It's no Shamrock, but Jean Wilson, secretary at Andersonville School, is sporting the green. A tomato seedling, grown "with amazing hydroponics," the seed packet says, is supposed to reach 10-15 feet in height. Jean has the big pot she'll move it into, and maintenance man Bill Miller has already constructed the first of a series of trellises. She says she'll call us back when it reaches maturity. Meantime she's enduring a fair amount of kidding about her "space age plant."

Young drinking drivers hike accident rate

There were 35 more people killed in 1972 by 18-20-year-old drinking drivers than there were in 1971, according to Col. John R. Plants, director of the Michigan State Police.

He said injuries were up 92 percent concerning drivers in that drinking and age category.

Plants went on to say the total number of drivers involved in injury accidents is up 26 percent while the number of 18-20 year old drivers who have been drinking have been involved in 14 percent more injury accidents.

Plants said attempts to correct the situation include an increased emphasis on apprehending drunk drivers, but he reported, "We're running into some problems in the prosecution and the court areas in this endeavor."

He added, "In 1972 we arrested 32 percent more people for drunk driving than we did in 1971, but we convicted only 22 percent more and we convicted 27 percent of a lesser offense, while nearly 60 percent were acquitted."

He summarized, "One thing that indicates to me is that the courts and the prosecution are not as concerned about drunk driving as we are in the police field."

"If four or five people are located who have died from an overdose of drugs there is a great hue and cry. But now that 35 more people are killed and 2,800 injured, I don't expect there to be much of a hue raised about that."

Impact study ordered for Deer Lake

Ed Farrell, president of the Deer Lake Property Owners Association, was pleased with the Planning Commission's decision to request environmental impact studies before approving any site plans for development at the north end of Deer Lake.

Griffin strikes at "quad" usage

U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich) has urged the Food and Drug Administration to take "prompt and effective action" to regulate Methaqualone—a drug "that is rapidly becoming the favorite vehicle for youthful drug

No surprises

Fifty-four village residents took the trouble to vote yesterday in the annual village election. There were no surprises; there were just enough candidates for the offices available.

Bruce Rogers, seeking reelection to a one-year unexpired term as clerk, and Artemus Pappas, who sought a one-year unexpired term as treasurer, each received the full count of 54 votes.

Neil D. Granlund, seeking reelection to fill a one-year unexpired term as trustee received 50 votes. Trustees seeking election for two year terms garnered votes as follows: Michael E. Thayer, 49; James W. Schultz, 52; and Lucia Wilford, 49.

seekers new psychic experiences."

Griffin, the Senate's Minority Whip, said the indiscriminate use of the drug is "laden with hazards often unknown to the user."

In the three-year period from July, 1969, through July, 1972, only two cases were reported which involved the drug, Griffin said.

A flurry of drug incidents allegedly involving Methaqualone were reported in December at Clarkston High School.

In a letter to Dr. Charles C. Edwards, FDA Commissioner, Griffin said, "Stringent and forceful regulations in the use and distribution of Methaqualone are needed to avoid further wide-spread abuse."

Griffin said the drug is a potential threat to thousands of Americans since it is often described "as a sleeping pill."

"Prompt and effective action by your department will be of great value, in protecting society from this potential menace," Griffin added.

The Michigan Republican noted that the drug can lead to addiction.

Developer Hubert Garner of Farmington is going to have to pay for an environmental impact study if he wants site plan approval for the construction of 270 apartments on 43 acres at the north end of Deer Lake.

Another study will be undertaken by the township at the same time in an effort at cross checking, it was determined by the Independence Township Planning Commission Thursday night.

Dr. Victor Schrem, Garner's planning consultant, described the property in question as having 935 frontage on I-75, with a service road extending out to the Dixie Highway.

He proposed 144 one bedroom and 126 two bedroom renting units, with a total of 540 parking spaces, the units to be of two-and-a-half story construction—some of them set into a ridge in the area and the rest back-to-back near I-75.

He said the bulk of development is close to I-75, leaving the area around Deer Lake open.

He added it was unresolved whether any dockage facility would be provided on the lake, however admitted later that a community house in one set of plans presented could be used as a water front facility.

Sewers, he proposed, would be extended nearly a mile from Holcomb Road through the lowest points of land to service the area. Density would be about six units per acre, he said.

Joe Galvin, attorney for Garner, took exception to planning commission members' questions regarding contemplated development of the rest of the area, contending that the only question for determination was site plan approval for the 43-acre parcel, zoned

Dairy closed

Doc Richardson, owner of Richardson's Farm Dairy Ice Cream and Coffee Shop in downtown Clarkston, said the business has been closed while it is up for sale.

"If it's not sold, we'd like to open again about May 1," Richardson said. Problems with help have been the main cause of the shutdown, he said.

multiple about five years ago.

At one point township Trustee Keith Humbert told Galvin, "If you want to answer our questions, okay. If not, you can walk out that door and not come back."

Previously the developers had presented plans for full scale development of 372 acres in the area, which Garner says he has an option to purchase. The transaction will reportedly depend on the rezoning of other parcels from agriculture to multiple in accordance with Garner's stated plans of putting about 1,500 units on the land.

About 40 residents of the area were in the audience, echoing the feelings of one man who said, "Once they get their foot in the door, they'll get all the way in."

Others, including Mrs. Carol McNally, expressed fear of extended silting problems from run-off of the newly-worked land.

Planner Larry Burkhart contended that the proposed density of six units per acre would result in 1,860 units, including single family, being placed on the property.

He proposed because of a possible "massive effect on the life and usability of Deer Lake" that the environmental study be required, and that it also take into consideration the effect on traffic through Clarkston streets.

The recommendations were unanimously approved.

Ice fisherman saved from Whipple Lake

B. L. Ball of 9376 Sashabaw is grateful for the Independence Township Fire Department.

While ice fishing last Tuesday, he sank through the ice of Whipple Lake and managed to hang onto the edge for about a half hour until a dozen firemen, using ladders, ropes and boats managed to rescue him from the cold water.

Fire-Chief Frank Ronk said the ice where Ball broke through varied up to six inches in depth. He said the water in that area, about 200 feet from shore, is about 30 feet deep.

Ball's plight was phoned to the department by a neighbor, Pat Nichols.

Investigation promised for high school policies

An agitated mother, who has since placed her daughter in a private school in Cleveland, Ohio, because of drug involvement, recited to the Board of Education Monday night four months of trying to get the girl counseling for her problems at and through Clarkston High School.

She said absolutely nothing was done until the girl and three friends ran away from home and were picked up three days later in Georgia. Then, she said, was when the first breakthrough was made.

The mother, who is employed by another school system, questioned the high school's absence policy, contending she'd been told via a deficiency slip her daughter had attended one class only three times during a marking period.

She said the school had not contacted her during that period to let her know what was happening.

The mother also quizzed officials about its policy of letting other non-Clarkston High School students into the building, and the policing of the four lavatories where smoking is permitted.

She contended some students stay in the lavatories for as long as two and three hours at a time, missing class.

Her complaint to board members will result in a thorough investigation of school practices, she was told.

Superintendent L. R. Greene recited some of the difficulties of keeping track of all students in a school with 1,500 enrollment and where not everyone knows everyone.

He said parents aren't always contacted when students appear drunk or high at games or dances after games, because in some cases the chaperones are unable to identify the student.

"Yes, there is a drug problem at the high school," he said. "Also, in the junior high, and I assume the elementary school. We had special agents in the high school at one time. We have apprehended and dismissed several students for their involvement in drugs. At one time we even had a sniffer dog to locate drugs in the lockers."

"Yet, no way do we control it, nor at this point does anyone else," he said. "We work at it diligently, spend a lot of time."

He added counselors are unable to help a student who doesn't want counseling, however the mother affirmed that her daughter had really sought help. "It was the red tape that had turned her off," she said.

He also said that high school officials are cracking down on the new attendance policy initiated last fall. While students do not now need excuses for absences, they are apt to be the subject of parental calls at any time a teacher becomes concerned about their absence, Dr. Greene said.

He said the policy is designed to put the responsibility for school attendance on the student.

Greene also told the story about one youth apprehended for selling drugs. The matter became a court case, the youth was placed on probation, and the first thing the social worker wanted was to have him readmitted to school. Greene said. He noted the request had been refused.

Inflation and jobs

by Cathy Lessard

Rising food prices, unemployment, higher taxes. How many times have we said to ourselves, "Why doesn't Nixon do something about it?" or "why doesn't Milliken do something?" Unfortunately, these kinds of problems are so complicated with so many factors affecting them that it's nearly impossible for one man to shape their development.

Take unemployment in the State of Michigan for example. Who would believe that those who have work may actually be contributing to the unemployment problem through their demands for better working conditions, higher wages and better and better benefits. Well, it appears that in a way this may be true.

Michigan, probably the leading "labor" state could be on the verge of becoming an "industrial wasteland." And you can be sure of one thing, if we don't have industry we're definitely going to be hurting for jobs.

Perhaps you were already aware of the studies that have been done recently which reflect adversely upon the state as a place to locate a business or expand existing operations. A recent Michigan Department of Commerce survey of 54 firms indicates that 31 would not expand in Michigan again and 29 would not locate in the state if they had the opportunity to begin anew. Similarly, a Detroit-based study reveals that more than one-third of the firms surveyed in the metropolitan area would be leaving Michigan within the next five years.

Actually, some of Michigan's unemployment compensation laws and other labor-oriented legislation are only a small portion of the total "anti-business climate" in Michigan. Adding to the problem are higher taxes, lower financial incentives and tougher pollution laws than in many other states.

Consequently, a comprehensive program is under way not only in the Governor's office, but in the House Republican Caucus to isolate some of the major problems and begin making proposals to correct them. "Economic development" is the key phrase and one that you will likely be hearing very often in the coming months as the legislature and the Governor attempt to improve Michigan's "business climate."

A U.S. Department of Commerce survey completed in May, 1972, compares laws in Michigan dealing with industry with those in other states. The study revealed among other things that Michigan ranks 49th among the states in total financial incentives offered. Financial incentives include such things as state and local bonds, the funds from which are used to acquire industrial facilities for the purpose of leasing them to industrial and manufacturing firms; direct loans, and loan guarantees. 48 of the 50 states offer better incentives than Michigan.

On the other hand, the Citizens Research Council reports that among the leading 11 industrial states, Michigan ranks second highest in total state and local taxes imposed upon corporations. Taxes in such major manufacturing competitors as Illinois, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Delaware are more than 35% lower than in Michigan. Michigan ranks slightly more favorably in tax incentives than in financial incentives compared to other states.

Finally, while Michigan is probably the leading state in environmental legislation, we must also realize that at the time this is affecting business adversely, and there are many states doing more to help ease this burden in Michigan.

It was the only U.S. Gold Medal in the 1964 Winter Olympics.

And then, coming back after a three year retirement, he captured a silver medal in the same event in 1968 at Grenoble, France.

Presently living in Birmingham, McDermott is a member of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Also on the program will be a film on speed skating and music by Mary Lou Sanderson.

Those working to make the banquet possible are Betty Kratt, Carol Lippincott, Bev Walters, Elaine Peterson, Karen Graves, Dena Kent, Nancy Brancheau, George Tuson, Cheryl Phelps and Howard Phelps.

One for the local boys

The big-time operators came into Independence Township Thursday night, rude and disdainful to answer some questions about their proposed development of the north end of Deer Lake.

Joe Galvin, attorney for Hubert Garner of Farmington who has an option on 372 acres in the area, set the tone early. He told the Township Planning Commission what its job was and implied it was none of the members' business what was going to happen to any of the acreage except for the 43 being considered for apartments.

And yet, on the other hand, service roads needed to get to the parcel — even a well to serve the area — were located without the property in question. That was lightly brushed over.

It appeared to be a case of trying to ram something down local throats — as rudely as possible.

It's nice to be able to feel proud of your local officials, and their handling of the affair was commendable.

Somebody ought to tell Mr. Galvin you catch more flies with honey than vinegar.

Charge it!

It may be the spring break up of roads, or it might be the news that in Alabama they're reducing bus fare to 15 cents to lure the populace to public transportation, but it strikes us one of the biggest selling points for public transportation is being overlooked.

What we need in this day and age of credit cards and bank checks is a riding charge plate, the bill to be sent at the end of the month.

It might even give the bus some status again.

Letters to the Editor

Firefighters galore

Dear editor,

What were 44 firefighters doing in beautiful downtown Clarkston last Monday around 8:15 p.m.? Why was the Royal Oak Chief there? Why were there at least six trucks on the scene? I thought the whole town was going up in smoke . . .

Anonymous

Editor's note: Never has a camper mattress had so much attention. It was Wednesday, not Monday, and what is believed to have been a burning cigarette ignited a mattress in Kelly Burnett's camping trailer parked at his home, 74 East Washington. Wednesday night being fire class for men of the department and men of the surrounding departments as well, there were plenty of able bodied men on the scene.

They left the Sashabaw-Clarkston station and poured en masse into town. Moral of the story: If you're going to have a fire, try to pick Wednesday night. Second moral: Damage to the camper was estimated at $450.

thank you

Dear Editor,

I would like to thank the very nice boys at the Richardson Dairy store for catching our runaway dog last Tuesday night.

It's a pistol

If I ever shoot some guy who bugs me, the first question I'll ask myself, as I step over the dead body, is this:

If I hadn't had a gun, would I have bitten him to death?

This is an important question, as any member of the National Rifle Assc can tell you.

Everytime someone shoots a big shot, such as Bobby Kennedy or George Wallace, there arises a great wall for gun controls. And then, quick as an echo, the gun people answer:

"Guns don't kill people, people do. If the murderer hadn't had a gun, he would have stabbed the guy to death with his swizzle stick."

Certainly.

There is an interesting paradox in the gun controversy. Most lawmen, especially in big cities where the blood spurts regularly, are strongly in favor of gun controls. And their strongest opposition comes from law 'n order people who usually wear love notes to cops on their bumpers.

I have a friend who automatically snarls "Love It or Leave It" everytime he sees a boy with long hair. Naturally, I call him Archie. He thinks all policemen are marvelous people. It's not their fault the commie judges turn all the crooks free.

But Archie owns 12 pistols. He has them stashed, always loaded, all over his home. These handguns have only 1 purpose — self defense. Archie uses rifles and shotguns to kill animals. The pistols are for killing any unwelcome person who might invade Archie's castle. He also

The bobby sox kid

by Jean Saile

Bobby sox are back.

And what memories that invokes — girdleless, carefree days, skirts that came down almost to the ankles, saddle shoes, wars that were winnable, high school potluck clubs, baggy jeans rolled to the calves, Sloppy Joe sweaters, sweaters we wore backwards so the buttons ran up the back.

Even horses. Those were the days — when torn between two loves — I received the terse note from my journalism teacher. "Remember, journalism is more important than horses," it read.

It didn't deter. Somewhere in the attic is the blue ribbon for the "Gallant Bess" parade through Saginaw. I can't remember the movie which the parade was supposed to herald, but I remember a gallant side-stepping big bay who pranced to the band music all the way through town.

And sock hops Friday night in the gym. Sitting talking to your girlfriends with one eye peeled for a current "flame". Dancing — waltzes, fox trots, the boogie woogie, the double shuffle.

Bicycling through the cemetery with your very best friend. There's no place like a cemetery to ride bicycles — quiet, winding roads, little traffic, birds singing, time for thinking and great plans.

The first job — typing abstracts all day long in an enclosed office. I lasted two weeks, and ended it with a sunburn from a get-away weekend so severe I took to bed for four days.

And connecting later with a bona fide newspaper. The society editor telling me that despite my young and tender years, she considered the city room no place for bobby sox.

No place for bobby sox! They set the whole tenor of my life!

I ignored her — to a degree.

And now they're coming back — in high fashion — at $45 a pair yet, for heaven's sake. It'll never be the same.

Bobby sox were not for style. Bobby sox were to make your ankles look as thick as possible. The bigger the roll, the better.

White always — none of the fancy stripes or patterns the fashion moguls are trying to push now. Pure white, to go with the scuffed and dirty saddle shoes that were a mark that one "was living." Or penny loafers — a penny stuck always in the shoe — mad money.

Wonderful days.

One of this nation's hardest-nosed cops is Detroit Police Commissioner Nichols. He is one of Archie's biggest heroes, ranking right up there with Spiro Agnew and John Wayne. But everytime a policeman is gunned down in Detroit, Nichols renews his fervent plea for a ban on handguns.

"Hey, Archie," I tell him, "Commissioner Nichols wants your pistols."

"He don't mean me. He means the crooks who go around robbing and shooting people," Archie says.

"He means you, Arch. Nichols says most shootings result from family arguments. The husband gets drunk and shoots up his family. If he didn't keep a gun under his pillow, he'd just sock them around. Everyone would be sore the next morning, but they'd be alive. It should be against the law for anyone except a cop to own a handgun."

"That's crazy," says Archie. "What about that Detroit judge, James DelRio, he carries a pistol under his robe and he even has some cops stationed in his courtroom."

"Watch it, Archie. Now you're on the Judge's side and against the police commissioner. You are being a traitor to your bumper stickers."

"I don't care," says Archie, "if anyone wants to take my guns away, they'll have to do it over my dead body."

Yeah.

Printing machinery has always been my hangup. In some cases my anxiety to update equipment has cost me thousands of dollars. I excused the loss some years ago by saying I just didn't have time to think.

"I'm too busy doing things wrong to learn how to do 'em right," was one saying. "We never have time to do it right, but always have time to do it over," was another.

Now we think hard before making the wrong purchases.

One thing I have been guilty of is having blind confidence in large companies. For instance, I wouldn't question IBM or Xerox. Their reputations and stock value put them above reproach.

Well, I question them now. That doesn't mean I won't deal with them, but they will be questioned for what is not said, and it will be put in writing.

We put in a Xerox 914 copying machine a few months ago. It does a fine job. It may even be making money for us. So, I should probably be happy.

But one thing keeps gnawing at me. A visitor to the plant said, "Oh you have one of those 914's. I worked one years ago, before they quit making them."

The point was never mentioned by the salesman that I would be getting an obsolete machine. When

I mentioned it to him a few weeks ago, he admitted they were out of production. "But, I, myself, not speaking for the company, would rather have this machine that has been reconditioned, than a new one."

The machine is leased and Xerox maintains it (that's in the lease price), and we'll keep the machine. However, the salesman could have smooth tongued his way through this point during the sale.

I have a different objection to IBM. We leased $10,000 worth of typesetters four-and-a-half years ago. Under the lease-maintenance agreement we signed we have paid $17,000.00 to IBM.

Recently, one of their representatives commented we should be thinking about getting new equipment, that he wouldn't be able to keep these machines running forever.

Later other representatives of IBM both confirmed and denied the first man's statement.

In the meantime, an IBM salesman suggested we purchase the four-and-a-half year old equipment. The price... $10,000, including interest.

Then I learned from another newspaper man that this equipment, like the 914, is no longer in production.

This particular newspaper publisher has $32,000 worth of IBM's like ours and has been offered $3,600.00 on trade. His, too, are four-and-a-half years old.

It's unbelievable.

Anyway, Friday the IBMs will be removed from our plant. We replaced one typesetting piece (the IBM) with two other pieces (Compwriters) and they cost less. They are also just as fast and do a clearer job.

I'm the same guy who has trouble with his Ford van, it leaks water where there is no hole, and a Pontiac that wasn't equipped with a grease fitting at the factory.

I'm still making bad buys, but I do think about them more.

Tell it to Bob

by Bob Brumbach

Clarkston Schools Special Services Director

I recently read an article in which some interesting statistics were related regarding teenage marriage failures. It seems that 3 out of every 4 divorces end first marriages—usually a teen couple. The most frequent factor in determining marriage for these couples was pregnancy.

There were many other statistics quoted but they all generally pointed to the fact that to marry at a young age places you at a high divorce risk. It seems that both adults and teenagers have been quoting this fact for many years while the divorce statistics continue to rise.

Maybe the reasons given by some experts for modern marriage problems offer some insights for us to study. They quite possibly might be leaving out some important factors also.

The article I read quoted an Indiana professor who felt that there are four dominating factors in teen marriage problems: our affluent society, women's emancipation, immaturity and boredom. The professor feels that it is a natural part of our society to change things — jobs, homes, locations, and spouses. He also feels that girls are less likely now to hold onto an unsatisfactory mate. Many experts agree with the professor that unrealistic ideas about marriage contribute heavily to divorce.

I have to agree that all of these are probably factors that influence the teen divorce rate. But they are all reasons for why the marriage fails, not reasons why poor marriage occurred. If our society is encouraging bad marriages then maybe it would be healthier if our divorce rate is higher.

When I read that almost half of the married 18 and 19 year olds were pregnant when married, that almost half of unmarried American girls under 19 have had sexual relations and that most teenagers involved in sexual intercourse do not use any contraceptives — I reach the conclusion that there is a force that encourages bad marriages to occur for sexual reasons. That force seems to be the attitude of parents when confronted with an unmarried pregnant daughter. The parents of unmarried fathers reflect a similar attitude but may not be as forceful in pushing for marriage. This is an attitude that says, "make the situation right." "You have to give the child a name; or if you are going to be bad, then you must be responsible for your actions and get married."

If we are going to reverse the teen divorce trend, we have to accept that young adults are not having sexual involvement out of mature love and they are going to continue to do this if they choose. I'm not saying it is right or wrong — only that it is a fact. If we are going to punish by encouraging bad marriages, we are being just as emotional and undisciplined as the unmarried prospective parents.

It is easy for adults to say that teenagers should not be involved sexually anyway — but they are going to be. It is also easier to be calm and philosophical when it involves someone else's teenagers. It seems to me that the fact still remains that to reduce teen divorces, it is necessary to encourage teenagers to enter marriage for the right reasons. That would mean to make appropriate information available to them regarding contraceptives, adoptions, abortions, economics, emotions, vocations, etc. It would also mean parents are not pushing for marriage to protect their own community image. It would mean using today's information and services with teenagers and not in ways that hurt them for years.

I feel that a prospective unmarried parent, who does not want to be in that position, has lost control of a part of his or her life that is very important. I feel that they should be encouraged to get in control and not let their behavior continue to hurt them for years. This can mean raising a child as a single parent, getting an abortion, placing the child for adoption or even possibly getting married. The emphasis needs to be on planning your life in a way that you overcome situations and progress towards goals that you choose. It is the teenager's choice what they do and parents need to fit in as a stabilizing factor and not a creator of further disturbance.

Flyers holding even

By Glenn Kechner

The Clarkston Flyers earned a win on the road, and suffered a loss at home, in weekend hockey action in the Southeast Michigan Hockey Association.

On Saturday night a shorthanded Flyers squad defeated the Detroit Javelins 4-3 in foggy St. Clair Shores. Flyers goals were scored by Dan Freiberg, Al Freiberg, Chuck Gauthier, and John Schmidt. Schmidt and Al Freiberg also pickled up two assists each, while Gauthier picked up one assist. The game was an especially tough one for the Flyers, who played the entire match with only six players in uniform. Mark Cushman and goalie Chuck Schueneman rounded out the six man Flyer team, which was pressed into action when heavy fog and hazardous driving prevented many players from attending the game.

On Sunday the Flyers returned to the home ice of Lakeland Arena, but were defeated by league-leading Southfield. The score was 3-1. The Lone Flyer goal was scored by Mark Cushman, on assists by Dan Freiberg and Mark Johnson.

The Flyers wind up the regular season this weekend with two games against Lakeland, on Saturday night 10 p.m. at Norshores Arena, and Sunday at 5 p.m. at Lakeland. SEMHA playoffs will begin next week.

the lead in the last minute of the 15-14 first quarter.

Careless mistakes and turnovers gave the Cardinals as much as an 8 point lead in the second quarter. A double technical against gave the Wolves a 35-35 tie, with Dave Partlo and Daryl Brittain sinking the needed foul shots.

Fouls and turnovers took their toll in the third period as Clarkston fell back 58-48.

Clarkston was down as much as 16 points in the final period. The Wolves played comeback ball in the last 4 minutes of the game. Clarkston didn't have enough time and Davison moved into district semi-finals with the 80-74 win.

The Wolves played well but shot only 36%, 26 of 69 from the floor for the game.

Dave Partlo lead scoring with 20 points. Gary Mason added 19. Partlo also had 16 rebounds while Mason pulled down 8.

I would assume that the question most often pondered about last November's general election is, what happened to youth? It is wise to remember in this analysis that youth voters respond differently and as individuals to the same political input.

While the pollsters were out counting the "electoral chickens" before they hatched, they noticed a hard core support developing and "squaring" at an unbelievable pace on the campuses for the senator from South Dakota. McGovern's long activity in the peace movement and his honest tell-it-like-it-is position on social issues formed the basis for student support. But this is where the pollsters made their big mistake in categorizing youth. Because McGovern's initial appeal to youth and liberals was on too much of an intellectual basis he failed to turn on older moderates and non-student voters.

The President, seeing the youth voter as a potential road block to his re-election, was quick to make moves to cut the number of ground troops involved in the war, to cut the draft quotas, and to falsely take credit for the enfranchising of eighteen-to-twenty-one year olds.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

There is a possibility that high blood pressure may be preventable within the next 20 years, according to recent scientific reports. The answer lies in new drugs to control the problem, and new basic knowledge of its causes.

Everyone has blood pressure: it's simply the force exerted by the blood against the artery walls as the vital body fluid is pumped through them.

The smallest of the arteries ("arterioles") play a major role in controlling blood pressure. Tension or changes in body chemistry may narrow or constrict the arterioles. Then blood pressure goes up in the larger arteries behind them, just as water pressure rises in the garden hose when the nozzle is closed.

When the pressure rises too high and stays that way, you have high blood pressure, or hypertension. This places an extra load on the heart, which may then become enlarged and unable to perform at normal capacity. This is called "hypertensive heart disease."

It's wise to check your blood pressure through regular examinations, which enable your doctor to decide if a rise in pressure is temporary or persistent. Then treatment can be started to lower the pressure, before serious harm is done.

Meanwhile, back in Miami, McGovern was nominated, the Eagleton tragedy occurred, and the search for another vice presidential candidate took place. This, added to the Nixon strategy, brought the non-student voter into his own.

The pollsters meantime were finally acknowledging their mistake of lumping all young voters together on the McGovern bandwagon. Although McGovern had won the first seven rounds of the "youth voter" fight, Nixon had also started to come out punching and pushed the fight decision to a draw.

Another aspect of the young adult voter that particularly bothers me is that very few participated in this great system by getting their names placed on the ballot.

Although virtually every position at the township and county level was up for grabs, few young people filed to be placed on the ballot. There are some very basic reasons why this happened:

1. Lack of information on election filing procedures. Very few people are aware of how the filing procedures work, or where to find out about them.

2. The "I'm too young to win" syndrome. The ratio of success in attaining public office for eighteen-to-twenty-one year olds is very poor, almost proving this syndrome valid. (It's very interesting to note, however, that offices such as state representative, where contestants must be at least twenty-one years of age drew a large number of young candidates, including Ronald H. Farnum, twenty-three, of our own 60th District.

3. Lack of interest. This could either be single reason or the reaction to one and two (see above).

Whatever the reason, young voters were almost as individual and splintered as the rest of the voters, be it in seeking public office or voting. This is a good indication, as politicians have found out, that young people will now have to be dealt with as individuals rather than as a large minority group. That alone is a major accomplishment of November 7, 1972.

I find myself in the area of the state capitol once again. Last time I worked for the state senate as an administrative assistant.

Now I am "down the road" in East Lansing, (on a clear day you can see the dome), on the faculty of Justin S. Morrill College; one of three residential schools affiliated with Michigan State University. Morrill was a Michigan statesman who will be honored on his one hundred and sixty third birthday April 15th.

It's an interesting experience; teaching a course, open to all students, in political involvement.

In light of my political experience I considered calling it: "How to Win Friends and Influence (Almost Enough) People."

I find that many of my own views are challenged. One of the guidelines for the course is that the students are expected to work toward development of a political philosophy of their own; a serious statement of what works for them.

It's amazing how few people ever do that. Most political people who direct themselves operate on a keen instinct for self preservation as much as anything else.

I suspect that before this term is over I will have learned as much as I have taught.

I was invited to join the faculty because of my practical experience in "real world" politics. It has its advantages and disadvantages.

Though I have served in city-county, and state government, by appointment, I have yet to win an election. Consequently some have had the thought that to succeed they need only listen to what I suggest . . . and then do the opposite.

Thank God there is more than one way to do things.

Sometimes you have to sit down to talk about what you stand for.

We Four Chevrolet Dealers have joined together to serve our customers better. We intend to raise our standards of operation to new heights of excellence. We intend to get more involved in what we consider the North Oakland "community." Quite naturally we hope to benefit. More importantly, we want you to benefit by finding it more reasonable, convenient, and profitable to buy from one of us here — in your own community.

HERE ARE THE THINGS WE STAND FOR:

- 1. Personal Touch — You won't be involved in any "Big City Maze" or caught in the crowd. To us you are not just another nameless face. You're an individual . . . a neighbor. In a sense, our reputation in the community rides on every deal. When you buy from us, we know it. If you have a problem we can fix, we know it. If you are happy or unhappy, pleased or displeased, we want to know it.
- 2. Straight Talk — we will not double-talk you, con you, or make promises of deals we have no intension of keeping. We are honest businessmen who talk straight. This assures you of one of the most important elements in any deal — confidence.

- 3. Fine Cars, Fairly Priced — if you can get a better deal — either from one of us or any other dealer — on similar type cars, we'll tell you to take it. We may have to swallow a lump in our throat, and we'll probably advise you to look at all angles of the deal, but we'll have to admit the fairness of your viewpoint. But we're confident enough in our individual pricing policies to feel that deal for deal we will match or better any other dealers — particularly Detroit dealers.

- 4. Good Service — we are fully aware that service is one of the most irritating aspects of car ownership. People are only human, mistakes are made and customers get impatient. We are determined, individually — and we have each talked to our people — that we will do our human best to give you prompt, courteous and efficient service — priced as low as our costs permit.
- 5. Used Cars — We serve many customers by running good used car departments. We will continue to do so. We will give as much care and consideration to a used car customer as to new. All customers are citizens of the North Oakland Community.

We have $4.15 in penny contributions, and we have decided. We are going to purchase a "penny" tree for the new township park, just as soon as the deal has been finalized. Plans are now to locate the park on Clarkston-Orion Road, site of the Walker property. Any and all henceforth contributions will be saved for that purpose. Who knows, we may wind up with a giant oak? Though, for reasons of practicality, Tom Ritter suggests locust, linden or maple.

The new park site appears to have gained more favor with the state Department of Natural resources than did the previous site on Sashabaw Road. That site scored 7 on the department's 1-14 scale, while the new one scores 11.8 and is rated third best of 14 statewide projects under consideration, according to Recreation Director Jim Doyle. He thinks funding is assured on that basis.

Village Treasurer Artemus Pappas estimates it costs the village $400 to $450 to conduct an election, by the time you figure in printing, advertising and election worker pay.

By 1:30 p.m. Monday only 17 people had bothered to exercise their right to ballot. Maybe it's understandable. There were only enough candidates for the offices available, and nothing, really, could be decided.

Perhaps election by acclamation would have been cheaper. Everybody open their windows and shout "aye," one wag suggested.

The village saved itself some money Monday night. Committed to the purchase of dinners for four election workers, it lucked out with Eleanor Sage and Phyllis Robinson, who had their check picked up by a young visitor to Clarkston. The women say they'd never seen him before, but he sat near them as they discussed their work of the day. His reason? He said he really liked Clarkston.

The gals had little to do. Forbidden to play cards, Charlie Robinson observed, "They could probably knit, but I don't think any of them know how to."

The sparse voters were people of rarity and their visits events to be cherished, at any rate.

Don't know what TV show you watched Monday night, but the one I saw had to be the best. Produced by Bailey Lake fifth graders two years ago at the time of the first moon landing, it was directed by and featured students.

It was extremely well done — in fact, I think some of the commercial TV stations ought to be interested — but it was also human enough to be special.

A slow firing rocket extended the countdown from 10 to 1 and then to a hesitant zero and finally a very elated, "Blast Off!" A moonscape shot showed astronauts loping over the moon's surface, and there in the background was a firmly anchored barn.

Any interviewer can sympathize with the reporter who asked one of the astronaut's wives how she felt about her husband going to the moon. When she

The no water situation at the Clarkston Fire Hall is being remedied with a $1,700 new well. The old well ran only 18 feet deep with a 2-inch pipe. The new one, about 100 feet deep with a 4-inch pipe, should do the job of filling the tankers better, the Independence Township Board was told.

The case against developers Bob White and Lloyd Kirby in regard to alleged violation of the plat act in Deer Lake Knolls has been dismissed by Walled Lake District court Judge Martin Boyle. The action took place February 27, we learn.

A dead horse floating in a pond off Rattalee Lake Road near Weber Road may get removed next week. Township Supervisor Claude Trim has obtained a court order requiring its removal by the county. A stream from the pond could

Springfield road improvements

Seven more trips with the grader, and gravel

By Betty Hecker

Chum Rundell has reported to the Springfield Township Board that the County Road Commission plans no new road construction in Springfield at the present time.

The proposed maintenance of our secondary roads will be seven more trips of the road grader and two additional loads of gravel over the care given to the roads last year, he said.

Rundell said the road commission has $18 million to work with, with 1 million people in Oakland County. That provides about $18 per person, with the largest percent of that million people in the southern part of Oakland County. Townships will share expenses with the road commission on a 50-50 basis, he said.

The road commission has set up toll free phones for people to use when calling in requests for service or complaints. These numbers are 800-552-3707 from Holly phones and 338-4751 from Clarkston and local phones.

Jim Dunleavy, the County Commissioner from District 2 agreed that our road conditions are critical this spring. He reported that seven tow trucks were needed the day before the township meeting to rescue road grader trucks working in Oakland County.

Albert Lamier approached the board for an adjustment of the lot sizes of property he owns on King Road. Lamier has two 100-foot lots, Nos. 32 and 33 of plat No. 10 in the King Road Subdivision. About six years ago a house was built on one lot, built too close to the second lot to comply with side yard ordinances. Lamier requested that he be able to add 15 feet to the lot with the house and sell the other lot with an 85-foot frontage. The board voted to amend the lot sizes.

George Gilcrest requested a permit to fill in and dig out a section of property on Sherwood Drive near Dixie Lake. Supervisor Trim emphasized to the board that the lake does not come up to the road. The Gilcrest property is across the road from the water. After township board permission is granted, Gilcrest must then go to the state for permission.

Any action to be taken concerning a contract with the Oakland County Sheriff Department was tabled for one month. Don Kratt from the Sheriff's Department was unable to attend the meeting this month. He requested a chance to talk to the board at the April meeting.

Trim said, "They (Oakland County Sheriff) want to be our police department, but they don't want to enforce our township ordinances. They suggest we hire a local man to enforce local township ordinances."

The contract between Springfield Township and the planning consultant firm of Sterling, Lehoczy, Kilroy and Chihan expired. Trim read a letter from Tod Kilroy, in which he proposed a continuing basis for the township at a cost of $350 a month or $4200 a year. After open discussion, the board voted to retain the planning consultants for one year. The motion passed with Margaret Samuels, township treasurer, the only "no" vote.

Supervisor Trim expressed strong feelings over the township board's responsibility for the Davisburg Cemetery. "I feel there should definitely be a cemetery association. It just takes a few people to get involved." This discussion came about because Frank Halsey, caretaker of the cemetery for over 30 years, has the only set of records for plots and burials. It was decided that the township clerk will contact Halsey about his records.

Residents had asked for a speed limit on Tindall Road between Davisburg Road and Rattalee Lake Road. The county denied this request, stating it was not a policy to set speed limits on low volume roads.

The board updated the local snowmobile ordinances, adopting the amendments and revisions that the State of Michigan recently had written into law.

The North Oakland County Chamber of Commerce sent the township a letter stating their objection to liquor license issuances being made to county parks. This is in reference to the request for a liquor license for the Springfield-Oaks Golf Course Clubhouse. The board tabled any action until after an appeal before the courts now is judged upon.

New plastics industry ok

Molmec Corp., sister to Sashabaw Products at Sashabaw and Waldon Roads, has received approval to construct an 18,500 square foot industrial plant on White Lake Road at Clements Road.

The site plan was approved Thursday night by the Independence Township Planning Commission.

The building is to be constructed of cinderblock and steel panels. It will house a facility to make plastic parts for the automotive trade.

In other business, the commission approved subject to the resolution of drainage problems, a four-lot subdivision to be known as Henry's Lake Estates on Clarkston-Orion Road across from Parke Lake.

Sunset romance — Irene Moriarty and Fred Kramer

Romance blooms in the senior set

Romance has blossomed at the Salvation Army monthly potluck dinners for senior citizens.

Fred Kramer, 66, of 37 East Washington, a widower for four years, will wed Irene Moriarty, 61, of Union Lake April 28 at St. Perpetua Church in Union Lake.

They met at a luncheon last May, just a month after Mrs. Moriarty came from Boston to live with a daughter in Union Lake.

"That's one time I should have stayed home," joshed Fred, who says he's "tired and retired from Fisher Body."

Irene was previously married for 31 years, Fred for 36. They have 7 children between them, and 33 grandchildren.

Asked how he had proposed, Fred smiled and said, "I held her little finger and told her I loved her."

"What was it you liked about her?" Fred was asked.

"Everything," said Irene and grinned.

Human sexuality series

Rev. Robert Walters, pastor of Calvary Lutheran Church, will speak at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 20, in the second program of three dealing with "Human Sexuality."

The programs are scheduled at Calvary Lutheran Church, the final one featuring Dr. F.H.O. Warner Tuesday, March 27.

Sponsored by ministers and the schools, the programs are designed for young people and adults. A donation of 50 cents per family is accepted at the door.

Mall flower show

Clarkston Branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association will be joining with other county branch organizations in sponsoring the Pontiac Mall Flower Show September 17-22.

The show will feature 190 entries in the artistic design section, new and unusual exhibits in the horticulture section, and products of talented youngsters in the junior section.

Jelly for handicapped

The sale of jelly at $1 per jar the last week in March will raise money for handicapped children in the Clarkston area.

The jelly sale is a program of Clarkston Area Jaycees and Jaycettes, aided by local businessmen. A door-to-door campaign is scheduled, according to Mark Paulsner, project chairman.

Further information is available from Panker at 625-5500 or 628-1968.

Snowmobile accident!

Springing up
by Betty Hecker

On Sunday, March 5, the Bill Palace family was up north snowmobiling. They had gone to the Upper Peninsula near Naubinway. "Everybody else went right over that ditch," said Mrs. Palace, "but Bill hit it wrong."

The accident broke his back. He was taken to Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital for treatment. He was then flown to Pontiac and taken to Pontiac Osteopathic Hospital, where on Sunday, a week after his accident, he was put into a body cast.

Monday, March 12, he went home. I was so surprised to hear his wife say, "He's getting there, but he's WALKING slowly." Walking?

Bill will be confined in his body cast for about six weeks.

Janet Manley underwent back surgery at Ford Hospital for the removal of a ruptured disc on Monday, March 6. A week later the stitches came out, and Tuesday, she came home.

She sent word to her family to prepare for the return of "The General." Says she intends to enjoy her recuperation, and "just shout out orders."

The Roy Fry house had a double birthday party again this year. Two of the Fry children share the same birthday, March 14.

Happy birthday, Joseph, I hope you like being ten years old.

Happy birthday, Peggy, can I still tell a lady's age if she's 14?

Dennis and Sue Storrs of Waterford had a baby boy, Derek Andrew Storrs was born on February 3, 1973, at Pontiac General Hospital and brought happiness to several homes.

Derek is Dennis and Sue's first son. He is also the first grandson on either side of their families, so there are lots of happy grandparents.

Sue said, "Dennis was just overwhelmed. Just couldn't believe he had a son."

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Keith Storrs of Clarkston, Guido Rizzuto of Clarkston, and Betty Rizzuto of Pontiac.

Dennis and Sue have a daughter, Nikki, who is 2½ years old. She is excited about her baby brother, too.

Lucille Gries was in Washington D.C. attending a Women's Forum for National Security when Clinton Valley Barracks No. 2803 and Auxiliary met for a potluck luncheon March 10 at Davisburg Town Hall.

The group recently donated $10 to a convalescent home in Grand Rapids to aid the entertainment program for the home.

Members will meet again April 14 for an Easter potluck dinner at Davisburg Town Hall.

On February 25, Vicki Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Johnson of Snowapple Drive and Jan Schultz, daughter of Mrs. Glen Davison of Wompole, received their nursing caps from St. Joseph's Community Hospital School of Nursing, Hancock, Mich. The ceremony took place in Gloria Dei Lutheran Church in Hancock. Attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Ken Johnson, Mary Johnson and Mrs.

Glen Davison.

Mrs. Dick Butler of Ellis Road made the trip with them to visit her son, Rick Butler at Michigan Tech in Houghton, Mich.

Seven Clarkston boys who have earned Scouting's top rank will be honored at the Clinton Valley Scout Council's Annual Eagle Recognition Dinner, March 20 at 6:30 p.m. at Oakland University's Oakland Center, Rochester, Michigan.

Miller, 14, 6641 Transparent Dr.; and Daniel Priebe, 14, 5930 Paramus.

Wallace W. Edwards, President of the Clinton Valley Council, said, "The Eagle rank is significant because only one boy in 300 who enters Scouting, attains it." Eagle requirements include earning 24 merit badges; serving as a troop officer; and planning, developing and giving leadership to others in a service project that is helpful to the Scout's community, school or religious institution.

Six boys, Brian, Bruce, Barry Collins and Keith, Bob, Mike Bradly of Troop 49, sponsored by American Legion Post 63, are trying for the Catholic Ad Altare Dei award.

The boys went to the first six months of meetings at Our Lady of the Lakes March 12. They can earn this award in six months to two years.

The purpose of the Ad Altare Dei program is to better equip the scout to take his place in the world with an understanding of his Christian commitment, to recognize his advancement in the spiritual content of Scouting, and to help him fully live the Scout Oath and Law.

Any Scout can work for the Ad Altare Dei if he is a Catholic boy and is registered as a Webelos Scout or a Scout and has the approval of the person appointed to handle this program in his own parish.

"People helping people help themselves"

By Holly Stephens

1973 FUND RAISING CAMPAIGN — Independence center is starting its 1973 fund raising campaign. Since opening, the center has served the community by providing emergency help to those in need, loans of wheelchairs, etc., space for professional agency counselors to meet with clients, immunization clinics, and space for community organizations to meet.

Due to initial expenses to improve donated facilities, the budget was rapidly depleted. The center's current monthly maintenance bills are between $300 and $350.

We would like to ask for the continued support of all those in the area interested in "helping people help themselves" and thank those who have so generously contributed. All funds donated to the center are tax deductible.

FOOD CLOSET—The Fish Food Closet at independence center is maintained for members of the community who have an emergency food need. They may need meals for one or two days. The following is a typical emergency one day menu:

Breakfast — Eggs, oatmeal, juice, milk.
Lunch — Peanut butter, tuna, soup, bread.
Dinner — hash or spam, corn or beans, instant potatoes, canned fruit.

Anyone wishing to contribute food to the closet might use this as a guide. At present there is a shortage of canned meats — tuna, hash, spam, chicken, etc. A call to the center might find a special need — there are now several jars of spaghetti sauce and no noodles; cans of pumpkin pie mix and no pie crust mix.

Any churches or groups wishing to help, please call Zella Benson at the center.

FOOD CO-OP — The membership of the Food Co-op met and discussed several problems. The price per unit was raised from $3 to $3.25 to cover the truck rental. Due to muddy conditions parking areas at the center were designated and will be roped. Members were asked not to park on the grassy areas close to the building.

Sean and Christopher Belby and Bonnie George will be among the models displaying Town Shop and Judy's Fashions for the Young styles for the Women's Club fashion show at 8 p.m. Thursday, March 22, at independence center.

Spiritual Message

"The Fat is in Your Head"
 "But seek ye first His Kingdom . . ." Matthew 6:33

A rather weird quip on a talk show recently went to the effect that the mayor of our largest city was not going to run for re-election, he was going to "give up being mayor for Lent!"

Last week when Lent began many people no doubt seriously tried to begin a program of "giving up something" or even fasting to some degree as a discipline denoting serious concern about the spiritual life. The writer's question is: Whatever we decided to do, how are we doing with the project? Our feeling is that a Lenten discipline would be far more in line with the teachings of the Master if it didn't go for six weeks, but was a raising of standards intended to go on for life!

This brought to our attention Charlie Shedd's book on dieting which asserts that whatever excesses of calorie-laden goodies are getting us in trouble must be repudiated not just 'til we lose 30 pounds but for life! The whole idea of going to the refrigerator for snacks has to go or be converted into harmless trips. He says we must in effect write a brief letter to God: "Dear Lord, I resign."

Control of our lives must be turned over to the rightful owner, and we must take the life-long actions of the will to put the resignation into effect. Result: not just weight loss, although the author lost over 100 pounds and has kept it down. But this resignation TO LIFE [not from life] frees a man to bounce more eagerly to do God's will and fill his life full of surprising joys without that drag of avoirdupois or neurotic self-pity.

No one said this was easy just as the terrible rejection on the Cross wasn't easy. But the satisfaction of creating a new usable body for God's work and our joy is an outward sign of inward growth.

So make that big "I" resign. Then with the reins turned over to a more skillful governor, you can lose weight or worship more meaningfully or love your spouse more dearly or whatever it is that the new Governor says you most need.

Kitchen is home's focal point

COUNTRY LIVING

"We built the house and moved in before the interior was finished. We lived with the saw dust, and the mortar dust, and the extension cords. The only electricity was in the basement," said Trudy Manzella, remembering back a few years when she and her husband Nick were building their large modified Swiss Chalet home in Springfield Township. "We had very good luck. The material was delivered, help was available — so 36 days after we broke ground, we moved in. In 90 days our house was finished — but in the meantime, we were busy cleaning up after each crew of workmen."

Trudy's favorite place in her house is the kitchen, with the open cupboard arrangement that looks out into the family room. She said, "I can see everything from here at my sink, the birds on the balcony at the feeder, the television, or outside at the wildlife in the pines, and enjoy the family room activities, all while I'm getting my work done."

The countertop is a black marble formica breakfast bar, so large that it easily seats eight. The cabinets are white formica with the end cupboards having panel inserts. Trudy said, "I couldn't find what I wanted for those doors. For a while there was a piece of paneling in one and orange plexiglass in the other. One evening a friend of Nick's was here. I told him I thought I would like cork panels in those doors, and am I glad I spoke up. He was an interior decorator and he brought out exactly what I wanted — cork wallpaper." The cork wallpaper is also on the dropped ceiling. The gold carpeting compliments the gold range, dishwasher, and double sink. The kitchen walls have been utilized to best advantage, to. One wall is a pantry with dark stained louvered doors. Another wall is covered with gold veined mirror tiles and reflects the whole room.

The most impressive room in the house is the family room with its massive, yet gracefully curved fireplace wall, built from 5½ tons of California drift rock. These gray weathered stones are fitted together piece by piece, around a large stone slab hearth. "We had to wash the rocks one by one because when they came, they were so dusty. Nick tried to hose them off outside, but it was so cold, they just froze," Trudy said. "We carried everyone of them to the basement, washed them and carried them back upstairs."

Trudy has the fireplace as the center attraction, arranging three large green recliners for the best advantage for the fire and to watch television. Bright lemon yellow side tables add color as does the bright patchwork quilt and cushions that Trudy made and put on the rocking chairs near the doorway. The desk and corner by the large picture window are Theresa's painting corner. Theresa is eight years old and loves horses — for example, two of her paint-by-number horse pictures hang on the wall over her desk.

On the television proudly sits a large owl, majestically surveying the whole room. The owl was ordered from a World Gifts home party. Trudy wanted her owl before this interview, so on the day before the appointment, she was in a hurry to go pick it up. "I took a short cut across Foster Road because I was in a hurry. Well, two hours and $15 later, after the tow truck pulled me out of the mud, I took the long way to go get my owl."

A clay horse sculpture holds a place of honor, for Theresa did the sculpture herself. Her mother proudly said, "She used a garlic press to make the horse's mane — I think it's very good for her first."

The master bedroom is warm and soft in pale yellow, the carpeting is pale yellow, the brocade quilted spread on the king size bed is pale yellow, and the vase and bouquet of flowers on the dresser are pale yellow.

Trudy keeps an eye on the family room from the kitchen pass-through.

The large triple dresser has twin mirrors, and are arranged so that there is a mirror on either side of a bedroom window.

The light gold drapes combine with the yellow of the room to give a look of elegance.

The main bath is really two rooms, a small private room with the bathtub, and a larger vanity or dressing room. The decor is bright red and sparkling white, and is done in a Spanish theme.

The classic Byzantine ceramic tiles cover the floor and the tub well. Red wicker butterflies are the towel holders on the walls at either end of the long vanity cupboard and the double sinks.

To the Manzellas, country living means having room for Theresa's two ponies, King and Rusty, and room for her to ride them. It means the view of the countryside from their hilltop home. It means the joy of watching deer in the back yard, and of cardinals coming to your back door to eat from the feeder. It means peace.

Are you disgusted with your closet space? Do your kitchen cabinets seem to hold too little? There are several ways you can improve your use of this available space. Do not, for example, disregard the importance of commercial or homemade space savers. Cups can be hung from shelf tops by using cup hooks. Plates can stand in the back of a cupboard if you nail a curtain rod one inch from the back of the shelf.

Does spring fever have you thinking about redecorating your home? BOB'S HARDWARE, 60 S. Main St., 625-5020 invites you to bring us your decorating problems. We will be happy to help you select your wallcoverings from our extensive collection of name-brand wallpapers. For the do-it-yourselfer, we also carry all the necessary pastes, brushes and equipment. ## COUNTRY LIVING

While we sit around waiting for the Spring Thaw, when our roads look like tank traps, and our lawns like cranberry bogs . . . while the neighbor's dog rips open our garbage bags and scatters the mess all over the yard, and I repair a winter jacket for positively the last time, re-do a paper mache dragon for a school play, and wonder whatever possessed me to go roller skating with the CAP cadets last Sunday, I keep a faint grip on sanity with my favorite game . . . IF I COULD HAVE EVERYTHING (in assorted colors), I would:

1. Carpet everything - ceilings, walls, floors, driveways, backyards, children . . . When the thaw comes, and the sand starts coming in, if you have wall-to-wall, all it means is you're slightly closer to the ceiling.

2. Have fresh lettuce and tomatoes flown in every week from wherever they grow best. I'm sick of wilted, shrunken lettuce and those hard little pink, tasteless tomatoes.

3. Buy a four inch thick King size comforter for those cold winter nights, and hang the cost! To hell with electric blankets, thermal blankets, aluminum foil sheets - I want a thick, velvety soft, scrunchy cover to snuggle under. (I ordered one last week, and is HE gonna scream when he sees the bill!)

4. Have the President and Mrs. Nixon as our houseguests for two weeks. The first thing I would do is take the First Lady to the supermarket to check the prices. They would eat Sweet and Sour Meatballs, Special Marinated Tough Steak, Chinese Pepper Chicken, Macaroni and Cheese, and Mother's Lousy Meat Loaf until they begged for mercy. For two weeks they would go through TV repairs, car breakdowns. They would run out of milk at nine p.m., fix school lunches for four hungry kids, patch new boots that fell apart the first week, run CAP radios, go to PTA meetings, try to figure what is a "Reconciliation Service" at the church, give home haircuts, and suffer through an income tax form. I would also allow them two martinis and an hour before the fire each night. If I can do it, so can they.

5. I would be thin forever. There's nothing wrong with my body that six months in the Intensive Care Unit at Elizabeth Ardens wouldn't cure.

6. Install a working fireplace in every home in town. We spent a whole summer building ours, and there's something about a fire every evening that causes cold children to warm themselves, angry parents to reconsider, and friends to hover.

7. Keep in a triple-locked safe a year's supply of: scotch tape, white glue, pantyhose, school paper, emery boards, birthday wrapping paper, ponytail holders, chapstick, stamps, and kitty litter.

8. Take the whole family for two weeks intensive sun therapy on an Out Island in the Bahamas. Oh yeah, while we're at it, let's get rid of that shapely broad who walks out of the water in the American Airlines commercials. My husband thinks he's in love with her.

9. Eliminate the following words from my husband's vocabulary: "I had it for lunch".

"Boy, were you talking in your sleep last night!"

It's supposed to come out of your budget".

"If you knew how to drive, it wouldn't have happened."

10. Install a telephone answering service on our line that would automatically limit the kids to three minutes, call my Mother once a week, and tell those women who call that I don't want a water conditioner, aluminum siding, tango lessons, cunning photos of my babies, or a lifetime subscription to Field and Stream.

Now is your turn. I'll bet you can come up with some dillies!

Problem window? The Manzellas framed theirs with mirrors and curtained it in the master bedroom.

COUNTRY LIVING COUNTRY LIVING COUNTRY LIVING

The bordello on Church Street

By Bob Walters

We live in a pleasant neighborhood — but lately our peace has been shattered. There have been mysterious knocks at the door late at night and intruders have tried to force their way inside. There have been fights. One intruder even grabbed my leg one afternoon, while three others stood in a solid phalanx, trying to gain entry.

I'm calling it the Siege of West Church Street.

The fact is that our lovely dog, Tiffany, is the only working female in the neighborhood. Rusty, a stately old Boxer, can scarcely get out of bed in the morning, besides being nearly blind, and big, lovable Dogga has long since been "fixed." (That's a switch, since most fixing makes the "fixee" work much better, and in some cases, with absolute predictability.) Nevertheless, Tiffany still works very well, not having been fixed, and so our life style changes drastically every six months.

This time the ranks of the 2 or 3 regularly visiting gentlemen who live in the neighborhood have been swelled by 4 others. In fact, we've been tempted to charge boarding fees for several of our friends in the face of their loyal and persistent vigil at our door.

My wife has raised guilty feelings in several owners when they saw her patiently policing the yard with an over-flowing pooper-scooper. I've also produced snickers as I defend our beloved with a newspaper from four "friends" so she can satisfy the call of nature. We've even had to hold on to one especially persistent fellow at the back door while we slipped Tiffany out the front for the pause that refreshes. (Our carpet has been refreshed enough).

And the back step, thanks to her would-be suitors, has taken on the unmistakable odor of an ill-kept gas station John with no key security and where the plumber's helper no longer helps.

Furthermore, the intensity of the siege has produced a complicating decision in our household — Let her have a litter and get it over with — you know, sex education for the kids and fulfillment for dear Tiffany. (Then to the vet for the fix that unfixes.)

At least this time around is a little safer. Charlie the Collie and Pierre the beagle have departed. We really didn't want poodle-type pups with 4 inch snouts that bayed at the moon.

But, as I said, the decision has been complicated in that it has intensified the siege and produced nearly mortal infighting among the chief contestants.

Jacque, a dignified, fair-haired Frenchman was enticed in one evening as first choice, but spent the rest of his opportunity trying to get out — like a Casper Milquetoast in a canine Peyton Place. Tiffany was shocking in her unfruitful boldness. And Jacque has since had intense regrets.

We decided against a cute, friendly, dark friend, Mutley, because he muffed his chance six months ago, opting rather for experience over immaturity. Of course he has been thoroughly crushed, and our hearts go out to him in his drastic fall from #1, but there just can be no tomorrows. (Based on scientific observation, this is one part of the affair in which we won out. Our choice obviously had experience.)

There also has been a black and white model, a newcomer arrived just for the occasion, who has been particularly persistent, and quite obnoxious since he found out he was not on the accredited list. (He's even tried to do in the one who is.) One thing, I hope nobody shows him a Bible. He paces the yard like a soldier, and if he finds that marching around our house seven times in a row might help his cause, we're in trouble. I must say, if I see one of these guys with a trumpet, we're evacuating.

Soon, however, the Siege of West Church Street should be over, along with the snickers and subterfuges, and we can begin to get over the nagging guilt feelings that come from running a notorious neighborhood bordello, and sign Tiffany up for the next series of classes with Dr. Lamaze.

The exchange of $250 from the Clarkston Rotary Club to Lost Lake Project of the Clinton Valley Council of the Boy Scouts and the presentation of a flag to Rotary-sponsored Explorer Post 440 was accomplished recently by Tudor ApMadoc, Rotary president, Al Domroese, Explorer post advisor, Explorer Tim Humphrey and Paul DeLongchamp, Rotary representative to the Explorer post.

Clarkston High School report

by Leslie Little and Robbin Wagner

Student barometer

1. What do you want for yourself, what sort of life?

V.C. A life that is full of pleasure and fun. I don't want to get married for a while, what I mean is live it up for a while.

D.W. I want a life where I can pick the days I want to work and make lots of money.

2. Are you different from your parents?

J.R.S. I'm not too different from my mom, we have the same ideas in most areas.

C.W. From what type of life I want — yes.

D.W. Yes, I am different because I have different ideas.

3. Technology, ecology, the vote, the pill, race riots, the women's movement — how have they shaped your views of the future?

B.W. The world better shape up or else.

V. C. I think and hope that they get it worked out in the future.

J.R.S. The future doesn't look too bright for everybody, but it's how you make your future. My life is going to be good, and all of that can't change it.

4. What bothers you about our society?

S.B. They go too much by tradition.

D.W. That people never care and don't want to help anyone any more.

J.R.S. Hypocrisy really bugs me. I also can't stand phony people.

5. Are you planning to get married and raise a family?

S.B. Uncertain.

V.C. Someday I hope to, but not for a while.

6. What things would you like to change, what would you keep the same?

J.R.S. I'd change the way we've treated God's earth. We've got to do something. I'd also change idiot TV shows, poverty and crime need help too — otherwise, the world's in pretty good shape.

C.W. About society, people's views of it. It's a beautiful world and I like it.

V.C. I would like to keep this world, but change hate into love.

7. Have you been influenced by women's lib?

C.W. No, I feel it is really very stupid.

V.C. I really don't pay any attention to it. I just live as I wish.

J.R.S. No and yes — I want equal pay, but I still want a big fella.

June Barks

Teen of the week

An active 14-year-old, June Barks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Barks of 5872 Warbler Drive, is Clarkston Youth Assistance Teen of the Week.

Presently a volunteer at Lourdes Nursing Home, she has plans for working as a junior volunteer in a near-by hospital this spring. June teaches four-year-olds at St. Daniel's Church Sunday mornings, and has frequently helped on the Bottles for Building Drive.

At Clarkston Junior High where she's a ninth grader, she's missed being on the honor roll just once and was awarded the Honor Roll Scholarship charm and the perfect attendance award. She's also received honors in track events and the home economics department, and has worked on the school yearbook staff.

She likes traveling through the United States with her family, horseback riding and swimming.

Sue's running a fast track

"A girl is running on the track team." This statement has startled many people at CHS, but it is true. Sue Latter, 16, and a junior at CHS amazed many people when she placed fourth in the first major track meet she has ever run in.

The Eastern Michigan University invitational was held on Wednesday, March 3. Sue in the first heat of 20 girls running the 600-yard dash placed first with 1:30.7. Sue came in 20 yards ahead of the other girls running in the heat. She placed fourth in the overall competition.

Sue feels that she could have placed higher in the competition if she could have run in a faster heat. After all, she had no real competition running in front of everyone else. The winning time was 1:25.8

When Sue was asked why she joined the track club, she said she has always had the desire to run because she enjoys it and it is fun.

Sue says that she owes a lot of credit to the track coach, Mr. Solley, who has helped her in getting into shape. He gave her encouragement and a desire to run. Sue feels that if it hadn't been for the encouragement of Mr. Solley, along with Mark Harris and the other track club members, that she probably wouldn't have done it.
