Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

Generally I wear glasses. I don't need them to read, and sometimes take them off. When I do I find I can't hear as well. Do you have the same problem? Something about watching lips while listening, maybe.

Another thing along this line... we visited Bobbie Buechler in the hospital in Ann Arbor and she has a trachea tube that restricts her talking. I found myself talking louder than usual, trying to make her hear.

I can tell the holidays are over by just looking at the towel rack in the bathroom. Gone are the colorful terry cloths, replaced by the thread-bare drab things that make a house a home, or something.

Remember when there was always a broom outside the door in the winter time? I found a broom outside our door last week and I recalled trying to sweep the snow off all four sides of my boots with 3 swipes of the broom.

This usually meant I missed the heel. Now the kids and I stomp our feet or kick our toes against a step and always carry some snow through the house.

Those tv guys who, at 11 p.m., say, "Do you know where your children are?" and sometimes substituting 'parents' for 'children,' would have you believe all or both are wayward or neglectful.

They should go to a Christmas concert at school. Participants are required to be on hand a half to three-quarters of an hour early, thus anyone arriving 15 or 20 minutes before the first curtain is required to park in the drive or a snowbank.

Maybe the kids and parents both stay out all night carousing later, but they are sure together for a while.

The newspaper business is one of the few businesses that affords its enemies a million opportunities a week to have fun at our expense. What with typographical errors and misplaced stories and confusing writing and that sort of thing.

Of course, taken one way it means we have made a lot of people happy over the years. Taken the other way, considering the disposition of many of those who

Workers fail to report

Hawk Tool locks door

Employees of the Hawk Tool and Engineering Company on West Washington in Clarkston reported for work on Monday, January 4 and found the doors locked.

According to Allen Hawke, a spokesman for the company, the employees had been asked to work on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, December 28, 29 and 30, but failed to report.

"When the men failed to report for work we felt it necessary to notify them by telegram that they had lost their seniority. We did this on Thursday.

"After they didn't show up for 3 days, I didn't see any reason to hurry down to open up at the regular 7 a.m. starting hour. When I got to the plant this morning at 7:45 a.m. I was told that some workers had been here," Hawke told the News.

The company has been operating without a contract with their employees since last September, when the old contract expired.

"We were unable to reach agreement," said Hawke, "and we refuse to sign a contract that is not economically sound. No company should be expected to give in to demands that force it to operate at a loss.

"Our employees were notified last September that we would be operating between the Christmas and New Year's holidays to catch up on back orders," he added. "Our salaried help reported for work as requested and worked the 3 days. The Federal mediator has called a meeting for Wednesday, January 6. We hope it will be successful."

Robert Taylor, President of Local 540 U.A.W. reported that the Hawk Company had indicated that they do not want to negotiate a new contract to replace the one that expired on September 1, 1970.

"The company," said Taylor, "wants to cut many of the fringe benefits that existed in the old contract. They want to eliminate the employee's Christmas bonus and the pay for holidays worked between Christmas and New Year. They are also interested in eliminating the pension plan and have suggested a wage cut. They have not paid the escalation for the cost of living since September."

"Our representatives," continued Taylor, have offered a temporary, 1 year, extension of the contract with a 10 cent per hour raise."

"At one time the company agreed to this but then they withdrew their consent."

Taylor said that the telegrams sent to employees last week were, in fact, notices of termination of employment.

"There is no strike involved here," he said. "The men are filing their claim for Unemployment Compensation."

"We intend to meet with the federal negotiators tomorrow."

Victim critical

Squabble ends with shooting

Roger Southerland, 25, 7058 Felix in Independence Township is in critical condition in Pontiac General Hospital from a gunshot wound to the head suffered in a struggle for a gun with an Oakland County Sheriff's Deputy on Saturday evening.

A spokesman from the Sheriff's office indicated that Southerland and 2 companions, Eddie Price, 26, 4540 Clarkston Road and George Bennis, 23, 6804 Forrest Lawn, Waterford had been hunting and a disagreement arose.

The 3 companions were dropped off at the Felix address just before 8:30 p.m. Price and Bennis became involved in a fight. Southerland entered the house, got a shotgun and told his wife to call the sheriff.

Sheriff's Deputy, William Elliot, 36, according to the report, answered the call and found 2 men lying on the ground when he arrived. A third man, Southerland, was standing, holding a shotgun.

Elliot, the report continued, asked the man repeatedly to put the gun down. The man refused and instead turned the gun toward the deputy's stomach.

criticize, we have about concluded that the only thing that will make them happy is the end of the world, and then they will complain because it wasn't audited properly.

How long will it take you to write 1971 every time? The banks will give you about a month before they start rejecting checks.

In the struggle that ensued, Elliot attempted to strike Southerland with his revolver. The gun discharged, striking Southerland in the head.

A thorough investigation was conducted by the Prosecutor's office. No charges were placed against Elliot.

Photographer David Leaf was glad that these "Raindrops didn't fall on his head," but dripped icily from the roof of his home on Main Street.

Private removal or millage for pick up

The closing of the sanitary landfill on M-15 in Brandon Township prompts the question, what do we do now?

This landfill has been operated by the Oakland County Road Commission and is being closed because: 1. Cost of operation is too high, 2. Lack of cover material, and 3. The space is used up.

The landfill served Independence, Brandon and Groveland township residents. It was not used by a very large percentage of them. The same is true of the Pontiac Township landfill on Bald Mountain, and the same closing action is being considered by the Road Commission.

Paul VanRoekel, county highway engineer, is concerned over too many taxpayers paying for service to too few people. In both the Brandon and Pontiac dumps traffic count is low for the number of people they are intended to serve.

VanRoekel suggests that communities serve themselves. We agree.

Most residents pay for private disposal service. Costs may vary from $30.00 to $50.00 a year. Those who don't have private pickup either use the county landfills or roadsides.

If a community provided pickup service for its residents the cost per resident might be lower and roadsides would likely be clearer.

VanRoekel added to his suggestion . . . That a millage be voted for refuse pickup and bids be let on all or portions of the area to be served.

The county engineer offered that it might well be less expensive for a community to hire private contractors that equip themselves to provide the service.

This could well be the way Independence should go. It's worth Board consideration, and maybe even a place on the ballot.

I'll flip you for it

It is a crying shame that the Great Coin Flip show never got on the tube. It could have revolutionized the TV industry. Heck, it could have changed the world.

Football fans will remember the terrible suspense of Dec. 20. If Detroit, New York and Dallas all won their games that day, Detroit and Dallas would tie for the 4th spot in the championship play-offs. League officials ruled the tie must be broken by a flip of the coin.

There simply wasn't room to squeeze a tie-breaking game on the tube, unless it was substituted for Midnight Mass on Christmas Eve. Some officials wanted to bump the Mass but wiser heads prevailed. "It would make Notre Dame mad," 1 official said, "and they might start paying their players more to stay in school than we pay them to turn professional. Our recruiting costs are too high now."

Another official came up with the answer. "There's 5 minutes late this Sunday afternoon when there's no football on TV. It comes right after that game where the winning TD is scored by a quarterback wearing shaving cream and just before the 194th rerun of the 1967 Packer-Oriole game," he said. "5 minutes is just time enough to flip a coin to decide who wins, Detroit or Dallas."

Zounds, what an ideal!

George Halas, league president, was lined up to flip the coin. An ingenious point system was devised to determine whether the Lions or Cowboys would make the call while the coin tumbled in the air. A sponsor was signed and the TV time was announced. It was estimated that 16 trillion people would catch the Coin Flip program, including 5 billion via satellite.

But then the lousy Los Angeles Rams beat New York and no coin flip was necessary. One of the world's most wondrous stages had been built but there was no one to tap dance on it.

But think what might have been . . .

The great minds of TV would have boggled as 16 trillion people held their breath over a flipping half-dollar. "Manny, we gotta get us a coin flip show," TV executives would quickly say to each other. "How about Doris Day playing 2 out of 3 with My 3 Sons?"

Soon the tube would be clinking in prime time. At first, only the most simple ties would be settled by a flip. Howard Hughes, man or myth? Kent State, murder or maneuvers?

Audience participation would be encouraged. Domestic arguments would be flipped away while trillions watched. Heads they go to her mother's for Christmas, tails they go bowling. Ann Landers would forsake the drudgery of column-writing. She could make more money hosting "Let's Make a Flip, the TV Program With a Heart, a Head and a Tail."

But the TV audience would not accept this Pabulum for long. They would demand higher and higher stakes. If football games and household quarrels and political stalemates can be settled by flipping a quarter, why not . . .

That's right, folks. Smuckers Jam presents the Paris Peace Talk Flip. Heads, all the U.S. troops come home for good, right now. Tails, they come home anyway but their places will be taken by all congressmen, diplomats, bureaucrats and other politicians who have never been shot at. These new troops will be led into battle by General Nixon and Corporal Agnew.

Onward and Upward and no 2 out of 3.

"THAT'S NICE. NOW DISINTEGRATE THE CEILING."

Spiritual Message

Mark H. Caldwell, Pastor

"WISE MEN STILL ADORE HIM"

Matthew 2:11

"They fell down and worshipped him."

Yesterday was Epiphany in the churches which observe it. The writer's church has not been one of these until recent times, being of the Reformed family of churches. It strangely enough has been given a particular significance through association with the writers from other churches who share responsibility for this column. The more liturgical among us do observe it and in sort of fringe benefit celebration for us derelict ones who don't, they consistently take turns each year inviting ministers and wives to a party on this occasion. The fellowship is great and the feasting is delightful!

Epiphany has had an overshadowed history both as to its purpose and as to its importance. There is still question as to whether it should properly celebrate the baptism of Christ or the more usual purpose, to celebrate the coming of the wise men to adore the baby Jesus and present Him with their gifts. The idea seems to be to highlight the manifestation of Christ to men. Sometimes included in this highlighting are the occasion of Christ's being found discussing the kingdom in the Temple at age twelve with the synagogue teachers; the occasion of Jesus changing water to wine at Cana for the wedding feast; the occasion of His stilling the tempest on the Sea of Galilee to prevent their boat from capsizing; and the occasion of the centurian expressing amazement at the great man dying with such dignity.

In the modern church, we, from whatever background, seem to have come to appreciate any occasion which honors the Lord before all men. Wise men were directed to find Him the hard way and sacrifice time and wealth to do Him honor. It was Jesus Himself who directed His followers to love God with all their minds, and loving God with keen intellect honors Christ. The Good News He brings to help men extricate themselves from their various dilemmas of self-centeredness is worth speaking up for at every appropriate occasion. So, up with Epiphany! Wise men, adore him still!

Solve problem of tree disposal

Christmas tree disposal is generally the first problem of the new year to face the homeowner. Trees are bulky and present problems to units of government who operate refuse disposal systems, and private individuals operating solid waste disposal businesses do not like to pick them up because of the additional cost.

The tree can perform several other uses for the homeowner throughout the remainder of the winter, says Bill Muller, Oakland County Extension Director. He suggests removing the boughs from the tree and using them as windbreaks around evergreens to reduce moisture loss that causes desiccation, known as windburn to most homeowners. The boughs will also help in reducing excessive temperature changes that can have a detrimental effect to tender ornamentals. The main trunk need not be discarded, as it too can serve a useful purpose, either as a prop for ornamentals or a feeding station for birds. In fact, the whole tree can be used as a feeding station for birds who find it difficult to obtain weed seeds with most of the country covered by snow.

Units of government might also want to consider tree disposal by chipping rather than burning, as wood chips are in great demand for use as a mulch around shrubs, soil stabilization material on sloping ground, and for nature trails in recreation areas.

Kutting Korners

Tired of rich food? I am. How about a good pot of spaghetti? I don't usually believe in getting involved with chain letters, but I thought it might be fun to give this a try. Here is the result. I didn't get many recipes, but the ones that did come were excellent.

SPAGHETTI SAUCE

2 cloves garlic, minced (good sized ones)
2 large onions, diced
1 generous pound ground round steak
1 8 oz. can tomato sauce
1 6 oz. can tomato paste
1 teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon basil
1 4-oz. can mushrooms, pieces and stems

Saute the onions in a half cup of olive oil (this is important) until they are rather limp, then add the meat and brown.

Add remaining ingredients and simmer lightly for 3 to 4 hours, add water from time to time (about 1 pint altogether).

Serve over spaghetti cooked al dente (not too soft, please).

This makes 4 or 5 generous servings.

Try doubling the recipe and put half in the freezer. If you do — don't double the salt.

***

If you are going to serve that spaghetti to a gang who has been out in the cold, here is a Frost Bite Chaser to serve before you eat.

FROST BITE CHASER

½ cup sugar

½ cup water

Combine and cook and stir until sugar is dissolved and a thin syrup is forms.

Add:

½ cup pineapple juice

juice of 2 oranges

juice of 1 lemon

grated rind of 1 lemon and ½ orange

12 whole cloves

1 stick of cinnamon

Simmer gently about 5 minutes. Add 1 bottle light port and 1 bottle burgundy wine. Heat to the boiling point. Strain and serve very hot in warmed mugs. Warms 8 to 10.

***

Next week we'll explore the method of making Sourdough French Bread like they serve in San Francisco. I'll provide the recipes for you to choose from and I hope that you will write or call to tell me about your results.

The Weekend College program is not an offering of random courses without purpose, but a genuine opportunity to fulfill educational goals under a degree program of your choosing.

Weekend College courses parallel those of the day and evening classes, same credit; same length; same textbook; same instructors; same fees; the only difference is that all courses are taught on Saturday.

Like everybody can't carry a tune, man

As high school kids go these days, our boy Jack is maybe more level-headed than most.

Sure, his hair hangs down and he talks like the rest of 'em with his "Man" this and "nowheresville" that, but — essential — he's a pretty good kid.

Not that you or me or anyone else of us older folk can really feel that he's on the same planet with these kids but like Jack himself says, he's really not way, way out — man.

Thing is, and maybe Eff and me feel too smug about it, we don't worry none with Jack about what the youngsters call the "dream scene" — drugs and junk like that. Just figure Jack has got too much smarts to deliberate tangle with anything he's seen git quick out of control and little as he talks, he's seen plenty with other kids gitting hooked and all.

So maybe fussin' about the way Jack abuses the Old Blue Goose, our family bus, is a little thing too minor to mention. Sure know some parents that wish that was all they had to beef about. Sure enough.

Thing is, Jack don't git the car too often, what with me operating some kind of shuttle service for the younger boys — Mike, Andy, Joe, and Mark. And that's to say nothing of Willie's music lessons and cheer leader meetings and all. Got to stop calling that girl "Willie." She's gitting to be quite the young lady, Wilhemina is.

Mike is just starting driver training so it's only Jack that gits to take the car alone and then only on special occasions. Trouble is Jack's got kind of a special touch and near everything he touches gits broke no matter how careful the kid honest tries to be.

With the Old Blue Goose I suspicion it's maybe a little more than just his natural heavy handed touch that's involved. Though that touch is like when he accidental walks into a wall and bangs his head when he's going through the front door. Part of growing up, maybe. Could call it a mixture of daydreaming and dumb-fool awkward but sure is trying.

Course lot of the other kids whose folks has got a few bucks drive their OWN souped-up busses. Maybe Jack feels kind of like the poor country cousin and figures he's got to rod with the rest of the gang or git himself called a square.

So the Old Blue Goose gits the brunt of it, she does. Really wheezes and creaks and groans after that kid gives her a workout. Just not up to trying to keep pace with the tire squealers.

Had the car all day last Saturday, Jack did. School prom stuff coming up and all. Me, I had to work on the year-end inventory but all day I kept thinking how if the old bus was even still able to cough and creep when Jack picked me up at five I'd have to really lower the boom on that kid.

Comes in for once prompt and says am I ready to go.

"Go in What?" I say sarcastic like. "You mean the Goose can still pull her own weight after you been giving her your tender attention all day."

The old bird really purrs. Hasn't run like that in five years.

"Gave her a tune up, dad," and he sure did. Runs like new.

Sure is too bad so many folks have troubles with their young ones. Guess it's all in the way you raise 'em.

Halitosis

Television has been accused of creating a new "age of anxiety," by raising fears of bad breath. Actually, nobody likes to offend others, and halitosis is no laughing matter especially to someone standing in the line of attack.

It's normal to have a bad-smelling "sour taste" in the morning. During the night, less saliva has been produced; this normally washes the mouth. Also, there is a cleansing action of the lips, cheeks and tongue that stops when you sleep. When your mouth is dry, halitosis results. This is the stage when mouth washes are most helpful.

Bad breath can also be treated directly when it results from smoking or poor dental hygiene. When it starts with the eating of foods like garlic or onion, you have to be more thorough.

It was once thought that food smells reached out from the stomach. Now it appears that odiferous food is absorbed into the bloodstream (smells and all) and passes through into the lungs, from which it is exhaled. Therefore, once you've cleaned the odors from the mouth surfaces, you should follow this up within a few hours after the food has been digested.

Bad breath may also signal diseased jaw bones or gums; decayed teeth; sinus infections; diabetes; cirrhosis of the liver; uremia; or disease of the intestinal tract. Then no surface measures will be satisfactory — you must see your doctor or dentist.

Also, dentures must be kept clean and odor-free, and if your tongue is coated, you should clean it with a toothbrush or moist, rough piece of cloth.

As the saying goes — People have more fun than anybody! I think you could also say that people are funnier than anybody!

I heard a true story recently and those are the best kind.

The story involved an eighth grade history class and a very serious and dedicated male schoolteacher. The teacher, in his early fifties, lives his subject when he teaches it.

Columbus was an exciting and courageous navigator and explorer. John Paul Jones was likewise. Every president we've ever had was near to Divine character. He was the type of teacher that makes history alive and interesting.

The other character in this episode is a likeable and mischievous Dennis the Menace type boy. You all know one like him. He's not mean, just full of nip. He sees humor in everything.

On the day in question, Mr. Teacher was reviewing with the class the dramatic speech Patrick Henry made before congress when he said, "As for me, give me liberty or give me death."

The speech had moved the teacher to a high degree of emotion.

The class was somewhat taken up with the whole thing. All, that is, except the boy in the back. History wasn't one of his favorite subjects. To him, dramatized or otherwise, this speech was made by a man who lived a long time ago and probably had nothing better to do.

The emotion reached a peak when the teacher stepped to the side of the desk. He raised one fist in the air, pounded the desk with the other, and with sincerity showing all over his face, shouted, "As for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

From the back of the room came a cool, nonchalant and indifferent reply.

"O.K., if that's what you want."

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

My thanks and most sincere best wishes to the two young men who came to my assistance when I skidded into a snow bank on the Orion-Clarkston Road the day before Christmas Eve.

One young man set up a flare and took my son to get help — the other young man pulled me out with his truck.

They displayed the true spirit of brotherhood. Thanks again.

Best wishes for the finest new year ever to them and their families.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Adele Luchs

Trouble in Sura City

by Jean Sura

I haven't been as excited about New Year's Eve since I was first allowed to stay up 'til midnight and beat on an old kettle with a wooden spoon.

This year was special. I had butterflies in my stomach. My palms were sweaty.

"No wonder she's excited," chorused my adoring family. "She has given up her platformed arikle straps, her mutton chop sleeves and dirndl skirt! Mother's gone mod! She bought a new outfit for the New Year's party."

It wasn't easy, you can bet. First of all, I spent two months finding a pair of high boots that fit my feet but were big enough to go over my calves. Then, following the word of the fashion designers, I bought a pant suit to cover my fashionably booted legs.

That make sense?

"Well, what do you think?" I asked.

"Are you standing in a hole or did somebody saw you off at the bottom?"

"Oh, well," I consoled myself, "you're never appreciated in your own home town."

"So you've got your outfit for the party, what's the cause of the 'big tizzy'?"

"A lot of credit I get around this joint," I said. "Not a single one of you dolts appreciate the fact that I have gone without a single cigarette for one whole year."

"No wonder," said some smart alec, "with the bet you made last New Year's your first puff would have cost you one hundred dollars. Knowing you and your temperament about money, they could have put you on the rack and you wouldn't have cracked."

I ignored that last remark and several others that were thrown in for good measure.

My good friends who smoke were more than kind about volunteering to supply me with cigarettes.

The zero hour finally arrived. With great flourish, I lit up. Visions of banana splits, mashed potatoes and gravy flitted through my head as I inhaled the first puff. If I started smoking again, I could eat anything I wanted with no worry about putting on pounds.

"What does it taste like," they crowded around to ask.

"What does it taste like?" I said shuddering. "It tastes like somebody is burning tires in my mouth."

"We're all in for trouble now. She'll be a revolting convert."

"If I know her," chimed in old lovable husband, "she'll be a fat convert."

"Hey, Dad, maybe we should bet her one dollar for every pound she gains during the next year!"

There's trouble in Sura City!
