Teachers settle

The Clarkston Board of Education and the Clarkston Education Association announced tentative agreement on teacher contract negotiations Tuesday afternoon. No details were released until ratification by both sides.

School was to resume normal operation Wednesday.

Reese Road development stalled by Twp. Board

The township board will take temporary measures to halt small home developments on small lots in the rural Reese Area north of I-75.

All four members of the board present Tuesday night voted for interim zoning to larger lot sizes for sections 7 & 18 between Holcomb and Rattalee Lake Road. The zoning is to become effective as soon as possible.

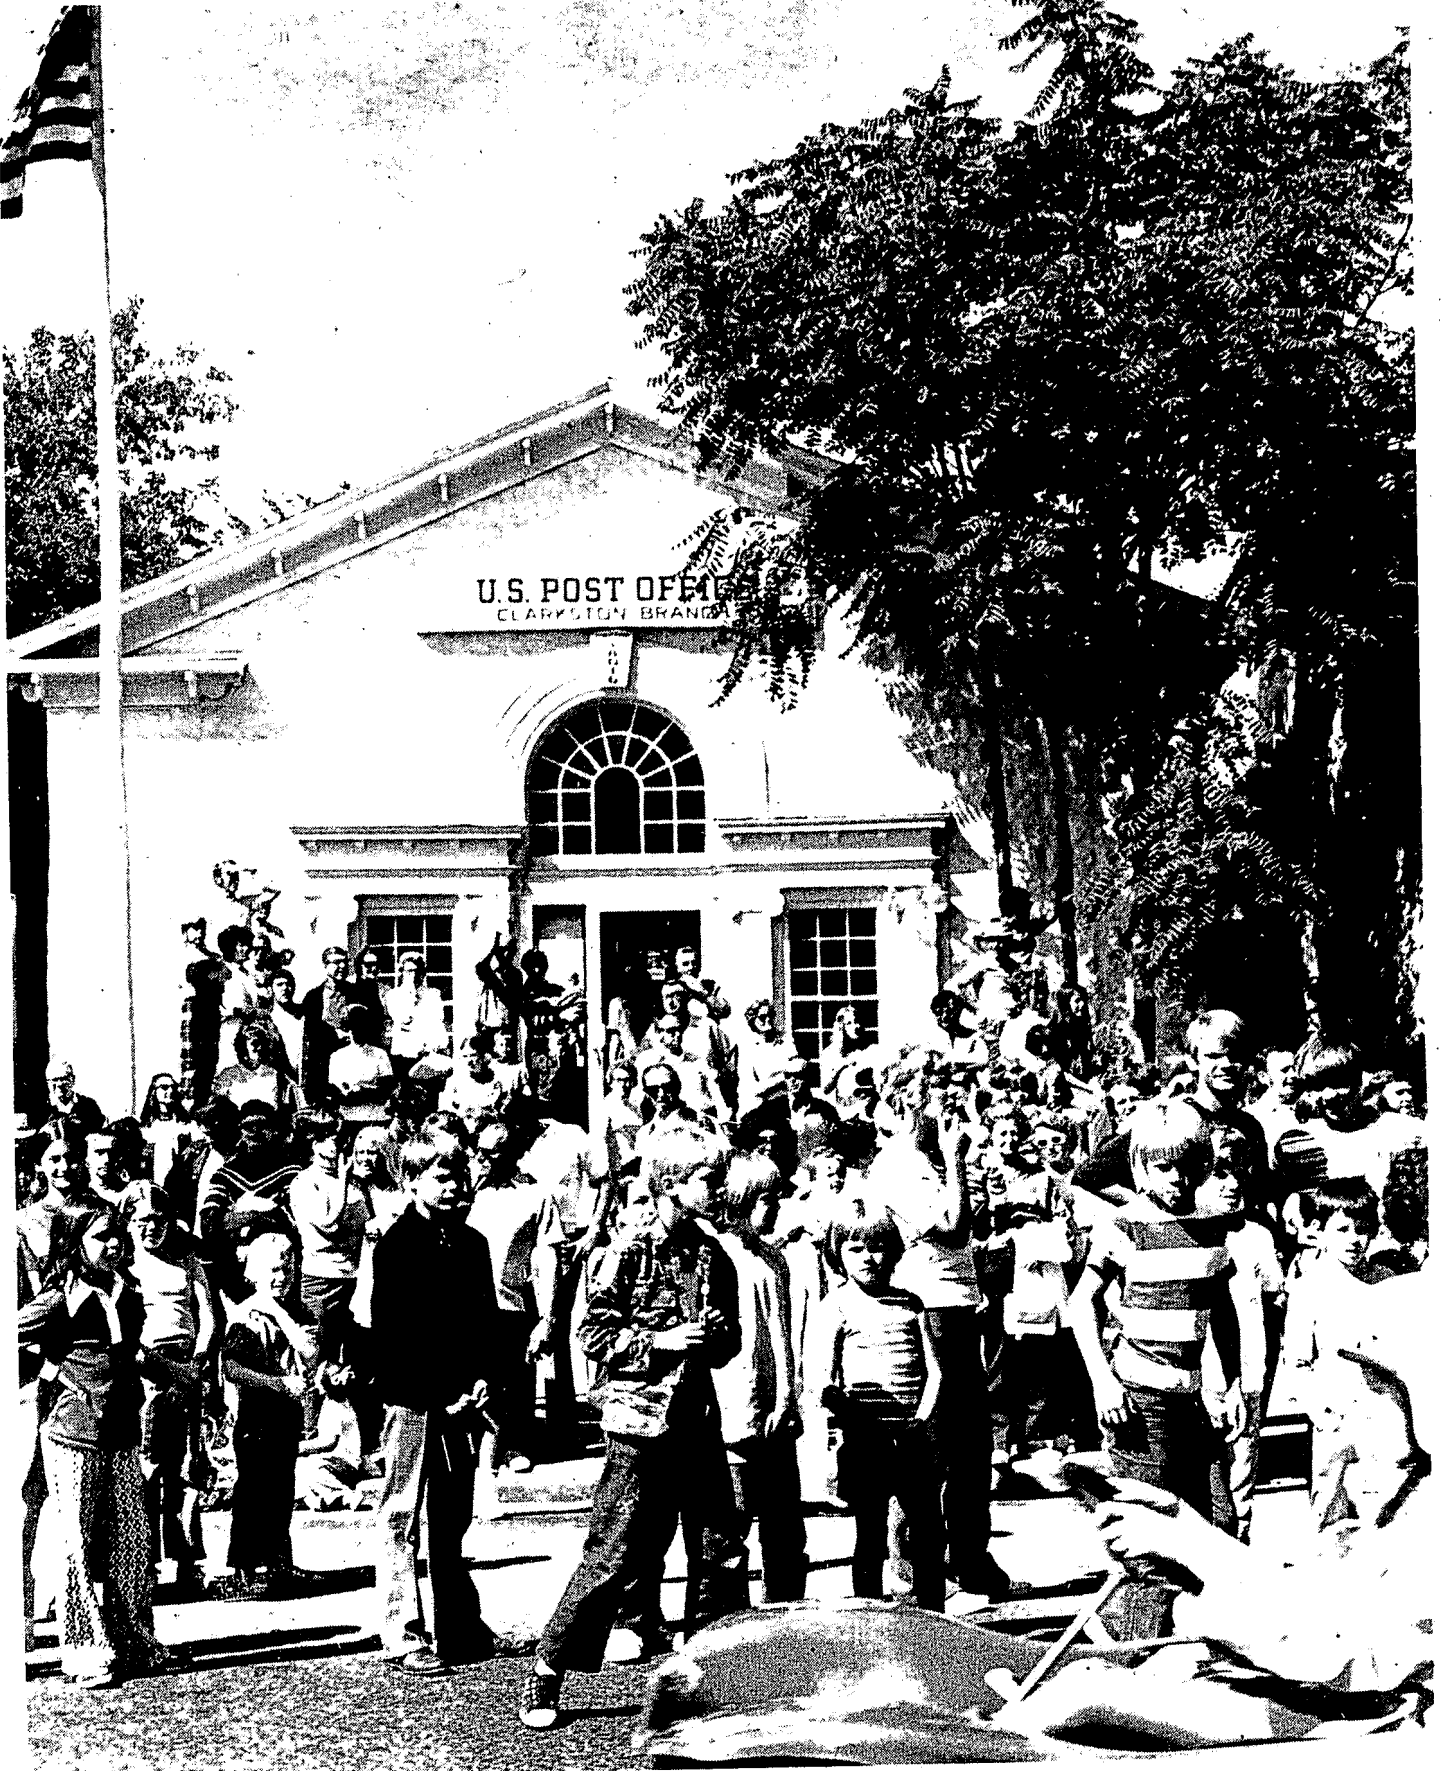

Trustee Thomas Bullen was absent from the meeting.

About twenty residents of the area protested to the township board the Heritage Heights Subdivision proposal to build 69 homes on thirty acres behind existing Reese Road homes. The present density of the area is 18 homes to 40 acres, according to Richard Marshall, group spokesman.

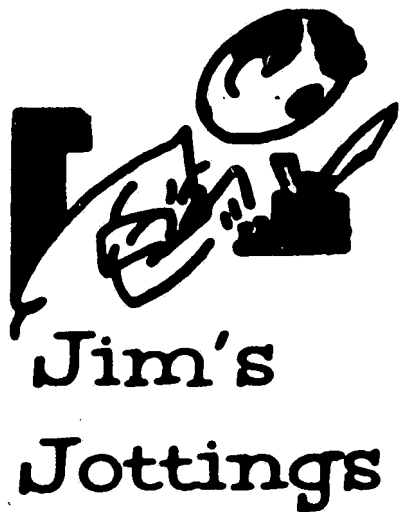

The board has eyed the area as suitable for acre and a half lots under terms of recently relaxed plat road restrictions. Problems with septic fields in the area due to a blue clay base were used in support of the larger lot concept.

Doctor Robert Kaveeff, a dentist, received board approval to make four lots out of six and a half in Lakeview Heights Subdivision on Deer Lake. He said he would improve Hillside Drive leading to the property, would tear down two existing structures, and would abide by drainage engineering standards for the area.

The intended developer said he has purchased access rights to roads in Deerfield Hills.

The Post Office steps were one of the best vantage points for the parade.

LONGEVITY

The horse and mule live thirty years,
And nothing know of Wine or Beers
Sheep and goats at twenty die

Without the taste of Scotch or Rye.
The cows drink water by the ton
And at eighteen are mostly done.
The dog at fifteen cashes in Without the aid of Rum or Gin.
The cat in milk and water soaks
And then in twelve short years he croaks.
The modest sober, "bone dry" hen,
Lays eggs for "Nogs" then dies at ten.
All animals are strictly dry.
They sinless live but swiftly die.

But sinful, ginful, rum soaked men,
Survive for three score years and
ten.
Some of them, a very few
Stay pickled 'til they're ninety-two These facts should banish all your fears Drink On! You may live ninety years.

-Clipped.

I've always understood laws and court decisions are based on common sense.

Thus I'm perplexed at an appeals court decision in Trenton last week.

Try as I may I see no way to reason the conclusion. Rather it would appear some social worker syndrome has boggled the minds of these men of the judiciary.

This appeals court ruled that a person who leaves his keys in his car can be held responsible for the damage a car thief causes.

This must be a continuation of a commercial that tells us to leaving the keys in our car helps a good boy go wrong.

The ultimate conclusion of this is to slap a 10 to 20 year jail sentence on the driver.

The whole idea of it being a crime to leave the keys in my car sounds like something some drinking sociology majors in college dreamed up. Like the gold fish eaters, the phone booth crowds and tearing up a lawn to bury a car.

To follow the court reasoning a little further... If someone were to steal my shotgun, case, shells and all, from my unlocked cars with the keys in it, and shoot someone I'd be an accessory to murder.

I expect someone will write and tell me, "Only if that person dies. You may be guilty of felonious assault or manslaughter."

-----o-----
Is there any sickness worse than that which comes over you when you see the side of your new car has been scraped in a parking lot? Yes, it happened to our new Ford van this week.

Pine Knob just keeps rolling

Pine Knob is getting three new 3-man ski lifts this winter, two of them to the east of the present slope longer than any the ski lodge has previously had.

With additional 37-acre commercial recreation zoning as granted by the township board Tuesday night, the lodge will be able to double its present capacity to more than 4,000 skiers said Joseph Loccrichio, owner.

He said repair of the resorts septic system is under way with the expectation that it will be turned over to the Oakland County Department of Public Works for maintenance as soon as possible.

The owner also added sound studies are now under way to reduce the noise of the resort's snow making machines by 10 decibels. The reduction in noise will require new mufflers for the machines, an attempt to bury the tanks and other baffle work, he said.

Loccrichio said that his offer to the Oakland County Road Commission to pay 50 per cent of the cost for a third lane on Sashabaw between I-75 and the resort has been refused. He said he was told the road was not on the counties' priority list.

The work in progress should resolve most of the complaints filed by township residents against the resort, he said.

In other business the township granted a lot split which will allow the Tally Ho Bar on the Dixie Highway to acquire part of Berg Cleaners property behind it.

15-hour a week, part time employee to clean up the Bottles for Building Center at the township is being employed by supervisor Gary Stonerock over the objection of clerk J. Edwin Glennie. Pay rate is $2.00 an hour.

Special assessments for street lights will about double in the December tax bills. Recent Detroit Edison rate increases which the township must catch up on are at fault, according to the board.

The resolution to start the paving of Pelton Road from Sashabaw to Waterford road was passed. Cost is $79,000, according to estimates. The township will pay $39,500.

Roger Walstad, "Pop" McGill and Frank Green were honored for more than 75 years service with the Independence Township Fire Department at recent ceremonies.

Mrs. Ernest Head, newly elected American Legion Auxiliary president.

Pine Knob show ready to go

Dick Purtan, WXYZ disc jockey, not Sonny Eliot as previously announced, will emcee the Pine Knob program which Clarkston Area Jaycees will sponsor next Sunday. For $2, a concert goer can hear Lorio; see Mr. Whoodini, CKLW-TV personality, perform his magic; call up memories with the Waterford Jaycee 1894 Washboard Band; and listen to the mellow barbershopping of the Rolling Tones. The concert will be from 1 to 3 p.m. in Pine Knob Amphitheatre, proceeds going to benefit the Jaycees' community projects fund. Tickets are available at the door.

Helpers sought

A training program for volunteers who wish to serve as telephone aides or counselors at Independence Center will begin September 12, according to Mrs. Alice Salzano, center coordinator.

Dr. Aubrey Crawford of the North Oakland Mental Health Service will instruct up to 15 volunteers. She said professionals are learning that residents of the area make better therapists than do professionals.

Those interested in taking part in the two-day a week five-week course are asked to call Mrs. Salzano at 673-2244 or 625-4711 prior to the classes.

The center will have open house for the public September 10 and will be open for business September 11 in the former Sashabaw United Presbyterian Church.

Howard Bliss Jr. demonstrates some of the skill that won him a "Cook of the Year" plaque from the Flame Restaurant where he and five other cooks are employed. Howard favors the steaks of all the grill work he does.

scheduled

Four public hearings will be conducted by the Independence Township Planning Commission at 7:30 p.m. October 19 at the township hall.

Minimum house sizes, side yard requirements, the increase of ordinance violation fines from $100 to $500, and the rezoning to commercial recreation of three more acres at Pine Knob are to be considered.

The commission at its September 14 meeting will study three recently submitted plot plans. Some 69 lots are proposed for Heritage Farms on Reese Road; 25 to 30 for Spring Lake Estates No. 2 on Maybee Road; and the reduction in minimum lot size from 3 acres to 1½ acres for the Ruggles property on Reese Road.

Dem picnic

Independence Township Democrats will meet for their annual family picnic from 2 to 7 p.m. Sunday, September 10, at 7990 M-15, north of Clarkston. Admission is free. Games will be played and prizes awarded.

Gem hunter searching for job

Don Rosenfield

A gem hunter who has searched successfully throughout the United States and South America is embarked on another kind of treasure hunt these days.

Donald Rosenfield of Timberline Estates, his doctorate in planetarium science almost completed, can't find a job. He's beginning to believe he's going to have to settle for a substitute teacher's job.

That in addition to a lecture-slide presentation business he's building from an English Land Rover expedition from Chile in South America to Clarkston should keep the wolf away from the door.

Rosenfield, who taught last year in the Brantford Schools, is beginning to believe he's over-educated. "There aren't that many planetariums in the United States and the 80,000 scientists released by NASA have impacted the field," he says.

A self-styled "rock hound, lapidary and gem hunter," Rosenfield has been known to use his mineral detecting equipment to get glass, beer cans and bottle caps off the floor of Deer Lake.

It's a far cry from his three years in Minas Gerais in Brazil, which he says contains 95 percent of all the gem materials in the world.

A one by three mile site yields $10,000 worth of diamonds a month, he relates. It was the source of the world's largest diamond cache until the mines in South Africa were discovered. Not only that, but the area contains many other gem stones such as topaz, amethyst and kunzite, he reports.

When Rosenfield wasn't fishing for diamonds, he was fishing for the Dourado, the golden salmon, considered the king of sports fish. His treks took him all over southern Brazil to within 50 miles of the Bolivian border and north to within 12 degrees of the equator.

While in Brazil Rosenfield and his wife ordered a specially equipped British Land Rover. Complete with four beds, stove, refrigerator, table, sink and toilet, it was equipped with 12 forward and three reverse speeds. It also had a hydraulic winch, designed for self-recovery but which Rosenfield says was ultimately used only to rescue other vehicles.

The car's diesel motor was a money saver. Their 1,500 mile trek through Chile cost them only $15 for fuel.

Leaving Sao Paulo, Brazil, where they had made their home, the Rosenfields drove south to Rio, crossing the Rio de la Plata by ferry. The river was so wide that in mid-stream Rosenfield remembers being unable to see land on either side.

Following South America's western coast north, the Rosenfields believe they have exceeded the world altitude record for Land Rovers. They drove at 17,500 feet in the Peruvian Andes.

Having left Sao Paulo in January of 1971 and arriving in Clarkston in June of 1971, they discovered they'd missed the whole winter. January in South America is summer, Rosenfield points out.

THE LAND ROVER

The trip enabled the Rosenfields first to learn Portuguese to the extent that he is completing his doctoral thesis in Portuguese. It also provided the setting where they had to learn Spanish. Car trouble in Argentina provided the impetus and their skill improved to the point that by the time they got to Bogota, Colombia, they were adept enough to converse readily with a girl they had adopted as a foster child five years previously.

The Rosenfields were able to observe vicuna in their native habitat during the trip. Vicuna fur is valued for its softness and its imperviousness to moths and it is extremely expensive because the vicuna breed at 16,000 to 18,000 feet in the Andes. You can't shear a vicuna at that altitude and turn it loose, it would freeze to death, Rosenfield pointed out.

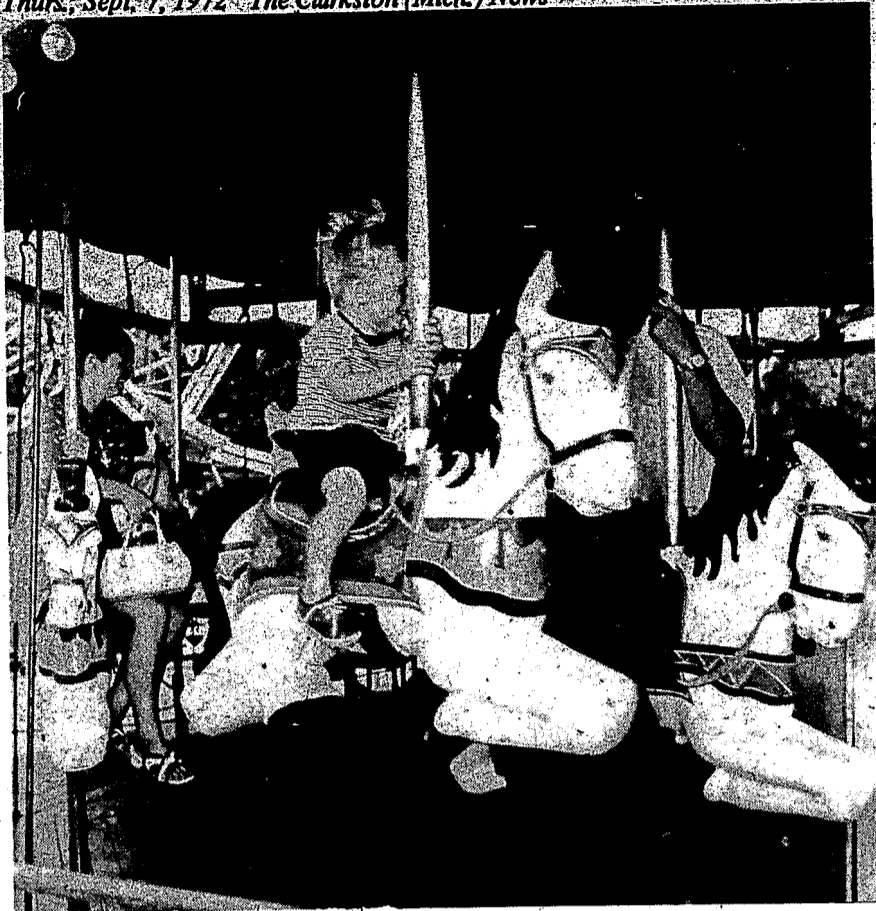

What happens is that a vicuna coat means that the animal had to have been killed, because the vicuna can't breed in the lower altitudes where it might be possible for them to survive fleecelless, Rosenfield said.

The Rosenfields encountered no ferocious animals though they had been warned of the two-legged bandito. But even the lawless failed to materialize, and Rosenfield recounts many incidents of friendship expressed along the way.

Their trek took them through Llay-Llay, pronounced Yea-Yea, Rosenfield says, which was demolished four months later by an earthquake, and into the town of Villa Rica which was later swallowed up in a volcanic eruption.

The job hunting is tamer than the gem hunting, Rosenfield admits, but the quest is important. He might even return to sales work in which he's had some experience.

It's a family affair for the Merry-Go-Round.

Biggest crowd in town Friday morning was at the sidewalk sales at the Town Shop. Both the clothing store and Clarkston Shoe Service enticed customers with sidewalk merchandise. Free coffee and donuts were handed out in front of Pontiac State Bank.

It's a small world

by Jean Saile

It really is a small world.

You never know who you'll meet at a KOA campground in Boise, Idaho, for example.

The Sailes pulled in and set up at the end of a long day of driving. The station wagon was detached from the trailer and the bumper sticker re my campaign for county clerk became visible.

From across the street strolled a Southern Californian who asked, "What county in Michigan?"

"Oakland," we answered, and the stranger cracked up. Turned out he was my Republican opponent's cousin — a political heretic in the family — now acting as McGovern coordinator for Southern California.

It happens that way every time we take to the road. One time we met the Jackson Byers from Clarkston on the Florida Keys. Another time we met friends at Bar Harbor, Maine. Seems like there's always an unexpected reunion somewhere down the trail.

A few more notations about the trip before we file it away: Denver, Colorado, which I had always been led to believe was the jewel of the Rockies, is smoggy.

Boulder, Colorado, isn't however, and Boulder and Ogden, Utah, became two of my favorite cities which we passed through on the route west.

Yoho National Park in British Columbia lives up to its name. Yoho, it turns out is an old Cree word meaning, "Wow!" and the impressive mountain vistas brought a lot of wows from our carload.

The Canadian prairies which I left shortly after the terrible drought of the '30's are now green and gold. Dotted by oil wells, they show a prosperity undreamed of in my younger years.

I hope improved finances aren't going to destroy what I consider one of the biggest attributes of the prairies — the belief in and reliance on neighbors. For so many years it was man against the weather out there, and a bond developed between people which I haven't seen equaled anywhere else.

An indication it might not happen was given to us in the wilds of northern Ontario on the route home. It was between midnight and 3 a.m. Sunday morning and we were stranded without proper equipment to replace a sheared trailer wheel. Four Canadian engineers stopped, worked for an hour or better and got us on our way again.

Said one, "We're good Canucks. Good Canucks will help anyone."

"If It Fitz . . ."

Missing a daughter

By Jim Fitzgerald

Our teenage daughter is away visiting our married daughter and all we have left at home is a 14-year-old redhead who washes his hair once a day and his feet once a month.

Old fogies keep proving they're liberal by saying, "I don't mind long hair on boys if they keep it clean." The boys must be listening. The last time I followed Eddie into the shower there were 18 bottles of shampoo on the floor — and no soap in the soapdish. After that shower, I was guaranteed to have no dandruff between my toes.

But I digress. My original intention was to write about our hippie-haired 16-year-old daughter, not her little brother. Constant readers of this nonsense (Mother and Aunt Madeline) may be surprised. I used to write about our kids when they were babies. But when they got old enough to read, they were banned from the column. I was afraid they'd get the idea I depended on them for material. The little mercenaries would have started charging me $5 per bright saying. I didn't want to have to stick a quarter up a kid's nose to get her to tell me her room was on fire.

But it has lately come to my attention that our 2 teenagers are too busy to read this stuff anyway. When pressed, they insist that they do "scan it." That means they step over it if I leave it on the floor between them and the phone.

So it is safe to mention daughter Chris in a column. She'll never know what I wrote unless David Cassidy records it.

At first glance, the thing I want to write about Chris might seem rather incredible. But I suspect it will ring a bell with a lot of parents. It is this:

She has been 150 miles away for a week now, but I keep forgetting she's gone. That's because she's never home when she is home. She's always staying overnight at a girlfriend's house.

Except, of course, when the girlfriend stays at our house. And then they are always locked off in a room by themselves, plotting the capture and enslavement of every boy in the 11th grade. They don't even eat with us. They set up their own table, far away from the adults in the leper colony. If they want us to pass the butter, they send a postcard.

Ann Landers is always telling me I should spend time with my daughter, and give her a reasonable explanation why she can't spend the weekend at a Robert Redford film festival on the Isle of Capri. But how can I talk to her when she only has time to promise to bring back the change if there is any? (There never is.)

My wife advises me to appreciate the children now because "It won't be long before they are gone for good, married with families of their own, and you will miss them."

You bet. They'd better remember to invite me to the wedding. Otherwise, I'll think Chris is simply spending the night at Jan's again. Or is eating dinner downstairs while waiting for a surgeon who makes house calls — her ear has grown into the phone and must be cut loose.

Teenage daughters are enchanting creatures. I have one living at my house and I miss her almost as much as I love her. And I don't care if David Cassidy tells her I said so.

It's really fine

There's nothing like it — a community celebrating together for whatever the occasion.

Clarkston Area Jaycees can chalk up another winner for their successful four-day Labor Day Festival.

Saturday's cold and rain was the only dampening influence.

But the coming together of the community for the carnival, the sidewalk sales, the parade, the regatta, the firemen's water fight and the American Legion corn roast created that warm glow that can send us all into fall with good memories.

Clarkston is lucky, and so are the people who live here. Our slice of Americana is disappearing too fast from the hectic present. Here, we've captured the mellower days.

May they be preserved into infinity.

Jackson-Body vows said

Some 300 guests saw Christine J. Body and Lanny E. Jackson exchange wedding vows in a candlelight ceremony September 2 at Central Methodist Church in Waterford.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Body of 6805 Bridge Lake Road, chose an English cotton net gown trimmed with Venise lace. She carried stephanotis and roses.

Denise Bachand of Clarkston, maid of honor, chose pink flocked voile trimmed with a pink satin apron trimmed in lace. Debbie Carter, Pam Davies and Donna Ventimiglia, bridesmaids, were similarly attired.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jackson of Clarksville, Arkansas. James Ferguson served as best man with Reed Body, Gary West, Larry Jackson, Butch Miller and Paul Body seating guests.

Want to belly dance?

Belly Dancing is included in the YWCA Fall class schedule. Near Eastern Belly Dancing is a current rage among women of all ages. The Pontiac YWCA is offering this course beginning September 19.

The instructor, Diane Berman, has been amazed at the great turnout for her classes in other areas. Belly Dancing gives the benefits of exercise but it is also relaxing, graceful and fun. She starts new students on simple toning and loosening exercises that quickly develop into hip, hand and feet movements of the Belly Dancer. Teenagers through grandmothers are invited to join the class.

Other YWCA classes scheduled to begin the week of September 18, include Pre-Bishop Sewing, Bishop Sewing I, III, V and II., Bridge, Crocheting, Decoupage and Papier Toile, Furniture Refinishing, General Sewing, Beginning Guitar, Japanese Bunka Embroidery, Lamaze Birth Technique, Powder Puff Mechanics, Sewing - Children's Wear, Sewing, Men's Pants, Slimnastics, Upholstery and Yoga.

Around the township

Special guest

by Shanna Nadolsky

625-2837

The Henry Kerzykowskis of Norman Road have had a special house guest this past week. Their granddaughter, Christine Ollgaard from South Haven stayed with them while her parents were vacationing in Montreal. Christine enjoyed her stay with grandparents and aunts, Karen, Terry and Mary Kay.

It's a boy for Richard and Carol Olsen of Overlook Drive. Cory Michael weighed seven pounds, five ounces and is a welcome playmate for brother, Tod, 6 and sister, Kelly, 4.

The Richard Johnston family of Middle Lake Road have returned from northern Michigan where they and the Robert Beattie family visited Mackinaw City, the Island, and rode the boat through the Locks at Sault Ste. Marie. While riding through the Locks, they were surprised to run into the Ed Glennies of West Church on board. The Johnstons took a few more days before returning home to visit Petoskey and Traverse City. A fun trip, nice weather and now back to school.

Visiting the Jackson Byers on Middle Lake Road recently was Mrs. George Riddell of Brazil, Indiana. Mrs. Riddell is Mrs. Byers' maternal aunt.

New residents in Clarkston are the Russell Shultes, making their home on Whipple Lake Road. The Shultes have three children, two sons and a daughter. The youngest son, K. J., hasn't had much time to enjoy his new surroundings as yet. Since moving in nearly three weeks ago, K. J. dislocated his hip and will be in traction for three weeks in St. Joseph Hospital. Then he will be spending three months recuperating in bed. Certainly a difficult time for all. The Shultes come to Clarkston from Utica.

Lisa Braun of 7185 Deer Lake Road has enrolled as a freshman in Grand Valley State College at Allendale. She will begin classes September 27.

It's been a busy summer for the Domitroffs of 6525 Placid Court. Scott, a member of Rudy's Market Little League team, attended the Little League Baseball Summer Camp August 13 to 25 at Williamsport, Pennsylvania. He enjoyed a two-week stay, learning about baseball.

Bruce Domitroff received the Honor Society Blue Key last month from the University of Detroit. He expects to graduate in 1974.

Dan Race of 10000 Allen Road, left for Las Vegas last week where he will attend the University of Nevada. He will major in hotel management. Dan called New Mexico the "wildest and most exciting" part of his drive West. Upon arriving, he learned his roommate is from Paris, France.

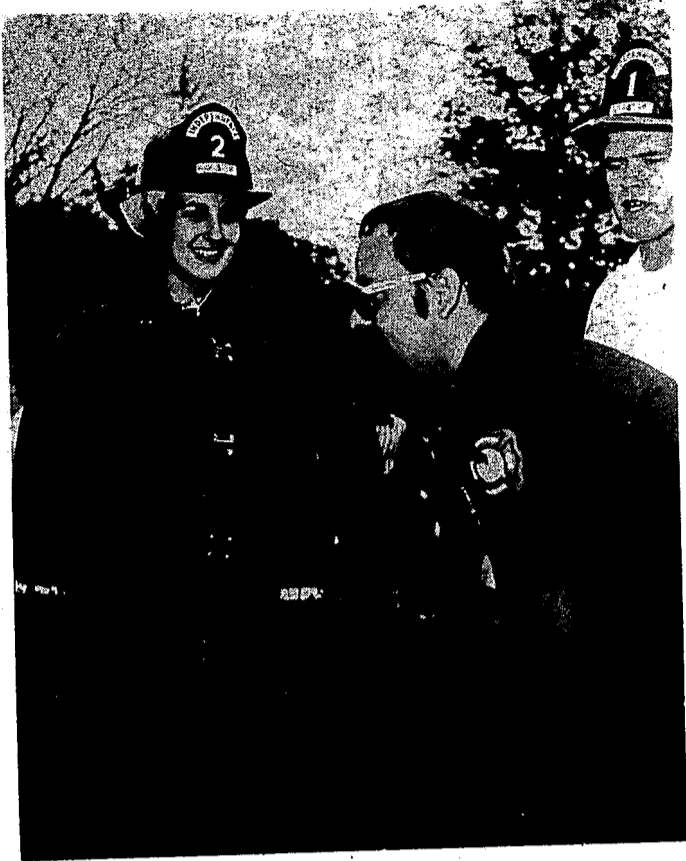

The Tuesday Bridge Club honored Jessie Henry, a 25-year original member of the club, at luncheon last Wednesday at Ben's Bull Pen in Keatington Antique Village. Attending were Opal Johnston, Marian Terry, Mildred Butters, Ruth Snader, Lillian Bauer and Helen Gundry. Mrs. Henry was presented with a gift.

Raymond L. Chenoweth, 9531 Whipple Shore Drive, Kenneth G. Keener, 8900 Davisburg and Nancy A. Vollbach, 6371 Simler Drive, are among 474 Ferris State College students honored for scholastic excellence during the summer quarter. The trio have been named to the Academic Honors List.

James Anthony of 55 Buffalo is a member of the Marching Chippewas of Central Michigan University. He and the band will make their debut September 30 when the Chippewas march to the Indiana State on Alumni Field at Mount Pleasant.

Firewomen yet

Rock back at Pine Knob

ARGENT and SAILCAT, two popular rock groups, will appear at the Pine Knob Music Theatre on Sunday, September 10 at 7 p.m. Tickets are $4 for reserved seats and $3 for unreserved lawn seats. They are available at the Fisher Theatre Box Office, Pine Knob and all J. L. Hudson stores.

Rod Argent, once leader of the "Zombies" wanted to surround himself with the most talented musicians around, and apparently has done so for Argent's new album "Altogether Now" has been steadily rising on the charts. The music reviewer of "Rolling Stone," John Tiven, wrote, "... this album could easily be the sleeper of 1972."

Sailcat, the supporting act on the bill, is a two-man acoustic act whose current hit is "Motorcycle Mama."

Spiritual Message

In the New Testament, mission is the proclamation or witness of a life or death message. It says, "You are to go into all the world and preach the Good News to everyone, everywhere. Those who believe and are baptized will be saved, but those who refuse to believe will be condemned." This relentless aspect is integral to New Testament Mission.

In the New Testament, mission is universal. The meaning of Christ's whole life, teachings, death and resurrection is universal salvation. The universal Good News broke both racial exclusiveness and legalistic theology to establish Christianity as available by faith to all tribes, tongues, kindreds and nations.

In the New Testament, there is an urgency in mission. Part of the missionary zeal in the New Testament church arose from their determination to win loved ones before Christ returned. Jesus said, "And the Good News about the Kingdom shall be preached throughout the whole world, so that all nations will hear it, and then, finally, the end will come."

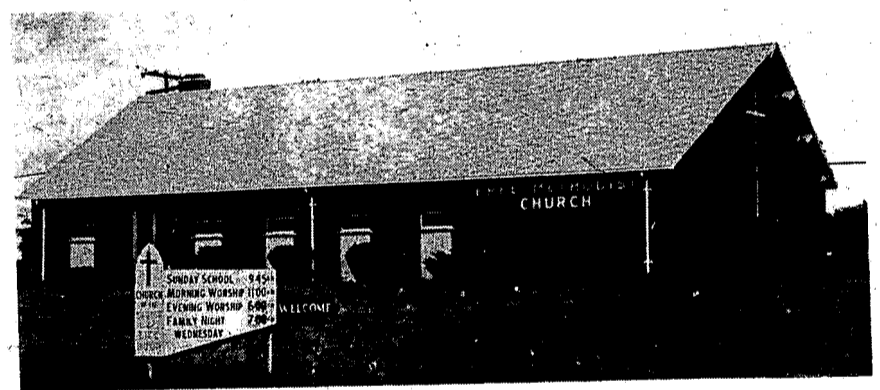

Throughout the New Testament, mission meant a passion to win men to Christ. Proclamation and witness resulted in men and women becoming disciples of Christ, and learn what He had commanded.

Mission in the New Testament was never proclamation for proclamation's sake, never indifferent to whether men obeyed or not. It was witness and proclamation so that men might believe.

Dr. Donald McGavran says, "Hence, it was also witness where men would become disciples - the church went where men could be won and there witnessed and preached the WORD that men might believe, become disciples, form churches of Christ and be found in them at the end."

Missions? It is soundly, and disturbingly Biblical!

"Buddy" enlistment

A new "Buddy" enlistment program which enables two, three or four friends to enlist in the Navy together and be assured of being assigned to the same duty station after completing basic training is now in effect.

According to Bill Erickson of Pontiac, the Navy's previous Buddy program only guaranteed assignment to the same basic training center and did not include future assignments.

"This new buddy system of enlistment will only pertain to those young men who enlist in the Navy's Seafarer/Airman program," said Bill Erickson.

The three year program does not contain a technical school guarantee, but gives the potential applicant the choice of four categories in which he receives on the job training and also choice of coast after completing basic training.

The four categories available are seaman, fireman, constructionman and airman.

"Friends desiring to be assigned together after basic training must enlist into the same categories," said Erickson.

You will find yourself able to do much more than you thought! The first step is usually the worst for this involves getting rid of the old finish. A finish remover, either for paint or for varnish, is usually the best answer to this problem. Simply follow the directions on the label!

Major archeology finds made in U.P.

Three major finds, linked to prehistoric Indians in the Upper Peninsula and 17th Century Indian and French occupations of Mackinac Straits area prior to the founding of Detroit in 1701, resulted from extensive archaeological digs and field surveys this summer by Michigan State University faculty and students.

The finds were:

— Copper-working tools, found in Ontonagon County of the Upper Peninsula, used by prehistoric Indians to shape the legendary Lake Superior copper at about 3500 B.C. about the time the pharaohs united Egypt's Upper and Lower Kingdoms and began building the pyramids.

— The ancient cellar at St. Ignace in which a priest said he had found in 1877 the remains of the famous Jesuit missionary and explorer Jacques Marquette, reportedly buried there by his Huron Indian parishioners in 1674.

— Evidences near the Marquette Mission site in St. Ignace of a large Huron Village shown on a 1684 map by the French explorer Baron DeLaHontan.

In addition to the major finds, the MSU crews on digs and field surveys found artifacts from the Archaic (1500 B.C.) and Late Woodland (600 to 1000 A.D.) prehistory eras, and additional 18th and 19th Century artifacts. The finds were made in Emmet, Antrim, Charlevoix, Leelanau, and Cheboygan counties, Mackinac Island, and in the waters of Lake Michigan just north of Fort Michilimackinac.

Dr. Charles E. Cleland, associate professor of anthropology and curator of anthropology at the MSU museum, led the field survey which found the ancient tools in the Copper Country. They also surveyed in four other counties.

Dr. Lyle M. Stone, who directed the archaeological digs and field surveys on both sides of the Mackinac Straits and on Mackinac Island, is an instructor in anthropology at MSU, an anthropology research assistant at the MSU Museum, and staff archaeologist for the Mackinac Island State Park Commission.

Others participating were MSU anthropology students and graduates, volunteers from the Michigan Archaeological Society, the Michilimackinac Historical Society of St. Ignace, staff members of the History Division of the Michigan Department of State, 12 Detroit members of the American Skin Drivers Association, and other individual volunteers.

Dr. Cleland said leads from Upper Peninsula residents led his crew of six persons to "dozens" of sites of prehistoric Indian mining pits in Ontonagon County, near Mass and Rockland east of the Ontonagon River.

They found three rounded cobble stones, varying in size from that of a potato to bigger than a football, which had been used to batter the raw copper found in the area. The cobbles had grooves around them, indicating they had been suspended for use.

Cleland gathered information on each site, in order that they can be placed on the National Register of Historic Sites, and so be preserved. Age of the stone tools was estimated by Cleland at 3500 B.C. to 1000 B.C.

Dr. Stone said the evidences found at the Marquette Mission site, north of St. Ignace on the north mainland of the Mackinac Straits, was the first firm evidence there of occupation by Indians and French in the 17th Century. The two restored forts, Fort Michilimackinac in Mackinaw City, and Fort Mackinac on Mackinac Island, are 18th Century reproductions.

"We have enough evidence now to warrant planing major restoration work, at and near the Marquette Mission site," he said. "I am confident we have found the ancient cellar in which Marquette was buried according the Jesuit missionary reports and a written record by the priest who dug up the bones in 1877. In addition, I believe we have found part of the old Huron Village which stood next to Marquette's mission."

Stone was aided at the straits by Dr. James Fitting, who acted as field survey director, and director of the mission dig, and who will join the Michigan History Division of the Michigan Department of State as staff archaeologist in September.

The Marquette site was almost completely excavated, Stone said. Three new wall trenches were found which appear to belong to a 17th Century structure. The finding of the basement appears to confirm the account of 1877 by Father Edward Jacker who wrote to a friend in New York. Jacker said he had acted on details in the "Jesuit Relations," now a multivolume account of the missionaries' work among the Indians, that Marquette's body had been moved in 1677 from present-day Ludington where he died in 1675 to his mission on the north side of Mackinac Straits.

Jacker had found two bones and a fellow worker had found about 30 more in the ancient cellar.

Also at the mission site, Stone said, they found a complete wine bottle, handblown and dark green of about six inches at its widest and seven to eight inches tall, in European style. Rarely is an old bottle found intact. The one found compares with the 1660-1680 ones which have been found in colonial sites in the eastern United States.

Also found were beads which predate those found in the Lasanen Site burial pit finds of 1967 south of St. Ignace, and any found in the Fort Michilimackinac excavations on the south mainland. The French military moved their fort from the north mainland to the south mainland in 1715.

Most of the pewter porringer, about four inches in diameter, with writing and drawing on the inside, also was found.

Evidences of structures were the three new wall trenches of what appears to have been a 17th Century structure, and the Marquette burial basement.

The other major find in the St. Ignace area, Stone said, is what "seems to be the outer walls of a part of the old Huron Village."

Midway through the summer they found the start of two walls which cornered. They followed one along 65 to 70 feet without coming to another turn, and the second they followed about 40 feet without reaching a turn.

"We found a double row of posts, two to three inches in diameter, as the wall structures," he said. "It is probable that they wove materials between the two rows to create their walls."

Time and money constraints prohibited the further digging of the Huron Village structure, but it is expected the work will resume next summer.

Artifacts found there were early historic Indian pottery, flint chippings, arrowheads, projectile points, and a trash pit full of fish bones. Only limited disturbance from subsequent occupations were found, and not enough to create serious problems in archaeological examination.

The 17th Century map of present-day St. Ignace, done by the French explorer de LaHontan, showed a French Village, the Jesuits' House, the Huron Village, the Fields of the Savages, a Village of the Ottawas.

Father Claude Dabon spent the winter of 1670-71 on Mackinac Island, in what was the first recorded missionary visit to the area. Marquette following in the spring of 1671 and settled first on the island, re-establishing his parish at a new mission in St. Ignace later that year.

In 1673 Marquette and Juliet began from St. Ignace their exploratory voyage through the northern portion of the Mississippi River drainage system, Marquette died en route home in 1675.

The Michilimackinac Historical Society of St. Ignace has been hopeful over the years that firm evidence of Marquette's burial there could be confirmed.

In 1689, the French erected Fort de Buade at what is now St. Ignace. In 1695, Antonie de LaMothe Cadillac became commandant, but abandoned the fort in 1698, and moved to today's Detroit, there establishing Fort Pontchartrain in 1701. The Jesuits, abandoned by the Indians, burned their mission and returned to Montreal. The French re-established their fort at the straits about 1715, but on the south mainland. The British took over the fort in 1761 and moved to Mackinac Island in 1780 in the early days of the American Revolution.

It's not often that a girl gets to give a ribbon to her own horse at a show. That's what Lynn Race, 10000 Allen Road, did this past week at the Michigan State Fair. They took third prize and Lynn, as Michigan Appaloosa Queen for 1972, presented the ribbon.

Regatta attracts 32

Brooks Bennett in a Grog easily captured first place with a 20-yard lead in the Labor Day Regatta on Deer Lake, but the race for second was close.

Malcolm MacDougall with Annie Doremus crewing in a Lazer edged out by a foot the Sizzler captained by Vince Luzi and crewed by Scott Luzi.

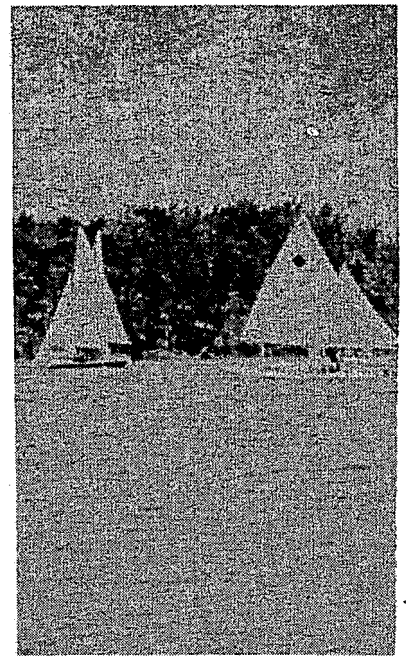

Coming in fourth and fifth were Dave Richards and Kathy Guise in a Cooperhead and Bill and Jim Falandau in a Sunfish.

All five top finishers received cameras from Ed Farrell of the Deer Lake Beach Property Owners' Association.

Thirty-two boats took part Monday under ideal conditions. The wind was 10 m.p.h. out of the northeast. Bigger boats started at the beach while the single sail flatboard boats started from MacDougall's dock.

At 11:30 a.m. sharp, Mary Alice MacDougall rang the big train bell on top of the MacDougall house signaling the boats to start.

The sailing group's last race of the season will be October 1.

Sails, ho! The Labor Day Regatta drew 32 entries. More pictures will be included in next week's paper.

$6.25 million paid for used bottles

More than 1.25 billion waste glass containers were reclaimed and recycled by the nation's bottle makers during the first two years of a glass industry campaign. In Independence Township, Bottles for Building has collected 1,515,000 containers.

According to Leif Oxaal, president of the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, (GCM) the bottle buy-back program yielded more than 880 million containers in the year ended June 30, 1972 - a gain of some 238 percent over the previous year's total of 370 million.

In Michigan, 23.9 million old bottles and jars worth $120,000, were recycled in the first six months of 1972. Independence efforts equal 6 percent of the total state effort.

"Since our recycling campaign was launched on an industry-wide basis on July 1, 1970, member companies of the Institute have paid more than $6.25 million to countless citizens for used bottles and jars that otherwise would have entered the solid waste or litter streams," Oxaal said.

Nearly 100 GCM member company plants in 25 states are paying approximately a penny a pound for waste glass turned in by the public.

The independent view

by Jean Saile

The parade, as usual, was great. Three churches represented this year. Lots of kids in costume. Cars prohibited from parking on Main Street, but the crowd surged into the street anyhow. Among the many fire departments represented, Tri-City from the Keego-Orchard Lake area was missing. They had an ill-timed house fire. Two clean garbage trucks produced some ohs and ahs. Lots of entries - 52 the judges said - clowns, floats, politics, kids, horses, unicycles, and of course, the bands. But . . . nobody followed the horses to clean up the mess.

The only Saile in the dunk tank turned out to be 11-year-old Peter who substituted for his chicken mother. It's okay. I took three shots at him and dunked him twice.

Springfield firemen doused Independence men to take first place in the water fight Monday. Independence managed to hold onto second place with a late-arriving Tri-City department capturing third.

Holly firewomen doused the Independence gals in a sequel match.

Over 400 creative examples of needlepoint and crewel can be viewed at Meadow Brook Hall, located on the campus of Oakland University, Rochester, Mich., the afternoons of Sept. 12-14.

A local resident who has submitted an entry for the "Needlepoint and Crewel Exhibit" is Mrs. James W. Schultz, 49 S. Holcomb.

Exhibit tickets, which include a tour of the 100-room Tudor mansion, will be sold at the door. This special event is to raise funds for the maintenance of the hall, one of America's great homes. For information call 313-377-3140.

Busing may not be the issue it has been heralded to be in the Pontiac race for the State House of Representatives. Charlie Harrison, Democrat candidate who upset incumbent Arthur Law - an avowed opponent of busing, is black. His competition in November is Jim Briney, once a Clarkston News columnist.

Briney's expressed view is, "Should the situation come about that the Legislature is forced to vote on a measure to provide money for busing . . . I will not vote to spend your tax money on buses. Nor will I vote to appropriate additional tax dollars for educational facilities, while perfectly good schools are shut down in my district." Other than that his approach is hands off.

Whether Law will gain enough support through his anti-busing stand to succeed as a write-in candidate is another question.

All anti-busers are invited to a Waterford NAG sponsored rally honoring State Rep. Arthur Law of Pontiac at 1 p.m. September 10 in Pontiac's Hawthorne Park. About 5,000 are expected, according to NAG spokesmen.

Bob Garner says he has proof that he wasn't responsible for the lone write-in vote accorded him for constable during the August 8 primary. That vote was cast in Precinct 3 according to Bob, and he and his family vote in Precinct 2. He'd kind of like to know who his admirer is.

London, Ky. Sentinel-Echo: "If the size of a dollar bill had been decreasing commensurate with its value since 1930, it would be about as large as a calling card now, and at its present rate of decreasing, by 1980 it would be about the size of a postage stamp."

BLOOD DONORS

Blood given by volunteers actually is safer, according to a recent study by the National Institutes of Health. Investigators found more than half the patients who receive blood from a commercial source during open-heart surgery develop hepatitis.

The disease didn't occur in any patient who received blood from volunteer donors, during this three-year study.

"We couldn't identify any factor which contributed to this difference, other than the source of blood, which probably reflects differences in donor populations," the NIH team said. Those who sell their blood are often transients (including skidrow bums) who might lie or be ignorant about having had hepatitis.

Most of those with the virus-caused disease can't be excluded by the screening tests now available to blood banks. If the hepatitis is transmitted, it can be treated (90% of the patients recover) but mild symptoms may persist for a year or more. In a few cases, there can be liver damage.

There is a constant need for volunteer blood donors in all U.S. hospitals, the NIH said, because of new and more complex surgical techniques. But don't be surprised if you are questioned closely about your medical history.

Birth rates going down

Although the number of women in the child-bearing ages is still increasing substantially, the number of births has decreased significantly since 1970.

If the pattern observed for the first five months of 1972 continues at the same rate of decrease, we can anticipate that resident live births for 1972 will number less than 146,000, the lowest figure recorded since 1946.

A number of interrelated factors are believed to be influencing this precipitous drop in births.

These include increased availability, acceptance and utilization of family planning methods; delayed marriage and child-bearing among the younger population as a result of the "new non-committant life-styles;" family decisions either of a social or ethical nature to limit the number of children; and the growing economic burden of having and caring for children.

It may be realistic to surmise that the general population may someday approach the "replacement level" of growth. If the present trend continues in this direction, a number of studies would certainly be in order to determine the potential long-range impacts on our society and also to assist in short-range planning in the areas of education, employment, housing and medical care.

THE NEXT REGULAR MEETING OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION OF THE CLARKSTON SCHOOL DISTRICT WILL BE MONDAY, SEPT. 11, AT 8 P.M. AT THE BOARD OFFICE, 6389 CLARKSTON ROAD.

Strong Wolves team expected

by Craig Moore

In drilling and practicing for the up and coming 1972 football season, coach Rob White of the Clarkston Varsity Wolves has realized the potential of many of his players.

The Wolves have been drilling twice daily in pads, going through new plays and simply learning to work together as a team.

Clarkston has a strong team this year with 15 returning lettermen which include the following seniors: Greg Swanson at quarterback, Bill Hamilton playing fullback, split ends Greg Becker and Fred Willocyx, center Tim Hinkley, guards Craig Walters, Greg Fogg and Bob Wylie, tackles Steve Ogans and Dave Foster, defensive line-backer Steve Graham, Dave Partlo at tailback and monsterback Brian Gerber.

Returning juniors include Ken Foster at quarterback and wingback Kent Thorn.

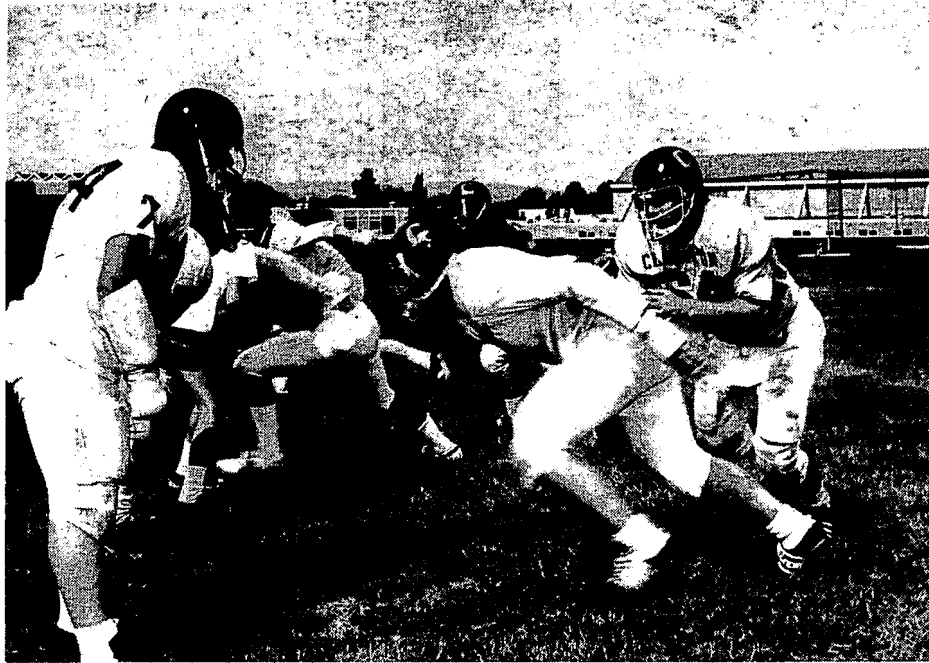

Coach White commented that the team as a whole is doing a fine job that everyone shows good spirit but cited the following seniors for outstanding work: Bill Hamilton, Dave Partlo, Greg Swanson, Tim Hinkley, Craig Walters, Dave Foster, Larry Miracle, Steve Ogans, Greg Fogg and Greg Becker.

Juniors Tom Anderson, Chuck Jorgenson, Dave Whitehead and Mike Dennis were termed outstanding in defensive and offensive work by White, although they lack any previous Varsity experience.

Coach White was also impressed with sophomores Tim Daugherty and Mark Blumeneau who show fine potential.

Preparing the team for the season opener with Oxford, White commented, "We are encouraged by the overall team attitude thus far."

The season opener with Oxford is scheduled for September 15 on the Clarkston gridiron.

Varsity football players are getting whipped into shape on the hill behind the high school. They're getting in shape for the season opener at 8 p.m. September 15 against Oxford. The game will be played at Clarkston.

SPORTS
Go-Round

by Jerry Savoie

There's one newspaper in the world that views sports happenings with a difference. The IRISH TIMES, on the defeat of Nijinsky in the Arc de Triomphe, wrote, "To many Irish watchers at home, as well as those in Paris, the shock was like a convulsion of nature and most emphatically a national disaster. Not since the death of Cuchulain (a legendary Irish hero), perhaps, has there been such a romantic tragedy." Now, if all the world viewed sport in this way, would there be time for fighting?

Snowmobile guides available

Snowmobile enthusiasts from the 61st district may now obtain copies of the 1972 Snowmobile Guide by writing their state representative, Loren Anderson (R-Waterford).

Representative Anderson said today he had a limited supply of the guides prepared by the Department of Natural Resources. The 16-page booklet contains excerpts from the snowmobile law, a listing of State Forest snowmobile trails and State Parks open to snowmobilers, and some safety tips.

Anderson said he hoped snowmobilers would take advantage of the availability of this publication, by dropping him a note requesting a copy. Letters should be addressed to Anderson at the State Capitol, Lansing, Michigan 48901.

State aid due

Clarkston School District is due to receive $578,170 in state aid October 1. Further payments will be made December 1, February 1, April 1 and June 1, according to State Rep. Loren Anderson, R-Waterford.

Midget gridders plan candy sale

Over one thousand midget gridders and 250 cheerleaders in six suburban communities of Lakeland, Troy, Clawson, Walled Lake, Madison Heights and Independence Township, are planning to kick off the fall season with a massive door-to-door candy sale.

Purpose of the giant sale is to raise funds to purchase equipment and pay costs of the Suburban Midget Football Conference. Boys nine through twelve participate in this program, a football equivalent to baseball's Little League.

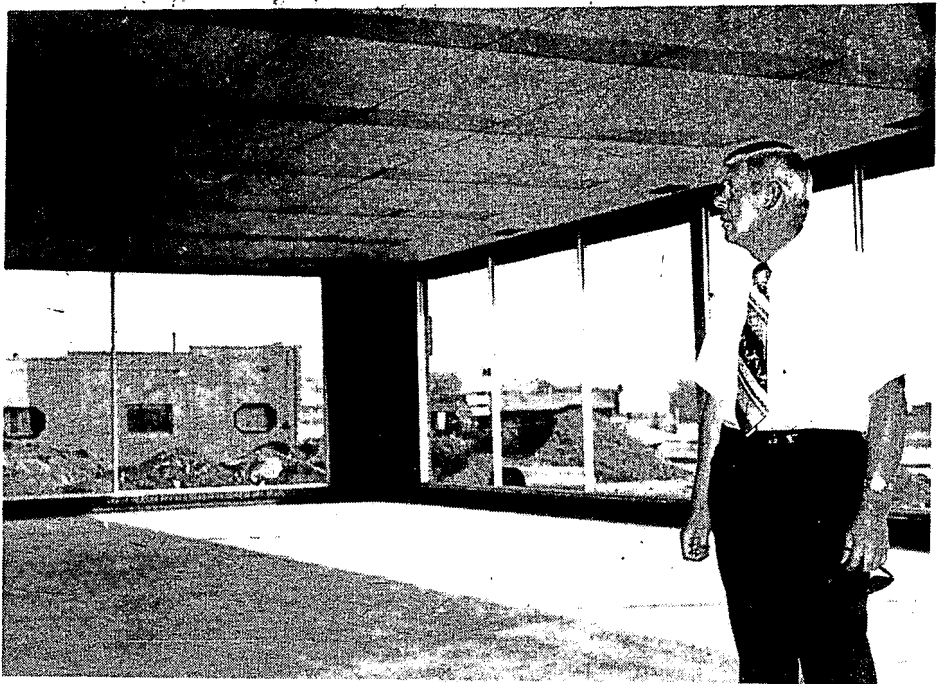

Arrangements have been made with the Heath Candy Company of Robinson, Illinois, to sell 98,000 one-dollar boxes of English toffee candy in a five-week campaign beginning September 13th.

A successful campaign will assure participation of every boy in all the units of the Suburban Midget Football Conference. There are three teams of 40 boys each to a unit.

It may be freshman football, but it's for real. Clarkston Junior High ninth graders put spirit into early practice in session at the junior high field.

Some idea of the expanse of the new Rademacher Chevrolet dealership is depicted as Tom Rademacher, owner, surveys a yet unfinished showroom. The new dealership at the corner of M-15 and Dixie was to be in use by the end of this week. While Rademacher sells Chevrolets, his new dealership—one of the big ones in the country—might be classified more as one of the luxury car showpieces. The garage even has an express lane for people with minor car troubles, and phones from each mechanic's stall to insure prompt parts service. The parts room, alone, in the new building is equal to the complete size of the old Rademacher establishment. Rademacher said the utmost safety precautions have been built into the new facility.

Health society warns smokers of emphysema

One cigarette upsets the flow of air and blood in your lungs. Years of smoking can cause emphysema. And in the last decade, deaths from emphysema almost tripled in this country.

To investigate the relationship of smoking and emphysema, two prominent researchers - Dr. Oscar Auerbach and E. Cuyler Hammond - studied whole-lung sections from autopsies of 1800 men and women. Then they checked the lungs for the degree of emphysema that might be present. Later they found out from relatives the smoking habits of the dead persons.

Smoking habits correlate very closely with the extent of emphysema in the lungs.

Of the persons who had never smoked regularly, 90 percent had no emphysema at all. The air sacs, where oxygen and carbon dioxide are exchanged, were not damaged and torn. The walls of the small blood vessels around the air sacs were not abnormally thickened. In contrast, of the persons who smoked 20 or more cigarettes a day for years, 99 percent had some degree of emphysema. And twenty percent of these smokers had advanced emphysema. Their lungs looked lacy, dotted with holes where thousands of air sacs had ruptured and broken. Among persons with the same smoking habits, the degree of emphysema in their lungs increased with age and the number of years they had smoked cigarettes.

Other studies cited by the U.S. Surgeon General show the chances of dying from emphysema are 25 times greater for people who smoke two packs a day than for nonsmokers.

Find out more ways to quit smoking from your TB and Health Society serving Wayne and Oakland counties. It's a matter of life and breath.
