Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

Standing on a small rise overlooking a clover field opening morning of pheasant season, I spotted a white animal across the field. I asked our host, Herb Klem, about the goat. He said it was a white deer that had been hanging around his farm since last summer. It was trailed by a brown deer.

Herb's farm is 2 miles north of Perry, and we (George Talbot of Perry) and I have opened the season there several years. George, who was a hard-nosed halfback on our 6-man football team in Morrice, back in high school days, and I have spent opening day together at least 20 years.

There have been times we got a bird or two, but not lately. Even when joined by Bob Jarrard, the other halfback on our 6-man squad, our shutouts have continued.

Pheasant hunting is now like other sports... it's either be a spectator or get the most from the fellowship and scenery.

I digress... back to the white deer. Almost simultaneously each in our party expressed the hope that some hunter wouldn't shoot the deer. Some hunters(?) would, you know!

Prediction: The strike against GM won't be settled until after the election Nov. 3. At least a week after, or until political statements subside.

My conclusion was reached after careful consideration of known and unknown information. The negotiators for both union and management are publicity hounds. They have to get the headlines back.

Why else? Certainly neither is going to gain enough more at this date to make up for losses to the economy... individual losses, community or national.

Why is it my glasses always feel better fitting when put on by my barber or doctor?

Notice how many variety shows this season are using the flashing lights and quick takes... copying the Rowan and Martin show? Notice that the Rowan and Martin show isn't so funny this year?

I like the pants-suits the gals are wearing these days. The groomed look is great. It's quite a contrast to Todd, left, and Cory Starnes have to rest up after the arduous task of choosing their jack-o-lantern pumpkins from the huge supply at Ritter's Market on Dixie Highway. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Starnes.

Fire levels

Woodhull house

An unoccupied house at 4646 Hillcrest, in the Woodhull Lake Subdivision, was razed by fire on October 24.

It was the 6th house on the street to be leveled by fire within the last 2 years, according to fire records.

Fire Department officials also indicated that arson was suspected.

The building, which was up for sale, was owned by a family named Sosnich who live in the Detroit area. They were not available for comment.

Firemen reported that the fire was well under way when they arrived after their 4 a.m. call. They were able to stand by and prevent adjacent property from catching fire.

the minis, but I haven't been able to overcome my embarrassment when in the same room with them as the gals sit with only legs for laps.

One crazy law that makes sense: In Gary, Indiana it is against the law to ride any street car or attend any theatre within four hours after eating garlic.

Notice how some columnists are writing their columns in short comments, sort of copying the Rowan and Martin show? Can't wait to see how I like them next year.

And the goblins may get you - but not Ken Hagstrom, 9, or Doug Cinader, 12. They're getting ready to do a little "haunting" themselves. The boys live with their parents, the Robert Hagstroms and the Wesley Cinaders on Snow Apple Drive.

Kick-off United Fund

The Pontiac Area United Fund will officially kick off its 1970 general campaign on November 6.

The decision to resume the $1,314,000 campaign, which was delayed mid-September due to the GM-UAW strike, was announced Oct. 22 by 1970 General Campaign Chairman William L. Belaney.

"The continuance of adequate financial support to PAUF's 55 agencies was a major factor in our decision to resume the campaign," said Belaney.

"If vital community services provided by our agencies are to continue at current levels, we must reach our goal this year," he said.

Although the strike hasn't been settled, Belaney indicated confidence that a successful campaign could be launched at this time.

Explaining, he said, "The fact economic conditions are less favorable now than they would be after the strike should have little effect on campaign pledging. Most contributors elect to have their pledges deducted in small amounts from each paycheck throughout the year."

"The payroll deduction plan will make more generous campaign giving easier for all of us this year," he added.

This year's campaign is a crucial one for the Pontiac Area United Fund. Fifty-five agencies, providing for the well-being of over 200,000 residents of Northern Oakland County in the area of health, education, recreation and character development, are depending on PAUF for financial support.

Runners capture League title

By Craig Moore
For the 3rd consecutive year the Clarkston High School cross country team took the Wayne-Oakland League title on Saturday, October 24.

They finished with a perfect record in the league, receiving 16 points, 8 for their individual meets and 8 for the final. Runner-up was West Bloomfield with 14 points.

The Clarkston runners, after defeating West Bloomfield, Andover, Northville, Kettering, Milford, Brighton and Clarenceville in dual meets were pitted against these schools in a race for the title.

Their win was decisive as, sparked by Fred Seyler and Dan Dankert, they scored 28 points with their closest competitor West Bloomfield Hills trailing at 60.

Six Clarkston runners placed in the first 11 spots.

Fred Seyler and Dan Dankert, first and second, ran times of 13:06 and 13:25. Sixth place was taken by Gerry Baker. Rick Svetkoff fell exhausted to the ground several feet before the finish line and came in ninth as a result. Kurt Carlsen followed with tenth place.

Varsity runners taking 11th and 34th spots were Bob Hoy and Rick Plummer.

The Clarkston Junior Varsity runners duplicated the varsity's fete and placed first in the league meet.

Rick Dancey ran first. Pat Humphreys and Blair Warren came in fourth and fifth. Ninth place winner was Kurt Salzano while Steve Philpot ran twelfth.

Coach Bruce commented after the victory, "The championship was won easily enough, but I believe we are a better team than we have shown at this meet. Our times were slower than usual."

The team will go to the Regionals on October 31 and hopes to compete in State finals, November 7.

Waterway plans available for study

There will be a public hearing in Lansing on November 24, to explain, point by point, the State Waterways Commission program relative to guidelines for acquiring public access sites on inland lakes in Michigan.

The hearing is set to begin at 9 a.m. in the auditorium of the 7 story state office building, according to Loren D. Anderson, State Representative of the 61st District.

"The program statement covering the public access Site Program as outlined by the Michigan State Waterways Commission Department of Natural Resources is lengthy (31 pages long)," Anderson points out, "difficult to digest in a short period of time. It would be wise for interested parties to study the material before attending the meeting."

Anderson has copies of the document available at his office at 2276 Rosewood in Pontiac. He may be reached at 338-3091.

Vote "yes" on Proposal C

Many arguments have been set forth, both pro and con, regarding Proposal C, the Constitutional amendment that would make it illegal for the state to provide funds to non-public schools.

We urge that Clarkston voters cast a "yes" vote on the aid to non-public schools amendment which will appear on the November 3 ballot.

We feel that there are 3 elements to consider in making this decision. They are: 1, financial; 2, social; and 3, constitutional.

1. Can the state, who is finding it difficult, if not impossible, to properly fund the present public schools, take on the added burden of financing non-public schools?

If they were to take the responsibility, how would these state monies be controlled? Through what structure would the administration of these funds be handled?

Would the proponents of the "aid to non-public schools" be content with the seemingly small percentage of revenue asked at the present, or would this escalate as has been recommended by its supporters?

Would the private colleges, who are already in financial difficulty, demand their share of assistance?

Would new private schools be opened?

2. It seems to us that the social impact is another important consideration. Will all non-public schools be willing to relinquish their freedom of choice of students, regardless of religious beliefs, racial characteristics or financial ability to pay?

3. The matter of the amendment being unconstitutional will probably have to be settled in a higher court. If inadequacies are found, they can be corrected.

We feel that our legislators and people in political office have done us a disservice by opposing the amendment and are suspicious that their lack of backing has been influenced by their present need for votes.

It is difficult to vote against anything that has to do with little children, motherhood, puppies or soldiers in combat. Advocates of

Wash that window!

One way to leave your wife speechless is to rob her of the stuff from which she fashions her most frequent speeches.

(One thing about reading this column, you don't have to read Ann Landers.)

For 15 years, my wife Pat made the same speech about the picture window in our family room.

"That window has never been washed on the outside and your mother is coming this weekend," she would say.

Or: "That window has never been washed on the outside and it's Christmas."

Or: "That window has never been washed on the outside and the sun is shining."

And on and on and on. My first suggestion, made about 1955, was that she go outside and wash it herself. But Pat said there was a huge storm window that had to be taken down before the window could be washed on the outside. And no woman could lift that storm window.

5 years later I happened to be passing through the backyard on my way to the poolroom. I looked at the storm window and noticed it was screwed to the house with those funny screws that have +'s on their heads, instead of -'s.

The next time I saw Pat I explained to her that our screwdriver was for - screws, not +'s. She tried to tell me it didn't make any difference but I knew better. "If God had wanted - screwdrivers to go into + screws He wouldn't have made + screwdrivers," I said.

The next Christmas my rotten kids gave me a + screwdriver.

10 years later I happened again to be in the backyard, having taken a wrong turn on my way to Detroit. My wife threw the + screwdriver out the back door and then quickly locked it. She had already locked the front and side doors, I found out.

So I graciously took down the lousy storm window and hollered at Pat to bring out her cruddy soap and water and wash the stupid glass before I stuck my gracious foot through it.

So the task was finally accomplished. And I have never seen my wife so happy.

That night we cancelled plans to fly to Monte Carlo to dine with the Rainiers. Instead, we sat home and looked out the window.

Two weeks later, Pat was still pulling strangers in off the street.

"Look at the window," she told them.

The paperboy thinks she is nuts. She wouldn't pay him until he finally guessed "what looks different in this room?"

When the weather is nice, she watches TV from outside, sitting on top a stepladder, a peeping Pat. The kids communicate with her by semaphore, closing and opening the drapes.

But the biggest change in our domestic life is the conversation gap. Now that she can no longer complain about that dirty window, she can't think of a thing to say to me.

Which leaves me plenty of time to ponder about how delicious it would have been if, after 15 years, it had turned out the dirt was on the inside.

But Onward and Upward.

state aid to non-public schools have indicated that this, in essence, is what we would be doing by passing this amendment. But those who listen to this emotional approach should consider that Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley, an opponent of the proposal, admits that it is absurd to think the amendment could cause cutbacks in public school services.

It will not outlaw essential public services, which are guaranteed all citizens under the Constitution.

It will not force the closure of all parochial and private schools, although some would have you believe that.

It will not jeopardize federal funds for public schools. Several states which have anti-parochial amendments in their constitutions are still getting federal funds.

It WILL assure that all school services provided to all school children will be offered through the public school system.

It WILL assure the clear Constitutional guarantee of separation of church and state.

We urge a "Yes" vote on Proposal C to support the anti-public amendment to our Constitution.

We sincerely feel that this will best serve the educational needs of all children.

Township police would patrol private areas

By Jim Sherman

I was asked by Marie Brendle to present the following question to Duane Hursfall, incumbent candidate for Supervisor: "If the one mill is passed for Township police protection, would we on private roads and in private subs. have our roads patrolled and the use of the township police for protection equally with non-private resident areas?"

It called for a 2-part answer which Hursfall got from the State Police, Sheriff's Dept., and attorney. All agreed township police can patrol any area. And, Hursfall added, "They absolutely would patrol private roads and subs."

The second part of the answer is that no police authority can handle traffic control in the private sectors.

With this assurance of patrol in private areas, plus the good that can be done by police in all general areas, additional votes can be counted on for passing the one mill for police protection Nov. 3.

Split possible

The splitting of tickets (voting for candidates in different parties) is possible in this week's general election.

Some voters may think otherwise since only partisan picking was allowed in the August Primary.

Obviously, you can't vote for two men for the same office, but you could vote for alternate candidates the length of the machine if you wish.

Blank Northville 12-0

Wolves score sweet victory

By Craig Moore

The Clarkston Wolves came up with 2 touchdowns late in the fourth quarter to defeat the Northville Mustangs, 12-0.

The Northville defense finally broke when Mark Swanson dashed over from 1 yard out with only 1:47 in the game. The 2-point conversion run failed.

In desperation, the Mustangs went to the air. Kurt Richardson picked off a Mustang toss and raced 30 yards for the 2nd score, making the Wolves 12-0 victors.

After the game, Coach Rakow stated, "We believe in playing exciting football!" In no way can one argue that point.

The Wolves managed 176 yards on the ground and added another 65 yards completing 6 of 14 passes.

Clarkston defense held Northville to 36 yards rushing while the Mustangs gained 149 yards by completing 11 tosses of 19. Richardson's touchdown was his fourth this season while Swanson scored his third.

Defeating Northville gives the Wolves a 3-2 record in Wayne-Oakland League competition and a 4-2 season tally.

The Wolves will travel to Waterford Kettering, where they will battle the Skippers next Friday. Two home games will follow with Milford on November 6 and Avondale November 13.

The Wolves are now shooting for a 7-2 season record.

Halloween

by Shel George

"And the goblins will get you if you don't watch out!"

Oh yeah? They're not the only ones. What about the state police? Here's how I remember it.

We did lots of things on Halloween in the small midwestern town where I grew up. I don't remember the organization that now exists. We didn't go out on one single night between certain hours to "trick or treat." I'm not saying it isn't a good idea to do it that way. I'm just saying that's not the way we did it.

Among other things, we threw shelled corn on porches. It rattled against windows and messed up the front porch, but with no damage. Another thing was to "spool windows." This dandy little gadget was made from an empty wooden spool of thread. We would cut notches in both edges and wrap a three foot piece of string around it. Then we would insert a "sixteen penny" spike in the hole to use as a handle. When the spool was placed against a window and the string given a yank, the noise raised many a homeowner right out of his chair. That was fun to do and watch.

But most fun of all was "tin canning" cars. I suppose it could have been somewhat dangerous, but we always did it with "good, clean fun" intentions.

Generally we would try to get empty gallon oil cans from the corner gas station. Then we would punch a hole in the bottom and attach two cans together with a long piece of heavy string. The string had to be long enough to reach across the road.

We always plotted our strategy to take place at the "6th Street bridge." The modus operandi was to stretch the string across the road on the ground. Then just as a car was approaching, we would raise the string about three feet and the car would proceed with the tin cans noisily banging behind. Of course, we would watch the brake lights come on, the door open and a bewildered driver break the string before driving on. We would then retrieve the cans, tie the string together and set the trap again.

Our success was too good on one occasion. Everything was set and we saw headlights approaching. At the precise moment we raised the string. That was a mistake.

I have never seen a car stop so fast. That state policeman had his door open and was out of that car almost before one of our group could yell "SCATTER!"

Scatter we did. I ran about ten yards and lay down behind an old fallen tree. I could hear heavy footsteps running, and would you believe they stepped right up on that SAME fallen tree. He shined his flashlight all around for several minutes. I could have touched his pantleg.

If he would have listened, he could have picked up the sound of a heart. It sounded like a bass drum in a Sousa concert. Fortunately, he didn't have an ear for music. He got in his scout car and drove off.

Thirty minutes later the music stopped.

Mild mannered Marvin Meek's trial come off last Tuesday. Sure was a circus to watch those two lawyers sparring like Banty Roosters. Sure enough, this line pure confused Marv and he stuttered and stammered real good.

"In any event," Rod remarked, "one way or another it's now your legal name." More objections but more damage.

Then young Rod put the Mulford boy on the stand, and the kid broke into tears as he described the way Marv had pushed his Ma into the house and beat her.

Comes Lawyer Newman's turn and he asks the kid if he knew the side drape was open so Mrs. Meek could see him slug his own Ma.

"Drape was closed," says Irving, but he's scared.

"And what about the little Payne girl watching you from your own kitchen?" Newman snaps.

"Wasn't there," the kid yells, "Nobody saw me hit Ma. Even Mr. Meek was outside all the . . ." he catches himself, but too late.

"Dismissed," says the Judge. "There may be grounds here for a false arrest charge."

Letters from Marguerite

by Marguerite Slater

Dear Jeanie,

This is a "settling down" day and badly needed. Ever have a "settling down" need? It comes on quite gradually. For weeks I'm dead sure I have all the answers; I criticize and judge everything in this crazy world. If I were a violent, criminal person I'd know exactly which Servants of the People in Washington I'd tie up in a cave until this country stopped ripping apart and lettuce got back to 29¢ a head.

So today I'm taking my usual antidote by reading all the Letters to the Editor in some of our best slick magazines. Somewhere, maybe from Moline, Ill. or Hartford, Conn. some kindred soul whom I'll never know, will write his spunky little heart out about the same things bothering me and I'll discover a fraternity in print that says, "Yeah, me too."

Couple these natural frustrations with the unnecessary frustrations worked up by some of the stupid "entertainment" on TV. Don't ask why I bother to turn it on, because I'll be compelled to say that it has to be looked at if only as a measure of our system of checks and balances. I do like GOOD television.

I'm probably too critical of the entertainment, but mostly I'm irked by the insulting advertising. I'm so sick and tired of navels and the disgusting presentations of some products for sale.

Why are cigarettes suddenly such a sexy, delightful adventure? And can you ever understand the utter abandon and hare-brained antics of middleaged folks imbibing in some ridiculous soft drink?

Now those fellows who go ga-ga when the beer truck shows up are an entirely different matter; they appear never to have had a beer before in all their dumpy, stupid little lives.

I'd go for a law that makes the ad man appear at the end of the commercial and explain his emotional disturbances and hangups that made him produce some of that tripe.

Now that I'm griping about being force-fed ridiculous commercials, are you unfortunate enough to have any friends who would chew meat with exaggerated vigor at your dinner table and in their apparent agony, ask where you could have bought it? We are asked to believe it happens.

TV is not "the only game in town" of course, and I'm probably just worried about my ability to go along in this year of shriveling values, maybe my brain simply balked way back about 1950 and I'm just waking up to the fact that I'm an old stick-in-the-mud.

But mostly I'm cranky today because I pulled a ligament and a muscle in my back and I'm on a cane. They say everything happens for the best; maybe that's true, as I can't do a lick of work!

You know me, Jeanie, and know I never have an urge to meet celebrities, but do you know the one I'd just love to know? Myra Wolfgang. I think she is one of the ablest gals on the current scene. She was hilarious when she met up with that oddball who heads Women's Lib. Any position Mrs. Wolfgang takes in her Labor Relations work shows her to always have her feet on the ground. So Jeanie, if you are asking her to dinner, ask me too.

Gramma, I was glad to hear of Shelly again. Do you remember about 2 years ago when you brought her here to call? Her "phase" at that time was keeping with her night and day, that enormous old worn out purse stuffed with all her precious possessions. I asked her some stupid adult question like, "Are you enjoying your vacation?" She didn't understand me, but refused to be outsmarted by an adult so she said, "I think I have it in here," and began scrounging into her maze of stuff, smiling up at me all the while as though she had just given me her most brilliant reply.

I have two important things to ask you, but they'll have to wait as I have to stop this monkey business and put the infra-red lamp on my "oh, my aching back."

Your old friend,
Marguerite

Troop 501 went to the "Holiday on Ice" show on Sunday, Oct. 18 and were thrilled with the beautiful and exciting production.

The troop has a new leader, Mrs. J. Bisha.

On Monday, Oct. 19, a group of the girls went to a square dance and on Wednesday, Oct. 28, they are having a Halloween party. Six of the girls from the troop are making the plans, according to scribe, Mary Anderson.

CAP cadets experience practice rescue

Civil Air Patrol cadets from Clarkston and Waterford Composite Squadrons learned that it's one thing to apply a sterile compress to a "wound" in classroom demonstrations and a very different experience to treat a "victim" while on a field problem. The first aid lesson was part of the weekend exercise held in Pontiac Lake Recreation Area October 24-25.

The squadrons worked independently on the search and rescue mission with the Clarkston cadets entering the area from White Lake Road and Waterford's personnel working in from Maceday Lake Road.

The Cadets located the "downed aircraft," evacuated the "survivors" that were the original problem for the mission and had set up camps when they were alerted that an "injured boy" had been found in the woods.

Lewis Wint of Clarkston, assisted by Major Clifford Moore CAP, had used mortician's wax and red lotion to fabricate very realistic head and arm injuries on Tom Hagen of Cranberry Lake Road.

The cadets were required to give emergency first aid and move him to safety for hospitalization.

As the cadets remained out overnight, shelter and fire building were included in the training that featured map and compass orientation, land search procedures, first aid and evacuation techniques.

Civil Air Patrol cadets administer emergency first aid to the "injuries" of Tommy Hagen, 6536 Cranberry Lake Rd., Clarkston. Tommy, who wants to join CAP as soon as he is 13 years of age, plays the part of the "injured boy" most willingly. Tommy's head and arm "wounds" are fabricated of mortician's wax. The realistic "blood" is hand lotion and red food coloring.

Mrs. Charles R. Myers

Double ring rite joins

Charles R. Myers

Jodie Strother was escorted to the altar of the United Methodist Church to exchange wedding rings with Charles R. Myers, by her brother, Frank.

Rev. Frank Cozadd performed the ceremony that united the couple in marriage on October 17.

Jodie is the daughter of Mrs. Frank Strother and the late Frank Strother. Charles is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Myers of Livonia.

The bride chose a floor length gown of ivory faced silk peau de soie with a chapel train. Her matching pill box hat held a floor length veil of silk illusion. She carried white orchids and stephanotis.

The bridal attendants were led by maid of honor, Lee Jackson of East Lansing. They were Barbara Grote, Carolyn Thatcher, both of East Lansing; Kathy Riggs, Waterford and Mrs. Basil Miracle of Pontiac.

They were identically gowned in floor-length lavender and carried matching mums.

David West of East Lansing was the best man. Rick Filber, Robert Hortenck, Tom Fisher and Basil Miracle were ushers.

A reception was held at Pine Knob Lodge.

The couple, both graduates of Michigan State University, will make their home in Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Why not use a small pumpkin to serve your cocktail tidbits for a touch of autumn?

Here is another idea to give the Halloween festivities around your house an original touch. It's fun, too. Let the kids help twist.

HALLOWEEN TWISTERS (PRETZELS)
1½ cups of warm water
1 package yeast
½ teaspoon sugar.

Mix together in a large mixing bowl. Let stand for 1 hour.

Next mix in 4½ cups of flour. Knead mixture for about 10 minutes. Preheat oven for 5 minutes to warm it, then turn OFF the heat. Place mixture in a greased bowl, cover it, and place in the warmed oven for about an hour until mixture doubles.

When it has doubled in size, make the twists as shown below.

Place the twists on a greased cookie sheet - not too close together for they spread. Then to make them perfect:

Dilute one egg yolk with 1 or 2 tablespoons of water or milk. Brush a thin coat of the liquid on each pretzel. Sprinkle with coarse salt.

Bake in a preheated oven at 475 degrees for 12-15 minutes or until they are golden brown. Yields about 2 dozen.

Eat them hot, right out of the oven, dipped in a special Halloween dip. Your own homemade pretzels - presto!

HOW TO TWIST

Step 1: Take a chunk of dough about the size of a golf ball. Roll into a "rope" about 15" long. Be sure to work on a piece of waxed paper, so that the dough doesn't stick.

Step 2: Make a loop by carefully picking up the ends. Your pretzel is beginning to take shape.

Step 3: Bring the left end of the loop over to the right and the right end under the left. A twist will be formed in the center.

Step 4: For the traditional three hole shape, bring the ends over and down. Press them against the sides of the loop. Now you have a perfect twist pretzel.

***

A special treat to go along with your freshly baked pretzels is a delicious Halloween dip. Here is one that is particularly great for Halloween, but will come in handy all year 'round.

WITCH'S BREW DIP

1/3 cup each finely chopped onion and green pepper. Drop into heavy saucepan in which 2 tablespoons butter or oleo is bubbling and saute a minute or two. Do not brown. Add salt and pepper lightly.

Now add ½ pound cubed cheese and let it melt over VERY LOW heat (a double boiler is still best). Stir in 1 small can minced pimientos with their juice and mix well. Add 1 tablespoon chopped chives, 2 teaspoons chili powder, 1 teaspoon dry mustard and a dash of garlic salt.

Serve hot with your hot pretzels. If it gets too thick thin it with heated beer. Sounds strange, but it will do a real disappearing act.

There is a product on the market that is called Rotel. It is a mixture of peppers and pimientos. If you can find it at your store you have a short cut. Just melt your cheese and stir in a can of the Rotel. It is delicious and similar to the Witch's Brew Dip. We like it particularly well served with corn chips.

Anything that's comfortable

by Jean Sura

When it came to Halloween costumes my kids were some of the best dressed kids in the neighborhood. We had plenty of old junk around the house that came in handy for dress up. I also had one of those old treadle sewing machines.

Anyway, I got plenty of experience sewing costumes. My kids were the answer to a teacher's prayer. They were volunteers. They volunteered me for any and all projects that came along.

They raised their hands to volunteer my services so often that their hands turned blue from lack of circulation.

"Now, boys and girls, which one of you thinks that your Mommy could bake 900 cupcakes?" said the teacher.

Wave, wave. That was my kid's hand.

"Who shall we ask to be room mother this year, boys and girls?" said the teacher.

Wave, wave. That was my kid's hand.

One teacher got smart and wore a football helmet with a face guard to protect herself from my kids' waving hands.

I must have clocked thousands of miles running on that old treadle sewing machine making all the costumes for which I was volunteered.

"Mamie's mother can't sew. Would anyone's mother like to make her costume?"

Oh, Clarence's mother is sick. Would anyone's mother like to help her?"

So I was volunteered.

One year when our youngest son was going to kindergarten, I decided to use all the skills that I had developed and make him a super-duper clown costume for the school Halloween party.

I worked for weeks planning and carrying out the operation. I even researched how to paint a real clown face with theatrical grease paint.

The big day arrived. My efforts were a complete success. He was a miniature clown, complete in every detail.

Big brother Tom and his buddy "Stick" walked him to school proudly, an act that was usually far below their dignity.

Exhausted from my labors, I hopped back in bed.

"Mother, mother, you have got to do something," big brother came in slamming at least three doors. "It's terrible. Mike is yelling and screaming all over the playground."

"Was he hit by a car? Did he break his leg? What happened?"

I flew out of bed as though I'd been shot from a catapult.

Clutching my moth-eaten robe around me I flapped toward the school playground like a gazelle wrapped in an old camel-skin.

There was the victim, surrounded by about 100 kids. I could hear his howls as I got near.

I pushed my way through the mob with pounding heart. When I got to the source of the wails, I found a soggy, but unharmed ball of a kid. His grease paint had taken on a psychedelic effect. I gathered him up and took him home.

"What in heaven's name is the matter?" I asked when I caught my breath.

Between violent, shuddering sobs he said, "They were laughing at me too much. I don't want to be a clown anymore."

"What do you want to be? You have to wear a costume to the party."

"I want to be a cowboy."

Half an aspirin and a soothing bath later, he pulled on his boots, adjusted his chaps, buckled on his holster and furled the brim of his hat.

"So long, pardner," he waved. "Tell the cook I'll be wanting a peanut butter and jelly sandwich on the chuck wagon for my lunch."

I looked at the clown suit in a heap on the floor. I watched as he swaggered, with cowboy gait, to school.

He looked just like he did every day of his life when he went out to play.

Oh well, as one of my friends always says, "Anything that's comfortable."

Homecoming wrap-up

By Cheryl Shrapnell

Homecoming festivities for 1970 have now come to a close. The seniors made a clean sweep of most of the competition.

The senior girls repeated their victory of last year when they came out on top in the Powderpuff Derby. They defeated the juniors by a score of 28-0.

First place in the float competition was also won by the seniors, which marks this title theirs for the third time out of four years of float competition. Congratulations to the whole class.

The students were especially appreciative of the assistance given by their sponsors, who are as follows: Mr.

White, Mrs. Dennis (junior class), Mr. Hartwell, Mr. Rosso (senior class), Mr. Johnson, Mr. MacArthur (sophomore class).

Without their support and cooperation, there just would never be a homecoming.

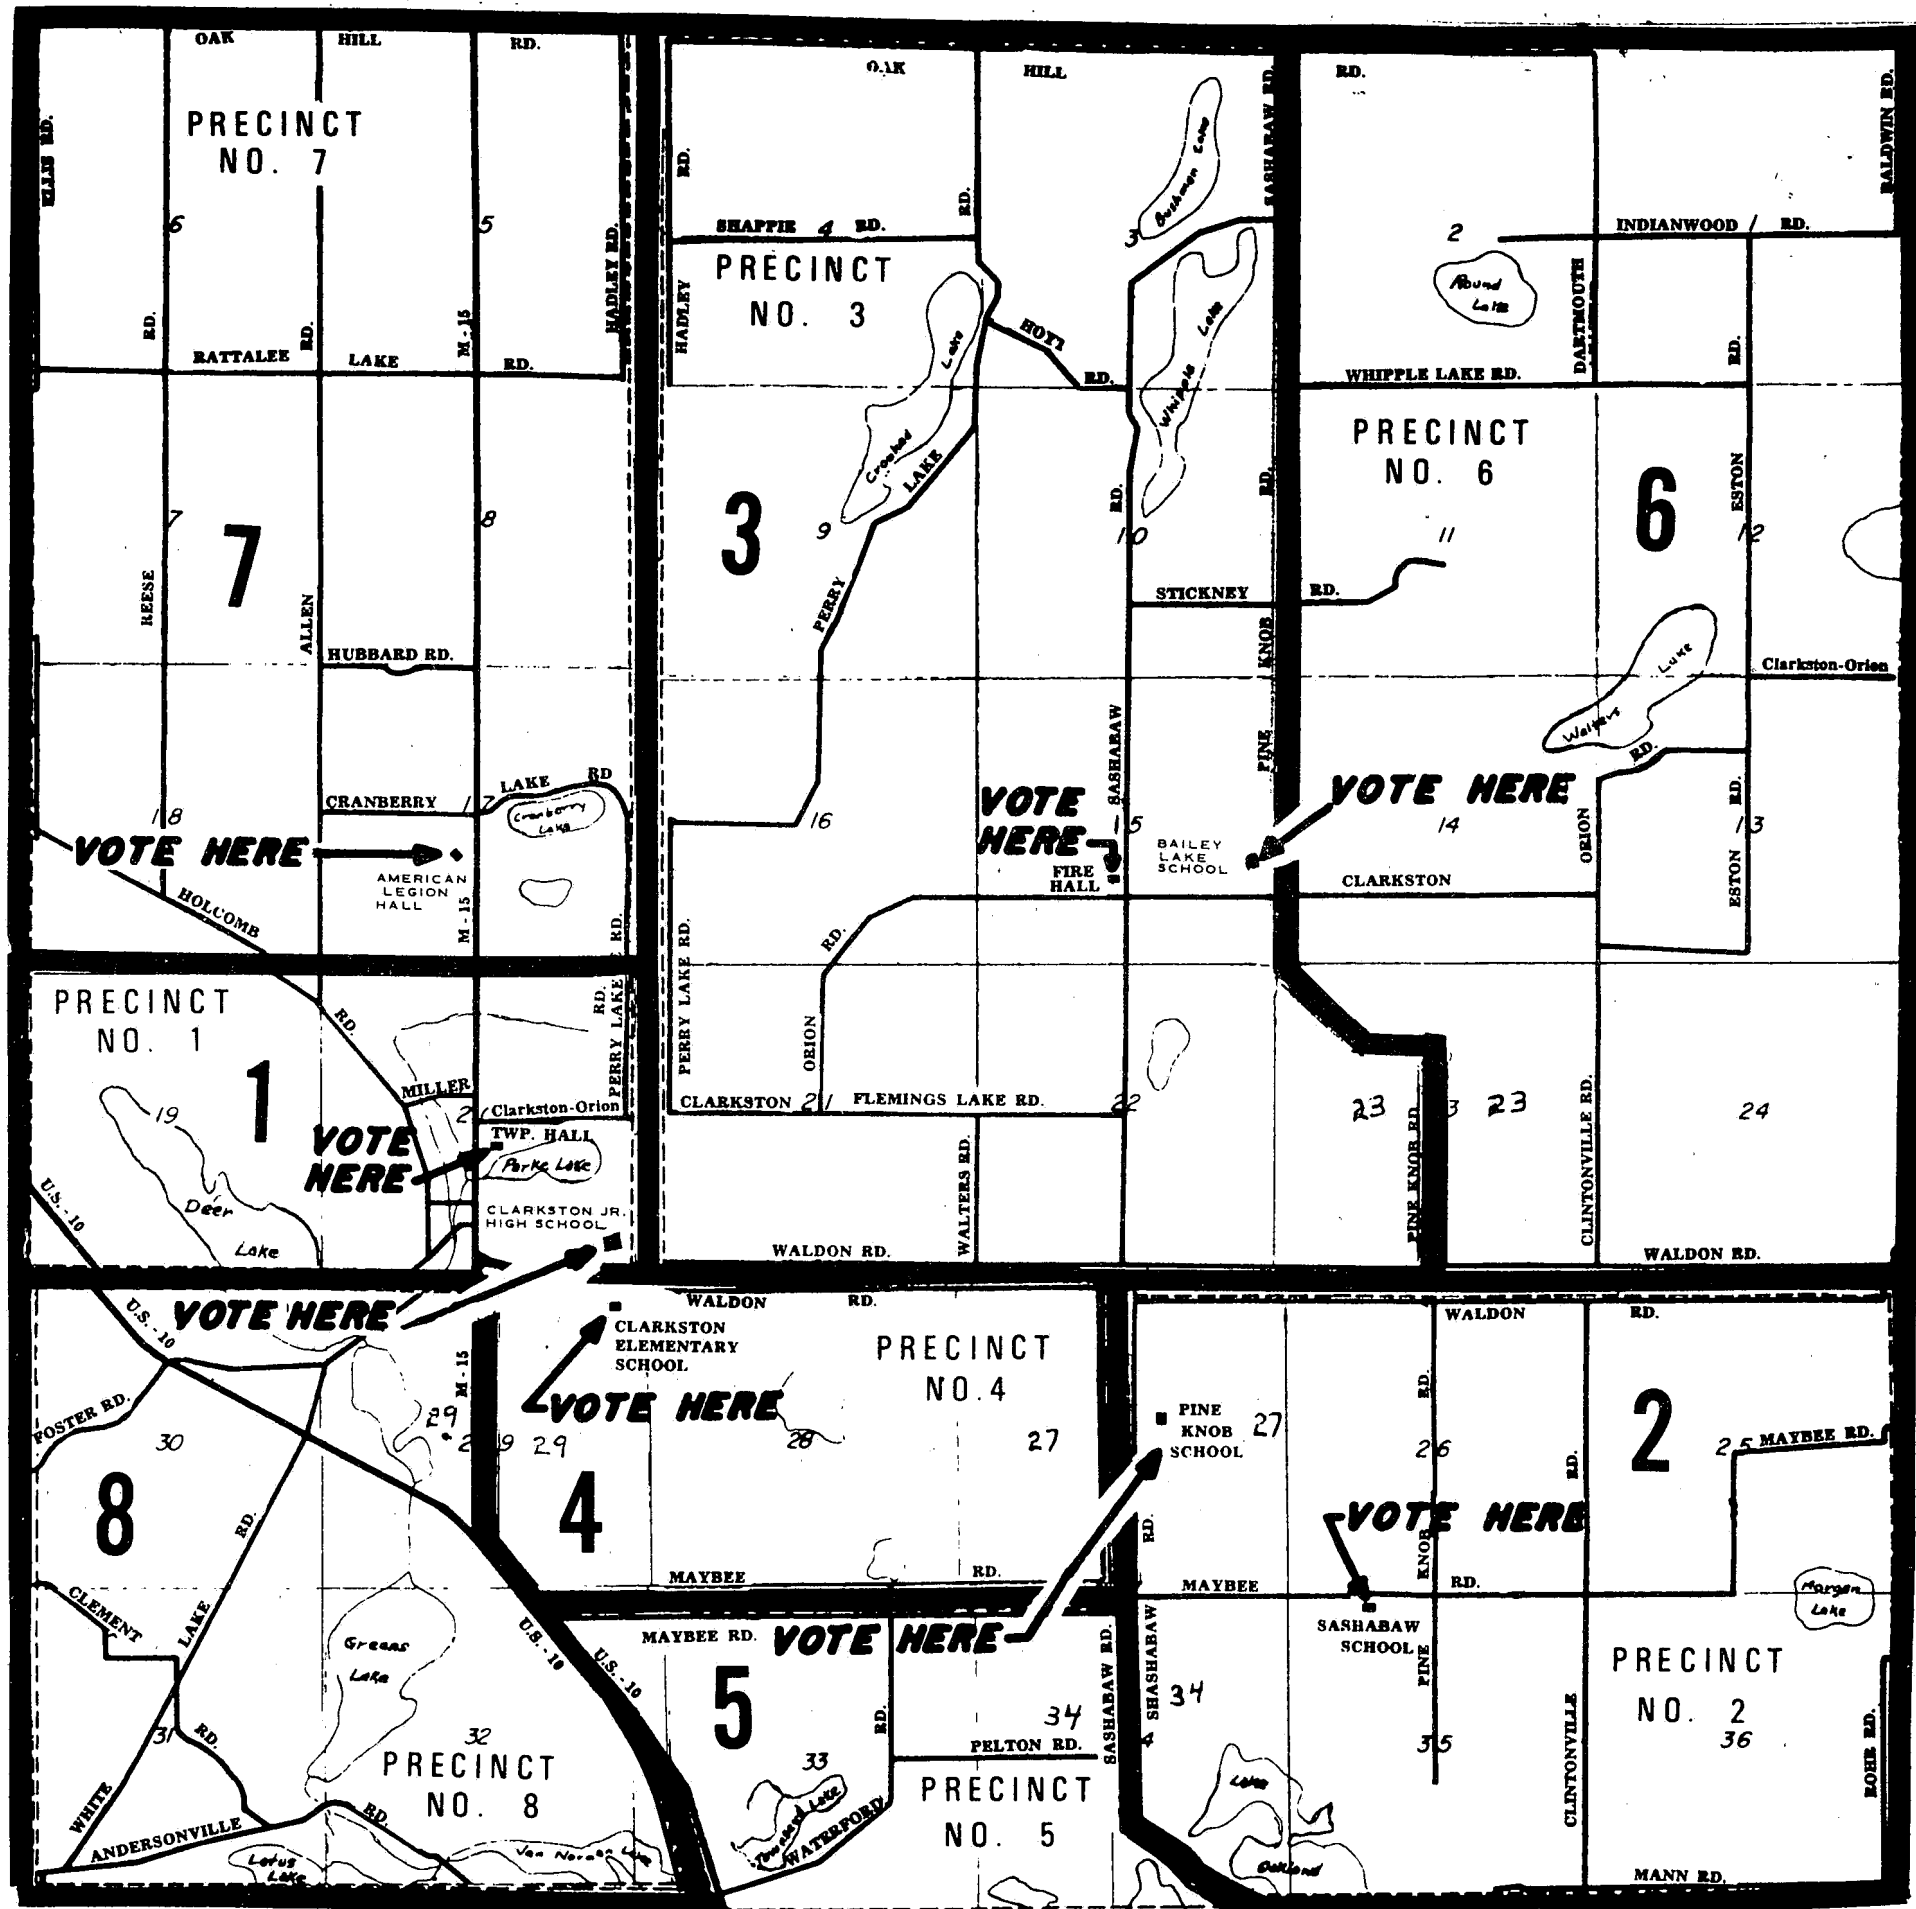

Magazine sales have now begun for the junior and senior classes. The money from these sales will help to pay for each student's senior expenses.

Tryouts for the "Torch Bearers," the first play of the year, will be held this week.

The junior class will soon start making plans for their 2nd annual Carnival Dance, which will be in November.

That is why Automobile Club of Michigan reminds all Michigan drivers that they can join in Halloween festivities by being extra careful when behind the wheel.

Scout News

Clinton Valley Council's Fall Camporee, October 16 through 18, took place in Oakland County's Addison Oaks Park near Lakeville.

Boy Scouts of Troop 189 spent Friday evening setting-up camp and getting to sleep early in anticipation of an active Saturday.

All meals for the campout were cooked by "patrol method." The patrols were honored with the company of a guest troop committeeman for each meal.

The Saturday morning activities included construction of a huge gateway of lashed trees to identify the troop's campsite. Also, the scouts cleared an area and gathered wood for their troop council fire.

After lunch 15 troops from the Manito District worked on 3 different conservation projects. Troop 189's project was clearing the lake's shoreline by cutting down trees and brush from the lakeshore.

Free time meant tackle football!

Sunday morning religious services were held at the camp for those of the Catholic and Protestant faiths. After breakfast the troops broke camp, received their camporee patches and all participated in clean-up of the entire campsite before going home.

Leadership for Troop 189 was provided by Scoutmaster Dr. Forrest Hunt, and committeemen John Mayo, Roger Eriksson, Richard Smith and Kent Ash.

Boy Scouts attending were John and Tracy Mayo, Curt Smith, Karl Tresenreiter, Paul Zelenak, Mark Baynes, Matthew Moore, Bill Keller and Jim Schiff. Also attending were John Fry, Dave Johnson, Eric and Leif Gruenberg, Tom Waterbury, Charles Fletcher, Ralph Eriksson, Jim Falardeau and Mike Jewell.

CHURCH OF THE RESURRECTION EPISCOPAL

"From Ghoulies and ghosties and things that go bump in the night, Good Lord, deliver us."

So runs an old prayer. Now our ghoulies and ghosties are restricted almost completely to Halloween, which we will celebrate again in a couple of days. Halloween, as you know or should know, is a contraction of All Hallows' Eve, which is the eve of All Saints' Day, when the Church remembers all those who have fought the good fight of faith.

Unfortunately, the world has let the corruption of this great holy day eve usurp its proper place of emphasis. All of Halloween's occult and demonic emphasis actually is of pre-Christian origin. Today, of course, no real serious thought is given to the superstitions connected with Halloween, rather it is a time for fun. But, I wonder if we aren't missing a truth here, for don't we all have "demons" that afflict us? For some of us the "demon" is pride; for others prejudice or hatred or envy or uncharitableness, etc., etc. The list is endless and we might be afflicted by any of them or any combination of them. Perhaps they are not demons in a supernatural sense but, nevertheless, they are powers of darkness against which we have to struggle.

The saints who are commemorated on All Saints' Day were people like us; they, too, knew the assaults of all these "demons." Yet, they brought their lives to the altar of God and offered themselves just as they were to Him. And by the power that comes from the Cross of Jesus Christ, they found strength and courage, joy and victory in the midst of all that made them guilty and afraid.

On reflection, perhaps it is proper that Halloween, in all its symbolic demonic emphasis, precede All Saints' Day, for it is only as we conquer and shed our personal "demons" that we will grow in saintliness.

"From all inordinate and sinful affections and from all the deceits of the world, the flesh and the devil,

Good Lord, deliver us."

Mrs. Milton Clark greets Questers

This is the text of the "Welcome to Clark's Town" speech made at the Quester's State Convention on October 14 by Mrs. Milton Clark of Commerce Lake, who is a member of the Clark family that founded the town of Clarkston.

It is fitting that we hold our fall council meeting on Pine Knob, because it has been the scene of many council fires in the past.

At one time the area — which is part of Independence Township — was inhabited by the Chippewa and Ojibway Indians. The chief of one of the tribes was Sashabaw, an Indian who was much loved and respected by the early white settlers here.

Sashabaw Plains, the flat stretch of ground just south of Pine Knob, was the hunting grounds of the Indians, and was named for their chief. Chief Sashabaw was especially friendly with Oliver Williams, one of the earliest pioneers in the area we know as Waterford.

He often walked from the plains to his friend's home to visit and counsel. When he died, Sashabaw's body was buried on the shores of Silver Lake, within sight of his white friend's home.

The Indians roved from Sashabaw Plains to Waterford's lakes to fish. They also walked the Saginaw Trail, where Woodward is now, to Detroit to collect their treaty money. Sadly enough, the money was often spent on white man's "fire-water" on these expeditions.

Polly Vliet, who came to Independence Township in 1830, was often visited by Indians drunk with "fire-water" and consequently bold and aggressive. They would come to her door begging and sometimes demanding bread and tea, two commodities needed by her own family.

Polly devised a plan to discourage these Indians, however.

When she expected their return from the trip to Detroit, she kept a pot of water boiling on her stove. A dipperful, well-aimed, was enough to send the Indians away.

As late as 1837 when George Miller brought his family to Independence Township, his closest neighbors were 300 Indians who staked their ponies near his house. The Miller boys often sneaked from their beds at night to witness the council fires of their Indian friends.

There are records of Indians still living in the Clarkston area as late as the Civil War.

The early white settlers of Independence Township came from New York state by way of the Erie Canal. They came from Albany to Buffalo, where they boarded boats which brought them on to Detroit. There are stories of some who even walked the distance to Buffalo along the tow paths of the canal.

Some of these pioneers moved from the Detroit location to Independence Township, which was reputed to be fertile farming land, amid lakes and streams.

Among the first to migrate was Linus Jacox who built a cabin on posts to use as a shelter until he could clear land for his house and farm. The cabin was used subsequently by many other families as temporary shelter, too.

Butler Holcomb was another early settler. He built a grist mill on the Clinton River which he dammed for power.

In 1836, Jeremiah Clark II, who had been a soldier in the battle of Lexington in the Revolution, left his home in Madison County, New York with his 3 sons, Ebenezer, Nelson, and Jeremiah III to come to Michigan.

They owned and operated a store and bake shop in Detroit — on the site of Cobo Hall — for 2 years. Then, they too, heard about the fertile land in the Clinton River Valley, and they moved on to Independence Township.

They bought 2,000 acres of land and Butler Holcomb's grist mill, which they operated for many years.

Nelson Clark was a builder. He built his home, the stately pillared one on Main Street, and he built the first district school, which he sold to Professor Abraham Craft for an academy of higher learning.

He platted the village which was named Clarkston. Through the efforts of the Clark brothers, the village became the district seat of Independence.

The son of Jeremiah III, Milton H. Clark, owned and operated the town's store. He was a staunch Democrat and he organized a strong party in the community. The rooms above his store were used for general assemblies and social functions. They were virtually a town hall.

On the night of the election of Grover Cleveland in 1892, Milton and his party members held vigil over the store. The only telephone in town was in the building next to the store. From time to time during the evening, Milton ran down the stairs to phone Detroit for late election returns.

About midnight, when the returns were coming at more frequent intervals, Milton hurried up the stairs with the report of Cleveland's apparent victory, and he collapsed and died in the arms of his friend, Dr. Goodenough, the victim of a heart attack.

Pine Knob was known to the children of the village as "the big hill." They brought their sleds here in the winter and their picnic baskets in the summer.

Eight farms were scattered over the hill. These were eventually purchased by Colonel Waldron, the vice president of the Detroit Union Railways.

Colonel Waldron maintained these farms on a tenant basis under the supervision of a farm manager. He built his impressive home on the Knob, not far from the present location of the Ski Lodge.

I'm sure I could tell you stories about Clarkston and Pine Knob far into the night — stories about the first house, the first school, the first church. Stories about the first stores and bank and newspaper. Stories about the first cemetery and the epidemics and tragedies that filled it. Stories about the heartbreak of the Civil War ... stories about the good times and the bad.

But there is a limit to the time, and I have a mission to perform.

So, on behalf of the State Board of Questers, on behalf of the pioneers and citizens of Clarkston and Independence Township, and on behalf of the Indians of Sashabaw Plains, I welcome you to our Pow Wow in Clarkston.

Ability plus Experience

POL. ADV.

The office of Secretary of State is the most demanding administrative job in state government, handling in excess of one-quarter billion dollars, annually. To implement new and necessary programs, the Secretary of State must be effective in working with the legislative branches of government. This calls for a man who not only possesses executive and leadership capabilities but one who has experience and expertise in legislative matters. Compare the two candidates.

Letters to the Editor

Members of the Clarkston Women's Club enthusiastically support the "Bottles for Building" project and put actions behind their word.

Sparks drive

October 22, 1970

Dear Editor:

Did you know as a nation we dump 28 billion bottles per year? Did you know that these bottles can be re-cycled as nearby as Ann Arbor and reused in the production of other glass containers or in a new product called glassphalt (in the same way asphalt is used)?

I am interested in beginning, throughout Independence Township, a campaign for the collection of unreturnables, or all glass containers. I would hope that this anti-pollution collection would benefit the entire township in several important ways:

1. Clean up our immediate environment of trash glass.

2. Use the money made in this mass collection (1/2c per pound or $20 per ton) to initiate a building fund for a Civic Center or Community Activities Building.

3. Promote a feeling of community pride and respect for our natural environment.

I would welcome an opportunity to discuss this proposed project, "BOTTLES FOR BUILDING," at all general meetings of local organizations.

I can be contacted by mail or phone at 5615 Chickadee Lane, Clarkston, or 625-2390.

Sincerely yours,
Carolyn A. Place

P.S. I have presented this plan to the Independence Township Board and the Clarkston Women's Club and have received their unanimous support and endorsement.

Supports supervisor

Dear Publisher:

I support your editorial position in which you advocate the return of our Township Board members to office.

I feel especially strong about the insinuations and untruths being made about our supervisor, Duane Hursfall. Some Township residents who have lived in the area a few years have advanced the idea that Mr. Hursfall has something less than the best in mind for the community that he has spent his life in.

Others say his 14 years' experience is not necessarily a qualification for re-election. Why isn't it? Experience cannot be purchased and there is no substitute.

Mr. Hursfall has knowledge of the future needs of our community — he has been forward enough thinking to know that the homeowners of this community cannot continue to support schools as they should be supported, or build a sewage system without additional tax aid from business sources.

I commend Duane Hursfall for his unwavering dedication to duty in the face of vicious attacks on his motives and judgment.

If the ideas presented in the "Fresh Approach" papers being circulated are an example of what our government would be if we change, we should be wary.

They name six lakes as a possibility for development — all six privately owned.

They suggested at an open community meeting the possibility of the Township's purchasing the golf course and erecting a building similar to the C.A.I. — a swimming pool — other ideas, all appealing.

With what? Overburdened taxes, pledges? How? It was thanks to the generous gift of $10,000 KRESGE FOUNDATION monies and the aid of a very small percentage of township people that we finally have a library.

The county is already engaged in providing future recreational areas in our township.

It appears that a small vocal segment respects only the opinions of those who agree with them. I contend their motives are self-centered with little concern for the greater portion of Independence Township.

I do hope the excellent judgment of the citizens of Independence Township as displayed in the past will prevail, and Mr. Hursfall and those candidates who have shown similar devotion to their respective offices will be re-elected November 3rd.

Virginia Leonard

Urge support of Township police

Dear Editor:

As President of the Clarkston Area Jaycees, I would like to urge all voters of Independence Township to vote yes on the Township Police Millage. After much discussion at one of our meetings the membership decided to come out 100% behind the issue.

Being a non-partisan civic organization, our chapter has never and probably never will become involved in partisan politics; however, this is not a political issue, it is a community issue.

All local candidates, both Republican and Democratic, have announced publicly that they are in favor of the millage, which, with all the controversy in our township, should prove its worth.

In closing, the young men of your community ask you to vote yes on this most important issue.

Jerry E. Powell, President
Clarkston Area Jaycees

Trade wilderness for sunshine

Oct. 21, 1970

Dear Editor,

We have been busy all summer with guests, fishing, horseback riding, photographers, botanists and big game hunters in the fall.

Our mountains abound with several species of trout, there are miles of wilderness (we are located in Shoshone National Forest) to ride in, and the wild flowers grow on the mountains in profusion.

Several species of orchids were found by Michigan friends this summer. We see the moose, elk and deer from our windows and hear the coyote howl at night.

It is all very relaxing to our telephone-TV jangled nerves.

We are closing the ranch for the winter season, even though it's great fun to go on a safari with snowmobiles and we are near the Teton Village Ski Area. We had about 12" to 14" of snow on the pass (Continental Divide) in September.

We will go to Arizona to look for warmer weather and some golf for the winter months, so would you please send the Clarkston News to our new address.

We enjoy keeping contact with sports, politics and just everyday news of the neighbors and friends of Michigan.

I'm sending a recipe along that was acquired from a fisherman friend from California. Please try it and you may use it in your column (if you like) for the hunting season will soon be with you in Michigan.

Our meat processing plant makes salami, Polish sausage and bologna from the wild meats. Real good for those snacks for TV watching and not near the calories. Ha!

Love your column, so versatile, makes us see ourselves on so many occasions.

I'm with you on the lost articles of clothing. Having moved to 2 different states, part of every outfit just happened to get packed in cartons moved to the other state.

Wishing you a beautiful fall season as only the mid-West can have. Will stop in when in town later this year. And thanks kindly for forwarding the paper to our new address.

Sincerely,
Jack A. and Clara Jyleen
935 Longwood Loop
Mesa, Arizona 85208

Says party voting "passe"

Dear Editor,

We in Clarkston have an important decision to make Nov. 3. We want what is best for our community as a whole and must elect the best man to lead us in this new era of growth.

That is why I say before you vote, "Review in your minds the issues that have occurred in the past year, for that is when progress and growth of population was introduced to Clarkston on a large scale."

Why do we have elections every two years? Why not just have one election and let the elected officers stay in office until they succumb, regardless of how our community is run or looks?

Thanks to our forefathers' foresight that made it possible for citizens to vote a change in government for the people when it is needed, and it is needed now in the office of supervisor and trustee for this new era.

The policy of staunch Republican and staunch Democrat is PASSE at a township level but rather a vote for the man.

We cannot and do not want to stop progress or population growth in this community. Recent proposals regarding both do require extensive planning for the best use of the land in this area.

Just stop a minute and visualize what our township will look like in a year when ecology is a prime concern and we do nothing about it.

The elected township board as a whole should respect the request of the people for they are the ones the board represents. They should evaluate the best use of the land with ecology in mind.

They should be sure the homeowners are protected by updating the planning ordinance yearly as it is important to keep up with the changing times. We need progress and growth but with sound practical intelligence.

Exercise your rights and get out and vote for the man, Nov. 3.

Marie Brendle

Clouds water

Dear Editor;

Let's fight pollution on Nov. 3rd. Someone is trying to dump a lot of dirt into township political waters.

If so much conflict of interest has existed, why was it not revealed long before election time?

If some were so eager to promote three petition drives at our expense, why did their efforts "happen" to coincide with the start of their personal campaigns?

Today's Quickie Political Leaders could be tomorrow's public regret.

Armchair travels

from Kim Beattie

Kim Beattie, a 1968 graduate of Clarkston High School and a junior at Kalamazoo College, sailed on September 16 on the M.S. Europa from New York. His destination was Hanover, Germany where, along with 195 other students, he will spend the next 7 months studying under the college's foreign program.

The program is instituted to give students the opportunity to experience a foreign culture and educational system.

While abroad, Kim lives with the Heinrich Papenburg family in Isernhagen, just 30 minutes by Stabenbahn (streetcar) from the city of Hanover where he attends school.

Kim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Beattie of Snow Apple Drive. The Beattie family has agreed to share Kim's letters to them with his many friends as well as the readers of the Clarkston News.

October 12

Dear Family,

Just thought I'd write a note to you about the fantastic Rhine trip our whole group took this past long weekend.

We left Hanover by bus at 7 a.m., drove to Cologne where we stopped to see the magnificent Cologne Cathedral. It is really hard to believe that a building of such great magnitude could have been built so long ago without any cranes, etc.

Every pillar and arch has been sculptured with life-size people or a church facade or other delicate things which must have taken months to do.

A couple of us climbed up a small spiral staircase to the top of the right tower. 502 steps! You could look up and down the Rhine for miles and see the entire city. Really breathtaking!

From Cologne we went to Bonn, the capital of West Germany. We visited Beethoven's birthhouse. It was right in the middle of the shopping center on a narrow little street so typical of the oldest parts of the city.

They had the famous bust there that one always sees of Beethoven. They also had all the hearing aids which he used before he went completely deaf. They had a piano there which had extra strings in it so that he could feel the music more than hear it.

After Bonn, we went to Koblenz (probably spelled Coblenz in English), where we spent the night. My roommate and I wandered all over the city before we decided to go to bed.

It was a fantastically long day, but we saw some beautiful scenery on the way.

It reminded me a lot of driving on the Pennsylvania Turnpike with all the rolling hills.

At Koblenz we took a tour of a wine cellar and saw them bottling the wine. They really do have all of those big barrels lined up in those cold, dark catacombs.

We had a small glass of their red wine. Everywhere one looks, there are grapevines. They are all up and down the mountains. I don't know how they ever pick those things. In some places, they were growing right out the side of the cliff.
