Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

They're going to convert Messenger's Gas Station in Vernon into a public library. Once the job is done I'll be able to tell people how I hung around the town library when I was young.

Andy Messenger's gas station was my second home the last half of my senior year in high school and for a while thereafter. My night prowling began with a stop at Messenger's.

It never occurred to me to think about Andy until I saw the story of the station-to-library conversion in the Durand Express. And the first thing that hit me was a question... Why did he put up with a 16-year-old kid hanging around his station?

The second thing that occurred to me was what patience he had.

Andy had the only gas station in my home town of 450 people and I honestly don't remember ever stopping there for gas, though I probably did. He was a big man, well over 6 ft., and had been a minor league baseball pitcher.

That was my game, at least in the spring, and Andy would pass along some of his experiences.

Putting one word after another, I'd have to conclude that he is one of the people in everyone's lives who has influenced their development. His lessons would be the subtle, good kind.

His wife was equally pleasant. She always had a kind word and a tease about who would I be chasing that night or what trouble was I headed for. Andy and his wife went without vacations for years. She would even bring him his lunch. There wasn't enough work for extra help.

I remember his telling about finally taking a fishing vacation. I was home from service in 1946. It was about that time his daughter had finished college.

He put himself behind his family. At that time one son, Howard, was superintendent of Linden schools; another son, Andy, Jr. was studying to become an MD. Howard is now high in the McFadden school supply company, Lansing, and Andy is a dermatologist at St. Lawrence Hospital in Lansing. I'm not sure of their sister's whereabouts, but she was a charming girl.

Young Andy was sort of a hero to me. He was a baseball pitcher for Western Michigan University, of which his dad was very proud. He was in pre-med when I was there in 1946. I saw him playing bridge in the Union one day and he spoke to me... right there in front of the upper classmen - high rollers of the campus.

Andy Messenger's Gas Station is going to become the home of Vernon Public Library. It seems fitting. It's almost like a continuation of what it was... people will go there to learn and enjoy themselves, as I did. I hope the librarian is as gentle, understanding and patient as Andy was.

Supervisor reports to the people

Residents of Independence Township received a report last week from Supervisor Gary Stonerock in which he states that many problems facing the area are due to its previous governing "for the benefit of small special interest groups."

Stonerock contends in the report, "The controversy that exists today is a direct result of my actions in fulfilling my pledge to give the township back to the people."

His report which he said was meant "to inform and enlighten and to maintain communication with the people" continues, "Action creates controversy because positive action necessarily results in a change of priorities. The people in Independence Township who have been complaining the most are those whose pet projects have been reduced, redefined or eliminated."

Stonerock goes on to credit Township Attorney Richard Campbell with having saved the township considerable cost by combining three referendum votes on zoning lawsuits into one election. Two of the lawsuits were in progress before he took office, Stonerock noted.

Regarding the planning commission, Stonerock said, "I have restructured the entire planning commission by appointing new members, selecting residents in all areas of our township to create the greatest possible representation and to provide the maximum freedom from any pressures by special interest groups."

By law, the supervisor can appoint members to the commission, but the appointments must be confirmed by the township board. Stonerock has mentioned his candidacy for the commission at least twice during the past week.

A vacancy exists on the commission since Mrs. Jean Bray was not reappointed

Good year for taxes

Township tax coffers are full, Treasurer Kenneth Johnson reporting that the collection for 1971 has reached 94.6 percent.

Taxes spread on Independence Township property have raised $2.5 million, just $100,000 short of total collection.

Johnson said the high percentage return this year compares with about 91 percent collected for the 1970 tax bills.

The money pays for schools, township and county government.

January 1.

He notes that Independence is perhaps the first township to have an "in house" planner one day a week.

He said through the employment of a new assessor, Robert Vandermark, the township has shifted the biggest portion of the yearly rise of property taxes from single family residential owners to vacant acreage, commercial and multiple classes.

He also described the $38,763 state grant for recreation which with federal open space monies could provide $76,000 for the acquisition of a 40-acre township park site, but he notes "as yet I cannot get it approved by the board."

Ordinances which have been enacted during his term are described as are the efforts to clear up flooding in the Paramus area and to end blight in the Woodhull Lake area.

The report was put out prior to the March 20 vote.

RAP House topic

Clarkston Area Youth Assistance will hear a representative of RAP House when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday, March 27 at the township hall. Coffee and discussion will follow the program.

Haunted house is no more

By Gloria Bellairs

The abandoned house known as Knox Farm on Knox Road in Springfield Township burned to the ground Monday night.

Springfield Fire Chief Charles Hillman and his crew stood by as flames swept the sky. He said the house was getting to be such a problem because of vandalism that owners had advised him to let it burn the next time a fire was set.

The home, 140 years old, had been vacant since September. A series of fires in outlying buildings and youth parties at the house had created a problem for the neighborhood. The barn burned a week ago.

The house was reputed among the young as being haunted since its abandonment last fall.

Marionette show coming

Ed Johnson's Marionette Show, "The Enchanted Island," will be presented in three performances Saturday, March 25 at the High School Little Theater.

Under the auspices of the Clarkston Jaycettes, the shows are scheduled for 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Members will sell the 35 cent tickets during school lunch hours.

Busing nixed big

Glennie is township clerk

Independence Township voters gave Republican J. Edwin Glennie 62 percent of the vote Monday for township clerk. They also voted 2,188 to 383 in favor of a constitutional amendment to prohibit busing of students. The busing vote was purely advisory, having no legal status.

Glennie was to be sworn into office Tuesday afternoon in time for the township meeting Tuesday night.

In a 41 percent turnout of registered electors, Glennie, 29, won with 1,783 votes while his opponent, Democrat Robert Garner, 18, lost with 1,076 votes.

There were seven write-in votes for Mark Hood, 23, a Western Michigan College graduate in philosophy and political science.

Another write-in was cast for Ingrid Smith, unsuccessful primary candidate.

Glennie will serve with the township board until November, filling the unexpired term of Howard Altman who resigned December 7 to become county elections director. He will be up for reelection at that time, along with Supervisor Gary Stonerock and Trustee Tom Bullen. Ken Johnson, township treasurer, has said he will not seek reelection. Only Keith Humbert, trustee, continues in office for another two years.

J. Edwin Glennie

Glennie in his statement Monday night thanked the voters who turned out 2,867 strong.

He said, "I think that the total votes cast in this election for two people, both under 30, points up two very important facts: 1.) That the youth are interested in what's going on in government and they are willing to fight to hold the responsibility and 2.) The older generations have shown their willingness to pitch in and support us in our efforts and place their interests in our hands."

He continued, "I hope that in the months to come, I will have the opportunity to show all the residents of Independence Township that I am sincere in representing all of them, not just those who supported me in my campaign. My door will always be open and my phone will always be answered."

The vote by precinct was as follows:

Glennie's first meeting:

Just like old times

By Jean Saile

Independence Township Board was still a man short Tuesday night as it convened following the election and seating of J. Edward Glennie as Township Clerk.

Treasurer Kenneth Johnson was absent, and the resulting 2-2 split in opinions between Glennie and Trustee Tom Bullen vs. Supervisor Gary Stonerock and Trustee Keith Humbert caused many items to be tabled for further consideration.

The Board is due to meet in regular session again on April 4. The "settlement day" meeting, in which the Township is charged with catching up on its obligations, is 1 p.m. Saturday, March 25, and the annual meeting is 1 p.m. Saturday, April 1.

Tuesday's board meeting, with its new member, started out hot and heavy and gradually subsided to a business-like atmosphere.

It opened with Glennie's statement in which he promised cooperation to the people of the Township, and moved immediately into "harrassment" proceedings. Stonerock displayed a small 18" x 12" land surveyor sign, which he said is the one for which he is accused of violating Township sign ordinances.

Humbert moved Stonerock be ticketed and when that failed to find support, he asked for a vote of confidence for the supervisor. Both Glennie and Bullen abstained in the succeeding vote. Humbert charged that harrassment has to end, and Bullen commented he was not sure who was the harrasser and who was the harrassee.

Bullen said he had seen the Village's pursuit in the enforcement of the litter ordinance against Paul Frechette, the Clarkston Golf Club owner, who made the complaint about the sign.

An attempt by the supervisor to appoint the defeated clerk candidate Robert Garner to the vacancy on the Township Planning Commission was withdrawn when both Bullen and Glennie indicated they would vote against his appointment. Bullen said he would not vote for Garner at this time for two reasons... one, because Johnson was absent and two, because the issue of Jean Bray's reappointment had not been settled to his satisfaction.

Stonerock offered at that point to change places with Bullen on the Township Board and Glennie intervened to say the item should be considered at the April 4 meeting. Glennie said he would not necessarily let the position stay vacant until Mrs. Bray's position is resolved, but he did say putting the controversial item before him on his first night in office was "not fair."

The matter of the roads right of way master plan will be considered in a memorandum being prepared by Bullen as to why the issue should remain before the planning commission, Bullen said. He and Glennie refused to vote with the Supervisor and Humbert to suspend all zoning actions until the matter is resolved. Stonerock said he would nevertheless vote no on all rezoning until the right of way plan is resolved.

Stonerock introduced Billie S. Farnum who he said has been engaged as Township Financial Consultant. Farnum who is now Village consultant has a history of legislative and appointive service in the county and state.

The question of additional Trustees, bringing the present Board to seven member strength, will be put on the May 16 Presidential Primary ballot. Should the proposition be approved, candidates will then be able to seek election to the two extra positions in August and November.

$33,000 down the drain

The Township has lost $33,000 in Federal Public Employment Program (PEP) funds, according to Clerk J. Edwin Glennie. He advised the Board the deadline for filing for the funds this year passed on March 17, but that more funds would become available in October.

The money had been earmarked to pay the salaries of a public works director, a building inspector and a general utilities man.

Supervisor Gary Stonerock said the confusion of the election, preparation of tax rolls, etc., had prevented the Township from advertising to fill the position.

BRIEFS

Well drillers ordinance proposed to the Board was tabled because opponents said it would not insure better service, it would only make it more difficult for drillers to work in the area.

Trustee gets free tow

There were some red faces in Clarkston Monday when Sheriff's Department officers towed away a car parked near Clarkston Elementary School Precinct 4 polling place.

The car belonged to Township Trustee Keith Humbert. Humbert had reportedly parked the car, bearing Garner signs, just outside the 100-foot limit away from the polling place.

A Sheriff's Department spokesman said a call was received that the car was obstructing traffic. It was parked on the left hand side of the circular driveway in front of the school, he said.

The deputy attempted to determine ownership of the car, and when he could not, he ordered a wrecker from Roy's Standard Service Station, the spokesman said.

Later investigation of the case determined that Humbert's car was not improperly parked, nor was it a foul of election rules in regard to the signs on it, the official said.

The trustee reportedly took advantage of the free tow to have his car serviced while it was at the station.

NAG charters buses

Supporters of Irene McCabe and House Joint Resolution 620 calling for a constitutional amendment against busing will have an opportunity to join her when she arrives in Washington, D.C. on April 27.

Mrs. McCabe, head of the Pontiac-based National Action Group (NAG), and a small band of supporters are reportedly in Ohio on their way — by foot — to the nation's capitol.

Ed Manley, chairman of Clarkston Chapter NAG, has announced charter buses will leave Tel-Twelve Shopping Mall at 6 p.m. April 26 and 6 p.m. April 28.

Reservations must be made and a transportation fee of $25 paid by March 27, Manley said. More information is available by calling 625-4107 or 623-0649.

Deer Lake beach improvement proposed

An improved Deer Lake beach front, costing $6,000 to be ready by June 1, was given tentative approval by the Township Board Tuesday night.

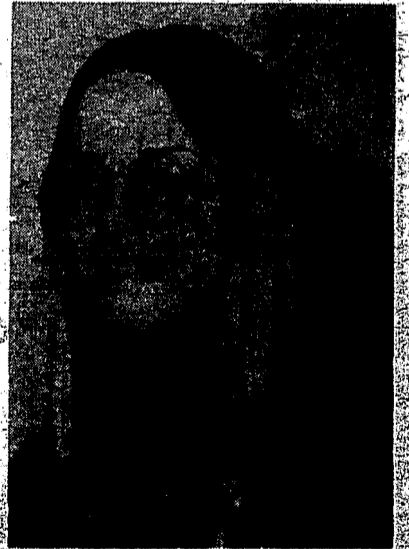

Introduced by Bill Halsey, external Vice President of the Clarkston Jaycees, the project would be financed with $1500 pledged by the Jaycees, another $2,000 from unidentified sources once Township approval was given, and with $2500 remaining to be raised.

Halsey said the project involved beach sand fill for the area, construction of a fenced play-yard and dock, restructuring of the canal to Cemetery Lake, construction of a foot bridge across the canal, tree salvage and planting, and railroad tie terracing. He said it would take 80 volunteers eight weekends to complete the job.

The department of Natural Resources, the Village and the Deer Lake Property Owners' Association are to pass on the project.

Supervisor Gary Stonerock said suit has been instituted against Buckeye Oil Company to end the oil spillage at the north end of the lake.

Teen of the week

Tracy Gray

Tracy Gray, 15, of 8551 Perry Lake Road is a ninth grade cheerleader at Clarkston Junior High School. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Gray, she is this week's Clarkston Youth Assistance Teen of the Week.

Tracy has been active in intramural sports, she serves as a student secretary in the school office, is a member of student government and the ski club and won the school's eighth grade home economics award.

She likes horseback riding and is proud of the horse she owns. She's also proud her daddy once pitched for the Detroit Tigers.

A caring for each other

People caring about people is what it's all about — this Independence House idea fostered by the Community Resources Committee.

It's an attempt on the part of individuals and organizations to meet the needs of their fellowmen — a personal thing — an involvement.

It's a return to community and the once traditional concept of neighbors helping neighbors instead of sitting back and waiting for an impersonal government agency to step in. Independence House promoters don't yet know the kinds of problems they'll be encountering, but experience of a similar facility in Rochester shows they'll be varied.

Transportation, housing, runaways, problem pregnancies, family troubles, drug counseling — people needing fast connections with professionals who can help unravel the webs that trap us — those are some of the items.

Independence

"The village is rude and simple in its pursuit of traditional ways, and preoccupied with elemental life functions."

So states "Man and His Government" written by Carl Friedrich in "An Imperial Theory of Politics."

Hits the nail on the head doesn't it? Pardon the temerity in all of my actions, but the time has come for action.

The people in the township have needs; and among their most intimate and concrete concerns are: water supply, fire and police protection, sanitation, welfare, planning, housing, public transportation and fiscal policy.

The very thing the village wants and needs can best be achieved if the Township Hall is not in the village. If the village wants to retain its character and quaintness — fine.

Clarkston has a heritage; it should be preserved. The village community can best be saved by separating the powers and functions between the township and village. There should be, however, a suitable link in the process that the rampart between them will allow the village to become more secure by anchoring in a more comprehensive community — the township.

The township, under my administration, has become more refined and progressive. This is as it should be in order to meet the needs of the people. In our growth and expansion, the existing facilities are being strained. The Master Plan for the township, done by professionals in 1966, shows the Community Center in the center of the township. We should follow the Master Plan, and I shall strive to that end.

Truth must prevail. Therefore, let us reflect back briefly at past events.

- a. Township Hall — in the village.
- b. Township Library — Hugging the village boundary
- c. Township Beach — at Deer Lake, in the village.
- d. Old Township Board — Villagers.
- 3. Old Planning Commission — Villagers and residents near the village.
- f. Assessments for taxes — hit the township homeowners, ignoring commercial, multiple, and vacant acreage classes.

Every form of government seeks to maximize its own autonomy. Why not the townships? As an alternative to separation with a bridge between the two, we could become a city — and the twain would be made one.

Capitol notes

by Cathy Lessard

Apparently Michigan's Supreme Court is attempting to infuse a little excitement into state government. It succeeded in stirring things up around the Capitol last week as a result of its pronouncements on marijuana and the property tax.

The most surprising of the two judgments was probably the court's decision that there was, in fact, no limit on the amount of property taxes local units of government could levy without voter approval, to pay off bonds or indebtedness. Previously the constitution was interpreted to include a 15 mill limit on the amount local units could levy without the taxpayer's approval.

Theoretically, the effect of this decision is to allow local government authorities, including school boards, to spend whatever amount they deem necessary, thereby incurring indebtedness, and raise the millage to pay for it later. Of course, any local government daring to use this new option would pay for it themselves the next time their offices were up for election.

In addition to shaking the taxable foundations of every home in the state, the decision halted, at least temporarily, the property tax reform petition drives that were under way.

It appears that both the Governor's and the Democrats' petition drives to place property tax reform on the ballot may have to be scrapped, because neither includes a limit on the amount of property tax that can be levied. At the time these petition drives were initiated, of course, it was presumed that Michigan law DID include this limit.

It is feasible, but unlikely, that the petition drives could continue as they are, and a third constitutional amendment be prepared, by legislative action, that with a vote of the people could put the limit back on the property tax.

In reality, I believe that the court's decision actually places the responsibility for achieving property tax reform back in the legislature.

It appears that if a constitutional amendment is to appear on the ballot for voter consideration this year, that a compromise ballot proposal must be worked out in the legislature. It will of necessity have to be one that meets Governor Milliken's approval and goals toward education reform, as well as one that will gain the necessary two-thirds approval of both the House and Senate that will place it on the ballot this fall.

Measures have been introduced by Republicans in both the House and Senate that are designed to correct this apparent loophole in the constitution. Whether the final outcome will be the adoption of one of these proposals, or a totally new compromise on property tax reform, is impossible to say at this time.

I am convinced that a revamping of our present method of financing education is an absolute necessity. If we had faced up to this fact sooner we might not have found ourselves in the middle of this busing controversy.

I am also convinced that whatever form property tax reform finally takes, it must in some way provide for the taxpayer to have a voice in the amount of tax that will be levied, either locally or statewide, to support education. In my opinion, it would be a mistake to support any proposal which gives the legislature complete and final authority on this matter.

The Supreme Court's startling decision relating to marijuana use was also the source of much confusion last week.

The court's decision was that classification of marijuana as a hard narcotic was a violation of state and federal constitutions, and that the state's compulsory 20 year sentence for sale of the drug was "cruel and unusual punishment." The effect was to strike down Michigan's present law until the new laws go into effect on April 1st.

It is still not clear whether all those who are currently serving sentences for the sale of marijuana must now be released. Nor is it clear whether they must petition the court for release, necessitating the services of a lawyer; or whether they will be given a "blanket release."

One thing that is certain, many local law enforcement officials have indicated their intention to continue to prosecute under local ordinances, a risk that anyone who chooses to use this as an opportunity to flaunt their dislike of the marijuana laws, will take.

I have to question the court's timing on this decision. With Michigan's new drug law slated to go into effect on April 1st, only two weeks away, it seems that the court wreaked unnecessary havoc with the state's penal and court systems.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Goodbye, Super Swinger

By Jim Fitzgerald

The TV shows me Frank Sinatra playing golf with Spiro Agnew and I want to cry.

What I mean is, does Angela Davis caddy for Martha Mitchell?

There are a lot of us middle-aged rebels who quit the Boy Scouts 30 years ago and won't join Rotary today because they tie the same knots. We go through life snapping our fingers, thumbing our noses, wise-cracking at waitresses, and hoping no one notices that we always head toward home at dinner time.

Frank Sinatra never went home until the bar closed. He was our hero. He had class. He never counted his change. He was Super Swinger.

Sinatra explained it all just a few years ago in the song, "My Way." He never cared what the establishment decreed, by God. If he wanted to go boozing with gangsters, he did. If a reporter asked a personal question, Frank bopped him in the nose. If a fetching broad was young enough to be his daughter, he took her home and began adoption proceedings.

Frank did things his way and he made it rhyme. If anyone didn't like it, they could go listen to Perry Como.

None of us slob back home could swing like Sinatra, of course. But there was no real harm in idolizing him. How many John Wayne fans ever shot an Indian?

I remember when I first began to suspect there was clay spilling from my idol's $100 brogans.

The newspapers reported Sinatra was supporting Ronald Reagan for governor of California. The same Sinatra who had sung so hard for John Kennedy! How could that be? Perhaps, I told myself, Sinatra simply feels sorry for Reagan because he never got the girl.

But then came the Agnew-Sinatra romance. They golf together. Spiro is a frequent guest in Frank's castle. Can you imagine Secret Service men snooping around those upholstered webs where Sinatra held adoption auditions? Sacrilage.

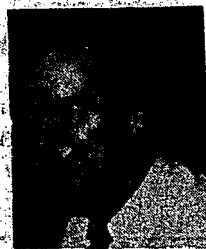

Spiro Agnew stands for all those things that Frank Sinatra used to shrug off. Agnew is the epitome of the Establishment, a citizen who knows all the words to the Star Spangled Banner. Sinatra was King of the Rat Pack; a what-the-hell guy who might easily sing "Oh say can you see by the dawn's early ring-a-ding-ding."

Now the 2 of them are in the same choir, in harmony, waiting for Kate Smith to join in.

It might as well be conceded: Sinatra has gone over to the other side and all us old swingers must find a new hero. Who? I've thought of Dean Martin but he's too obvious. I like sneaky sinners myself. Dr Kissinger qualifies on his days off, but he's too cerebral. He requires an interpreter even when he's home.

Does anyone here remember Wrong Way Corrigan?

Letters to the editor

“Not guilty”

Dear editor,

It is unfortunate that Glennie's signs were defaced. What I resent is being accused of the action — with no basis.

My phone rang repeatedly Sunday with people saying nasty things.

During the 1970 campaign our signs were defaced and torn down. They were even in private yards. (The weather permitted stakes being driven in the ground.)

The one on my car was spray painted one night, and some of the paint got on my car. I felt it was useless to complain, or get even.

I did not accuse Hursfall, Altman or Harold Bauer of paint spraying my car.

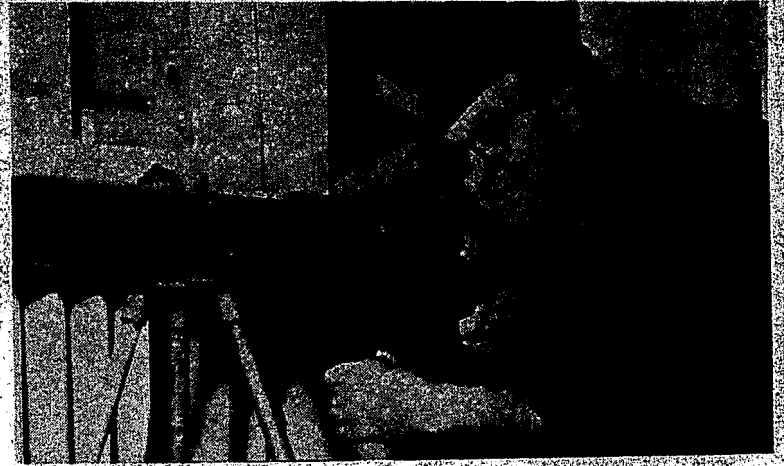

A sign in my front yard was torn down this week. Some of Glennie's supporters were observed tearing down Garner's signs. It is useless to complain, I figured. Or is it all right to deface a Democrat's sign, but not a Republican's?

So Bob is young, but he has gray beards as well as youth supporting him. I don't think a spray can of paint is issued with every license issued after the driver's education course. As a matter of fact, the real estate issue had some besides me with grave doubts.

This is Sunday night. By the time you read this, the election will be history. A little more respect and sense of fair play is needed. It appears to be just more of the unfounded harassment I've gotten because I ran as a Democrat.

Keith Humbert, Trustee

Misers at heart

by Carl W. O'Brien

I have long admired Jack Benny, the aged radio-TV comedian, not so much for his jokes, as for his personal thrift and the warm affection he always displays for small change.

There is something about a stingy man that fills me to overflowing with admiration.

W. C. Fields, another old-time clown, was as pocked with vices as the face of the moon is with craters. He had a nasty temperament, a capacity for drink to match the baby blue whale's, and, he despised dogs and small children.

Fields' only redeeming virtue was his miserliness. He doted on cash and hoarded it with the kind of passion most men reserve for beautiful women and lost causes.

Former New York Governor Averill Harriman, the Democratic Party's only billionaire, is so tight he walks around with his hearing aid disconnected just in case anyone presumes to ask him for a contribution or, worse, a loan. He never carries any money in his pockets and constantly bums change off members of his staff and then conveniently forgets to return it to them.

I would vote such a worthy fellow into any office he cared to run for — provided he did not attempt to get into my pockets.

The prolific painter Picasso is reportedly so attached to a franc that he sends his current mistress trotting off to the market each evening to purchase day-old bread and the bruised fruit leftover from the day's business.

A special favorite of mine, the penurious Cal Coolidge, ordered the White House chef to save the day's tea leaves and boil them over for the staff members who through necessity had to take their meals on the premises. Most of the Coolidge staff, after a hungry period of service, began brown-bagging it in order to keep up their strength, not to mention their weight. And a few of them, by way of getting revenge, voted Democratic for the rest of their lives.

Former associates of the late millionaire Henry Wallace contend that the great liberal was so il-liberal himself when it came to expending any of his own considerable coin, that he pretended to be a health food nut just so he would not be expected to take any of his followers out to lunch at a fancy restaurant where he ran the risk of getting stuck with the check.

Adolph Hitler, who tried to broil half of Mankind, pulled a similar ruse by pretending to be a vegetarian; he let it be known to any of his cronies who contemplated dropping by Berchtesgaden for a free meal that the Fuehrer was not about to go into his wallet for the price of a beefsteak and that the best that could be expected was a thin diet of broccoli and parsnips.

The Harrison who lived long enough actually to be president proved so cautious in allocating funds for entertainment that he served the British Ambassador pink lemonade and homemade cookies while Mrs. Harrison played the organ and sang hymns. The poor chap promptly requested that Whitehall recall him and was never seen in Washington, D.C. again.

What good are ordinances?

Dear Editor,

1971 was a "fruitful one for ordinances," so state Stonerock and Campbell.

For all the good it has done, they just wasted their time and the taxpayers' money.

What good are new or old ordinances if you can't find anyone in the Township government to enforce them? Frechette filed a complaint 1/5/72 with Campbell. As of 3/10 no action has been taken. Fletcher has a complaint, charging Stonerock with violating the zoning ordinance, that has been in Campbell's possession since 3/3, on which no action has been taken.

You attempt to call Stonerock's attention to various violations and instead of turning them over to his "law enforcement officer," Soncrant, he sends you on a wild goose chase to some other government office.

All winter long Stonerock's neighbors have been violating his snowmobile ordinance. Every day he goes to the Township office, he passes any number of residents who are violating his littering ordinance. That truck he passes very day at the corner of Clarkston and Clintondale Roads, has to be one of the biggest eyestores in the Township but nothing is done about it.

It would be interesting to get a report from Soncrant. He has publicly stated in the News that as deputy sheriff he was the law enforcement officer for Independence Township. How many complaints has he written during 1971 that he personally originated? How many complaints did he receive in 1971 from concerned citizens? How many of these did he act on? How many complaints did he receive from Stonerock? Outside of Frechette, who else has Stonerock complained about?

It would be interesting to know.

Chicks only look that way

by Jean Saile

Some astute observer of spring pointed out the hyacinths are budding at our house.

It must be spring.

The parking lot looks like a rice paddy, complete with furrows.

All the clutter that was safely hidden under the snow is now visible.

The windows never looked dirtier.

I have even had thoughts of wall washing.

Sure signs — but nothing like the hundreds of baby chicks that used to herald the mellowing weather back on the farm.

When anybody tells you baby chicks are delightful, don't believe them.

Baby chicks only look that way. They are probably the dumbest creatures God ever put on the earth.

Baby chicks make a career out of dropping dead and ruining the investment the farmer has made in them. Baby chicks crowd together for warmth and smother each other.

They assault the feeding tray en masse and trample each other. When they aren't actively seeking their own demise, they fall prey to assorted weird diseases and wild animals.

This was the time of year when we practically lived in the brooder house. The brooder house was a small squat building, equipped with a small squat heater, and about 300 small squat chirping chicks.

That enough of them made it to become succulent fryers in July or egg producers in December was the only reason for their existence.

Back in Sashkatchewan young fryers, smothered in butter and served cold on tablecloths spread on the ground at the school picnic, was a sure sign of success.

But the school picnic was followed by "canning day," and I can still feel the scars from cleaning out hundreds of those birds which wound up looking the only way I think chickens look good — filling innumerable glass jars on the cellar shelves.

Another happier — to me, at least — sign of spring was the motherless lambs warmed in boxes behind the giant kitchen range and fed from bottles until they were well able to forage for their own dinners.

There's something appealing about a gamboling lamb, carefree and happy, testing the attitude of dogs, sniffing flowers, and attacking those milk bottles voraciously.

(They're spring.)

County report shows

Growth policies can limit population

Growth policies spelled out by the Oakland County Planning Commission for consideration by local units of government contend that natural open space be considered as a prevailing determinant in limiting future population.

While it recommends no moratorium on building, it does suggest that such areas as prime woodlands, flood plains and

First Federal opening

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Oakland, home office of the Clarkston facility located in the shopping center at the Dixie Highway and M-15, will host a grand opening of its recently modernized downtown Pontiac office building Thursday, March 23.

Ribbon cutting ceremonies are planned for 9 a.m. and building tours will follow throughout the day. The building has three stories and a full basement with over 32,000 square feet of area.

Hel-Wyn passes

on 3-2 planning vote

Independence Township Planning Commission has by a vote of 3-2 recommended approval of planned unit development zoning for 69 acres on Maybee Road adjacent to Spring Lake Country Club.

The matter will now go to the Oakland County Planning Commission for recommendation and back to the township board for final action.

Two nearby residents protested the zoning which will permit Hel-Wyn Development from building 400 condominium units on 69 acres. Voting against the proposal last Thursday were Trustee Keith Humbert and Carolyn Place.

Supervisor Gary Stonerock, also present at the meeting, spoke against further multiple zoning in the township.

Seventeen acres of the property is presently zoned multiple and 40 acres are recommended for multiple zoning in the township master plan, said Chairman Mel Vaara. Another 29 acres has been zoned for single family, in keeping with the planned unit development guidelines, he said.

Stonerock asked the commission to consider meeting weekly to discuss and formulate plans for cluster housing in the area. Maintenance of open space through the use of cluster housing is one of eight goals the supervisor spelled out at a recent township board meeting.

major topographical slopes remain free of building to provide open space.

The land so held would not necessarily be open to the public at large because of dangers to the wild life, but other park area should be developed to accommodate large numbers of people, it proposes.

Whether the natural areas should be publicly owned or not remains a matter to be determined; however, the county group believes it advisable that some areas having high environmental value be publicly owned.

Privately owned areas of natural benefit might be encouraged through taxing relief. Other methods are now being devised in a study by the Michigan State University Department of Natural Resources and will be available to local communities for study, the report points out.

Support of existing central business districts as opposed to fringe area development is expressed by the county group. Development designs encouraging pedestrian traffic as opposed to the auto are also favored.

The county group also believes in the need for mass transit and the encouragement of non-automotive industry.

It further supports the right of local units of government to control zoning, but it proposes that developments affecting more than one area of government should be reviewed by the county. It also proposes as a county function the development of model ordinances and county wide minimum zoning restrictions.

James Lowery dies in fire

James C. Lowery, 67, was found burned to death Monday morning in the basement of the home he shared with Mr. and Mrs. Percy B. Lowery, 6337 Maybee Road.

Independence Township firemen said Mr. and Mrs. Percy Lowery went to vote in Monday's election and when they returned home at 10:35 a.m. they discovered James Lowery's body. They said there was no fire damage in the basement; that it appeared careless smoking had been the cause of death.

An autopsy was to be performed by the County Medical Examiner's office, according to State Police officers who investigated.

The report, which will be considered by the Independence Township Planning Commission, notes in its introduction that the 1.5 million people originally expected to inhabit the county by 1990 has been reduced in light of the drop in birth rates and continued stability of the county's death rate.

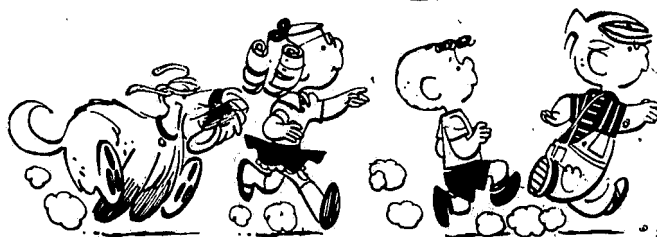

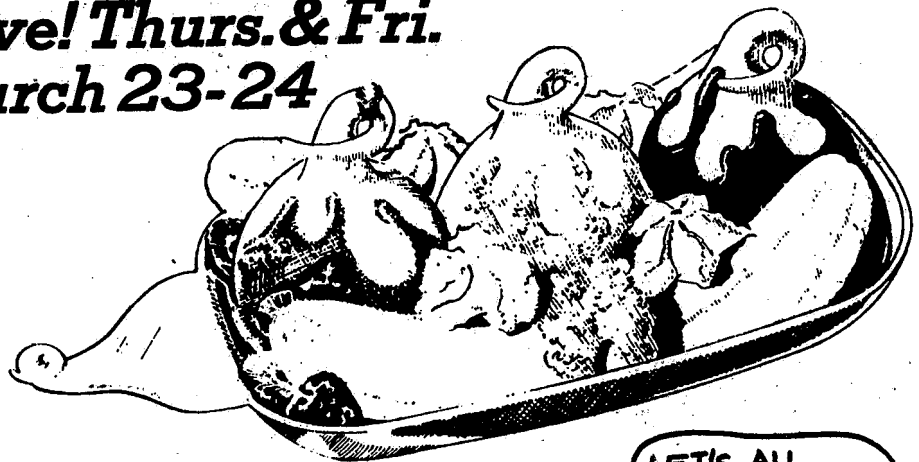

It recognizes that most market indicators currently suggest that Oakland County has reached its saturation point in apartment building and that the accent has turned to condominiums — partly because condominiums place the responsibility of changing house styles upon the occupant and relieve the landlord of the problem of keeping all units occupied.

The introduction deduces that a majority of Oakland's home seekers will concentrate their initial attention on areas easily accessible to Detroit or the environs of "status-laden" Bloomfield, Birmingham, Southfield, Franklin and Farmington.

"The City of Troy and Oakland Township also are attractive to many as are the culturally-endowed areas of Avon-Rochester and Clarkston-Independence Township," the report notes.

"Think Spring" fashion show

Clarkston residents will be treated to a preview of spring fashions when Jaycettes present their "Think Spring" fashion parade at 7:30 p.m. March 27 at the Clarkston High School Little Theater.

The show will be co-sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ritter, new owners of the Town Shop in Clarkston, and Judy Tuson, owner of Judy's Fashions for the Young in Independence Square.

Men's, women's and children's styles will be shown. Brand names such as Aileen, White Stag, Jantzen, Farrah and Levi are to be featured by the Town Shop while Health Tex, Weather Tañer and Polly Flanders are offerings of Judy's.

An 1894 Washboard Band will provide live entertainment. Comprised of Waterford Jaycee members, the band appeared most recently in Clarkston at the Junior Miss Pageant.

Prizes will be awarded and refreshments will be served. Proceeds from the show will benefit the Deer Lake Recreation Program.

Tickets are available at the Town Shop, Hallman's Apothecary and from Jaycettes ticket chairman, Barb Hamaker, phone 625-4041. They will also be available at the door.

Thinking spring are Sherry Lindsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Lindsey; Mrs. Adele Powell, Clarkston Jaycette president, and Fred Ritter of the Town Shop. They're modeling clothes which will be featured in the Jaycette Fashion Show at 7:30 p.m. March 27 at the Clarkston High School Little Theater.

MSU cowgirls compete

by Delilah Peterson
625-5877

Three Clarkston area girls, Judy Lessard of 6431 Havelock, Carol D. Taylor of 8781 Pine Knob Road and Lynn Race of 10000 Allen Road, will be competing in the 24th annual Michigan State University Block and Bridle Club Horse Show March 31 and April 1 at the campus livestock pavilion.

Carol is a senior majoring in commercial education. She'll be riding in the women's western pleasure and women's western horsemanship classes and in the bundle race and costume competition.

Judy, a junior majoring in resource development, will enter the western pleasure and western horsemanship classes and will compete in the bundle race and costume class.

Lynn, a junior majoring in medical technology, will be riding in the western pleasure, western horsemanship, forward seat equestrian and working hunter classes and will compete in goat tying and the bundle race.

The Clarkston High School alumni outplayed the school's championship team in a special game Friday night by a score of 39-35, finished in overtime. Beth Cowen scored 18 points for the alumni and Anyce Virchett 14 points for the school team. It was an exciting game, viewers agreed.

A busy five-year-old, Morgan Wendell Poole, and some of his classmates recently recorded their school song to be played on WPON radio. Morgan attends the Upland Hill Farm School in Oxford. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Poole, owners and operators of the Fa-Mor Laundromat, 107 Thomas, Holly.

The golf season is officially open, according to Bernice Bishop, who celebrated her birthday with a game March 20. She joined friends at Waterford Hill Country Club for an afternoon of drives and putts. Later, she and her husband, Harold dined at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bishop.

Eighteen here, Eighteen there, Eighteen-year olds everywhere!
Claudia Christie, March 10. Terri Barnett, March 11. Howard Bliss, March 12. Daryl Sinclair, March 20. Steve Snover, March 27. Dan Race, March 29.

A descendant of early Clarkston settlers, Marion Lambert Mulkey, died March 19 in Louisville, Ky. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Lambert, according to nieces, Janet Lambert Lookadoo and Loraine Lambert Martin, both of Clarkston. Burial was in Louisville.

Neighbors on Snowapple Drive, John Walts, Pat Burris and Doug Peterson will all be eighteen this week. John was born March 27, Doug and Pat on the 23rd. Also born on the 23rd is Bud Hawke of Middle Lake Road.

The Clarkston Rotarians held their annual Father-Daughter banquet at Howe's Lanes. The trip plan to go to the American Masters Riding Stables was canceled because of bad weather, so Mr. Schwalb, owner of the stables, attended the banquet and gave an interesting talk on horseback riding and care.

Sixty-four persons attended the banquet. Dr. Harold Ford and four of his daughters, Connie, Laura, Joanne and Kelly were the family best represented at the banquet.

In celebrating his coming of legal age, Rick Reis and Nancy Tallman had a night out on the town. Rick, 18 on March 18th, and Nancy were voted class couple in the high school mock elections.

John D. MacGregor, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Herman, 6969 Almond Lane, has received a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering from Michigan Technological University at Houghton.

Harold Burrill, 6724 Plum Drive, was honored by the Detroit Free Press for 44 years' employment prior to his retirement March 1. He was entertained at a party at Raleigh House, Southfield.

Harold says he's too active to spend the rest of his years fishing. "I've got to keep on the move," says the former circulation truck driver.

There are now two sons in the Robert Lissner family of Pontiac. Forrest William was born March 7, weighing eight-and-a-half pounds. He joins six-year-old Bobby at home.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jones of Drayton Plains and great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Jones of Clarkston.

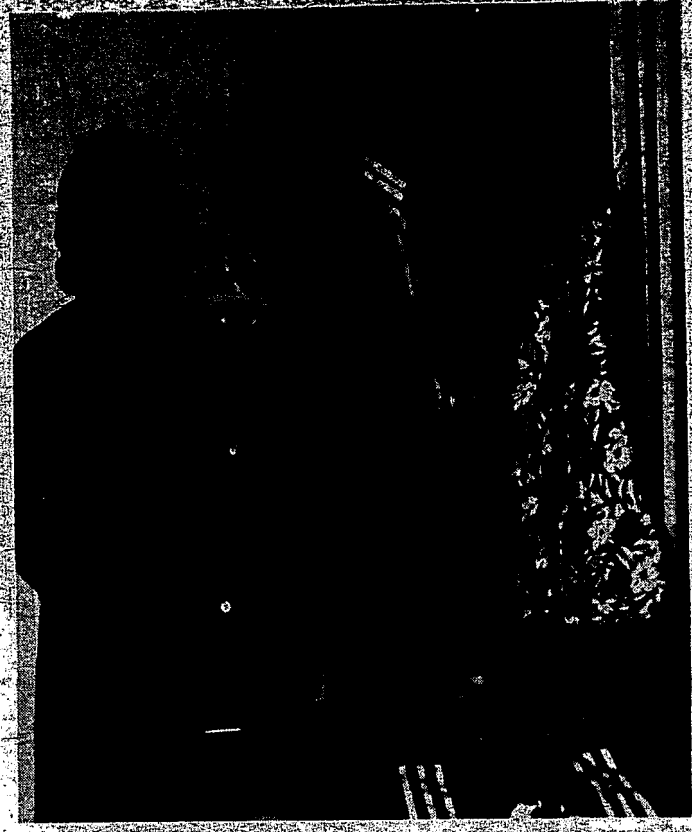

Our Lady of the Lakes Rosary Altar Society will sponsor its annual Easter Monday Luncheon and Card Party at noon, April 3 in the high school gym, Dixie Highway, Waterford.

Table and door prizes will be awarded, according to Mrs. Reginald Burke, president of the society. Mrs. Lester Oakley is chairman of the luncheon and Mrs. Don Sayan has charge of tickets. Tickets are $1.75 each.

Clarkstonites Lew Wint, Roger Olney, Dan Fife and John Sackrider along with John Sackrider, Jr., Bill Wint and Mike Olney got together in Lakeland, Fla., last week. Fife, now pitching with the Detroit Tigers, was an excellent host, they report, and despite having all their money stolen from the motel where they stayed, the group found the 20-hour drive (1,236 miles) well worth it. They spent Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the Tiger training camp.

Mrs. Donald Mallett and Scott Leak look over some of the samples being offered for sale March 27 through April 1 at the Pine Knob Shopping Center, Sashabaw and Maybee roads. Sponsored by the Episcopal Women's group of the Church of the Resurrection, the sale features the latest famous maker men's and women's spring and summer clothing at 40 to 50 percent off retail price. Sale hours are noon to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday, 3 to 9 p.m. Good Friday and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

Spiritual Message

Clancy J. Thompson, Pastor

GOD: Too Small?
J. B. Phillips wrote a book some time ago entitled: "Your God is Too Small." First of all he exposes the inadequate conceptions of God which reside in our minds. For example, God is pictured as the Resident Policeman, or the conscience which makes us feel guilty in wrong-doing. Some people suffer a Parental Hangover meaning that they conceive God as they see their parents - either loving, unloving, moderately permissive, or intolerably strict. To some God is that Grand Old Man. To others He is Meek and Mild. Others see God as Absolute Perfection. Some see God as a Heavenly Bosom or a form of psychological escapism. To others He is God-in-a-box - only inside a church. Some see Him as Managing Director of the universe and others conceive Him as a Second Hand God, for they do not know Him personally, but through other media only.

It is true that God will be the size we permit Him to be. We can make God dead or make Him very much alive - all this depending on our desire, or lack of desire, to learn of God and relate to Him.

I believe God is Big! He is big in LOVE. The Bible says "For God loved the world so much that He gave His only son so that everyone who believes in Him shall not perish but have eternal life." Christ took our sins on His back to the cross and died. Now, believing He did this and that He is God's Son, a miracle takes place within us. A miracle performed by God which makes us "new persons in Christ."

God is Interested - in every detail of our lives and manner of living. The Bible teaches that our "bodies are the temple of God's Holy Spirit," which places Him on the scene at all times. Have you been aware of this fact? God even provided a Guide for us in this life - His Holy Spirit.

And God is OUR GOD, and will be living with men eternally, for the Bible says that Christ is to return one day to take those people who accept His Son Jesus, with Him! God is Great!
How big is your God?

Out of the past

Sa-ga-na, super highway

by Connie Lektzian

Anyone who drives down many of Michigan's highways today, follows, with some sophisticated alterations, a route first made by an Indian.

The Indians were shrewd trailblazers. If there was a high, dry stretch in a swampy area, they found it. If there was a shallow spot in the river, that was where they crossed.

At one time there were 16 major Indian highways crisscrossing the upper and lower peninsulas.

If the white man had been content to travel by moccasin and pony, coming to the interior of Michigan Territory would have been a much simpler matter. However, that early settler wanted to bring in teams of oxen, and wagons laden with wives and cradles and plows and spinning wheels.

He broke axes in places that had only known a footstep. He saw his ox team sink to their shoulders in spots where squaws had gotten off their husband's horse and walked across.

The pioneers wanted better roads because they wanted to get into Michigan. A three-day trip northward from Detroit could wipe out the savings and courage a man had spent years gathering. Also, the Territorial government didn't want to lose these people—they wanted them to stay and settle and grow until there were enough of them to attain statehood.

It was in December 1818 when Governor Lewis Cass made a proclamation that said in part, "... the government was empowered to lay out and make a public highway ... commencing at the center of the military square on Woodward Avenue in the city of Detroit."

So it was that the Saginaw Turnpike had its official beginning—following the old Indian Sa-Ga-Na Trail, out of Detroit and north to Saginaw.

The American road builders found the first of their problems in a soggy collar of swampland that lay north and west of Detroit. A 12-mile strip, it was covered with dense forest and the land was so level that the road was under water year around—unless the winter was cold enough to turn it to ice. The first road crew, soldiers under Colonel Leavenworth, had built three miles of military road through here and the Colonel had an additional two miles corduroyed.

Once past the civilization of Detroit, the road men headed in a westerly direction. Their goal was a giant oak, branded with the letter "H," in the vicinity of present day Royal Oak. Horatio Ball, surveying earlier, had initialed trees to mark his route.

Cutting through the sunless thicket of dense woods, the trail pushed to a point southeast of the village of Pontiac, meeting that hamlet's main road. Edging past the lakes of Drayton and Waterford, the turnpike skirted Clarkston and turned and twisted northward. The longest straight stretch was within Pontiac village.

By 1834, the turnpike had crept six miles beyond Flint. A man with the improbable name of Orange Risdon, hired by the U.S. Army, surveyed the stretch between that town and Saginaw. That same year, an ox cart, the first wheeled vehicle to make the trip, went from Flint to Saginaw. The records don't say that the trip was made on a completed road, probably not.

The Saginaw Turnpike was ordered to be cut 100 feet wide with 80 feet graded in the middle—and nowhere does it say that they didn't try. It was work that proved slow and difficult and often dangerous. The builders corduroyed the road where it went through swamps, a method in which logs were laid side by side across the road. In theory, mud was supposed to ooze up between the logs and hold them in place. In practice, the road crew often stood back and watched their hard work sink out of sight.

Companies were formed to plank the Saginaw Turnpike, hoping to give a more comfortable ride. Toll houses were set up to help pay for this modernization, so much for a man on foot, a bit more for one on horseback. Twenty sheep out of Detroit cost their master a half cent at the first toll gate. The plank roads, built on sleepers that rotted out from the damp, were apt to crash through at the most unexpected time. The struggle to find more durable surfacing was to go on for decades.

The old Sa-Ga-Na Trail, begun in a quiet forest, became today's roaring highway.

Community Health Week

The "drunk" slips into a coma before the police realize he's a diabetic who needs treatment. The accident victim bleeds profusely, because nobody knows she has been taking a drug to prevent blood clots.

These are just two of the emergencies that can be forestalled by the use of the "universal emergency medical identification" that is being promoted by American pharmacists during Community Health Week (Oct. 19-25).

The hexagon-shaped emblem contains a six-pointed figure, "the sign of life." Superimposed on it is the staff of Aesculapius, the insignia of the medical profession. When you see this on a wrist, or ankle, or worn as a locket, you know there are vital medical facts on a card in the person's purse or wallet.

The durable cardboard or plastic card should also show the name, address, whom to call in case of illness or injury, their doctor's name, and any special problems that need immediate attention in an emergency—or conditions that could cause an emergency.

Diabetes and epilepsy present the most common of these hazards, but the emblem is also worn by those with allergies or heart disease, and those taking many kinds of medication.

Watch for the emblem—your alertness may save a life!

Clarkston kids bring back honor

Twenty-eight of 38 Clarkston Kid wrestlers placed in the Bloomfield tournament Saturday at Andover High School. Battling eight wrestlers in each weight class for the honors, Clarkston picked up 4 firsts, 9 seconds, 7 thirds and 8 fourths.

An advisor commenting on Clarkston's good showing said that they had enough ribbons to wrap a gift. The following boys made such a comment possible:

First Place:
 Bob Hickey, 100 lb., Midget division, Bailey Lake.
 Jeff Kellogg, 55 lb., Midget division, Andersonville.
 Jeff Williams, 95 lb., Junior division, Andersonville.
 Paul Williams, 90 lb., Junior division, Sashabaw Jr. High.
Second Place:
 Lance Scram, 65 lb., 8 & Under division.
 Tony Smith, 75 lb., 8 & Under division, Clarkston Elementary.
 Warren Gritzinger, 70 lb., Midget division, North Sashabaw.
 Jeff Howe, 75 lb., Midget division, Bailey Lake.
 Darrell Lape, 60 lb., Midget division, Bailey Lake.
 George Reynolds, 55 lb., Midget division, Sashabaw.
 Tim Detkowski, 80 lb., Junior division, Andersonville.
 Chris Howe, 70 lb., Junior division, Bailey Lake.

Jeff Smith, 100 lb., Junior division, Clarkston Jr. High.
Third Place:
 Dave Adams, 55 lb., 8 & Under division, Pine Knob.
 James Garten, 75 lb., 8 & Under division, Pine Knob.
 Tom Hecker, 70 lb., 8 & Under division, Andersonville.
 Chris Dawley, 80 lb., Midget division, Bailey Lake.
 Pat Fortin, 70 lb., Midget division, North Sashabaw.
 Jeff Dawley, 85 lb., Junior division, Sashabaw Jr. High.
 Ted Johnson, 75 lb., Junior division, North Sashabaw.
Fourth Place:

 Donnie Shope, 70 lb., 8 & Under division, Pine Knob.
 Elroy Kime, 85 lb., Midget division, Pine Knob.
 Doug Shope, 80 lb., Midget division, Pine Knob.
 Terry Barber, 75 lb., Junior division, Pine Knob.
 Donnie Boyl, 70 lb., Junior division, Pine Knob.
 Bob Hecker, 119 lb., Junior division, Sashabaw Jr. High.

Clarkston travels to Ann Arbor on Saturday, April 8 for a dual meet. This will tune them up for the Clarkston Kids Invitational on Saturday, April 15, when over 300 wrestlers invade the Clarkston High gymnasium to determine who is the strongest team in the area.

Clarkston High School girls' basketball teams have done themselves proud this first year of their inclusion in a Wayne-Oakland League. The varsity team (at right) came out on top of the league standings with an undefeated 5-0 record, having played Bloomfield Hills Andover, Waterford Kettering, West Bloomfield, Clarenceville and Milford. The squad outscored opponents with an average of 44.2 points per game to 23.9 points per game. High scorers for the season included Anyce Birchett, 110 points; Kathy Smith, 79 points; Jan Johnson, 76 points, and Pam Mihalcheon, 71 points. Jan Modesitt coaches the girls and Debbie Squiers manages them. The junior varsity team (at left) wound up the season with a 6-3 record.

Diabetic classes offered youth

Children and teenagers who are diabetics and their parents may attend classes sponsored by the Oakland County Department of Health beginning Wednesday, March 29.

The five-week series will meet from 6:45 to 8:45 p.m. Wednesdays at the department offices, 1200 North Telegraph Road.

Topics to be discussed include the nature of the disease, dietary management, medications and suggestions for coping with every day problems.

Linda O'Rourke and Ann Glover, finalists in Clarkston Elementary School's spelling bee, were to compete Wednesday in district competition in Oxford. The girls point out the words that did them proud.

Flyers enter play offs

The Clarkston Flyers tied their game Saturday against Madison Heights. The score was 2-2. Clarkston goals were made by Jack Hagen, assisted by Tom Shingler and John Dickie, assisted by Jack Hagen. Great goal tending was accomplished by Chuck Schueneman. Sunday the Flyers lost to Warren, 7-0.

The playoffs start March 25 at 11 p.m. at the Gordie Howe Arena. Spring League will start April 1 and run through June. Anyone interested in playing should call 625-4486 or 625-4349.

Time to clean out the cabinet

March 19-25 has been proclaimed National Poison Preventive Week by President Nixon.

The Clarkston Jaycettes suggest March 25 as a Clean Out Your Medicine Cabinet Day.

You can clip and affix the following guidelines to the inside door of your medicine cabinet:

POISON CONTROL CENTER
PHONE NO. 338-9111

In case of poisoning call Poison Control Center or physician immediately.

Administer antidote listed on poison container, or syrup of ipecac (available at drugstore) or salt water;

Or this universal antidote:

2 tablespoons crushed, burnt toast.

1 tablespoon strong tea

1 tablespoon milk of magnesia.

Mix in 1/2 glass of water.

Give to patient.

Do not induce vomiting if poison is strong acid, alkali, kerosene, gasoline or petroleum-based products.

Thank You . . .

Thanks to all those who went to the polls Monday. Especially those who showed their confidence and trust in me with their votes.

Keeping in mind that this was a special election, the turn out was really great. I think that the total votes cast, in this election, for two people both under 30 years of age points up two very important facts.

1. That the youth are interested in what is going on in government and they are willing to fight for those responsibilities.

2. The older generation has shown their willingness to pitch in and support us in our efforts and place their interest in our hands.

I hope that in the months to come, I will have the opportunity to show all the residents of Independence Township that I am sincere in representing all of them . . . not just those who supported me in my campaign.

My door will always be open and my phone will always be answered.

Thanks again to all of you for going to the polls.

Campfire is having a birthday

Campfire girls in the Clarkston-Ortonville area celebrated their 62nd birthday Sunday and were to attend a mother-daughter banquet Wednesday at Clarkston Junior High School.

The week has been marked by special Sunday church services in which canned foods and clothing collected by the girls for FISH were accepted.

The dinner Wednesday was to feature countries around the world, each group having studied a particular area for the design of centerpieces and decorations. Chairman for the dinner was Mrs. Marty Johnson.

Learning to cook are Jacqueline Bell, Timi Sue Agar, Kathy Hartley and Kendra Kurz, first grade members of Mrs. Janis Bell's Blue Bird Group.

Sniffing the flower centerpieces they've made for the Pine Knob PTA pancake supper are Gwen Hartley, Laurie Stevens, Ann Dutton, Laura Wall and Gina Thomas.

Mrs. Betty Kratt's second grade Campfire girls collected canned foods and clothing for the underprivileged which were distributed Sunday in the churches. Front row, left to right, are Nicole Bliss, Sue Kratt, Billee Beth, Hampshire, and in the back row are Joan Stewart, Stacy Nichols and Teresa O'Dell.

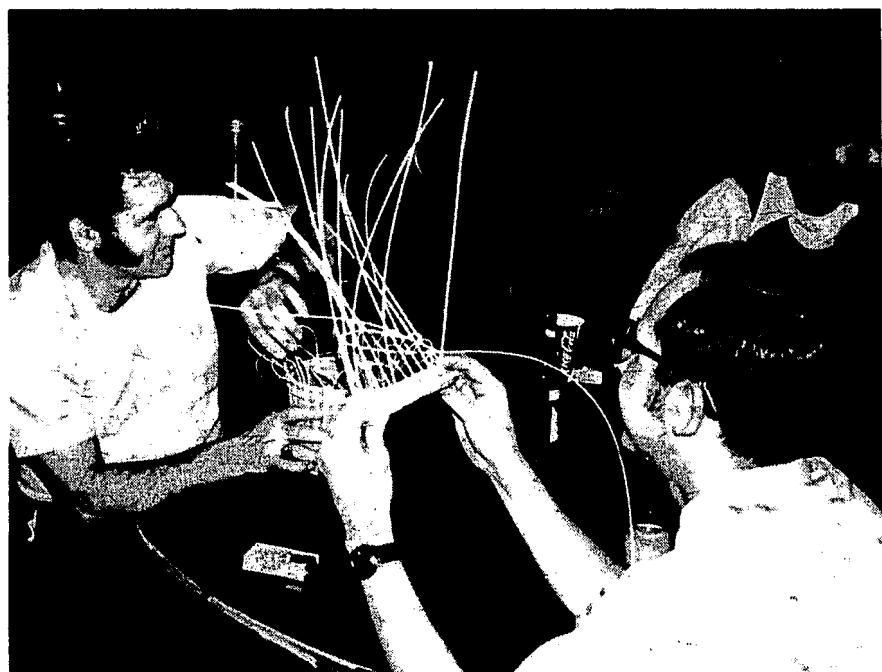

Jodi Smith, Janet Curry, Kris Reynolds and Julie Batzloff take time off for fun and games. They are members of a first grade group led by Mrs. Janis Bell.

Sewing a fine seam is part of being a Campfire girl and Kim Raedeke, Wendy Thompson and Lynn Johnston sew their award beads on their ceremonial vests. They are part of a fifth grade group led by Mrs. Marty Johnson.

Jaycee bunnies

Not all Easter bunnies have long ears as Ben Prano (from left), Bob Bennett and Terry Lopucki prove. They are part of the Jaycee team that spent March 14 building Easter baskets for the children at Fairlawn Center, Pontiac State Hospital. Children from the Center later had the opportunity to help the Clarkston men fill the baskets and enjoy some pre-season refreshments.
