busily engaged readying for the School Fair from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, April 7 at the school. The public is welcome to view the art, industrial arts, home economics, drafting and science exhibits.

Jim's Jottings

By Jim Sherman

I love movies, but I seldom leave the house to watch one. I do see many on the tube. I read Earl Wilson and Shirley Eder's columns about the stars, but I don't follow any of them longer than it takes to read their quips or doings... or is it misdoings I'm interested in?

With that background I'm no authority at all, so I'll offer my thoughts on a couple people.

George C. Scott was awarded an Oscar in 1971 and refused it. Until he appeared in the Morning Friendly with Billy Martin and Norm Cash Thursday I hadn't read anything about him since he turned down the statuette.

The way I figure it movie producers know the general movie-going public takes offense at someone spitting on the almost sainted Oscar, and conclude they may not lay down a buck and a half to see the ex-hero.

Now comes Marlon Brando... who, appeared in a movie that raised the ire of the Italians, offended much of the huge Oscar watching crowd, and is not exactly being welcomed with open arms by all the Indian tribes. (What ever became of Jane Fonda?)

My prediction is that the next you hear of Brando he'll be in that "Little Theater off Times Square".

I've read too much about the Watergate bugging, yet I don't recall seeing or hearing what the GOP stole or gained.

If it was planks for the Dem's platform they shouldn't have bothered. No one remembers them by convention's end.

Certainly, if it was policy statements Mr. Nixon is ignoring whatever was heard during the eavesdropping... assuming the word got to him. The Democrats wouldn't even talk in private about cutting back public funding like the present administration is doing.

Maybe the Democrats were deciding among themselves that it was a good idea for the President to have more power...if that man was one of theirs. Perhaps the buggers didn't pick up the last part of the sentence and figured Mr. Nixon would have bi-partisan support for buying a bigger hammer.

Whatever, the Watergate incident keeps minds off the overspending in the Pentagon, continuing decline of American prestige in South America and other places, and wondering where petroleum interests failed us after getting so many considerations from the government.

They're beefing about prices

by Betty Hecker

"I think people are going to find that they can get along without meat," said Diane Hollibaugh of Clarkston, out shopping Monday morning for her family of five at an area supermarket.

Mrs. Hollibaugh didn't buy any meat. "We'll eat tuna noodle casserole. I've got some turkey in the freezer, and there's macaroni and cheese," she said.

Relating that her bill was $20 cheaper because of the absence of meat, she stated, "I could go indefinitely without meat. There are so many other things—fish, etc."

Mrs. Hollibaugh seemed to reflect the views of most shoppers there as the meat boycott against high prices went into effect. Three women in a period of 40 minutes bought beef.

One said, "We didn't buy any meat all last week and I'm starving for some. We even made vegetable soup without meat."

Asking that her name be withheld, she picked up some delmonico steaks and mushrooms.

Cal and June Nelson of Springfield bought turkey legs, even though Cal noted, "It's the first time in 20 years the farmer can make a fair living and everyone is crabbing."

His wife added, "The time has come for people to cut back on their eating and live off their own fat."

A nearby shopper, Joyce Moffett of Clarkston, responded to Cal's remark about the farmers. "I hope that's where the money is going. I'm not going to buy any meat. I'll support the boycott." She said her family of seven eats a lot of fish.

Mary Mercer of Davisburg bought only four turkey legs and beef liver but she said, "My husband likes meat. I don't think he could eat without meat."

Mrs. Raymond Harris of Brandon Township stood at the meat counter and said, "I guess I'm going to buy. I'm standing here. We're weight conscious and it's hard to stay away from calories unless you use meat at meals."

She wound up with chicken.

Another couple didn't say anything, but they picked up five pounds of hamburger and headed for the check out counter.

Doris Burns came to the store from Drayton Plains. Actually she's been after soybeans at a nearby health food store, but they were out. She believes in supplementing meat with other high protein food and for her, it's soybeans.

"The prices are too high!" said Bobbi Hamp of Ortonville. Mother of four, she hadn't really yet decided what she'd substitute for meat but she was doing her weekly shopping.

Karen Carpenter of Clarkston bought meat for her family of three. "We're buying because we don't want to do without the protein in our diet," she said.

Electors ok $810,276 budget

A new budgeting method permitted some 40 Independence Township electors to take a good look at the township's record setting budget of $810,276 Saturday during the annual meeting.

They approved it with little comment, despite the jump from the past year's $550,000 level.

The increase, said Supervisor Robert Vandermark, is largely due to $103,368 which the township expects to receive from federal and state grants towards acquisition of a park and $127,665 which it is receiving for the first time this year in the federal revenue sharing program.

The township's 1.32 allocated millage will bring in $125,000 this year for the property tax as opposed to $98,000 last year, Vandermark said. An increase in building department revenue is also expected due to an increase in fees last year and the rise in construction costs.

With the additional funds, the township proposes to hire a township ordinance enforcement officer (salary to be paid from the 1-mill police millage levy of which $51,000 was paid this year for Sheriff's Department protection) and another full time police officer.

Vandermark explained that the money paid the Sheriff's Department for 24-hour, 7-day-a-week patrol is the most economical way of providing round-the-clock enforcement. He said local officers are needed to fill the gaps in local ordinance enforcement and special traffic patrol such as at the schools.

He said five local men would be required at a cost of about $150,000 a year to provide similar service to that provided by the county for $51,000; however, he noted the price would likely increase somewhat during contract renewal later this month.

Extra police millage would also be used to help purchase radio equipment needed locally, the supervisor said. Some money would be left in reserve, he said, for possible future equipment needs.

The park purchase, the supervisor said, should be completed by the end of summer. Some $25,000 in local funds will be needed to augment the state and federal grants, he added.

Additional funds were also earmarked for road grading. The sum of $24,000 set aside for that purpose should double the grading now provided the township through the Oakland County Road commission, Vandermark said. Another $26,000 has been set aside for the township share of paving Pelton Road.

Almost $16,000 was set aside for township hall building improvements, to include a new roof, painting, stair remodeling and partitioning.

There was $5,000 earmarked for the township's annual cleanup campaign which last year saw private citizens able to dump refuse at township expense.

Some $4,200 has been set aside for the purchase of six new voting machines, an attempt to keep up with state law over the division of precincts and to eliminate the long lines which formed during the November election.

Also proposed is $5,000 for an engineering drainage study which will give guidance to the planning commission and township board in plat and development approval.

Another $7,000 has been set aside for salaries for the summer playground program and $14,000 for future land needs for the township.

Plans are to purchase a $24,000 accounting machine for the sewer and water department to take care of the billing load once sewers are put into use.

Legal expenses have been budgeted at $30,000 in the yearly forecast.

Jill Johnston, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnston of Middle Lake Road turned out to be Independence Township's 10,000th card holder last week. She obtained her very first library card from Margie Ritchie, assistant librarian.

Shoplifting - - blight of merchants

Crab meat at $2.39 a can is missing from the display shelves in Rudy's Market. You want some, you ask for it. Too many disappeared without payment the other way.

When three youngsters enter Bob's Hardware and separate, owner Bob Wertman gets them out of the store.

Small jewelry is now behind glass at the Town Shop.

Keith Hallman at Hallman's Apothecary figures he loses merchandise worth $15 to $20 a day, a lot of it cosmetics.

Most of the lawn care and garden items at Ritter's Farm Market are too bulky for shoplifting, but cars drive up after closing hours, the trunks fly open, and shrubs disappear.

Candy bars, cupcakes, pet supplies and non-foods make up the bulk of missing items at an area supermarket, but there are supermarkets where meat is one of the big losses.

Shoplifting is a definite problem in the Clarkston area, and it's not necessarily confined to the young; however, most store owners agree junior high girls are responsible for the bulk of it.

And yet several of the businessmen confide that Clarkston "is not too bad." There are a lot of areas where the problem is much worse, they'll say.

Shoplifting is a difficult problem for the local merchant to handle.

Hallman attempts to express his feelings about the situation. "It's not shocking with the real young — a little fellow who knows better, but the temptation of a 10 cent candy bar is too great. These things you handle in your own way, and 99 percent of the time the personal embarrassment of being caught does the trick. There are tears shed, and I think we do some good," he says.

"But those who are a little older are not stealing so much because they need the item, as that stealing is a prestige thing with their buddies. Many times the parents are contacted, but unfortunately parents don't always take a helpful attitude. They sometimes resent it.

"Ordinarily," Hallman continued, "I try to contact the school counselor and find out about the youngster. If the school feels some good can be accomplished by going to the parent, I'll contact them."

"The concern about the value lost is real, but I feel greater concern about the individual involved. Many times it's a first offense, and if I were equipped to handle it properly I might do the youngster a lot of good, he says.

Hallman insists, though, that the majority of people in his store are honest. "I've had some call me three days later to tell me they didn't believe I'd charged an item to them that they had taken home."

At Wonder Drugs where 2 percent of the gross volume is estimated as falling prey to shoplifters, Lou Goldfaden generally calls the parents. If he doesn't get the kind of response he'd like, he calls police.

"But the police can't do anything unless you prosecute, and I won't even prosecute adults. It's bad for business."

Fred Ritter now agrees, and adds that it doesn't do much good either.

Four people entered the Town Shop prior to Christmas last year, separated and went into different areas of the store. When they left, Ritter noticed four pairs of pants and a $130 leather coat missing.

"I called State Police and they alerted Waterford. The people were picked up coming out of Montgomery Ward at the Pontiac Mall with another $150 white leather coat," he reported.

"I asked for my coat and three pairs of pants back for the Christmas sale and the police kept one pair of pants for evidence. When I got the merchandise back, I didn't know it then but that dropped the charge from a felony to a misdemeanor and a couple of weeks ago it was thrown out of court for lack of evidence," Ritter said.

Goldfaden says he one time apprehended a young girl that two of his employes said they'd seen take merchandise. She returned later to the store with her parents, who denied her involvement and he lost a customer.

Another father, he remembers, kept his son at home for a month and made restitution for the item taken.

Goldfaden expects a certain amount of shoplifting because of the self-service nature of the store, yet, he says, people won't buy if the merchandise isn't out where they can touch it.

He reports one woman whom he knew confessing to having taken merchandise over a period of time. "She said she did it just to be caught, but she never was. I don't know. I'm sure she used the merchandise."

Goldfaden considers illegal drug use in Clarkston a worse problem than shoplifting, but he thinks shoplifting continues to get worse. Hallman thinks it's no worse than it was three or four years ago.

Several area merchants have been subject to outsiders who work a fast money changing deal leaving the store

$10 short in cash. Usually handled with a $20 bill, the process involves several money exchanges and the store always loses, they report.

Junior High girls get the blame for most of the jewelry items and cosmetics missing from various stores. Fitting rooms are watched at the Town Shop and so far no one's been caught.

One merchant deplors the practice of some parents in dropping junior high children off at a shopping center and leaving them there for most of a Saturday.

"If they live ten miles away, they should be in the store only if they're shopping," said Goldfaden of Wonder Drugs.

At Rudy's Market, everything from candy to cigarettes and cosmetics disappear. "Some people pay for two items and have a third in their pocket," says Rudy Schwarze, owner.

"We're pretty fortunate in Clarkston," he says. "We get a suspect and we watch him. One boy stole something last week while the police were in the store. He got a good bawling out and maybe he won't come back."

Rudy is philosophical. "With the kids, it comes in batches. We'll get a whole new batch next September. Adults aren't too bad now. They've got money, but if there's a depression it gets worse. Kids steal for the thrill. A lot of the time they've got the money in their pockets."

Items disappear at Bob's Hardware, but Bob says he's in no position to say who's doing it. "We try to follow the customers pretty closely," he said.

Hallman remembers the time a woman with a long coat and big boots was in the store looking over an electric razor display. He heard a thud and wandered over to see that a razor was missing from its box.

"We stopped her at the door and sure enough she had the razor in her boot. I would have liked to turn both her boots upside down to see what else she had, but I didn't," he remembers.

"This problem, it ain't hay," Hallman says.

Mary and Tom Miller of Deer Lake Road share common birthdays as well as a marriage. This year Mary planned a surprise party for Tom's celebration, and unknown to her he was doing the same thing.

They both invited friends and like Mary says, "Everybody we invited had hysterics the whole week."

It was a Saturday party, the the couples' common birthday falls on April 1, April Fool's Day. Mary relayed, "One couple we'd both invited was absolutely sure they'd drive up and find the house dark with a big April Fool sign on the door."

Didn't work out that way at all, and the party was a double success.

Saw my first Independence Township Recreation League "little guys" basketball game Saturday, and it's really something to see those little twerps, some of them not much over three feet high, zing by those baskets and plop in winners. I liked what I saw of the coaches, too. They're playing all of the kids, no matter their expertise, it appeared from where I was sitting.

John Sackrider, Jaycee president, is out and around. Injured in a car accident during one of those horrible snow storms last winter, he's still got some plastic surgery to undergo and a cast to be removed from his left arm. It was nice to see him out.

Joan Peters checked at Farmer Jack's supermarket Monday morning and was told no beef had been sold all morning.

Looks like the boycott is really taking hold, she said.

Pine Knob Neighborhood Girl Scouts spent Saturday at the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club picking up litter. There were probably close to a hundred girls working, we're told. Nice effort.

A man, reportedly driving a van stolen from Schwartz Creek, was apprehended and shot by Michigan State Police Monday morning near the White Lake Road-Dixie Highway intersection. Police had few details, however they said he ran from the van after it had been pulled off the road. The as yet unidentified driver was taken to Pontiac General Hospital for treatment.

Fire stations of Independence Township are no longer bottle collection points for Bottles for Building, according to Fire Chief Tink Ronk. All bottles should go to the township hall, he implores.

Clarkston teachers, during their in-service day Friday and the kids' free day, heard a variety of topics which included the open classroom, individualized instruction, teaching the bright child, mathematics activities for learning mathematics, social studies learning center in the classroom, behavior modification techniques in the classroom, and reading concepts from kindergarten through the sixth grade.

There were also workshops dealing with video-tape recorders, overhead transparencies, bulletin boards and behavior motivation.

Sounds like the teachers had a full schedule — one that may pay off through the classroom.

Mary Muscat of Robertson Court wandered in Friday morning looking dazed, but not dead.

She'd just been to the bank to check her safety deposit box and found it sealed with her obituary.

Turned out it was actually the obituary of her mother-in-law, another Mary Muscat, who died in February.

It was only after Mary said, "Hey, look people. The blood's running. Let me in," that the bank relented.

She checked in to tell us, "If that's any indication of how the rest of the day is going, I'm going home and stay there."

Columnist Jim Briney has become a penny a week contributor to the "penny tree," the one we're going to plant in the new township park. At that rate, we'll have our tree in no time at all. Thank you, Jim, and you, too, you anonymous contributor who I think I know who you are, but I'm not really sure.

Like one of the cards said, "I know that you believe you understood what you think I said, but, I am not sure you realize that what you heard is not what I meant."

We're at $4.84 on the pennies. The new township park tree keeps getting healthier and healthier. And speaking of things that grow, the daffodils in the Saile yard have popped out to join the new fading crocuses, and the magnolia tree is full of buds. Spring — isn't it wonderful?

First we had Miss America, then Miss Universe, then Miss Teen Age America, and now there's a contest for 3 to 17-year-olds. That's right, I said 3. The International Pageant System is conducting auditions at 2 p.m. Saturday, April 14 at the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel in Detroit.

The release says, "Girls in the younger division (3-6) will be judged on their poise, personality, ability to take direction and beauty."

Somehow the whole idea of getting 3-year-olds engrossed in beauty and poise and all that stuff is vaguely repulsive.

Morality is cheaper

If more parents knew where their Junior High School age daughters spend their free time, it's possible merchandise prices might be reduced in a number of stores.

Store owners, without exception, put a large portion of the blame for the alarming amount of shoplifting on junior high girls.

One merchant specifically decries the trend that lets parents drop off children at a shopping center for the afternoon. In his eyes, such a practice is only an invitation to trouble.

Shoplifting is hard to control. Goods are set out in reachable positions, and prosecution for thievery is difficult and can mean lost customers.

Two percent on gross volume is the figure most merchants attribute to shoplifting losses. That can come to a considerable sum in large turnover stores.

The cost, like the other costs involved in operating a business, are passed on to the honest customer. We're put in the position of subsidizing thievery.

It would be far less expensive and far more moral to do what we can to stop it, and that includes keeping an eye on the kids.

The Grinch swiped Lent

The Grinch has stolen Lent. Father Robert Fox, a South Dakota priest who writes for the Catholic Weekly, said so in a front-page story.

People just aren't doing penance for Lent the way they used to.

The trouble started 7 years ago when Vatican Council II said it would no longer be a mortal sin if Catholics didn't fast and abstain during Lent. The council didn't say they should no longer do penance in Lent. It simply gave them the element of choice without fear of being zapped into hell for eating meat twice a day.

Father Fox pointed out there are many ways of doing penance besides giving up martinis. You could give your time and money to helping a poor family, for instance. This could please God more than putting a black cloth over 6 bottles of gin on Ash Wednesday and then drinking every drop during the Easter parade.

Lord knows I'm no expert on religious matters (He knew before anyone else). But I think too many people grew up associating Lent solely with not eating as much as they ate the rest of the year. Or not eating what they like the most, such as on the old meatless Fridays (also stolen by the Grinch, according to Father Fox).

I remember my childhood Lents. No candy for almost 2 months. No ice cream. No swiping peanut brittle from Grandma's tin box.

But the Lenten penance I remember most had nothing to do with eating. I used to get up at 5 a.m. and go to early Mass and Communion every lousy day in Lent, even Saturdays. Wow,

They do grow up

by Jean Saile

The other morning I told my teenage daughter the next time she got out of bed mad at me to ignore it.

"I haven't got the energy to listen," I said.

She's our fourth teenager, and probably she's going to be deprived or something, but she giggled.

Of course, she's been taking lessons all these years from the three older Sailes on "how to drive your parents nuts without really trying as you traverse life's 13 and 14-year-old phase."

She could be an expert if we gave her half a chance, but she's nowhere near got the leverage that a first child in the family has.

About three years ago I decided it would all come out in the wash.

Having taken the eldest daughter shopping for years and been subjected to tearful tantrums and scorned advice, I took both of them out one glorious day.

The eldest chose the first dress she tried, and the younger, who had been doing that for years, was discovered in a fitting room, her eyeballs awash, moaning to the fates that nothing looked good on her, and all I wanted her to try on was "dumb" stuff.

I looked at the eldest and said, "You handle it. You're fresher than I."

She's the same girl who asks me on occasion which of two outfits she should wear. I point out one, and she tells me it never looked good on her and why do I always want her to wear clothes she looks awful in?

What parents don't realize is that this is more of the same syndrome that started back when the kids were five. They'd come in from play and ask, "What's for dinner?"

I learn, maybe slowly, but I learn, and my answer became, "What's the difference? You won't like it anyway."

There are times to ignore a fight.

I can remember walking 12 feet behind my stoic mother, hoping nobody would think I was her daughter. She never let on she thought anything was amiss.

It permitted me to become the glorious martyr, an orphan on my own out facing the cruel world.

We have recently introduced a rocking chair to the office and one of my cohorts hung a sign on it reading, "Psychiatric counseling — 5c."

There are a lot of conversations emanating from it about young teenagers.

For 5c I answer, "Hang in there. Fight only on the vital items. Hold firm. Don't give up the ship. Time will bring you either relief or a nervous breakdown."

By Jim Fitzgerald

It was awful getting up that early but the exalted feeling was worth it. Such exemplary behavior made me feel like Moses descending. Walking home, I would command the puddles to part.

It would sound great to say I performed this rugged penance for the glory of God. But it would be a lie. Actually, I did it to make the nuns proud of me. It was the only chance they got all year. I think they regarded my Lenten performance as a real miracle.

It wasn't just that I showed up at Mass. But I had to be in a state of grace to receive Communion. That meant there could be no sins on my soul. Confession was only once a week, on Saturday. If I did anything bad in school, the nuns would know I had fallen from grace, thus making Communion impossible unless I snuck off to another church and they'd never believe that story anyway. Besides, God sees everything. So I had to be good in school every day in Lent.

This was definitely not a normal state of behavior for me, but I did it.

And the nuns would sit in the front row at early Mass and glow in the candlelight as I walked solemnly back from the Communion rail. During classes, the nuns would give me warm looks and pat me on the head. This made me feel good. I was sure it made God feel good, too. Lenten penance was OK with me.

Today there are so many Catholic schools closed. There is a great shortage of nuns. I don't earn many pats on my head and I'd never expect a puddle to part.

The Grinch has stolen a lot of things. It is a shame.

Letters to the Editor

Thanks to firemen

Dear Editor:

On March 18, 1973, at 6:19 in the morning, the Clarkston Fire Department received a call that our Lodge was on fire at 6696 Dixie Highway. As you may recall that day we had one of the worst blizzards our state has experienced in several years. Under these conditions, one might expect total disaster. However, these men accomplished one "whale of a job."

I especially want to thank them for their concern over our personal records.

They took it upon themselves to save documents which could never, under any circumstances, be duplicated. For this we are truly grateful and very proud of our Clarkston Fire Department.

It is our dream now to restore our building. When we do, you can rest assured that our doors will be open to the Clarkston Fire Department for the job well done.

Yours Truly,
J. W. Greene, Secretary

Excellent article

Dear Mrs. Hecker:

I am writing in reference to your very excellent article concerning Springfield Township that appeared in the Clarkston News - Progress Edition of March 22, 1973. Your summation of the work that has been accomplished by the Planning Commission and Township Board gave the readers a capsule view of the Township's Planning Program.

As I am certain that you recognize, good communication with the residents through the local news media is extremely important. Work such as yours should be complimented as contributing in a positive fashion to achieve this goal.

Many thanks for your fine article and please feel free to contact me if you have any questions.

Sincerely,
Sterling/Lehoczy/Kilroy & Chihan,
P.C.

U of M asking questions

To the Editor:

We invite Michigan residents to express their views on how the University of Michigan can contribute still further to the people of Michigan.

The University is defining its role in meeting the future needs of the State. Accordingly, we are reviewing many aspects of higher education, such as: Will more older citizens desire to attend the University? Will there be greater concern that the University attract students from all sectors of the State's population? Will the citizens of Michigan prefer to contribute to the University's support indirectly through taxes or directly through tuition payments?

Please give us your ideas about what changes in the total environment in the next 10 to 20 years will require adjustments in the University. What external pressures and new opportunities must be anticipated? What change should be made in services provided by the University to the people of Michigan? Even the briefest response will be warmly welcomed, but it would be particularly helpful if you can indicate how your experience leads to your predictions.

Please address your letter to Professor Claude A. Eggertsen, 4124 School of Education Building, the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104, or telephone him at 313-764-5496.

We hope to hear from you in the near future.

Sincerely,
Robert C. Cares, Claude A. Eggertsen, Ann E. Larimore, Richard D. Mann, Maurice J. Sinnott

Tell it to Bob

by Bob Brumback

Clarkston Schools Special Services Director

I attended one day of a two day conference recently that dealt with the prevention of delinquency and neglect. It was really sad to hear the assembled "experts" rehashing the issues and again not getting to the answers. There is no question that answers are difficult to find for drug problems, runaways, behavior problems and the other issues facing communities. But that is not an excuse for failing to get to the prevention issue and at least arriving at some possible ways of preventing specific problems.

I think the public sits back and expects that existing agencies and institutions are doing all that they can to develop prevention programs. Yet most every agency and institution is geared to dealing with the problem after it occurs and spends very little effort on prevention.

One major reason for this is the tremendous demand for services which realistically leaves very little time for prevention, yet the prevention job must be done!

The situation will not change until the public gets interested enough in prevention and organizes to work on prevention. The public seems to assume that agencies and institutions communicate frequently on needed programs and services. In actuality most agencies and institutions "do their own thing" with little attention to outside influences or research.

Probably the most powerful influence on developing resources in any community is public demand. When the public finally gets interested in an issue and starts voicing its interest — action occurs. Independence center developed out of local concerns and is an outstanding example of what a community can accomplish when it takes action.

I have found that public laws often dictate local action rather than the identified needs of that community. This week the legislature is considering an issue that would mandate schools providing information on venereal disease within the school curriculum. It is unfortunate that the legislature has to even become involved — the local community should be clamoring for such programs, and working with the school administration to develop the programs.

It seems that every community should have some means of looking at itself and deciding what its priorities are in dealing with community problems. We do it with land use, building codes, garbage disposal, traffic patterns and many other areas. Why not with the social problems facing individuals, families, agencies and institutions? I wonder if the different representatives of agencies, institutions, service clubs, parent groups and student groups would be willing to listen to each other and plan cooperatively how to prevent some of the problems facing us.

There are many responsible efforts presently going on in Clarkston aimed at dealing with human problems. I do not intend to put these efforts down. Nor do I mean to imply that there is one answer to all problems. I do mean to imply that I personally see a lack of appropriate cooperation in utilizing available knowledge and resources in the prevention area. Along with the many assets of this community, I think we have our serious deficiencies. I would just like to see an honest sharing of the resources in this community at a time that parents and students are included and see what good can be accomplished. What do you think?

Is and ought

The "Mystery of the Gum Drop Dragon", a play put on by some 30 members of Mrs. Barbara Glover's reading classes, was performed several times for parents and fellow students at Clarkston Elementary School. Among those taking part were Jana Chestnut as the princess, Lynne Johnston, Lusa Vaara and Karen Dutcher as ladies in waiting, Lew Sanborn, the magician, and Jim Willoughby and Paul Adams as guards.

Oakland County leaders have received information from Congressman Steven D. Symms of Idaho's 1st District, urging support of the National Right To Work Foundation, Inc.

The non-profit foundation, established in 1968 is trying to prevent union dues from being used for partisan political purposes.

The issue is being raised because people ought to be able to work without political obligations. And, I suspect, because the unions so lopsidedly favor one party. (Last election they kicked in some fifty million congressional campaigns and the McGovern effort.)

Nationally and locally the past election provided firm evidence that union dues supported candidates who did not enjoy union members' support at the polls. That is to say, union leaders collected the money of duespayers and gave it to candidates the members did not vote for, or wanted least.

To be sure, labor leadership is not alone in the practice of big money influence in politics. But it provides a most flagrant example of leadership doing what it pleases, regardless of the desires of those it claims to represent.

Several Political Action Councils have cropped up which attempt to influence lawmakers in this state. So far they don't have the clout of the U.A.F., or the A.F.L./C.I.O. Partly because they don't have as much money. But largely because they are gutless; backing only incumbents, or foolish; (to be polite), backing only ill prepared challengers.

In either case, it is unfortunate that so many resources are being wasted by distribution so discriminate or indiscriminate, as the case may be.

State Representative Dan Angel has introduced legislation in the Michigan Legislature to eliminate strikers from receiving welfare benefits while on strike.

Angel says he has nothing against workers airing their grievances or entering into arbitration for better conditions, but, at the same time, he believes the public at large should not be expected to pay for it.

Should the Representatives legislation meet with support, perhaps union officials will have to cancel all that money used to support politicians into the strike fund.

Baseball season warming up

The Independence Township Recreation Department will begin player registration for Summer '73, Junior Baseball, Monday (April 6) in all nine Clarkston schools.

Last year over 700 boys registered to play summer baseball and all but 39 were organized and placed on teams in the 49-team, 5-league program. This year additional managers will be available and the Recreation Department's new leagues and age levels will mean that between 800-900 boys will be given the opportunity to participate. The Recreation Department will make every attempt to place each boy on a team.

Before teams can be organized, all boys must register. Cards will be in each school by Monday, Apr. 6 and collected at each school at 3 p.m. on Friday, April 13. Cards will also be accepted through the mail but must be postmarked on or before April 13.

The player selection process (draft) will take place at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 18 at the Independence Township Hall.

Several important changes over last year's programs have been made by the department and will be discussed at the first Official Managers Meeting April 11 at the Township Hall.

"It is important that all managers attend this meeting to be informed concerning the player selection process on April 18," said Bob Davidson who is returning as baseball commissioner for the Department.

Would you know a pheasant if you saw one? The most common type in the United States is rather large. The male has long tail feathers and his length is about three feet in size. He may be brown, orange-red, yellow, black, or all of these. His head and neck are steel blue, and the breast is golden red. The female is about two feet long with darker brown and black markings. The pheasant is a coveted hunting trophy and a gourmet's delight but also may seem to some too beautiful to kill!

Pfahlert wins opening sail meet

By Brooke Bennett

Twelve hearty souls launched their boats for the opening of the sailing season on Deer Lake last Sunday and the three scheduled races were sailed in beautiful weather conditions.

There was some talk over a slight lack of wind, particularly in the second race, but "it could be snowing, you know" was one glib quote.

Swim-a-thon to raise Y funds

In order to raise money to buy physical education equipment, an energetic group of students, men, women, and community business people are sponsoring a swim-a-thon at the North Oakland YMCA.

The Swim-a-thon consists of hundreds of children and adults swimming as far as they can with local sponsors, neighbors, relatives, and businesses putting up anywhere from 10c to $10.00 per length completed.

Sponsors may put a maximum on their pledges.

Persons interested in swimming or acting as a sponsor for this healthy and worthy cause may get more information by calling 335-6116.

The results of the day were tallied at Race Captain Vince Luzi's house afterward with the help of a "mini computer" and Bill Pfahlert in his Pintail was overall winner on corrected time.

Second place went to Jim Falardeau in his Sunfish, and Bud Volberding was third in his Shark Catamaran — which proves the point that all boats have a real chance.

If you've got a boat with a sail on it, join the Deer Lake Sail Club, and enjoy the outings.

The next scheduled race day for DLSC members will be May 13. Information is available from Commodore Bill Pfahlert at 625-2043.

You might even ask how his crew (daughter Debbie) fell overboard Sunday. Cold? You bet!

Things to know before you go

Watch your weight

To enjoy your trailer or camper fully, it's important that you avoid problems caused by overloading.

For that reason, when you're shopping for your unit, you'll want to consider weight factors carefully.

Trailer

Weight factors to consider in trailer-ing.

It's necessary that you keep the total weight of your unit—towing vehicle, trailer and equipment—within legal weight limits.

There are three weight factors to be concerned with:

(1) Gross Trailer Weight. Weight of the empty trailer plus whatever payload it will be carrying . . . including extra batteries, water, propane, food, clothing, etc. . . everything not included in the manufacturer's dry weight figures.

(2) Dry Trailer Weight. Weight of the empty trailer. Make sure that optional equipment such as stoves or propane tanks are included in the "dry weight" figure. Otherwise, they must be considered payload.

(3) Tongue Weight. The weight that pushes down on the hitch at the tip of the tongue—this is the weight that your trailer adds to the rear of your vehicle.

It is essential that the Gross Trailer Weight and Tongue Weight do not exceed the rated capability of the towing vehicle. On trucks, twice the tongue weight should be considered as part of the payload.

Your trailer dealer can give you the Dry Trailer Weight. But you'll have to determine the Gross Trailer Weight and Tongue Weight for yourself. This can be done easily at a nearby business which uses scales to weigh its own vehicles. To determine Gross Trailer Weight, weigh your towing vehicle first, then both vehicle and trailer. The difference is Gross Trailer Weight. For tongue weight, disconnect the trailer and place the tongue only on the scale with the coupler at hitch ball height.

Rigging a Camper

Weight factors to consider in a camper pickup. There are three main factors to consider in rigging a camper pickup: the Gross Vehicle Weight Rating (GVWR), weight distribution, and Gross Axle Weight Rating (GAWR).

• Gross Vehicle Weight Rating is the maximum loaded weight at which the vehicle can be operated. It includes the pickup itself, camper body, options, recreational equipment, supplies and people. This total weight should not exceed the GVW rating of your pickup. To be sure, weigh your loaded unit before you set out. (Trucking companies and sand/gravel companies have scales.) The GVWR is indicated on a safety certification label located on the door frame on the driver's side of the vehicle.

• Weight distribution. Most of an empty pickup's weight rests on the front axle. But when you add your camper coach, the biggest portion of the weight will be on the rear axle. Therefore, as you load your camper coach, make sure the weight is distributed so that approximately 25 to 30% of the total vehicle weight re- mains on the front wheels. (Make sure you do not unload the front axle.)

• Gross Axle Weight Rating is the maximum capacity of each axle, measured at the ground. (This rating, is included with GVW Rating, on the certification label.) The weight on either axle should not exceed the Gross Axle Weight Rating, as indicated on the safety certification label. Note both axles cannot be loaded to maximum capacity at the same time since the total weight on the ground would exceed your truck's GVW. You should weigh your truck to determine if your axle weights are within GAWR limits.

'Pop' Tent Is Quick Aid To Outdoor Fun

If convenience is the name of the game at your house and your coffee is instant, your waffles come come out of a toaster and your trash is mashed, why should you struggle with an old-fashioned tent when you go camping?

Get the handiest, most versatile tent that ever graced a campsite—a Thermos brand Pop-Tent. This distinctive, igloo-shaped tent is ideal for family fun, swinging singles and roving retirees.

Even those who are all thumbs can cope with a Pop-Tent and get it to pop into shape so it's ready for occupancy within two or three minutes.

It requires no stakes and can even be moved once it's up. Available in two sizes, the seven-foot one sleeps two; the nine-foot model, four. The smaller tent comes in red or gray; the larger one, in gray only. A carrying case makes either size easy to stow when not in use.

The waterproof sewn-in floor is a cinch to keep clean and the zippered door and window have storm flaps and complete mosquito netting for privacy and comfort.

Remember the Pop-Tent isn't just another tent—it's also a campsite saver, an instant cabana, an extra bedroom, a shelter for boat campers, a portable home for families who fly to their campgrounds.

Equipment check is a must

- Carry only essential items. Consider leaving those items at home which can be purchased as you travel—food, for instance. Before a trip, check your gear and eliminate items you never seem to use.
- Place heavy articles, canned goods, tools, etc., as low to the floor as possible. And in pickup campers, as far forward as possible. This keeps the center of gravity low so your rig isn't top heavy; makes it more stable, especially on curves.
- In a trailer, keep most of the weight as close to the axles as possible. If it's too far back, it will cause the front of the trailer to lift. If it's too far forward, it will increase tongue load.
- In a pickup camper, most of the load should be carried ahead of the rear axle. If you load too heavily behind the rear axle, weight will be taken off the front axle, disturbing the handling capabilities of your pickup.
- Make sure your load is balanced side to side, also. Distribute heavy items so that one side doesn't carry a heavier load than the other.
- Place lightweight items, such as bedding and clothing, in high cabinets or in the cab-over section of a pickup camper.
- Secure loose items to prevent damage and weight shifts which could affect vehicle balance.
- Keep emergency items, flashlights, flares, first aid kits, etc., in a place where they can be reached quickly.
- Be sure to take essential equipment along. Tools like an axle jack and 7/8 in. wrench for the LPG tank. And a power cord, plastic water hose, pail . . . drain hoses for sink and toilet. Include spare gas lamp mantles and spare bulbs for outside lights.

Get the facts. You'll go Midas.

Recreational Vehicles: The four basic categories

Today, thanks to the big selection of Recreational Vehicles that are now available from many independent sources, any family can get just what its needs, tastes and income require. All you have to know is what's available and where to find it. This brochure is designed to tell you just that. Below is a run-down on the general types of Recreational Vehicles available . . . your basic choice—with the advantages of each.

Which type meets your needs?

You'll find there are four basic categories of Recreational Vehicles: (1) Trailers towed by car or truck; (2) Removable camper bodies for pickup trucks; (3) Non-removable bodies for truck chassis; and (4) Off-road 4-wheel-drive vehicles. Here's a quick look at each category.

Tent trailer advantages: Low initial cost. Easy to store when not in use. Light weight. Low profile. Frees car for side trips.

Travel trailer advantages: Luxury and roominess. Usable in all weather. Convenience features such as running water, toilet, stove, heater, refrigerator. Cars can be unhitched for side trips.

Generally, trailering requires that you increase your tow vehicle's towing capabilities with special equipment. The right equipment for your needs can be ordered with one of Ford's Trailer Towing Packages and standard or optional equipment.

II. Removable Camper Bodies.

Pickup campers are a popular way to go, for either on-or-off-road use. Between trips, the camper body can be removed with a minimum of trouble, leaving the pickup free to be used for daily transportation.

There's a broad selection of removable camper bodies available, built to suit all sizes of pickups, with sleeping accommodations for as many as six people.

Pickup box covers, also called "caps" or "shells," are ideal for protecting recreational gear, providing shelter and informal sleeping facilities at low cost, and for extra storage when towing a trailer.

III. Non-Removable Bodies For Truck Chassis.

Three basic types are available —

Camper bodies which are mounted directly to the truck chassis. These camper bodies are bigger and roomier than the removable, slide-in camper bodies. A body up to 14 feet long can be mounted on a long-wheelbase pickup chassis. A walk-through passage between body and cab is usually provided by the camper manufacturer.

Advantages: Low center of gravity for greater vehicle stability. More interior room than slide-in campers.

Conventional motor homes constructed directly on a heavy-duty truck chassis. Advantages: The driving compartment and living quarters are under one roof. You get maximum roominess. Some motor homes provide facilities for sleeping up to eight. Completely self-contained for comfortable living on extended vacations.

Mini-motor homes are cut-away Vans with a modified special camper body attached. Advantages: Often self-contained like the motor home, it sleeps up to six. Compact size makes for easy driving and maneuvering.

Van and Club Wagon Conversions offer many of the comforts and conveniences of a motor home, or mini-motor home, with compact size and second car versatility. (See pages 10 and 11.)

IV. 4-Wheel-Drive Vehicles.

If you aim to trek into secluded, back-country campsites, this is your kind of vehicle. Tough chassis components, high ground clearance, and four-wheel traction allow sportsmen to get into areas that conventional two-wheel drive vehicles can not reach.

Mall show draws many enthusiastic campers and would-be campers.

R-V Rental Plan For Occasional Campers

For the stay-at-home family that hits the road too seldom to justify the cost of a complete RV rig, rental may be a convenient answer, according to International Trucks, a major manufacturer of recreational vehicles.

Rental on a weekly basis runs between $75 and $125 for travel trailers, $65 to $90 for fold-down camping trailers, $125 to $200 for truck and camper combinations and $225 to $350 for motorhomes. There will also be an extra 8 to 12 cents a mile charge when the towing vehicle is part of the package or when you're renting a motorhome. Basic rates tend to be lowest on the West Coast.

Under most rental agreements, the driver pays for his gas, must get phone authorization for repairs of more than $25, and must pay a deposit refundable upon return of the vehicle in good condition.

If you decide you want to rent a recreational vehicle, some comparative price shopping may help.

Retired Couples Selling Homes To Follow the Sun on Wheels

By JACK VINCENT

"Let's sell the house and get away from it all" is a sentiment more and more retired couples are acting on. With early retirements and larger pensions on the increase, a lot of people find they now have the time and wherewithal to "chuck" the house, the lawnmower and snowblower and fill the urge to travel.

Many are electing to do it with a motorhome. Motorhomes are self-propelled vehicles which offer all the comforts of home and are an ideal way to travel.

As one retired couple in the Grand Teton National Park put it, "The motorhome allows us to go where we want, when we want and to stay as long as we want."

"My husband and I enjoy the flexibility our motorhome gives us," another lady reported. "We can winter in Florida or Southern California, or both. During the other months we travel to various places in the north and occasionally Canada, taking time along the way to make extended visits with our son and daughter and the grandchildren. Sometimes we even take them along."

While some people maintain small apartments to which they return, others find that the comforts of a modern motorhome make any kind of permanent residence superfluous.

Leonard's a new man

By Betty Hecker

Leonard Kelt

"I'm so proud and happy to be alive," said Leonard Kelt.

Last July, Leonard suffered a complete kidney failure. His body became so poisoned, that for two weeks after his admission to University Hospital in Ann Arbor, the doctors didn't offer much hope for his survival. Today, Leonard said, "Thank God for the kidney machine and all the wonderful doctors. I only wish there was a machine like it for cancer."

In 1944, Leonard, his wife, Leiva and their six-year-old daughter, Eva, escaped from Estonia, a Baltic State in northern Russia. They crossed the border into Finland, and still fleeing, escaped in a small boat into Sweden. While in a displaced persons camp, he went to school, studying and graduating as an engineer, a designer of automotive engines. With this degree and skill he was allowed to come to the United States, arriving in Detroit, and going to work for the U.S. Army Arsenal and Tank Plant in Warren, Michigan.

Starting in the position of designer, Leonard has worked hard and in eighteen years has been promoted to the highest rank, supervisor of the engineering department.

Over the years, Leonard has received many certificates of commendation from the Department of the Army for sustained high quality, ingenuity, and resourcefulness.

Then, the doctors recognized that Leonard suffered from high blood pressure. In July he became very sick. The kidney disease that almost killed him does kill 50,000 Americans each year, the fourth largest killer in America.

Leonard said that there are over 8 million Americans suffering from some degree of kidney disease, and many of these 8 million are not even aware of it.

"I promised myself that when I was able, I would help others. Now I'm out of the wheelchair, and a couple weeks ago, I threw away my cane. Today, I'm walking, slowly maybe, but I'm walking, and I can drive a car. Maybe I can drive someone for their treatments. I must do something!

"I can talk to people, explain what happened to me and maybe in some way, I can help educate others and make them aware of the disease. They might be saved," he says.

Leonard was saved by the kidney machines at the hospitals. Now, Leonard and Leiva don't have to drive to Beaumont Hospital three times a week for the 5 to 7 hour treatment. After several months of training under a doctor, they learned to operate the machine themselves.

Two weeks ago, a kidney machine was installed in their home. Local businessmen were contacted to install the needed extras. C. R. Anderson Plumbing put a sink and water in the room. Arnold Electric installed the special electrical circuit for the kidney machine hookup.

"To be homodialyzed is not painful, but you can't move around, you're hooked to the machine," said Leonard. So he contacted another local man from Clarkston Furniture and Appliance and got a new bed and television for the treatment room.

"I died last year. Now I have a new life, I'm a new man!"

Cancer drive starts this month

This April the American Cancer Society's annual educational and fund-raising Crusade is expressed in a great wish—"We want to Wipe Out Cancer in Your Life-Time."

Behind that wish will be a lot of hard work, and Basil N. Caverly, newly-appointed chairman of the Independence Township ACS Crusade, will be the local pilot.

"We'll try to make that wish come true in two ways," he explained, "first we'll be asking our friends and neighbors and families and absolute strangers to have annual health checkups including important cancer tests; then, our volunteers will ask people to fight cancer with whatever they can afford, so that the American Cancer Society's vital programs of research, education and service to the cancer patient, can continue and expand.

People in Independence Township will be in line for some of the 45 million copies of the Society's 1973 leaflet, "Annual Checkup—It's a Lifesaver," as the Crusade gets underway. This pocket-sized item includes a handy checklist to remind people of the ingredients of a checkup—and an appointment memo blank to remind people to have that checkup.

"That's our plan of action," the Independence Township Crusade Chairman said, "and the thinking behind it is very clear. Today, without learning one new thing from the research laboratories, our physicians have the knowledge that could save 100,000 more cancer patients each year.

But, early diagnosis and prompt treatment are the only way to achieve that goal."

Springfield Township electors approved an annual $191,553 budget Saturday by a vote of 19-4 at the annual meeting.

Major sources of revenue include $124,000 from property and sales tax, $15,000 from the federal revenue sharing program and $13,000 from the building department fees.

Township salaries hiked

There's no male chauvinism in Independence township.

Electors at the annual meeting Saturday gave Treasurer Betty Hallman a $1,770 raise to $14,770 to bring her to equity with Clerk J. Edwin Glennie.

Glennie, like all other elected township officials, had been awarded a 5.5 percent increase, in his case, $770.

Supervisor Robert Vandermark went from $16,000 to $16,880 and Trustees Keith Humbert and Jerry Powell will receive $1,471 each for the year as opposed to $1,400 previously.

Setting of salaries, times and dates of meetings and approval of the budget were the main items on the agenda as 40 people turned out for the annual session.

An advisory vote in which 24 voted yes and the rest abstained, asked township support in killing proposed multiple development at the north end of Deer Lake.

The question of rezoning for another 229 acres to apartments in the area is due for presentation April 12 to the Independence Township Planning Commission.

That added to $24,728 left in the general fund plus income from a $10,000 time certificate provides the general framework for income, according to Supervisor Claude Trim.

Disbursements planned in the budget include $11,000 for the employment of an assessor; $6,000 for the supervisor's salary; $5,600 for the clerk's salary; and $5,000 for the treasurer.

Trim, who has served as township assessor, said, "I can work more for the development of the township" if the assessor's job is separate from the supervisor's office.

One of the largest allocations of money is $27,500 for road repairs and maintenance. Another $13,000 has been set aside for police protection and $12,000 for fire department expenses.

Electors also allocated $2,000 used to pay Marlowe's Land Fill in Rose Township so that Springfield residents will have some place to dump trash.

The Parks and Recreation Commission asked for $14,500, but Trim said that when the roads are so bad, there can be no extras. However, the sum of $7,500 was allocated to parks to be used for ball diamonds for the Little League.

Trim added, "What we need here is community action, manpower and volunteers."

Another $12,000 was allocated to the building department, primarily for salaries.

Paying for the telephone, the utilities, the street lights, and all the other expenses, plus buying a new fire truck and a new voting machine raises the total of the budgeted expenditures to $201,800.

Springfield Township legal notices will henceforth be printed in The Clarkston News and the Holly Herald. Trim said, "We will be doing a lot more advertising this year. I feel that the Oakland Press (formerly used for legal notices) is out of our area."

Tax mix-up straightening out

Electors at Springfield Township's annual meeting were told the delinquent tax mix-up in the township is just about straightened out.

Supervisor Claude Trim said, "There are just a few loose ends. The state will contact us shortly about the audit."

Treasurer Margaret Samuel, who said she had not read the story—a report of several Springfield taxpayers whose payments had not been credited to their property—responded:

"If the supervisor had presented me with a proper set of books—there were so many lot splits and description changes in 1970."

She added, "I do not want any township money and would never take any."

Trim replied he did not believe any fraud was intended, adding, "This is a tough job, a hard job and it takes a lot of paperwork."

Waterford Hill case goes to Appeals Court

An appeal of the Waterford Hill shopping center case has been approved and filed with the Michigan Court of Appeals, according to Township Attorney Richard Campbell.

In addition, a stay previously ordered by the court has been continued which will prevent Developer William Gershenson from proceeding with construction of a K-Mart and related facilities until the case is heard, probably within nine months to a year, Campbell said.

Gershenson and Waterford Hill Country Club Inc. sued the township when a referendum overthrew zoning action by a previous township board to allow commercial development on the golf course.

Circuit Court Judge James Thorburn found the zoning denial indefensible at that time and has since denied a motion to amend his order based on a township ordinance change.

At the time of his original decision, Thorburn stated that were the zoning ordinance to permit operation of a private golf club, he would reconsider. The ordinance was so changed, but Thorburn has refused to reopen the case, according to Campbell.

The matter is now completely in the hands of the Court of Appeals, Campbell said.

Rummins' house is elegant

by Betty Hecker

COUNTRY LIVING

Today's house has fourteen rooms and three and a half bathrooms. Each room reflects elegance and a life style of grand country living.

The house at 62 Robertson Court was built in 1940 for a family named Clark. This was their summer home, and they lived here three or four months a year, spending most of their time in California. Mr. Clark had lived and worked in China and brought this Chinese influence to the house.

When the house was four years old, Emanuel and Carrie Rummins bought it. They loved it — the location, the lake, and the house itself! They decided to make it their year around home.

That meant putting in a new furnace, which proved to be the first of many changes. Porches were closed in and made into rooms, a balcony was added to the second floor, and the basement was finished into a recreation room.

Each of these projects sound so easy to say or to write, but they involved major changes.

The basement recreation room caused major landscaping changes, the removal of a hill section of the backyard so they could have a view of the lake from the recreation room and a doorway access to the back yard.

The large formal living room has a full wall of bay windows overlooking the back yard and the lake. Soft gold foil wallcovering and pale green carpeting lend a mood for comfortable relaxation. The white silk French couch and the brightly flowered fireside chairs add life to the room.

The curio cabinets and china cupboards hold many memories and personal treasures. Mrs. Rummins collects china and antique dishes, and each piece has a personal story for her.

There are two dining rooms, one formal and one that they use daily. The second dining room is located in a wing of the house that gives them privacy from the street noises, and a view of their garden area. Mr. Rummins' favorite flower is the rose and he has a Bird feeders and cardinals in the trees are seen through the windows in the green and pink kitchen. Open pine china cabinets hold more collector plates, painted with flowering spices and birds.

The butler's pantry has floor to ceiling cupboards. Mrs. Rummins explained, "We use special dishes for the different seasons and that takes storage space."

Upstairs, the master bedroom has blue and white flower bouquet wallpaper, royal blue carpeting, snow white bedspreads on twin mahogany beds with matching dressing table and chest. Mr. Rummins' "pride and joy" is the enclosed balcony he built which extends off the master bedroom.

"On a summer evening, it is so lovely to sit up here, seeing all the lights reflecting in the lake, and to enjoy the beauty of it all," said Vivian Phillips, Rummins' daughter.

A painting of the Rummins' first great-grandchild, Stormy McCall, hangs on one of the walls.

One guest bedroom has matching light blue satin love seat and sweetheart boudoir chair to accent the room. Dusty pink carpeting and drapes blend with the colors in the wallpaper behind the antique bed. French doors open onto a deck.

In every room, there are flower arrangements for the seasons of the year to match the colors of the rooms. Vivian makes all the arrangements.

Ed and Carrie Rummins have been married over 62 years.

Home Gardening - by Dave Coulter

In the post war era instant foods have received widespread acceptance. Instant horticulture is in common use via the instant lawns from cultured sod and a wide array of instant well grown annual bedding flowers, but alas, there are no instant vegetables.

While many vegetables are available from transplants, they entail considerable wait before they may be harvested. About the most instant vegetable commonly grown in gardens is radishes and they can be ready to use in about 25 days. On the other end of the scale are seeded onions and late cabbage. They require over 100 days for maturity.

There's an old rule of selling that says, "Plan your work and work your plan." A home garden is a very personal thing. It must be planned to grow vegetables that please your personal taste. In drawing your plans, it's up to you to pre-select the vegetables you'd like and fit them to the site, or select your site and plan the crops you want to grow in it.

For a home garden a site must be selected that has full sun! The size of the site is limited only by your ambition or lack of it and your lot size. Generally it's safer to under plan than to over plan.

When your plans involve converting a section of the lawn to a home garden and if you have used a broad leafed weed killer the previous season such as 24D or 245T, your soil should be checked to determine if there are residual quantities of the herbicide, as many garden vegetables are very sensitive to herbicides.

To spade under sod is tough work. If your garden spot is large enough to be plowed and you have no plow, consult the classified section of the Clarkston News for a custom plow; or if the site is too large, and you're too weak to spade it and you have no rototiller, rent a rototiller.

Prior to plowing, spading or rototilling turf, or if you turn down green or animal manure, it is a good idea to apply a dressing of nitrogen because, to break down the organic material, nitrogen is required for its decomposition. If nitrogen isn't available in reasonable quantities the nitrogen will be taken from the soil and your garden will not perform efficiently.

Turning under organic material will expose the roots of perennial sod and/or weeds and if they are not turned under for decomposition they'll cause a serious weeding problem, so if they are exposed to the air they should be raked off and destroyed.

Much of your success with your garden will depend on the seed bed preparation. When you are ready to plant your garden the soil should be in a state of a fine mulch with no big clods on the surface. Generally, after plowing, spading or rototilling a good raking will put the soil in readiness for planting. When you rake the garden it's recommended that you rake perpendicular to the slant of the ground.

Be certain that your garden is not near shade trees because the root system of a tree is just about as extensive as its branch system and trees will dominate a smaller plant especially if it's sunloving. The site should be well drained as only rice likes wet feet. Saturated soils force out soil oxygen, allow the incubation of diseases of the roots and produce a shallow root system — and the plants will suffer when a drought comes.

IN Northern Oakland County there are few sites where drainage is a problem, so the site should also be near enough to a water outlet so water may be applied, especially during the pre and post emergence of the seed. Once a plant has emerged and is established, it will ambitiously seek moisture. Generally, one inch of moisture, including rainfall will maintain a good garden and during the period of harvest, not this much moisture is required.

A site as stone free as possible should be chosen for obvious reasons. It's really discouraging to be hoeing your tomatoes, have the hoe hit a stone, bounce off and chop off a tomato plant that's cost you .35c and which should produce a half bushel of tomatoes. Also, it's ill advised to plant a garden over a septic tank drainfield.

If your garden site has been established and used for some time most of what's above and what will follow may be ignored, but if after you have agonized over whether or not you'll convert your annual flower beds to vegetable beds or tear up the rose bed because you can't lick black spot and aphids, pondered over, "I can't eat bluegrass or fescue," and say to yourself, "That site should be okay; I'll tear up that section of the lawn and grow a garden," then be certain that the work starts with a drawn plan.

In the next issue we'll offer suggestions about this, the next phase of the plan.

Black Thumb Nellie rides again Marilyn Lawrence

Some of us have it, some of us don't. When one of the kids found a package of Bachelor Button seeds in a cereal box last week, there was a whispered conference.

"Do you think we oughta give them to her?"

"Nope, she'll only plant them, and that'll be that."

"One of us could sneak out at midnight and plant them — then maybe they'd have a chance, poor things."

"Aw, she'd find out when they bloom, and I hate to see a grown Mother cry ..."

My little plot of ground on Wealthy Street is called "Empty Acres" by the neighbors, who lovingly tend lush growth, blooming shrubs, magnificent blooms, and a mountain of luscious garden vegetables. Lord knows I've tried — my twelve Giant Bell Pepper plants were the tallest in the neighborhood. The Giant Bell Peppers, however, (all three of them) resembled tortured golf balls. My Big Boy tomatoes, planted to receive the morning sun were fertilized, mulched, cultivated 'til hell wouldn't have it. They grew huge, plump and green, and stayed that way 'til the killing frost, when they were buried with full honors. My watermelons were mistaken for cucumbers, my cucumbers for gherkins. I gave up on the Farmer Brown bit and turned to shrubbery and the joys of landscape gardening.

The front lawn needed shrubs. I bought eight, and went through the entire back-breaking ritual. The holes I dug for those little beauties would have done credit to an olympic pool. I took care that the little darlings shouldn't go into shock from transplanting. I coaxed, wheedled, read poetry and sang to them. Two survived, stunted and wizened, begging to be put out of their misery. My kids, thinking I needed a success experience, bought me a magnolia-tree for Mother's Day. It succumbed within thirty minutes. I bought a flat of petunias. They committed mass suicide on the trip home. I found three little maple seedlings growing where marigolds had been planted but never showed up. I lovingly transplanted them by the side of the house, just in time for Jeff to kill them with the power mower.

My Father-in-law, whose backyard resembled the Pleasure Palace at Versailles complete with two live peacocks and a waterfall, took pity on me and gave me a jar of his prized Four O'Clock seeds.

"Anyone can grow Four O'Clocks. You just need confidence, and, he whispered, "a load of manure."

I tried cow manure, sheep manure, and horse manure. I got three tired vines, and two blooms at 7:30 one evening.

"Morning Glories!" said Mother.

"When you were a child, we had a whole fence of Heavenly Blues. They'll grow anywhere, even between cracks in the pavement!" That year, (the kids kept a running count) we had twenty-eight Heavenly Blue Morning Glories bloom on the fence — all gray.

"Perennials!" said Auntie Barb. "They come up every year — no muss, no fuss!" Last fall, in desperation, I bought 120 crocus bulbs. The blurb said they'd pop through the snow, so eager were the little darlings to grow. I even used a bulb planter so they'd all be planted at the proper depth.

Yesterday I phoned my neighbor. "Louise, I counted nine little tips sprouting! Two look too healthy to be anything but weeds, but that leaves seven! Only 113 to go!"

"That's great! Did I ever tell you about my friend, Crazy Gloria, who planted all her crocus bulbs UPSIDE DOWN?"

I hung up, sobbing. I guess it's just as well. This morning Baby Cat ate them.

$100,000 for Scouts is drive goal

A program to raise $100,000 for Scouting Programs in the Oakland and Macomb County area of the Clinton Valley Council, Boy Scouts of America is now underway according to Wallace W. Edwards, Council President.

Lewis E. Wint, director, Wint Funeral Home, Clarkston, and Anton J. Guyer, director of Administrative Services for the Oakland County Board of Commissioners are heading an organization to contact parents of Scouts, Scouter and interested community friends of Scouting. The program, called Sustaining Membership Enrollment, is designed to give individuals an opportunity to support the Scouting movement with a non-active financial membership, above United Fund Support.

According to Edwards the program is necessary to supplement the money received from area United Funds which provide about 49% of the Council's annual operating expenses.

The Clinton Valley Council serves more than 15,600 boys age 8-16 in the two county area, in the Cub, Scout and Exploring Programs. Edwards said that the Council has grown from 37,000 to 73,000 available boys age 8-16 in ten years, and council membership has grown from 11,600 in 1968 to 15,600 at the end of 1972. During the same period, Edwards said, United Fund funding of the Council budget has gone from 96.2 percent in 1968 to 49 percent in 1973. In 1973 United Funds and Community Chests will provide approximately $155,000 of the $309,000 minimum council operating needs.

Daniel T. Murphy, Council Finance

Committee Chairman said "Although the United Funds are doing the best job they can, increased costs and great increases in membership as well as the demand of more boys who want Scouting have left the Council with no alternative but to seek additional means of providing the financial support necessary to do the job."

Murphy said that only complete and substantial support can avoid a major financial crisis in 1973 and enable the Council to continue its excellent progress.

Tooth Research

At the University of Utah, researchers are studying how teeth react to the constant temperature changes inside the mouth. This can range from 140 degrees (for coffee) to 35 (soft ice cream).

They believe a hot toddy may be better for your teeth than a cold dish of sherbet. Or that breathing through your mouth on a cold winter day may be harmful to your molars.

Thermal stress may contribute to tooth decay, suggests Dr. Wayne S. Brown, who has found tooth enamel can be damaged by constant hot and cold cycling. Tiny cracks appear in the enamel's surface, which may collect food, invite decay and increase the chance of fracture.

His research suggests enamel is quite strong when the tooth is heated, as during a hot drink.

"One of the worst things you can do to your teeth is to chew on ice," Dr. Brown said. "Not only are the teeth subjected to thermal stresses, but they must also withstand the physical stresses brought about by crushing hard ice."

The study also supports the idea of using warm water to wash teeth during dental drilling, when enamel temperatures shoot up. Cold water would cause sharp temperature cycles, he suggested.

Dr. Brown hopes to find filling materials that can withstand thermal expansion and contraction, to match that of the normal tooth.

Spring has sprung

Springing up
by Betty Hecker

Last Sunday, Springfield Oaks Golf Course opened officially for the new season. Jerry Lacey, the manager of the park, was a member of the first foursome to tee off, and he reported that, "the course was in surprisingly good shape, and the greens played good." Proof of the good conditions is the fact that Jerry had the lowest score he has ever had, playing a round at Springfield.

Spring has sprung for the kids, too! Kites dotted the sky all weekend.

Grant Anderson was glad he had a plastic kite, as he fished it out of the pond after his string broke.

Our Tom had his kite so high on Saturday that we couldn't see it. (The day was overcast and the ceiling WAS low, but Tom let out over 1000 feet of string).

And the words "keepsies" and "funsies" and "hunchies" and "kissies" are heard all over the playground at recess time as the marble season returns.

Helga Frey is an American citizen. On Tuesday, March 27, Helga appeared before Judge Ziem in the Pontiac Court House and was sworn in as an American citizen. She had been attending evening classes for three months, preparing for her test. "It was so very easy, just three questions, and after I had studied so hard for the big test."

"It was all very nice, quite an occasion. The League of Women voters was there to serve coffee and tea, and to register us to vote. Some Girl Scouts there gave each of us a pompon with the flag on it. Oakland County Clerk Lynn Allen gave us a book called, "Good Luck To You!"

"My father (Heinz Zahn) is very patriotic to Germany and involved in the government in his town. I didn't know how to tell him that I was now an American, but when I called him, he said "It's about time" Helga has been in America for 10 years.

Marq and Norma Harris flew to California, Marq went for business and Norma went for fun. They were in both Los Angeles and San Francisco. Norma said, "I went to Disneyland for a whole day by myself. I bought the kids some souvenirs, and did you know, they have a terrific antique shop there. It's called the "One of a Kind Shop".

Another day Norma went to Knott's Berry Farm where she saw an old-fashioned melodrama with a villain, a hero, and everything like that. She said, "It's a good thing Marq wasn't there. I would have embarrassed him with my booing and hissing.

Myrtle Andrich retired. She has worked for Federal Department Store in the foundation department for fifteen years, and last Friday was her last day.

The other employees and department heads presented her with an orchid corsage, a "money" gift, and a large cake (decorated with sugar foundation garments).

Myrtle finally got to walk out the "front door."

On Thursday, March 29, Aaron John was born to Marilyn and Roger Mulherin, who live at 4730 Hillcrest. Aaron weighs 7 lbs., 12 1/2 ozs. and is 19 inches long. His grandparents are Betty and Jack Mulherin of Lakeview Drive and Elmer and Violet Biondo of Cramlane Drive.

Violet said, "he is my first grandchild and he is just GREAT!"

About 30 people, the 7th, 8th and 9th graders from United Methodist Church went to Camp Holiday near Ortonville for a weekend retreat.

They saw films, held discussion and study groups, and fun time, too, with skits and "water" games, and very little sleep.

The chaperones cheered and shouted as the parents picked up their children after the retreat. But after they had gotten about ten hours of sleep, they reported that the kids were great and that the weekend had been worthwhile.

Fred and Janet Boston flew to El Paso, Texas for Fred's company, Cryderman Air Services. They took a quick trip across the border to Juarez, just so they could say that they had been to "gay Mexico." While there, Janet saw picture frames, very much like the ones in the Pontiac State Bank in Clarkston that are selling for $15 and $20. Janet said, "But in Juarez, they were only 60c each. I wanted to buy a whole bunch and bring them back to sell to the girls, but Fred said 'No!' "

Sorry, girls!

Carol and Ann Everett and their two children have just arrived home from their vacation in Florida. They went to Clearwater first, to see Carl's cousin, Stephan and Marie Everett.

Disneyland was next on their trip plan, plus a trip to Cape Kennedy, where they were given a tour bus ride, seeing the Gemini rockets and so many things.

At Silver Springs, they rode in a glass-bottomed boat, into a lake that was fed by several streams. The guide encouraged everyone to taste the water, claiming that it was purer than their tap water at home. Also in Silver Springs was a museum with a diorama of Paul Cunningham's "Life of Christ". The scenes were all life size and life like.

On the trip home, they stopped at Swane River, Ga., and visited Stephan Foster's home. There were moving dioramas there, portraying scenes that might have inspired him to write his songs and music.

Ann said, "We had a very good time."

Cub Scout Pack 133 is planning to have an auction sale in May. They need donations of items that have some value, so as you do your "spring-cleaning," keep the scouts in mind.

Cubmaster Glen Guilds on Big Lake Road said that he would pick up the donations, but he emphasized that he doesn't want to become a junk man.

I met a lady in the grocery store the other day. When I introduced myself to her, she said, "Oh, I know you. I see your gardening column in the paper all the time!"

"Gardening?"; I asked her. "Yes, your Springing Up column", she answered.

Well, friends, to those of you that do occasionally read these lines, could you help me find a name for this section, that will more clearly define what it is? I'll be waiting for some ideas!

The "little people" were drawn by Kristy Rice. Look for more of them in later columns.

Jim Frady will graduate from Wayne State University in June. After working in industry for several years, Jim decided to go to college to become a vocational instructor and to work with young people.

His wife, Nancy, is so proud of him that she planned a party to celebrate, and the party was to have been on St. Patrick's Day—but we all know what happened on St. Pat's Day.

The party finally did happen, on Saturday, March 31, and it was a "let your hair down after exams" type party and a buffet dinner.

Gary L. Fitch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Fitch, 5744 Hummingbird Lane, has been elected to membership in Beta Alpha Psi, the national honor fraternity in accounting, at the University of Detroit.

Michael Stephen Florentine, 6507 Amy Drive, has been designated James B. Angell Scholar at the University of Michigan 50th Annual Honors Convocation. The honor is given to those students who have earned an all-A record for two or more terms.

Gordon T. Kostin, 5475 Maybee Road, holder of 3.58 average in Architecture, has been named to the Dean's Honor Roll at Lawrence Institute of Technology.

Diane Hoff, a senior at Northern Michigan University, has been chosen to play the role of assistant director in the university's production of Moliere's "The Miser." She has had experience in Three Penny Opera, Winebago, MCT and Nostalgia Night.

Katie, her sister, will be playing the role of Dame Claude in Northern's "The Miser." Katie has appeared previously in Dark of the Moon, children's shows and in chamber music concerts. Katie is a junior.

Retired Detroit policeman Charlie Buda, a resident of the Walters Lake area for many years, died last weekend at his home in Florida. He is survived by his wife, Frances.

If J. Lekander, 8620 Sequoyah, will call at The Clarkston News, he will receive a free pass to the Clarkston Cinema showing of "1776".

Mr. and Mrs. David W. Davis were married March 3 at Sunnyvale Chapel. The bride is the former Diana M. Cornwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cornwell of Pontiac.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy W. Davis of Williamson Street. Serving as maid of honor was Pamela Reno of Union Lake. She wore cranberry velvet and pink chiffon. Betty Ayers of Waterford, Connie Cornwell of Waterford and Susan Davis of Clarkston were bridesmaids.

Michael W. Davis attended his brother as best man. Seating guests were Michael Coad and Richard VanCurler of Clarkston and Raymond Ott of Pontiac.

A reception following the ceremony entertained 250 guests.

Following a honeymoon to Niagara Falls, the couple will reside on Hogarth Street in Pontiac.

Spiritual Message

Love is the Greatest

Jesus, while talking with a lawyer, said, "Love the Lord your God with all your heart, soul and mind. This is the first and greatest commandment. The second most important is similar: Love your neighbor as much as you love yourself." These thoughts are startling! In fact, they seem so idealistic as to be of no human value — just an unreachable goal.

However, when you think of the great love of God as shown in His son, Jesus, we began to perceive a style of love that is not all that common with us. The Bible says, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only Son so that anyone who believes in Him shall not perish, but have eternal life." This is not an erotic, passionate type love, the kind that a man senses toward a woman or a woman for a man. Nor is it the brotherly type of love that knits the family together, the bond between brother and brother, sister and sister. It is something else. It is God's love, a type of love which God sent into the world because He loved and loves us — even though we are rebellious toward His goodness and just ways.

If you can receive God's love into your life, through Christ, God gives you the capacity to respond to His love, or to love God. And in order to love God, or to love back, you must also accept yourself, just as God accepts you, just as you are now — not self-improved nor remodeled, but just like you are now. When you can love yourself because God loves you, as shown by Jesus, then you, through acceptance of Jesus can love God — with heart, soul and mind. This is love at its greatest — God's love in and through us, His creation!

The Bible says, "So you see, our love for Him comes as a result of His loving us first — and as we live with Christ, our love grows more perfect and complete."

Bailey Lake second graders fly high

Edmund Getting and Billy McArthur put their heads together.

Brian Davies got some help from Ed Smith.

Mrs. Edmund Gettig was a happy woman when her team's kite actually flew.

Second graders at Bailey Lake School, some of their mothers and fathers, as well, were introduced to the intricacies of kite making last week.

Equipped with plenty of newspaper, some sticks, and lots of cotton for tails, they turned out a quantity of the high flyers, some of which actually worked.

The team headed by Mrs. Edmund Gettig got theirs into the air first.

-Kristy Rice

Liz Turnbull, her mother and Mike Matous applied themselves and the science of aerodynamics to kite making.

Some of the teams met with instant success.

Others took a little longer, but most of the kites flew.
