26 from wounds received in action.

Funeral services with full military honors were held on October 6 from the Coats Funeral Home in Pontiac for the young soldier. Rev. Henry E. Wrobbel, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, officiated.

Richard was a Specialist 5 and served as a medic. He entered the service in November of 1968 and served for 1 year in Germany. In May, after a furlough at home, he was sent to Vietnam.

Taylor, who attended Clarkston High School, is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Taylor of 5223 Woodlane Drive in Independence Township. Also surviving are his 6 brothers, James, 30; John, 26; Robert, 23; Donald, 21; Dennis, 13; Roy, 9; his 3 sisters, Mrs. Tom (Mary) Tedder, 28; Mrs. Nelson (Esther) Ashmead, 26 and Doris, 11.

The streamer proclaiming her CHS 1970 Homecoming Queen is pinned on Linda Slade.

wondering at what point I wanted to be what I am. Have you wondered the same of yourself? The answer I come up with is never.

I decided in 1946 to do something in journalism, run a linotype. And I decided to get into the selling and writing end in 1949, but the ownership just happened. I wish I'd planned it. The work is interesting, it pays the bills, and most of the time I enjoy coming to the office to start another day.

I've about decided all future moves of this company should be planned, because that's the "business" way of doing things. But the end result will probably be no more rewarding than past "happenings."

"Waterproof Clarkston" registrations open

Once again the Clarkston Area Jaycees and the Clarkston Community Schools will cooperate to provide a "Waterproof Clarkston" program. The program will provide swimming instruction and recreation for all children in the Clarkston school district who qualify.

Three 8-week sessions are planned for Saturday mornings. The first session will run from October 29 through December 19. Session 2 will run from January 9 to February 27 and the last session will be held from March 13 through May 1.

Registration will be held at the Clarkston Junior High School on October 16, 19, 20 and 21 from 7 to 9 p.m.

Eligibility for the program will be determined by height, with all participants standing 4 feet, 6 inches or more.

Parents will be responsible for their children's transportation to and from bus pick-up stations at the elementary schools.

All children enrolled in the program should be brought to the Clarkston Elementary School for bus pick-up for the first week. At that time a schedule will be established for the following weeks. Parents will be notified of this schedule.

School bus regulations require that adults supervise the vehicles while in transit so the Jaycees request that parents make themselves available to assist in this capacity.

Students will be required to furnish their own swim suits, towels and pay $4.00 to cover the cost of the 8 weekly sessions.

Jaycette Lorraine Simondson, left, helps Barb Gusie roll out the crust for the pumpkin pies they will sell at their October 23 pie sale. The sale will be held in front of the Pontiac State Bank and in the Village parking lot. Jaycees Jim Wilson and Ronald Crites supervise the operation. Michele Crites is the interested observer. The Jaycees will sell pumpkins in the Village on the 23rd and from door to door on October 24 and 25.

We oppose county tax hike

By Jim Sherman

On November 3, Oakland County voters will be asked to increase the millage limitation to 18 mills. It is currently 15 mills.

A yes vote favors upping the limitation. A no vote means the millage limit remains at 15. In both cases the wording "up to" precedes the figures.

This allows the raising of millage "up to 18" by the county.

We are against approving the millage limit increase.

Between valuations rising naturally and the state and county equalization boards doing their thing taxes are continually rising without adding 3 mills.

The ballot sets limitations on the percent of the 18 mills the county, schools and townships will get.

The county would get more than at present, schools would get more than at present and townships getting more than one mill, like Oxford and Independence, would get cut to one mill.

The county allocation board would be discontinued.

No recommendation was made by the County Board of Commissioners. Nor was one expected or needed.

When a county allocation board petitions the commissioners to put a millage limit on the ballot all the Commissioners can do is see if the petition is legally sufficient and set a date. That they did.

We're recommending you see if the ballot is legally sufficient and then vote NO.

Storefront reporters

By Jim Fitzgerald

TV is full of shows about lawyers who work for free and doctors who make house calls to neighboring countries on Hondas after midnight. But whatever happened to the brash reporter with the flask of gold who used to save the world while wearing a hat with the brim turned up?

The newspaper profession is obviously being ignored by TV producers. Something should be done about it and I am just the clown to do it.

My show will be called "The Young Storefront Reporters". My 3 reporters are a Negro woman, a male Indian teenager, and another young man whose nationality cannot be immediately determined because of all the hair hanging in his face. He is my wild-card character. At any time during the series he can get a haircut and reveal himself to be a Jew or an Arab or a Viet Cong or even a conservative Republican, whatever seems politically expedient at the time.

These 3 reporters work for a wise, kindly, older (but still sexy!) editor who has ink in his veins. This was discovered during World War 2 and he was thrown out of a Red Cross blood bank on his ear.

This wise editor knows everything but he does not force his will upon young Indian, Negro and Wild Card. He lets them make their own decisions and go their own way, as long as they report back to him 1 minute before each commercial.

"It's the only way," the wise editor explains. "These youngsters must have their freedom to do their thing. And besides, this way they do all the work."

I will play the part of the wise old editor.

A typical plot might concern this young girl who comes into the newspaper office to buy a year's subscription. But it costs $5 and she has only $3.

This is a young person with a problem! Indian, Negro and Wild Card leap to her assistance. They really do leap, right over the subscription counter, knocking their wise, kindly editor flat on his ink-stained pants.

Besides being $2 short, the subscriptionless girl also has some minor problems. She's pregnant and unwed. She's on heroin and has VD. She ran away from home 4 years ago and her millionaire parents have not yet noticed she is gone. They have been too busy selling Establishment taffy at the PTA Fair.

And there's a busted string on her guitar.

It would spoil things if I told you how Indian and Negro and Wild Card solve this girl's problems. But you can be sure they get the job done before the wise old editor is back on his ink-stained feet. For details, watch your TV listings.

However, to keep you eager, I will let you in on the ending. Most of the doctor-lawyer shows end with the heroes running down a street. But no one ever knows why they are running. On my show, you'll know.

Indian and Negro and Wild Card are running after a Red Cross bloodmobile which, by mistake, has accepted some of the editor's blood.

Kutting Korners

By Jean Sura

If you lose track of the time and don't know whether your eggs have boiled long enough to be hard I am told that you can tell by spinning them on your counter. If it is done sufficiently it will spin quickly.

Did you know that if you insert a needle in the end of a raw egg before boiling or cooking it will prevent its cracking during the cooking process?

There is a rule to follow in buying eggs to get the greatest value. If a dozen is selling for less than seven cents over the next smaller size, the larger-sized eggs are the best value. If the difference between the two sizes is more than seven cents, the smaller size is probably the best buy. These tips are from the Bourassa family in Cadillac, Mich. Thanks, Barb, Babe and Mary Louise.

Remember that eggs are graded either AA or A. Grade AA is top quality. Grade A is the next quality designation. When comparing prices, be sure that you also compare like grade — A against A and AA against AA. This information comes from the Michigan State University Department of Information.

Up in Cadillac they tell me that the bitterness can be removed from a cucumber by taking an easy precaution before peeling. Cut off a 1/2 inch piece from each end. Take the piece from the stem end and rotate it against the other cut end. Do the same thing with the other end.

It sounds a little like superstition to me but they swear it works and I wouldn't dispute their decision.

Do be sure to rinse off the white fluid that results. That is supposed to be the bitter part.

Mrs. Mary Frank of Royal Oak sends this speedy, delicious recipe for a company casserole.

- 1 cup long grain rice (uncooked)
- 1 can cream mushroom soup
- 1 can cream of chicken soup
- 1 can cream of celery soup

Mix rice and soup. Put in bottom of baking dish.

Place pieces of raw chicken on top of the rice mixture (lightly). Pour melted butter over chicken. Sprinkle with lemon juice and a little sugar.

Bake, uncovered, at 350 degrees for 1 hour and 30 minutes.

I have an abundance of stale potato chips on hand. Can anyone tell me what to do with them? It seems terribly extravagant to throw them away.

Call 625-3370 or write the Clarkston News or Oxford Leader.

Is Pride Unusually Good?

It depends on what you're proud about. Community National Bank is proud. We're proud to be part of this community. We're proud that nearly 500 CNB employees, from the Chairman of the Board and President on down, live right in the community we serve. We're proud that we've grown 115% in deposits over the last 10 years. We're proud that our officers average 20 years of financial experience apiece. We're proud to have doubled our branch offices since 1960. We're proud to have introduced: CommuniBank 500, Master Charge, and Color Photo Check Guarantee cards to the community.

But, most of all, we're proud to say we can meet every commitment we make. Always have been. Always will be. So you tell us . . . Is it unusually good to be proud?

Lost, stolen o

When I taught school the "Lost and Found Department" fascinated me. We put a lot of things in it, but I don't remember anybody taking anything out until the last day of school. On that day we would raffle it all off to the lucky kids who won at "Seven Up." (That is a game, not a drink.)

The Lost and Found Department was usually a box or table in a corner of the room. When it overflowed, the stuff was carted down to the principal's office to wait for the June clean-out.

You wouldn't believe what you could find. I never could figure out how a kid got home minus his shoes.

"All right," I said one day, "this is too much. We're going to track down some of the owners of this stuff."

"Everybody get in line. Somebody lost their shoes today and I aim to find out who it is."

"Not me," they all chorused.

"Okay, you, the one with the boots. Step out of line."

"Those aren't my shoes," said

"Come on, take them off and sneak out of my room with them."

"But, Mrs. Sura, these are my boots. I wear them all the time, inside the house."

"Off with the boots, Knave. He sat down on the floor and pulled the boot off. He pulled and his face got red and he broke out in a sweat."

"Gosh, I guess I must have lost my little brother's boots by accident this morning," he said. "They're kept in the Lost and Found Department."

The room was reduced to a table and everybody broke ranks to help find the boots.

"Quiet," I yelled. "Everybody get in line. I'll help Jimmy."

We finally got the boots off the table.

"Gee," said Jimmy, "I forgot to tell you."

"Aha," I snorted, "just come on, William, bring me all those socks and shoes from the lost and found department. We'll have a shoe sale."

I'm not.

We teachers tried all methods of returning merchandise to the owners. None of them worked.

"It's our affluent society," I finally decided. "Kids don't have any sense of appreciation for their belongings. Lose it today — get new ones tomorrow! How can they possibly not miss shoes, socks, coats, mittens, hats? It is a sad commentary on our times."

I thought all of these great thoughts before this morning.

This morning it is raining. I'm wearing a navy blue dress this morning.

I have torn this house apart, room by room and closet by closet. I can't find my raincoat. I can't find my good blue shoes.

If you don't mind, would you check your closets? The coat is an off-white, wash-and-wear with one bone colored button missing. The shoes are navy blue leather with square pearl-like buckles and a 2-inch heel.

"Gee, I must have left them somewhere."

World Series time has to be a natural for this story. There perhaps has never been, nor ever will be, another pitcher like Mil Famey.

He came straight from the country. He was tall, lean, loose and he chewed on timothy seed stems. From the time he was old enough to walk, Mil had enjoyed throwing rocks and things. Much time spent in pitching rocks at fence posts had given him the accuracy needed to pitch a baseball.

Mil pitched a lot of ball for the local sandlot teams. One year he finished up with a 13-0 won-loss record for Tri-County Farm Bureau. His performance was so spectacular that season, he attracted a lot of attention from the big league scouts. After due consideration of the bonuses, fringe benefits, locations, etc., he signed a contract and was immediately farmed out to the minor leagues.

Mil's manager benefited by his coming from the country. He had not been exposed to city night life and had developed no character weaknesses. Keeping team training rules was as easy as casting a shadow in the sun.

Mil's team was in the thick of the pennant race. In fact, he was picked as the starting pitcher for the final game. The teams were tied for first and even for a country boy, the pressure was tense.

The opposing manager had great respect for Mil's ability. He also knew about his "country character." So in a not-too-ethical way, he decided to influence Mil's pitching ability.

On the night before the big game, Mil received a phone call. It was the manager of the opposing team with an invitation to dinner. Mil was surprised, honored and he accepted.

Because of his limited exposure to "eating out" establishments, Mil didn't realize that the beverage that came with the meal was beer. He didn't particularly care for it, but his "up-bringing" had taught him to be polite to his host. Consequently, before the evening was over, Mil was a tad tipsy.

The game was close the next day. The score was tied at one to one in the bottom of the ninth. Because of the preceding evening's activities, Mil began to tire some and his control began to fade. After retiring the first two batters, he walked the next three. The bases were loaded.

You guessed it. Mil walked the next batter and in came the winning run.

The manager of Mil's team walked slowly across the diamond to offer the usual congratulations to the opposing manager.

"I just don't understand it," he said. "Mil never walks batters. I wonder what got into him?"

The opposing manager, knowing what had transpired the night before, smiled and replied, "I know what it was. It was the beer that made Mil Famey walk us."

Strike three and throw the bum out.

Most of us don't drink enough water. Everyone "needs at least two quarts of water a day, more on warmer days, to function normally", says Dr. Chas. Glen King, Associate Director, Columbia University Institute of Nutritional Sciences. "Less water than that may cause dehydration, resulting in fatigue, headaches, sullenness, and in extreme cases, collapse."

When we get too little water in our diet, the body uses less of it to carry off the wastes filtered out by the kidneys, and the urine becomes less dilute. In a person with a tendency toward kidney stones, this may intensify the trouble. Drinking plenty of fluids will help to wash away salts which otherwise might form into stones and may also be helpful in relieving constipation.

Big blue machine rolls to 3rd win

By Craig Moore
After scoring two touchdowns in the first quarter, the Clarkston Wolves unleashed their defense and defeated the Clarenceville Trojans 14-8.

The scoring started with a 60 yard drive involving 13 plays. Starting from the punt, the series ended when Rick Prasil romped into the end zone from the one yard line. A successful run by Prasil produced another 2 points and an 8-0 lead for the Wolves.

Clarkston took advantage of a break when Bill Housefield recovered a fumble on the Clarenceville 20. Two plays later, Mark Swanson moved 13 yards to score. With the run for conversion failing, the score was 14-0.

Clarenceville's luck changed in the third quarter when, after a 70-yard drive, Rob Weller scored on a 45-yard pass play. The two point conversion was good.

There was no score in the fourth quarter, so the final score stood, Clarkston 14, Clarenceville 8.

This victory gives the Wolves a 3-1 record, 2-1 in Wayne-Oakland competition.

"Defense played one heck of a first half!" said Coach Rakow. "We came on very strong in the first part of the game. Capitalizing on a few breaks, we scored our touchdowns. After that the offense rested up and let the defense do the work. The team is rolling now and the homecoming game with West Bloomfield should prove to be a fine contest."

Game time Friday is 8 o'clock with the homecoming festivities taking place at half time.

Spiritual Message

Frank A. Cozadd,

CLARKSTON UNITED METHODIST CHURCH

"CONVERSION"

On the subject of conversion, we may feel that some people are prescribing for us a stereotyped experience - their experiences - as the only legitimate way to become a Christian. We do well to resist, because nobody has a right to tell us what our conversion is supposed to look like on the outside, or even what it must feel like on the inside.

The basic meaning of conversion is to turn from one belief or course to another. But from what and to what? If you are an alcoholic, you can stop drinking. If you are a thief, you can stop stealing. But suppose you don't do this sort of thing and have high moral standards of conduct. What then?

When we read about Paul's conversion on the road to Damascus, we must never forget that he was a man of high moral standards and devoutly religious. He was convinced that the Christians misrepresented the God of the Bible and lied about God. He was positive that God would never send a Messiah to the kind of people which the followers of Christ were. In his eyes they were trash.

But Paul was converted. He became persuaded that he was wrong. It turns out that God is the kind of God who sends his Messiah to be the friend of sinners and who favors the unworthy with his blessings. Paul was not converted from a life of sin to a life of righteousness. Rather, in the words of Martin Dibelius, he turned from a religion of righteousness to a religion of sinners. Before his conversion he went over to the other side. He joined the ranks of the sinners and accepted for himself the blessing, the forgiveness, and the friendship that God's Messiah had bestowed upon the undeserving.

Conversion is a discovery of the truth about God - a God who greets us with a smile at the very moment we were going to turn away in shame; a God who insists that he wants us, to be his children, even when we can't stand ourselves.

The first result of our conversion is the freedom to accept the truth about ourselves - we are sinners being saved by the grace of God. In our conversion we have received the grace to give to other sinners the same kind of love and concern that God has been squandering on you and me.

Questions publisher's hearing, qualifications

8884 Mohawk, Clarkston
October 7, 1970

Dear Publisher,

For the first time I can remember, I was able to read all of your article in the September 24 issue of the Clarkston News. Having read part of your previous articles, I can understand why you have a problem with dogs. And these were your own!

Then you had to go ahead and write an editorial. I read all of this, too. Why did you feel a compulsion to step into this controversy and what made you feel qualified to do so?

I'm trying to remember the last time I saw a news article in your paper on township board proceedings. We buy the Pontiac Press to get news on Independence Township Board proceedings.

You have been there, but have you been listening? If you had, you would have heard Mr. Hursfall, whom you support, state repeatedly, "I could care less" on proposed zoning changes.

You would have heard Mr. Bennett, who is not up for reelection, state that his only reason for moving and supporting certain zoning changes is that there has been "too much talk already."

You would have seen just how "smooth running" is our township government. You would have seen stubborn minds made up and resolved to listen to nothing said by the citizens concerned.

I agree wholeheartedly with Mr. Bauer that our community should "provide for housing for all levels of income." But I disagree when the provision is for future slums and eyesores, and when that housing is taxed on a different basis than other single dwelling units; a basis that, in effect, requires a subsidy from the balance of the community.

I have sat and listened to the projection from the engineers and designers of what a thing of beauty is a mobile home subdivision. I have yet to see one.

One of the subdivisions pointed out as a model is that on Auburn Road, Avon Township. This is only a mile from my shop so I see it every day. Go look at it, tell me if you think it is a thing of beauty. I could be wrong.

Go look at the mobile home subdivision at Seven Mile and Gratiot. Ten years ago it wasn't bad. Look at it now, it is a garbage dump.

Mr. Sherman, I can do no more than recommend to voters that they follow the advice in the last line of your editorial, good grammar or not: "listen well, remember good and vote wise." I can also do no better than recommend to you that in the future you follow your own advice and listen; disregard friendship and decide issues on the basis of impact and future of our community.

Letters to the Editor

Inhospitable

Oct. 2, 1970

Dear Editor:

I am MAD!!

Last March we moved to Clarkston because we liked this town and we felt it would be a great place to raise a family. We had only been married six months at the time, so this was a very big move for us. Since we moved here we have had nothing but trouble, even though our neighbors assure us they haven't had any in the 15-20 years they have lived here. Let me give you some idea of what we have had:

March - Moved into our new home. We are very happy.

April - Still happy with our new home.

May - House broken into and ransacked. Now a little upset.

June - Made it through this month safely.

July - Had radiator and air filter taken out of OUR car sitting in OUR driveway. Now very upset.

August, September - Safe!!

October 1st - had valve stem taken out of tire. Result: 1 flat tire. They picked on a neighbor, too, this time.

October 2nd - They came back.

Clarkston student is Co-op participant

A Clarkston area student is among 10 who are participating in the earning-while-learning cooperative education program of Michigan Tech University's College of Engineering.

John D. MacGregor, a senior majoring in mechanical engineering, spent the summer quarter on the job with the Ford Motor Co., Transmission & Chassis Div. in Livonia.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Herman, 6969 Almond.

The program enables students to gain insight into their vocational choices so that they can more readily decide where their actual job interests lie, explained Dr. James A. Kent, dean of the college. Also important is the financial opportunity which is not available in most college programs, he added. The co-op program began last year and now has more than 70 sponsoring industries.

Result: 2 flat tires this time.

October - I can hardly wait 'til Halloween!

We have had it! This is ridiculous! Can't something be done? We don't live way out in the country some place, we live within blocks of Main Street.

Is there some way residents of private streets in this area can get together to get some street lights put up?

I wish I knew the words to express my utter disgust with the whole matter.

Don't parents know what their children are doing? Don't they care? When they get done with us, who knows, maybe they'll pick on your house.

Or don't you live in nice, quiet Clarkston?

Janet Horner

P.S. I don't know if this letter will do any good, but it made me feel better - 'til the next time.

Mrs. Pat Harrison, chairman of the Women's Club Blood Bank which was held on Monday, October 5, was very happy to announce that, "We made our goal of 100 pints this year." This was due to the efforts of the Women's Club who sponsored the bank, the church groups who furnished the cookies, the Jayettes for the lovely dinner served to the Red Cross workers and last, but far from least, the 115 people who came to give their blood. Okay school budget

By unanimous consent the Clarkston School Board approved the 1970-71 school budget which totaled $4,880,443 at their regular meeting on October 12.

This amount included $222,000 that is allocated for the new Vocational High School, which is scheduled to be in use by the second school semester in January.

Of the total figure, $3,317,256 was for instruction, $162,610 for administration and $123,100 for insurance.

Other outstanding expenditures were $466,411 for operation and $76,282 for maintenance.

The Independence Township Recreation Department through a request of its director, Paul Tungate, was granted permission to use school facilities on Saturday mornings for a program of wrestling. The program will begin in January and will be open to all boys in grades 2 to 5.

The Clarkston (Mich.) News Thurs., Oct. 15, 1970 15

A further request for use of football facilities to permit a midget football program was tabled for further study.

Permission was again granted to the Clarkston Jaycees to use school buses in their "Waterproof Clarkston" swimming program.

In further action, the Board rescinded the Tenure policy as outlined in the Policy Book.

George Barrie, Assistant Superintendent, pointed out that the section of the school Policy Book covering local tenure policy had become passe. He further indicated that the subject is now fully covered by Michigan law and the Master Agreement with the Clarkston Education Association.

Bearing in mind that the old policy procedures had become outdated and actually a hindrance, he suggested that the section be rescinded.

Dr. L. F. Greene, Superintendent, read 2 letters from parents who protested the failure of the school to provide band for 5th grade students.

Greene contended that the move was necessary to stay within budgetary limitations and was brought about by the recent Supreme Court decision that materials must be supplied for all academic classes.

The issue was discussed with the 3 mothers attending the meeting and President Weber promised that the situation would remain under close scrutiny.

Milford Mason, administrative assistant to the superintendent, explained to the Board that a girl student had been taken by her parents from the Sashabaw Junior High School last week under the suspicion that she was the victim of an overdose of drugs.

To clarify that this was not the case, Mason further reported, "According to State Police reports, the girl's stomach was pumped and it was found that the pills she had taken were vitamin and thyroid pills."

The Board met in executive session to discuss insurance and principal's salaries. No action was taken on either matter. Both topics will be discussed further at special meetings.

Justice

Part 2

By Haslett Hemmor

When I come home from work and Effie told me how the police had drove up with their lights flashing and all, I figured that for once Effie was trying to pull off a practical joke on me. If she'd said Parson McMasters had been arrested for assault and battery, I'd of believed her quicker.

It seems that there were some 20 kids playing in the pool, and this Irving brat held nine-year-old Nancy Yates under water until the other kids all start screaming. Old Marv dashes off the porch and scampers up the ladder and grabs this Mulford punk.

Nancy is OK after she spits out some water and gasps for three-four minutes.

Marv don't say nothing but just marches Irving over to his front door with all the other kids trailing behind. Rings the bell, and all the kids just stand behind with their mouths open. Mrs. Mulford comes to the door.

"Your young one here near drowned little Nancy Yates," Marv tells her, "and he done it on purpose out of plain mean. So sorry as I am about it, he won't be allowed to play in my pool any more."

Eula Mulford says nothing. Just grabs

Irving by the arm and yanks him inside. Kids hang around a while outside the Mulford house after old Marv tells 'em that will be all the swimming for today. They hear Irving and his Ma yelling at each other and then hear her really let out a super war whoop.

About ten minutes later, according to the kids and the neighbors that's now gathered in front of Marv's place, up comes the police car with flashing lights, siren and all. They wheel into Marv's drive and skid to a stop.

One officer gets out and the other stays in the car.

About this time Eula Mulford rushes over. Her dress is torn in front. Hair's all down and straggley and she's got herself a split lower lip still bleeding.

"That's the man!" she shrieks, pointing to poor dumbfounded Marv, "he accused my little boy of attempted murder and mauled me and hit me here on the mouth with his fist. Got the door closed on him or he'd maybe have killed me."

"Mrs. Mulford," says old Marv, "maybe you're hysterical or just perhaps had a couple nips too much, but you'd better go back home and calm down, please."

Anyhow, the policeman writes up the report and asks each of fifteen kids if it happened, and every one of these tykes denies it plain out. Mrs. Meek saw the whole thing, too; but he doesn't write down what she says because he claims the wife's report is always biased anyway.

That night we have a neighborhood conclave and agree that it must of been her kid that smacked her or else he pushed and she fell, and she's scared that her hot tempered husband will send the kid away to a home like he's already threatened to do a dozen times before.

Natural thing, the Meeks are just plain sick about the whole deal. I mean actual sick. Marv misses two days work the first week and stays home to comfort his good wife for three days the next week. Terrible rotten shame, but Eula Mulford won't talk to no one except her buddies, the Wickes, down the block, and them she convinces.
