

1 more Saturday to get rid of trash

Residents of Independence Township still have one more Saturday, May 19, to dump unwanted trash free of cost at the Ben Powell landfill on Clarkston-Orion Road.

Usage during the first Saturday's free dumping was up 25 percent from the first day a year ago, officials said.

The landfill accepted loads from 287 pickups, 65 cars and 15 dump trucks Saturday, according to Mrs. Mary Powell.

Drop-off points, which will also be in operation this coming Saturday, also were well patronized.

The drop-off spots are the American Legion on M-15 north of I-75, the Woodhull Lake community center, the old store at Clarkston-Orion Road and North Eston and the Maybee and Clintonville roads intersection.

Only smaller, bagged items will be accepted at the drop-off points.

Six candidates seek school post

Six candidates will seek two available four-year terms on the Clarkston Board of Education in the election June 11.

Having filed by the 4 p.m. deadline Monday were incumbents W. J. Cattin, 8150 Holcomb, and Richard L. Funk, 6184 Cramlane.

Also seeking election are Iva Mae Sommers Caverly, 5800 Waldon Road; Robert Garner, 4930 Cecelia Ann; Carolyn Place, 5615 Chickadee; and Robert Walters, 6986 Church.

Absentee ballots for the election will be available at the Independence Township Hall, 90 N. Main, and may be filed until 2 p.m. June 9.

Public forum

The six candidates seeking two four-year terms on the Clarkston Board of Education in the June 11 election have been invited to appear in public forum at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 22 in Clarkston High School lecture room.

The program is sponsored by Clarkston Area Jaycees. All voters in the community are invited to hear a discussion of current educational issues, and to receive information about the proposed millage increase for the Independence Township Fire Department, also due on the June 11 ballot.

Garden Clinic

Got termites in the tomatoes or leaf rot on the roses?

Now's the time to get gardening problems answered.

Clarkston News garden columnist Dave Coulter and Tom Ritter of Ritter's Farm Market will be answering questions from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday at the market, 6684 Dixie Highway, the first annual Clarkston News Garden Clinic.

Dave, a garden seed business representative for 38 years, and Tom, versed in landscape technology, ornamental horticulture and pest control, can answer questions about a wide range of gardening problems.

An upsurge in home gardening due to the rising cost of food is expected to produce plenty of questions from beginning gardeners.

recalling some experiences of my youth.

I think Gene tried to stump me when he asked, "Did you ever pick potato bugs?"

Well, I certainly did, and I related how we'd drop them on the ground and step on 'em. Gene had a different approach to disposing both the soft and hard shelled buggers.

He carried a pail, into which he dropped his finds. One at a time killing was too slow for him as a boy. He'd pour kerosene on them and burn 'em all.

The next logical subject was tomato worms. Youngsters haven't lived until they've picked fat, ugly green tomato worms and disposed of them. Gene and I both agree we wouldn't even touch them today.

Gene did a couple things as a youth, however, that I didn't do. His dad used to take him coon hunting in the Metamora area. His description of their howling black and tan hound got me yearning, but the running through heavy underbrush, staying out most of the night, and getting up early to do chores, lessened the appeal.

Another thing I never did as a boy was go ice fishing. Apparently Dad was one of those who think it's stupid to sit on a cake of ice and fish when there's a warm kitchen at home.

While Gene was describing his father's frying the perch he'd caught, he paused and remarked, "We never had time to think about smoking pot."

So now the government is sticking its oversensitive, safety conscious nose into the bicycle business. The reasoning is that since 14 million bikes are sold each year and there are one million accidents a stronger peddle and handle bar is needed.

What is really needed is a lot less concern over us. How's about a year's moratorium on social and safety legislation. See if we can survive.

In manufacturing, printers included, there's a well traveled cartoon that shows the customer shouting at the owner, "Of course I want it today. If I wanted it tomorrow, I'd come in tomorrow!"

I attended a couple meetings this week that brought this comment to mind again. It had to do with requests for rezoning.

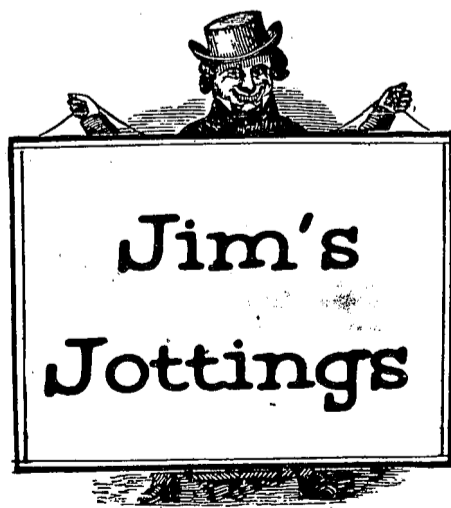

One case was Michigan Consolidated Gas asking favors in Addison Township.

They came with slide projector, a beautiful modeled mock up, nine representatives (including one brought in from Texas), bound booklets with colored pictures, and press releases.

They have been in the area some time contacting land owners in an attempt to sign agreements.

Yet, when asked what their timetable was, the answer was the same as the cartoon. "We plan to start immediately. We'll pay for special meetings. We'll furnish a bus for you to see the Consumers Power plant on 26 Mile."

Putting such pressure on the local board was really not necessary. Nor is it in most cases ... including printing.

$130,000 budget includes sewers

The Clarkston Village Council has approved a proposed 1973-74 budget calling for the expenditure of $60,000 through the general fund and another $69,350 for sewers. Last year's budget was $45,000.

The money will be raised with the spread of 15 mills in the July tax bills, 12.5 of which have been earmarked for sewers. Other income is derived from state and federal tax rebates and fee collections.

The village's current assessed valuation was reported as close to $5½ million.

Sewers will be paid for by an ad valorem tax in the village over the next 20 or so years. The ability to write off sewer costs as a tax deduction was cited as one reason for the payment method chosen. Senior citizens, due to available tax exemptions, will also be able to pay less, it was pointed out.

Some $35,500 in street fund reserves is being eyed with a view to street improvements once sewer installations are complete. No definite completion date has been given the village, but it appears it will be at least fall before sewer connections are ready.

Residents will be permitted a year to connect after the system is completed.

The budget calls for a $15,000 police expenditure, up $5,000 from the previous year. Proposed plans to add a Wednesday work shift to the existing Friday and Saturday work forces were scratched, however raises setting new hourly rate for the force on a scale from $3 to $3.75 were approved.

A 5 percent raise was also granted the village's only full time street maintenance man.

The budget also sets aside the sum of $3,819 for land improvements and another $2,000 for village hall maintenance.

School board considers bus use

Township Recreation Director Tim Doyle submitted a written request to the school board Monday for the use of school facilities and school buses for the summer recreation program.

In the absence of Doyle, recreation board member David Nadolsky outlined the request for use of school buses to provide transportation for field trip outings and day camp activities during the summer months.

Final action on the requests was deferred for further study and will possibly receive a special meeting to be announced in the near future.

ACLU attorney protests any school book banning

By Jean Bray

"When a school board allows itself to become a combatant in a book banning war, it turns its leadership over to other forces," states an opinion in the May issue of the American School Board Journal.

This view and endless others will be the topic of much consideration by Clarkston School Board members as they weigh possible action on complaints, and counter-complaints registered last month and again Monday evening on books currently on the shelves of the Clarkston High School library.

In response to the initial complaint directed at six library books in the schools during the April meeting by Edwin Manley, chairman of the Clarkston chapter of the Save Our Schools organization, another parent, James F. Peters of Maiden Street had written a request to appear before Monday's school board meeting. He was represented by Wallace McLay, an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union. Although not at this time a resident of the school district, McLay has in the past had five children in the Clarkston schools and at one time served as a PTA president.

McLay cited similar recent reading material conflicts in Rochester and Ferndale schools which had led to unsuccessful court battles and told the school board "it is our opinion that you have a loser if you decide to follow this course (withdrawing the books). I have been authorized to say the ACLU will take the battle to the courts, if necessary, to the United States Supreme Court."

In accordance with prior school policy, Manley had submitted a written Citizen's Request for Reconsideration of Library Materials, which limits the complaint to one book at a time. He chose to single out of the original six books he found objectionable, the title

Jerry Lee Lewis opens Pine Knob

Jerry Lee Lewis, the king of country-rock, will appear in live concert at Pine Knob on Sunday, May 27, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Appearing with Jerry Lee will be country music stars Joe Stampley and Jeanne Shepherd.

"Soul on Ice" by Eldridge Cleaver, Black Panther Leader.

His attached objection cited the book "tends to create a negative attitude to life, a downgrading of God and the Bible, disobedience toward the law and hatred towards the white race ... encourage children to rebut any and all authority ... lower morals with obscene language ... and extremely racist in their ideology."

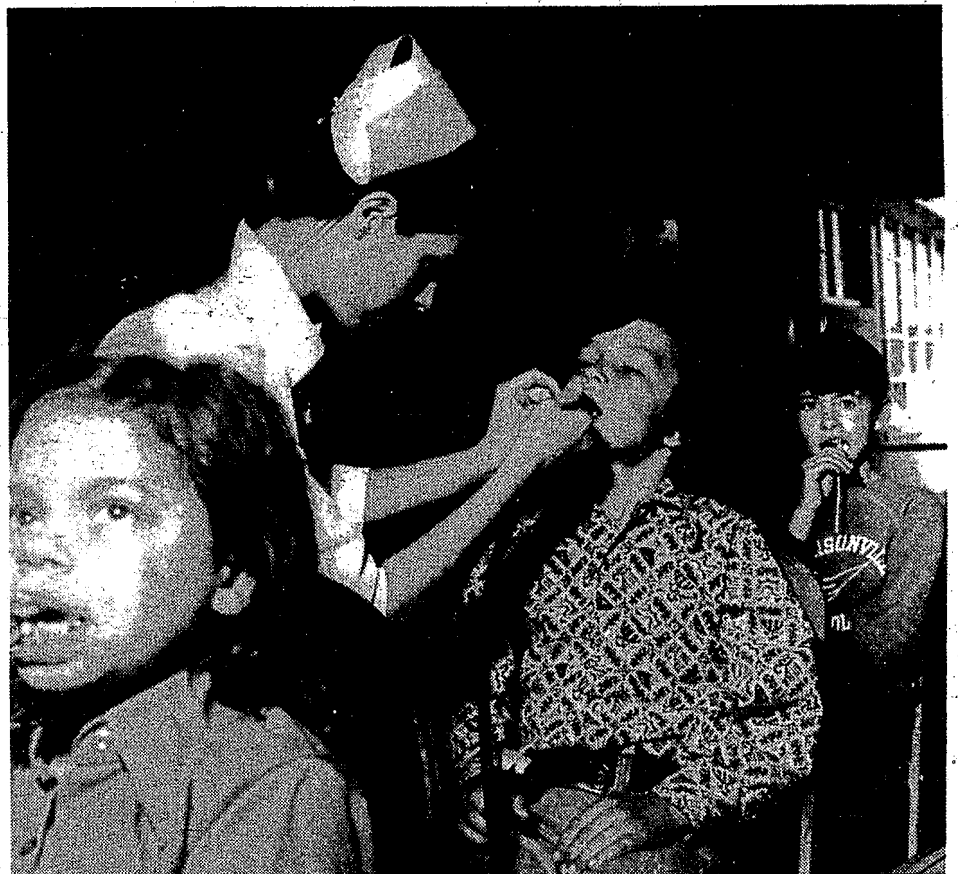

A Clarkston High School student, Michele Morouse, spoke in defense of the books disputed in general and "Soul On Ice" in particular, which she stated she had read. "I feel I speak for most high school students ... there are no words in the book my friends haven't used at one time or another. Mr. Cleaver did express hate, but he expressed it very articulately ... he is a brilliant writer."

School superintendent Dr. L. F.

Greene stated that to his knowledge these books had not been on a recommended or required reading list, but were simply available in the library. "It is an administrative rule that no one particular book should be required reading," he said.

School board members agreed they would attempt to read some of the books before taking any action on the matter. One member, David Leak, stated "I personally resent being threatened before a subject has come to issue ... but I am a firm believer that if our children are to learn the good in this world, they have to know the bad, too."

Board president, R. A. Weber, stated that "what will happen to the books will be ruled by the majority of school board members," and promised to publish the time of any special meetings scheduled to deal with the issue.

It's fluoride time at Pine Knob School. Students Teresa Powers, Brian Bates and Pracie Dryden undergo the applications from the Dental Hygienist Karen McGuire.

Motorcycle gangs hit Walters Lake

Congregations of 300 to 400 motorcycles on the weekends have been making residents west of Walters Lake unhappy.

Township Supervisor Robert Vandermark reports Oakland County Sheriff's Department deputies worked the area all last weekend when bikes were spotted from as far away as Ohio.

Vandermark said he had received a request from the owner of property at the end of Stickney Road asking the township to keep people off the property.

He said he'd talked to cycle groups from Dearborn, Flatrock, Oak Park and Detroit two weekends ago in the area. "Apparently a field near Oxford where most of them used to ride has been closed, and they've all headed this way," Vandermark said.

"Two weekends ago it looked like international headquarters out there for every motorcycle gang in Southeast Michigan. When they start coming from Ohio, that's unreal," he added.

Complaints have been received in past years over use of the area by motorcycle riders; however, Vandermark figures usage has gone up about 40 percent each year.

Beach keys available

Beach keys for the Deer Lake swimming beach are now available to township residents for $5 at the Independence Township Recreation Department, next door to the Independence Township Hall.

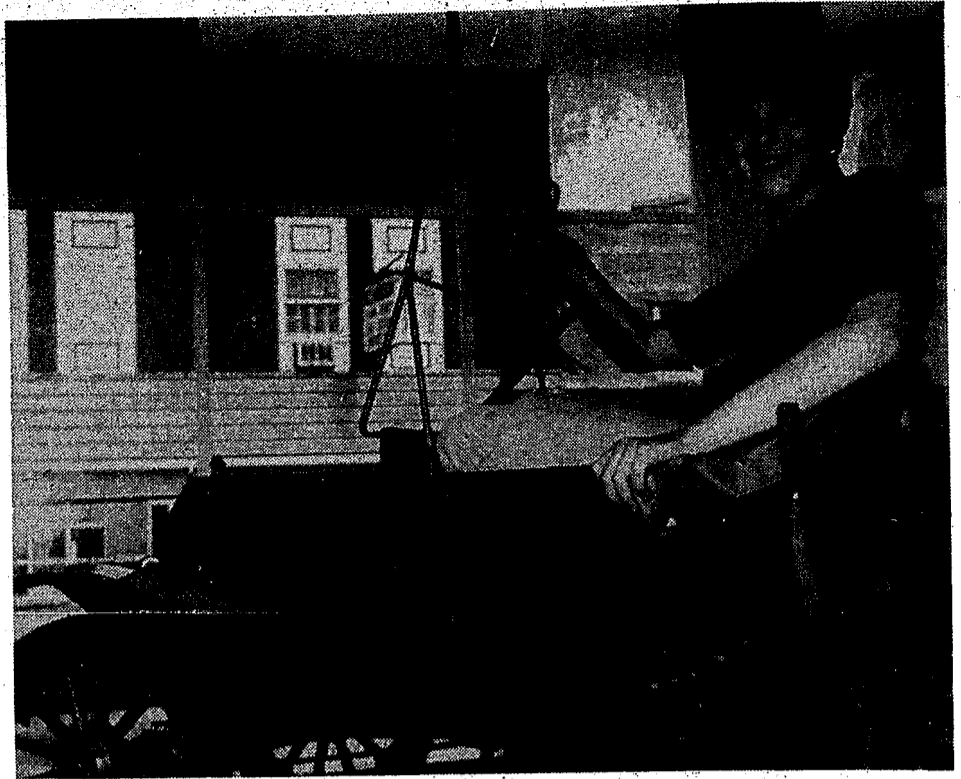

Boating keys are not yet available, however Recreation Director Tim Doyle assures that the boating gate will be open when the beach opens May 28 and will remain open until the keys are available.

Making preparations for the Clarkston Elementary School Book Fair May 24 and 25 are kindergarteners Julie VanCleve, Shelli Ledogar, Steve Morris and Alan Allard. Books will be on sale each day at the school until 5:30 p.m. The sale is sponsored by the PTA.

Clarkston News Garden columnist Dave Coulter checks some early sprouting corn. He'll be appearing in the First Annual Clarkston News Garden Clinic from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, May 19 at Ritter's Farm Market, 6684 Dixie Highway. People with gardening problems can get their answers from Dave and Tom Ritter.

Larry Wright, winner of The Clarkston News subscription contest four weeks in a row, gets the feel of automobile ownership. He's got a firm grip on the 3 horsepower miniature Model T which will be presented to the winner May 26. The race for other prizes remains wide open. There's a second prize choice of a black and white 12-inch television set or a bicycle; third prize choice of a tape deck or AM-FM transistor radio; and fourth prize rod and reel.

Please, please take large throwaway items to the Ben Powell landfill on Clarkston-Orion Road, says Jerry Powell. Despite announcement that only smaller, bagged items would be accepted at the drop-off points, Jerry says there's washing machines, couches, you-name-it, that have been dropped off and that he has to haul back to the fill. As long as it's loaded, take it to the landfill. Saves time and expenses all the way around, Jerry says.

One local mother, it having been Mother's Day last Sunday, got the loving message, "I'm so glad you're my mother, otherwise you'd be a perfect stranger."

Betty Hecker, our intrepid Springfield reporter, admits she got her feet and yards mixed up in the story about gravel for township roads last week. It was supposed to have been 47,000 cubic yards of gravel needed for county roads and 9,000 cubic yards needed for subdivision roads. That comes to 56,000 cubic yards, which at $4 per yard, makes the cost $224,000, as reported.

Chuck Ferrero of Prologue has had sweet revenge. Commissioned by Clarkston Junior High School teacher Dave Bihl recently to locate a book entitled "Donald Duck Revisited," Chuck claims he spent hours before determining there was no such book.

Last week his assistant, Fay Collins, attired as a little old lady wielding a cane, attacked Bihl during a new sex education class and sent the school into an uproar.

The practical joke almost bombed. Fay couldn't get into the building by the route she'd chosen, and while she waited for a conspirator to open up, she spent her time leaning against the locked door and twirling her cane.

A stranger to the school was a bit non-plussed, she said, when he inquired directions of her.

Mrs. Elsie LeVigne, recently named a teacher vice president of Sashabaw Elementary PTA, is the first president of the organization, as far as records show.

We had a missive this week asking whatever happened to the Wetlands Ordinance for Independence Township. The ordinance was adopted April 10, printed a week later and takes effect May 19. It sets up a permit system for those desiring to build on wetlands.

Despite a recent letter to the editor in The Clarkston News, township officials say the new employe count at township offices is not up more than two from a year ago. Some positions have been changed and the employes are now represented by union so costs have increased, but as one official said, "This is a growing township and you've got to expect some increase."

We're $9.20 on the pennies, thanks to our penny giver and a 3 cent contribution from columnist Jim Briney. The tree is getting closer and closer.

Fire Chief supports millage request

Guest editorial

By Fire Chief Frank Ronk

On June 11 it is hopeful that you will be going to the voting booth to cast your vote as an interested citizen in your community.

The issue on the ballot will be whether the residents of Independence Township want to pay $15 to $20 more a year to purchase modern and much needed fire engines and equipment.

At the present time we have no engine that we can depend on to replace a front line engine that may have to have repairs, or be put out of service for one reason or another.

We have three fire stations in our township and the end of this year we will have only two engines that will be rated as front line for insurance purposes.

The reason we are in this condition is we must live within the one mill voted millage which has been very inadequate for the last few years. All of the monies have been used to operate and keep what equipment we already had in repair.

We have each year asked for monies for new trucks and other equipment, but there has been no area from which it could come. We have purchased a rescue truck and grass fire — rescue combination truck in the last two years.

The big problem at the present time is fire engines and tank trucks to supply water in areas where there are no fire hydrants.

The growth in the area has come upon us quite suddenly and if we are to update our equipment we must have additional funds.

There are many questions as to where these funds can come from, but as the Fire Department has experienced in the past, it has to come from the people and be earmarked to fire service only. The way it goes for just that.

The firemen live closer to the fire needs of the community than anyone else, and it is their belief and desire that the mill be asked for and that the people support it.

They lay their health and life on the line for you whenever they respond to a call. It seems only right that they should have the best equipment to serve you.

There was little or no opposition to having the special election for this needed vote, so I have to feel all are in agreement as to the needs of this department.

The Fire Department in this township has operated and performed in a manner it can be proud of under the direction of the former chief. Now we are at a point where we are looking at a more dense population with many more varieties of construction.

With each building built, we have a greater protection area and more alarm potential. It has reached the point where we are responding to more than one alarm at a time, more often than ever before.

In a community of our size it would be a real tragedy to answer the emergency phone and have to dispatch a truck from six miles away when the call is but two blocks from a fire station.

It is hard to stretch just enough equipment for two fire stations to adequately maintain three stations. The age of most of our trucks is such that they have become too old to be even near-safe as an emergency vehicle.

I would say that the Fire Department as your representative for providing the best fire protection possible should be your guideline when you go to vote for the safety of your home and family.

I guess what I am trying to say is that if you want good fire service, you should vote "yes" June 11.

If you really feel you will never need the service and don't care how efficient or adequate it might be, then let your decision at the polls be that.

Cooperation applauded

When a taxpayer forks over, he seldom thinks of so much of the pile going for schools, so much for township, so much for village and so much for county.

He's interested in getting services, and that's why we applaud a trend developing in this area.

Independence Township is now doing building inspections for the Village of Clarkston. The fee has not been hiked for villagers. They, too, are taxpayers of the township.

Engineering and cost plans have been ordered for a joint venture between the schools and the township. Sidewalks near schools, a measure needed for student safety, will result.

The Fire Department serves and has served equally the people of the village and the township.

We feel that local officials are overcoming the jealous prerogatives of office through mutual cooperation. Too often, in other areas nothing gets accomplished because individual jurisdictions use the out, "That's not our responsibility."

In this area the officials are beginning to look at problems and say, "That's our joint responsibility."

It's refreshing, and over the long run it's going to be economical and progressive.

A lazy man for all jobs

By Jim Fitzgerald

As 1 of the world's laziest men, I feel vindicated by the Watergate stinkeroo.

It was just last month that the New York Times reported on the long, hard hours worked by the White House staff. For instance, the Times said about H. R. Haldeman:

"Up before 7 o'clock, at his White House desk before 8, back home 12 hours later, he is the epitome of the nose-to-the-grindstone man the President likes, admires and appoints."

Obviously, what this country needs is a 2-hour grindstone in the White House, with an hour off for lunch and plenty of coffee breaks. Those guys are working too hard. If brilliant men such as Haldeman and Erlichman ever start working 24-hour days, the Republic may not survive.

It would make me feel good to learn that Elliot Richardson is the kind of guy who sometimes doesn't get back from lunch because of an exciting game of 8-ball.

I would like to read that Richardson goes home at 5 p.m. every evening and yells at his kids to stop watching TV and come to dinner. I hope there is a secret FBI report somewhere that says Richardson does no constructive work on Saturdays but instead goes to baseball games or simply sits in the woods and watches the squirrels squirrel around.

I am particularly concerned with Richardson because of a unique employment technique recently instituted by President Nixon. Whenever there's a big job open, Nixon hires Richardson. Within the last 5 months, in this order, Richardson has been secretary of health, education and welfare, secretary of defense and attorney general. These are 3 of the most important positions in the United States, which certainly makes Richardson an important man, possibly even 3 times as important as Haldeman.

Through his use of Richardson, Nixon is putting the lie to the old bromide which says you shouldn't judge a man's performance until he's had time to learn his job. Or sometimes it is put this way: "Wait until he gets his sea legs."

Richardson was secretary of defense for only 3 months. This is hardly time enough to locate the pencil sharpeners and to learn which stenographers welcome a little leering. In the parlance of the sea, Richardson was still up-chucking over the rail.

But Capt Nixon spotted something about Richardson's short performance as defense chief. It made Nixon think Richardson would make a good attorney general. Good enough to justify the sudden loss of leadership to the defense dept, just as the generals were beginning to learn what time Richardson liked his coffee served and his bombs dropped.

Politics works in wondrous ways. I don't pretend to know what Nixon knows about Richardson. But I think our president is on the right track. Perhaps Richardson should be appointed to ALL of the administration's top jobs at the same time.

Then he should be instructed to take it easy. Stay home 6 or 7 days a week and go fishing a lot.

What this country needs is more sloth in the White House.

Center says thank you

Dear Jean:

We at independence center would appreciate the opportunity to thank publicly some wonderful people who have given us a whole lot of support recently.

May 2, the Clarkston Village Players, under the capable direction of Jean Hendricks, presented a most impressive performance of "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" with the proceeds going to our center.

John Witherup and his supporting cast of girlfriends created a very entertaining evening at the depot theatre and we are thankful for the cooperation received from the players and those who attended the performance.

Another impressive independence center benefit project took place May 5 when the Clarkston Area Jaycees held their Walk for Independence which attracted approximately 200 students and "young" adults.

Observing the long line of marchers that set out from the high school that morning and watching them limp back several hours later, I was tremendously impressed with the willingness of the many young people to give so much of themselves.

These two projects, the Players' benefit performance and the Jaycees' Walk for Independence are the two most recent examples of how the people of Independence Township have enthusiastically supported our center.

On behalf of the Board of Directors, our volunteer workers and the many local folks we continue to serve, a sincere and warm thank you is extended to the Clarkston Village Players, Ron Rule and his Jaycee Walk Committee and the many students who gave so generously in support of the work we are trying to do. It's great to be associated with such wonderful people.

Now they're famous!

Dearest editor,

Simply can't thank you enough for giving us our start, so to speak. Since la Hecker's marvy article, offers have just been flying our way.

The subdivision association all got together and surprised us with a hanging in effigy. And we were honored at the recent annual meeting of the American Society of Exterminators. They named a newly discovered variety of roach after me, Yuckiensis Congoliensis. Isn't that dear? There's plans afoot to have my oven declared a national disaster area. but you know how long THAT takes!

And just imagine—they heard about us all the way in New Yory City! I was so flattered, I cleaned all week. The picture did turn out real good, tho. Artley, y'know takes a bit of getting used to; but they just got the real him right off, like.

Sure hope you don't think I've gotten high hat or anything, what with my new

The board of health promised to lift the quarantine next Tuesday. I think that inspector who replaced our dear Mr. Grimley is a silly alarmist. After all, nobody dies of bubonic plague nowadays.

Happy Mother's Day

by Jean Saile

There isn't a bed back home on the farm that didn't have a homemade quilt.

I can remember my mother and the women of the Sidewood Social Club getting together, their tongues flying as fast as their needles, and turning out gems of craftsmanship.

For a time quilting forms, made by my father, sat in the big upstairs front bedroom and whenever mom could spare a minute, she was up there quilting.

The old patterns, Wedding Ring, Ocean Wave, and Necktie are familiar, and it was with delight that I ran across Mrs. Harold Arnold last week who practices the old art.

The tiny, numberless stitches that go into a quilt are hard to believe in today's do-it-fast lifestyle. What a feeling of satisfaction there must be when at last one of the beauties is done.

Crocheting also absorbed a lot of mom's spare moments and ecr-colored door hangings, dresser scarves and antimacassars adorned much of our living room.

That, too, is a disappearing art. How she found time for these projects is a mystery. This was a woman who baked bread twice a week, was capable of putting on farm breakfasts, dinners and suppers for a full field crew, kept a garden, did a copper boiler wash every Monday, and canned most of the food we ate.

She also, in her time, assisted with the cow milking, fed the chickens, gathered the eggs and raised a family, even finding time during the evenings to play word games and Monopoly with us.

Maybe it's not just the arts that are dying out. Maybe it's the women with the stamina like mom had, and still has to a lesser degree.

And anyway, this is the week of Mother's Day, and I'm hoping she had a happy one.

Reading ok'd for high schools

The Board of Education Monday voted to institute a reading program in the junior and senior high schools.

The initial program to begin next fall will involve 315 students, according to an outline of the program by Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara. There will be 105 students selected from each junior high school and the high school.

The course will replace the regular English program with no addition of teaching staff since qualified English teachers will simply devote a portion of their time to the new program.

To be under the coordination of Gordon Keller, the total cost of the program including materials, teaching salaries and related expenditures is projected to be about $6,800.

Everett Butters will recite the Gettysburg Address

For the 30th year, Everett Butters will recite the Gettysburg Address at Lakeview Cemetery during ceremonies marking Memorial Day May 28.

Rev. Robert Walters, pastor of Calvary Lutheran Church, will be the main speaker.

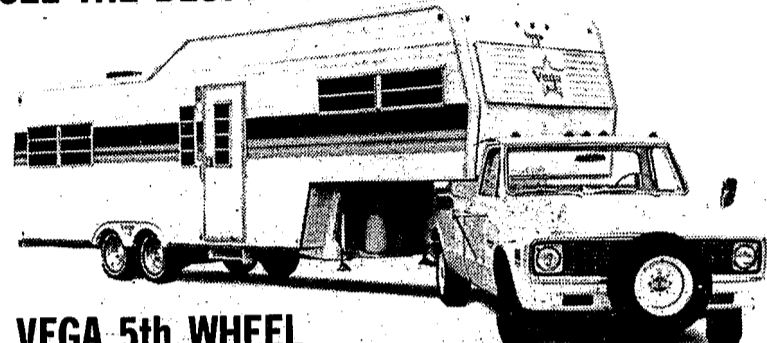

The cemetery rites will follow a 10 a.m. parade through town. Marching groups interested in participating are asked to call John Lynch, 625-3994.

Lynch says that in keeping with the spirit of the day no old cars, floats or decorated bikes will be permitted.

He did ask that any veterans, whether they belong to a group or not, participate in the parade.

The American Legion will be decorating the cemetery, placing a flag on each veteran's grave, on Sunday, May 27, Lynch said.

School boundary changes planned

A change in junior high school attendance boundaries is under consideration by the Clarkston Board of Education.

It has been proposed that students along M-15 north of Cranberry Lake and another group around Greens Lake in the southern part of the township attend Sashabaw Junior High.

The shift from Clarkston Junior High would increase Sashabaw enrollment to 1,051 students at Sashabaw. The school is capable of serving 1,100 students.

Behind the Counter

From Keith
Hallman

Continuing last week's summary of information on prescription drugs:

You're wasting your money if you pay for a doctor's advice and then don't follow it. Follow his precise instructions: there's always a reason (sometimes several) for his orders. It may be important to take a drug only after eating, or only before eating. The medicine may not work properly unless taken as directed.

Tell your physician if any new symptoms develop. He may change the size or form of dosage, or the doctor may wish to try another drug to treat your condition.

Don't stop taking a prescription drug after you begin to feel better, unless your doctor says so. Not enough of the required medicine may be worse than none at all. For instance, taking less than the prescribed amount of antibiotic allows either the "bug" or your body to become resistant to it.

If your doctor says you can stop taking a drug before it is all used, destroy the remaining portion. Many children have been poisoned by swallowing leftover medicines carelessly put aside by adults. And drugs lose their potency, or change their effects, when stored for a long time.

When you first get up in the morning, count out the total number of tablets or capsules you are to take and put them aside. Then you can tell whether or not you've already taken your medicine for that day and you avoid overdoses.

Don't trust your memory—and never take a medicine in the dark, no matter how sure you are about it.

Tell it to Bob

by Bob Brumback
Clarkston Schools
Special Services Director

Mr. Brumback's article on child discipline is continued from last week.

3. Identify what you can expect from your child. Do not assume that everything he does poorly is because of his disability. Plan your actions with the child according to what you can expect and this will help him learn to do the same thing. It is important for the learning disabled child to learn to be realistic about expectations but it is also difficult and takes a lot of structured practice. Observe behavior of the child and write it down. Don't assume anything about your child. You cannot protect the child from hurt but you can structure positive experiences that condition a positive self-image.

4. Look at how your child operates with you and others. Does he irritate others? Can he get under your skin easily? Can he cause himself to be defeated easily? Can he stimulate problems between you and others? Do you know how to get relief from his without causing a problem? If you can answer these questions positively, then look to see how your child participates in getting reactions from you. This leads to the next point.

5. Don't neglect your personal needs! If you go to pieces or give up, your child loses. Know your own needs and capacities. Seek your personal rewards from other adults—if you have wrapped your whole life in your learning disabled child, you are doing him a disservice and everyone around you. If you find your involvement with a learning disabled child has led to other problems in the family—don't just blame him—some problems will occur naturally, but don't hide your own personal problems behind his disability.

6. Do not use your child in your own problems. Children sense when they are being used in adult's problems and it gives them bad messages about themselves. Parents need to communicate well to successfully handle any children. Learning disabled children can learn to set up parents to give them negative feedback without the parents realizing it. If you are well structured ahead of time regarding your involvement with your child, you will reduce the likelihood that he will set you up and cause you to respond to him in a negative way. It is natural for parents to look for feedback about themselves from their children but it is very important to be realistic about this feedback. Do not over expect from the learning disabled child. It is important that the parent of anyone, much less a learning disabled child, look at their total environment for positive feedback about themselves.

7. Be an advocate—not an excuse. Differentiate between supporting behavior and supporting the disability. Mistakes are acceptable not tantrums. Assist in the coordination of outside involvement with your child—don't replace it. This relates to medication, evaluations and school placements. Be a teacher with your child but not in the sense of replacing the school. Your job is to teach self-acceptance and self-control.

8. Medication — what are its benefits to the child — to the rest of the class—to the parents—to other family members? Children with anxiety and aggressive tendencies are especially benefited by medication. If medication is utilized, the parents must take the responsibility for seeing that it is consistently applied and for noting the behavioral effects with the child. If the medication has negative effects or no effects, this should be dealt with immediately and adjustment made.

I would like to point out that I do not consider myself an expert on learning disabled children. I am still learning in this area. In my professional involvement with family therapy, I see more and more families with identifiable learning disabled children but find that they are dealing with the other problems that have developed. In the school setting, I also find that learning disabled children are just now being planned for and disabilities are often disguised by other problems. It is going to take a great deal of planning by both the school environment and the family environment to really deal the learning disabled child and his problems adequately. Hopefully, some of the above-points will help.

Clarkston was site of state's first trout hatchery

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources in a recent issue of "Topics" paid recognition to the 100th birthday of the Fisheries Division and cast some limelight on Clarkston.

The bulletin gave recognition to N. W. Clark as one of the early pioneers in fish culture and noted that he'd started a private trout hatchery at Clarkston as early as 1867.

From "Recollections of My Fifty Years Hunting and Fishing" by William B. Mershon, a book in the collection of Tudor ApMadoc, comes the full story.

Seymour Bower, superintendent of fisheries in Michigan for many years, wrote a letter to the author.

"As to the first planting of trout in Michigan, I confess I do not know, but there is no doubt that the first efforts in the way of hatching and raising brook trout in this state were made by N. W. Clark, of Clarkston, Oakland County. This was during the first season or possibly the second, following the close of the Civil War; that is, the trout hatching season of '66-'67 or '67-'68.

"His trout plant was small and in the rough as compared to a layout like that at Paris today. It was located near Clarkston depot, about two miles southwest of Clarkston Village. The water supply was quite limited, drawn from one or more small spring creeks.

"The first trout I ever saw were in his ponds at that point; though I had often heard my father, who came from York State, tell about catching brook trout from brooks near his home in Tompkins County.

"Clark also built a small hatchery in Clarkston village, in a gorge or valley below the millpond, mainly for hatching whitefish and salmon, the water being a gravity flow from the pond above. A small supply of spring water near this hatchery also enabled him to carry a small pool or two of brook trout, mainly I suppose for experimental and exhibition purposes.

"Clark had no previous experience in fish culture but gained what information he could by personal interview with Seth Green and an inspector of Green's layout. Green also supplied Clark with his first trout eggs and coached him in the business, which proved successful as a fish culture enterprise on what would now be considered a small scale, but it was not a money maker.

"However, it was sufficiently promising financially to induce Clark to seek another location affording a greater supply of spring water, so in 1873 he pulled up stakes and transferred his activities to Northville, where at that time there was an available supply or flow of spring water amounting to 300 to 400 gallons per minute.

"Now, either from his own production or purchase of eggs elsewhere, Clark must have had something of a surplus of trout fry or fingerlings for sale or planting, from the Clarkston work, prior to 1870, but if so I have no definite information as to what became of them; and it is doubtful as to whether the facts covering this part of his early work can be dug up."

Farmers advised to save pheasant eggs

It's a bit late for Easter, but Lower Michigan farmers are being asked to keep their eyes peeled for eggs—of the pheasant variety—during hay-mowing, plowing and other field operations this spring. Department of Natural Resources wildlife biologists are especially concerned about hay-mowing because this operation causes most pheasant nest destruction.

Pheasant eggs submitted by farmers will be examined to determine when laying and incubation began, as part of an effort shared by the DNR and Michigan State University. Through this program, researchers hope to find the optimum time for hay cutting... the time when hay nutrient levels are at a maximum, while the potential for pheasant production damage is least and alfalfa weevil damage can be minimized.

Those finding unbroken eggs should contact their county agricultural extension agent or DNR representative, who will take over from there.

Keith L. Heezen, DNR wildlife biologist, says the program should yield useful data regarding the effects of changing hay cutting dates. These data may take on greater significance if a talked-about program, in which farmers would be paid for wildlife restoration and habitat changes, is implemented.

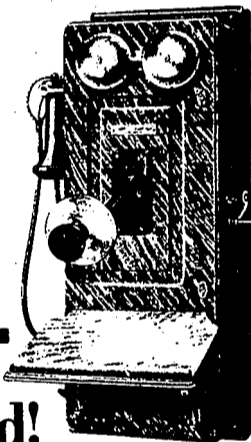

"Paying the farmer to delay her mowing two weeks may help increase the potential pheasant population," Heezen explained. "Data derived from this program will indicate the nutrient loss such a delay would mean to the farmer, and he could be paid accordingly."

CHS spring sports hit by rain

Steve Mauti, whose set was finished.

By Roger Zander

The Clarkston baseball team is having some trouble with Mother Nature. So far this year, ten games have been rained out. The Wolves did manage to play a few games during the first couple months of the season. Their record is 6 wins and 6 losses.

In the first game of their doubleheader with West Bloomfield last week, pitcher Dave Partlo dropped his fourth game of the season 2-1. The Wolves almost won the second game but the Lakers came on strong to win 7-3 in extra innings. Larry Miracle was the losing pitcher.

The tennis team is not having one of its best showings this year. The racketrats have a disappointing record of only three wins and seven losses. The tennis team has also been bothered by the wet weather. Their schedule is going to be tight the next couple of weeks because of the rained out matches that were rescheduled.

Last Thursday the Wolves lost to Waterford Mott and then dropped another match to West Bloomfield on Friday.

Steve Rose, one of two seniors on the team, is having a pretty good year. Steve is a three-year veteran and has a 6-4 won-loss record in doubles competition. Steve and his partner Lewis Pope were victorious against Mott but were among the losers in Friday's match.

On the track scene, the Wolves scored another W-O win on May 10. The victims were the Clarenceville Trojans. The CHS thinclads ran them off the field by the score of 84-39.

At the Wayne State Invitational, Dan Thomas won the pole vault competition with a vault of 13'8". Dan is a 1972 CHS graduate who is now running for the Highland Lakes OCC track club. Dan also picked up a couple of 3rd place trophies for the 440-relay and the mile relay.

7th, 8th grade track team posts 2nd win

Clarkston Junior High's 7th and 8th grade boys track team scored their third win against one loss by defeating Sashabaw Junior High last Monday night by a score of 83-44. Clarkston picked up 12 of 15 first places and set several school records in the impressive win.

The 880 relay team of Jim White, Ken Ballard, Geoff Becker and Mike Beyer set a new record with a time of 150.2. Mark Baker set a record in the 60 yd. dash with a time of 7:1 sec., Greg Moore broke the record in the 440 yd dash with a time of 61.6 sec. and Duane Davidson broke the 60 yd. High Hurdle record with a time of 9.8. Sashabaw's three first places were from Blower in the 880 yd run, Hammett in the mile run and Thompson in the 220 yd dash.

On Friday, May 4, the 7th and 8th graders defeated West Hills Junior High by a score of 93-33. Their third win was over Orchard Lake Junior High on Thursday, April 19. In that triangular meet they lost to Abbott Junior High but defeated Orchard Lake for a second place finish.

9th grade trackmen roll over Sashabaw

On Friday, May 4th Clarkston Junior High's ninth grade track team scored their first win of the season defeating West Hills 9th grade 97-26. The Wolverines took all 15 first places in the meet.

On Monday, May 7, CJHS dropped Sashabaw's 9th grade by a score of 97-25. Clarkston took 11 first places in scoring their 2nd win against two losses.

Clarkston's losses this season have been against West Bloomfield by a score of 105-18 and to Milford by a score of 78-43.

So far this season several new 9th grade track records have been set. Wayne Thompson set the long jump record with a jump of 19 feet 3 inches. Tim Westover broke the high jump record with a jump of 5 ft. 5 inches and Paul Glozinski holds the 2 mile record with a time of 11:15.

Jobs still available

High school and college students interested in applying for summer jobs with the Independence Township Recreation Department have until May 25 to do so. Positions are still open for playgrounds, playground supervisor, day camp coordinator, and part time lifeguard help.

Golf league needs substitutes

The John McAuliffe Ford women's golf league, a group for beginners, is meeting at 10 a.m. Thursdays at Waterford Hill Country Club and can use substitutes.

President of the group is Bernie Green. Mary Racine is vice president and Kay Patterson secretary-treasurer. Those interested in playing are asked to contact Kay at 373-6371.

SPORTS Go-Round

by Jerry Savoie

The glider is a sport for the rich and the daring. The glider is a heavier-than-air motorless plane. Technically, this sport includes both gliding and soaring. In ordinary gliding, the craft is constructed so that it constantly loses altitude never rising above its starting point. In soaring the craft may reach points above where it took off. The glider is a delicately constructed engine and requires a quick and skillful hand for the best maneuvering.

Tennis for adult beginners

A new class for adult beginning tennis lessons starts Saturday, May 19 at Clarkston High School. Designed for adults 15 and over, the 8-week program will cost $8.

Another $2 will, however, assure players membership in the tennis club which permits future lessons at a discount and makes available literature and free tournament play.

Sue enters state track meet

Sue Latter, CHS track star

Sue Latter goes to the state track meeting Saturday in East Lansing and according to her coach, Errol Solley, she has a good chance of winning.

Sue won the 880 and 440-yard dashes in the Girls Regional Track Meet recently in Madison Heights. Her times were 2:22 and 57 seconds.

"In her league meet she was 25 seconds ahead of her closest competitor in the 880 and seven seconds ahead of her closest competitor in the 440," Solley said.

Sue, a junior at Clarkston High School, is the only girl on the track team. Others started, but have since dropped out and Sue works out with the boys.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Latter, 6516 Almond Lane, she participated in Cross Country track last fall.

Delegates

Rev. Robert Walters and James Navarre, 6711 Wealthy, are delegates to the convention of the Michigan Synod of the Lutheran Church in America May 17-20 in Kalamazoo. They will represent Calvary Lutheran Church.

If George Phillips, 6413 Snow Apple will call at The Clarkston News, he will receive a free pass to the Clarkston Cinema showing of "Vault of Horror" and "Tales from the Crypt."

Ball player

Other cities may rate star headlines about girls joining (or not joining) Little League baseball teams, but the Independence Township Recreation Association (which is not nationally affiliated) has gone about the business of integration quietly.

Mary Smith, 7-year-old daughter of the William Smiths of Eastlawn, will be playing T-Ball this summer in the program that has enrolled more than 1,100 boys. A ballplayer since she was 4, Mary is dead serious about the sport, according to her mother.

Tim Doyle reports eight other girls signed up for Little League play and were assigned to teams, but have since switched to girls' softball play.

Tim, recreation director, hopes however, that not too many other girls get the same idea. "We're swamped with numbers," Doyle said. "There's no problem about sex, but there is about getting more kids assigned to teams."

Men in service

Sergeant Christopher E. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Anderson, 150 N. Johnson, Pontiac, has been cited by Civil Defense authorities for his help during flood conditions recently near Wichita, Kan.

Sergeant Anderson and fellow airmen from nearby McConnell AFB, Kan., helped shore up a 15-foot hole in a dyke which collapsed when the rain-swollen Arkansas River reached flood proportion. They provided portable lighting, filled sandbags and helped direct traffic at the scene.

The sergeant is a heavy equipment operator at McConnell with the 381st Civil Engineering Squadron.

Sergeant Anderson is a 1970 graduate of Pontiac Central High School. His wife, Elaine, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elsworth White of 9359 Villa Crest Drive, Clarkston.

Great Grandma Hogue and Alexander.

At 89, she's still active

"Kids today have really got it nice," says Mrs. Catherine Hogue who was 89 Thursday.

She grew up on a farm in Pennsylvania, working hard until last May when broken ribs suffered in a fall forced her to retire from her job of 58 years as sacristan for a church near Pittsburgh.

Now making her home with her grandson, Michael Morouse, his wife and four children at 6532 Amy Drive, she still quilts and makes pies and bread.

She and 20-month old Alexander, one of her 14 great grandchildren, were among those celebrating the day.

She was able to celebrate her 50th wedding anniversary 14 years ago, but the young Irish immigrant who was her husband is now dead.

"He came to America when they were celebrating the end of the Boer war," she recalls.

Her advice for a long life is first of all, "Lead a good life. Take care of yourself. Watch what you eat and drink."

Still not happy with today's short skirts, she admits she's seen a lot of changes in the years she's lived.

Township prepares to cut police millage

Indications were given Tuesday night that the Independence Township Board will spend just three-fourths of its voted one mill for police protection this year.

A police budget totaling $70,980 — allowing $51,780 for the contract with the Oakland County Sheriff's Department — was tabled, as was the contract. The board awaits an activities report from the county regarding services rendered.

Village adopts sewer laws

Clarkston Village Council Monday night adopted two ordinances governing the installation of sewers, and approved a proposed budget calling for the levy of 12.5 mills beginning in July to pay costs of the system.

Villagers will have a year to connect to the system once it is complete, probably in the fall. A maintenance charge of $21.25 per quarter will be levied. Inspection fees for connection are the same as the township — $35.

The ordinances provide for the use of approved contractors in connecting the homes and businesses to the sewer. Costs of home to property line connections will be paid for by the property owners.

The ordinances also establish unit costs to be applied to commercial users. A scale is available from village officials.

A Fire Department budget of $95,599, based on the current mill levied for operation, was approved. The budget includes $27,250 for new equipment including a $12,000 rescue truck; $21,400 per year for salaries for the chief and officers; and $16,280 per year for hourly payments to the men.

The board also approved the wording on the June 11 ballot in which voters will be asked to approve an additional mill for six years for Fire Department operation.

A Water Department budget of $50,610 — balanced despite recent rate increases — was also approved.

The board adopted a policy to have developers pay for the costs of approved sewer extensions, lateral benefit charges to be waived, and no pay-back clause.

A $40 inspection fee was set for sewer hook-ups.

The board also resolved to have DPW director Lynn Thorpe determine a system of checks whereby sewer contractors would have to repair and replace damaged property once sewers are completed. The supervisor reported contractors will not be paid until differences have been resolved. Residents will have about a year to file complaints.

Cycle crackdown promised

Residents of the Stickney Road area near Walters Lake turned out in force at the Independence Township Board meeting Tuesday night to protest mass motorcycle usage of nearby property.

They won from the board the promise to do what it can to have the Oakland County Sheriff's Department enforce the Michigan trespass laws; begin work on a local nuisance ordinance; and determine whether it is possible to close Stickney Road to motorcycle traffic.

Bill Vandermark, chairman of the Thendara Park Homeowners Association, said cycles gathering in quantities of up to 300 or more on weekends have provided noise, ecology, sanitary and litter problems.

Most of the traffic, he said, was other than local.

Supervisor Robert Vandermark reported to the board the agreement of principals for Indusco Corp., owners of Pine Knob Resort, to pay for the cost of widening Sashabaw between Waldon and Clarkston-Orion Road. Oakland County Road Commission has also agreed to widen affected intersections, he said.

The steps were taken to alleviate traffic problems in connections with Pine Knob concerts.

The board learned it will soon be asked to rezone 10 acres on Maybee east of Sashabaw to provide quarters for a new Fraternal Order of Eagles lodge. The old one on the Dixie Highway burned last winter.

Bryant of Petosky. A self portrait is signed and dated 1906. Clam shells mounted on black velvet were fashioned into dogwood flowers by Gloria's mother. A friend made the beautiful flower arrangement on the country French dining room table.

Four carpeted steps lead up to a sitting room, a parlor-type room, with a view from every side. Large windows view the hillside behind the house, the deep gorge and pond on the one side, and the barns on the other.

Gloria said, "If we want to read quietly, we come up here." Sliding doors pull out of the wall for privacy. A beautiful, oval, glass-topped coffee table has "Mike Eager loves Willa Dale" crayoned many years ago on its bottom.

The antique furniture in the master bedroom "came from a junk shop, but I love it. It had 7 coats of paint on it and what a job it was to refinish." The room has a soft glow with light filtering through pale gold sheer curtains at the

By Betty Hecker
"It seems like we've always been here," said Mrs. George (Gloria) Bellairs. Their home of the last two years, a unique house built on a hillside, lies in Springfield Township.

"This is my idea of living the better of two worlds. This is country living with all its conveniences, and yet we're close enough to town to enjoy its conveniences."

"The thing I've noticed most is the children. There's no peer pressure. They can come home from school and relax. They ride their horses and just have a good time."

The Bellairs have 5 horses, 4 dogs, 6 barn cats, 1 house cat, and a new baby goat. "The billy goat is my pride and joy," said Gloria. "It's a realization of a dream. I've always wanted one, ever since I was a little girl and first heard the story of 'Billy Goat Gruff.'" But Gloria's little goat is not named Billy; he is Thor of Hillside Farm.

The house has a center living room/dining room, with the bedrooms, baths and kitchen leading from it. A ledge rock fireplace features a solid walnut mantle and walnut planked wall above it milled especially for the house.

This room has two ceiling heights. The ceiling of the dining area is 12 feet high, and the fireplace part of the room has an 8-foot ceiling. On the wall area created from the difference, is a lighted panoramic view of the Grand Tetons.

Wall decorations feature paintings, done by a friend of the family, Virginia

Odds... and ends

by Marilyn Lawrence

Seventy-seven cadets from the Civil Air Patrol went down to Wing Headquarters at Grosse Ile last Saturday to have their physicals for Summer Encampment. One of the females was definitely uncomfortable the last part of the long ride, and broke all speed records to the Ladies Room when they arrived.

When she got in line for the examination she was given a dixie cup and told what was expected of her. No way.

When the girls told me the story, I asked what the poor girl did about the specimen cup.

"Easy," they giggled, "we all gave her some of ours!"

Oh, Lord.

About six months ago Amy lost a tooth. Now, every tooth is good for a quarter from the Tooth Fairy, so she's considering going into business as a full time Tooth Loser. She showed it to me, wrapped it in foil, and put it under her pillow just like the rules say.

The Fairy blew it, and forgot. Results — one red-faced, indignant, and definitely suspicious seven-year-old. Of course I tried.

"Maybe it's her busy season, or she's getting old and sometimes forgets, or maybe something happened to blow her off course..." I stammered. The rest of the family snorted, giggled, twitched and snickered, and let me hang myself.

The next night the Fairy came, left TWO quarters (for waiting) and a written apology.

"Due to bad weather, I was making an IFR approach from the Southwest, when a giant updraft caught me and blew me into Northern Canada."

"Sounds like the Fairy was in your Mother's class in flight school, and flunked too," muttered my husband.

"The life of a Tooth Fairy ain't all it's cracked up to be," I snorted, "winging it around the country with a bag full of baby teeth, and that heavy sack of quarters, no regular hours, no holidays with pay. The poor old broad is probably overworked and understaffed! You wanna work for TEETH?" I shouted.

Three months ago Amy lost a tooth, but the Fairy was on the ball this time. As I sneaked into her room about midnight and slid my arm under the pillow, the sleeping innocent sprang up, grabbed my arm, and hollered "Aha!" She woke the entire family. Amid the taunts, whistles and jeers, the Fairy tore up her union card and retired.

Yesterday Amy lost a tooth. Wordlessly she handed me the tooth. Wordlessly I handed her the quarter. Oh, Lord.

"But we CAN'T move to Muskegon! It's nothing but sand dunes and wind, and it's falling into Lake Michigan and Charlie says there are seiches on Lake Michigan that'll get you, and Jeff is going into his Senior year, and the family room isn't finished, and the girls' loft bedroom isn't paneled yet, and I don't know anyone there, and my Mother will cry a lot! What about the kids in CAP, and the fireplace we built, and the carpeting I have all picked out, and the hall wallpaper that isn't all on, and the crocuses that won't come up 'til next year, maybe? I'll lock myself in the bathroom, only the lock doesn't work, I'll weep and moan, and you'll have to drag me out of here kicking and screaming! I'm too fat to be a beach bum, and too old to pick cherries! Auntie Barb will have a poor spell when she finds out, the kids will have traumas, I won't be able to write my column, I'll just fade away out there on those dunes, and you'll be sorry!

What's that? A four bedroom, two story house? A great job with lots of money? Long romantic walks on a moonlit beach? Snowmobiling and hiking and fishing and picnics? New dining room furniture, good schools and a RED PINTO?"

Anyone want to buy an almost finished almost four bedroom ranch with a big family room and a great fireplace?

We're moving to Muskegon. Oh, Lord.

There are several ways to attach shelves and hinges in your home. You can use a butt hinge—easiest to install, it is screwed to the edge of the facing and to the edge of the door (drill pilot holes first to prevent splitting). A semi-concealed hinge is used with a lipped door. Install it by fastening the hinge to the back of the door, then attach it to the face of the cabinet. A surface of H-hinge fastens to the front of the door and the face of the cabinet. A concealed pivot style hinge screws into the top and bottom edges of the doors. Use dado joints for the best shelf support. Adjustable supports are easy and convenient to use.

Keep your entire home in top condition with materials and tools from BOB'S HARDWARE, 60 S. Main St., 625-5020. We feature a wide assortment to plumbing supplies including copper tubing and fittings; bathroom and kitchen faucet sets; and iron and black plastic pipe. And you always get friendly service and personal attention. Open: 8-6, Mon.-Sat.

HELPFUL HINT:

Home Gardening

by Dave Coulter

To recite the sub-species of beans is similar to the TV commercial of the Great Gildersleeve, reeling off the kinds of pop he sells.

However, to simplify it, there are: Bush Wax and with bean varieties "wax" always denoting that the variety is yellow podded, and Bush Green podded types. The Bush varieties seldom exceed 2 feet in height. In some areas "Bunch" beans is synonymous with bush beans. Then there are "Pole" green and wax beans and these require support on which the vines may twine. Some growers of pole beans construct a teepee of small poles on which they may grow, and some plant them with their sweet corn so the beans will twine on them.

And wouldn't you know it; there is a type called Half Runners and these start out like any self-respecting bush bean and then send out short runners and are generally self supporting. To end the list are bush and pole lima beans.

Prior to accepting listed varieties, the grower who plans to either can or freeze beans should be made aware that commercial bean processors who can beans are quite insistent that for canning, the bean variety be white seeded. This is because some of the bean pods when canned will have started seed formation and the dark seeded varieties cloud or discolor the liquid in which the beans are canned.

Seed color is unimportant in freezing beans. Newer bean varieties that have white seed and have been designed for processing have some other characteristics that either pose or solve problems. The breeder has designed them to have a high percentage of pods of the same size ready for harvest at one time to enable them to be destructively harvested at one picking. If they are not harvested at the right time they can get oversized, tough and stringy. Tenderette, Tendercrop, Cascade and Early Gallatin are varieties of this class. Not many dealers stock these varieties and so you might have to secure them from a mail order seedsman.

Recommended and easily available bean varieties are: Bush Wax, Pencil Pod Wax, Kinghorn Wax and Top Notch Golden Wax. Bush Green Tendergreen, Topcrop, Stringless Green Pod, Bush Ramono (Flat podded and has a unique flavor quality), Bush Blue Lake.

Pole. Green, Kentucky Wonder, McCaslan Pole and Pole Blue Lake. Bush Limas, Fordhook No. 242, Burpees Improved Bush (large seeded) and Thorogreen (small seeded). Pole Limas, King of the Garden large seed and Sieva for small seed.

It is difficult to tell if gardeners are more set in their ways about their favorite sweet corn or their favorite tomato varieties. Writing about sweet corn varieties is complicated by this factor and compounded because most sweet corn varieties now in use are what seedsman call "Proprietaries." Proprietaries more or less "belong" to the seedsman or experiment station that bred and introduced them to the users. Most sweet corns now in use are hybrids and most varieties now in use have been bred and introduced by commercial seed companies, hence their proprietorship.

Sweet corn varieties range from types that hardly reach four feet in height with 4-inch ears to giants that tower eight or more feet and have ears so large and heavy they are pendulant. Some varieties have yellow kernels, some are white and some are mixed yellow and white, and if someone searched far and diligently enough he could find an old variety called Black Mexican that at the eating stage have purple kernels. They range in number of days to eating stage from about 60 to 110 days. Some varieties hold in their "milk" or prime eating stage, for only 3 to 4 days while others hold for 7 to 10 days.

Scientists have isolated the gene that controls the sweetness of the corn and have released super sweet varieties. Many varieties snap or break from the stalks easily while others have long tough shanks that should almost be cut from the stalks. Some varieties have white silk, others dark. White silked varieties are recommended for canning or freezing because when husking and silking the ears for processing, if a silk or two is missed, it looks less like a hair.

Please remember my earlier admonition to plant sweet corn in blocks of rows to insure complete kernel formation. Also corn is nitrogen loving so after the stalks are 12-15 inches high I recommend a side dressing of a 10-6-4 or a 12-12-12 fertilizer.

Now I lay my neck on the block and suggest the following varieties. Please consider in selecting your varieties that it is easier to make one planting of 3 or more varieties that have a spread of maturity dates than to make successive plantings of one variety.

First Early — Earliking, Goldcrest, North Star, Butterangers Sunglow,

Sunnyvee

Second Early — Northern Belle, Carmel Cross Marcross, Sugar Daddy, Early Golden Bantam.

Midseason — FM Cross, Goldcup, Merit, Jubilee, Golden Cross Bantam, Honey and Cream.

Main Crop — Iochief, Style Pak, Tendermost, NK 199 Seneca Chief, Golden King

Late — Illinichief, Silver Queen, Stowells Evergreen, Country Gentleman.

* Starred varieties are white. Double starred are bicolored, yellow and white.

Please bring your questions to the clinic at Ritters, Saturday the 19th, and I'll do my best to answer them.

Tiffany is a mother

by Betty Hecker

The March 15 issue of the Clarkston News carried a story about Tiffany, and the Siege of West Church Street.

Tiffany is the lovely little dog of the Bob Walters family. And this past weekend, dear Tiffany blessed them with seven little puppies, thereby giving us the next sequel of her story.

Congratulations, Tiffany! Happy Mother's Day!

The other morning, Agnes Emory's day started off just fine! Rita Bell of Channel 7's Prize Movie called Agnes.

She didn't know the mystery tune to win the money, but the gifts she received made her very happy. They were a needlepoint kit, a Metro passbook, and a string of pearls.

And it's exciting to be called!

The Robinsons had a "family get-together" in Sarasota, Florida. King and Jan and their daughter, Heather, flew down and stayed at the same motel with King's parents, Charlie and Phyllis Robinson.

Georgia and Graham Woolston and their three children, Tom, Diana, and Ginger also came from their home in Lima, Ohio to be with them.

While in Florida, Jan and Charlie went deep sea fishing, and as Jan said, "It was a nice boat ride, but we didn't catch any fish."

If you are a trout fisherman, you know that the Hendrickson "hatch" of flies usually coincides with Mother's Day.

In the Clarkston area, there were several mothers who were trout fishermen "widows" over the Mother's Day weekend.

Sue Bennett said that her husband, Brooke, and their sons, Rick and Eric, were having such a great time that they didn't come home until Monday. Other father-son fishermen were Rev. Alex Stewart and sons, Davis and Bruce; Dr. Earl Davis and son Brian; Bill and Gil ApMadoc; Bob Johnson and son, Ken; Dick Esser and Rick; and Mike O'Neill went with his uncle, Steve Warner.

The fishermen stayed at the Whipporwill Club on the AuSable River.

Last weekend boys from Boy Scout Troop 189 backpacked to Camp Sherwood. They carried their food and matches, the firewood they found there. They each prepared their own meal and comments went a little like this: "This is good, and I'm hungry", or "If the meat is not quite done, are you a cannibal?"

This Saturday the 189 Boy Scouts will hold an auction sale at Rudy's Market parking lot, beginning at 10 a.m. The scouts made posters to advertise their auction, and some of them read — "Terrific Bargains", "Keen Stuff", "Junk".

The public is invited to bid on some items for sale or to purchase a treat from the bake sale table.

John Peters and Diane Mihalcheon surprised Sally Lindeman May 9 by returning to Andersonville School for a short visit. John and Diane were transferred to Pine Knob School in last year's district change.

A "cookie" was responsible for the visit.

Last year, some of the students presented Miss Lindeman with a stale gingerbread cookie. This year, John and Diane returned with a "fresh" gingerbread cookie, but the greatest treat was being back together for a short time with a favorite teacher and good friend.

Choirs sing at Chelsea

Twenty members of the Adult and Junior choirs of Clarkston United Methodist Church presented a sacred opera, "The Prodigal Son," May 6 at Chelsea United Methodist Retirement Home.

A large number of home residents gathered in the chapel to enjoy the presentation, directed by Adele Thomas with Louise Paquette at the piano.

The part of the grief stricken mother was sung by Connie Grubaugh; that of the prodigal son by Daniel Addis, and that of the elated father by Jackson Byers. Racel, Ranette and Thonda Byers danced.

There may be many advantages to buying existing homes in the minds of many people. A pre-owned home has proved itself. It is time tested, and the flaws have probably been corrected. Older homes sometimes have larger rooms and more living space. The price of land, labor, and materials has increased steadily through the years. This means that a house built at lower costs will offer more for the money. There are two or three times as many existing homes on the market as there are new homes. However, do not underestimate the value of purchasing a brand new home!

When your home is ready for sale, call BOB WHITE REAL ESTATE, 5856 S. Main St., 625-5821 with your listing; we'll get you the results you want quickly. We handle all forms of real estate including commercial property, raw acreage and parcels of land and invite you to call us for our appraisal of your property. Open: 9-8, Mon.-Thur.; 9-6, Fri.-Sat.; 12-5, Sun.

HELPFUL HINT:

Make a list of necessary improvements to a property and add this to the purchase price. This will give you a good idea of the amount of money necessary for the purchase.

Spiritual Message

Did you ever stop to think of what you expect of your husband, wife, children or friends and how this basis of expectation really happened to be established? And have you thought about the reaction that occurs within us (and between persons) when these persons do not reach the level of expectation that we have fixed? Humanly speaking, these measurements determine the acceptability or non-acceptability of an individual.

These levels of expectation are established or formed by family, religious and social traditions. We find that fathers expect their sons to accomplish what the fathers didn't or couldn't. The factor of "keeping up with the Jones" reflects the level of expectation of the neighborhood and the reputation of the home and family is placed on the line if it does not meet the established level of expectation. All of this, of course, is on the human level.

The question has come to mind, "What does God expect of me?" Or, "How can I be acceptable to God?" As I thought about it and looked in the Bible for an answer, I discovered two things: 1) Our determination of a level of expectation is selfish and suspect at best; 2) What God expects of us is "nothing."

The Bible says: "—you are acceptable to God because of Jesus Christ." It does not say that we are to do this and that, but that His acceptance of us is because of Jesus.

Of ourselves, human and impossible, there is no conceivable way that we can earn acceptance, that is, chalk up points with God. This is frightening! However, the key to the situation is Jesus Christ. The Bible says: "Now we rejoice in our wonderful new relationship with God — all because of what our Lord Jesus Christ has done in dying for our sins — making us friends of God." Romans 5:11.

We are released from "trying" to earn brownie points, or measure up to what we determine are God's levels of expectation and acceptability because of our active faith and belief in Jesus Christ. We discover a spiritual freedom in Jesus which reflects in the moral, emotional and psychological aspects of our lives. Jesus has become the hub of life and we have found the dynamic source of strength for living every day in Him!

Julie Shaw uses peacock feathers, ceramics, wood and metals to fashion her delightful assortment of jewelry, now catching on in Michigan boutiques.

Jewelry artisan likes quiet of the country

by Jean Saile

A small studio home sits atop a hill out near Walters Lake and out of it is coming creative jewelry, fast catching on in some of Michigan's boutiques.

The artisan is Julie Shaw, who in February went into business for herself, and has now chalked up such distributors as Arts and Objects in Rochester, the Boutique at the Ponchartrain Hotel, the Village Green in Birmingham, the Rag Doll Salon in Royal Oak, Sweet Voices in Gaylord, Puff's Trading Co. in Flint and a new place about to open in Houghton Lake.

The success leaves Julie well pleased. A student of the Detroit Society of Arts and Crafts and the Sir John Cass Art College in London, England, she's torn between painting and jewelry.

Various portraits hanging about the small home show her attempt to blend people with landscape so that neither stands out from the other.

But it's the jewelry that's successful.

The delicate filigrees of metal, the ceramic pieces (some of which have been double fired with enameling added), the earrings of peacock feathers, and her own original paper models reflect African and Egyptian influence.

The paper earrings are hand decorated with pencil sketches of landscapes, faces and flowers and lacquered to become weather resistant.

"I'm the only person I know of who makes paper earrings," says this former display director for two of the nation's big department stores.

Julie is busy with art shows. Last weekend she spent three days in Kalamazoo coming home with several hundred dollars worth of orders.

"Jewelry brings in money. I might sell a couple of paintings in a month and then not again for six months," she reports.

The slight artist who confides she's "Blind as a bat" without her glasses got into sculpture and bronze castings when she had a studio for a year at the Fine Arts Sculpture Center on Waldon Road.

Her home, replete with a grand piano which she's played for the past 15 years, reflects the peace of the surrounding countryside.

Stained glass windows from an 18th century English church frame the view.

"I like to hear the birds sing, see the little bike trails through the woods and look far out and see houses and farms. I hate all the city stuff. The only city I ever liked as San Francisco," she reports.

Calling herself "a pretty good cook", she speaks of being a vegetarian and feeling "light" and "ready to go to work" after meals, feelings which she thinks don't come following "meat and potato meals".

She uses natural foods, soybeans, barley, millet, brown rice, and a lot of vegetables, cheese and fruit. Ever her coffee is made from barley.

She's currently eyeing wild strawberry bushes which grow behind the house.

Road funds distributed

First quarter Motor Vehicle Highway Fund revenues being distributed among counties and municipalities are up 8.6 percent from the same period in 1972, the State Highway Commission said.

All state taxes on gasoline and diesel fuel, plus license plate fees, go into the Highway fund.

Oakland County, responsible for Independence and Springfield Township road maintenance, has received $4.3 million as compared to $3.7 million a year ago.

Clarkston, which receives its road money directly, has received $4,707 this year as compared to $4,371 for the same period a year ago.

Assistant principals confirmed

Two interns who have been serving as assistant principals at Clarkston and Sashabaw Junior High Schools were recommended for assistant principalships by Assistant Superintendent Mel Vaara. The Board supported the recommendation for John Kirchgessner and Duane Lewis for the 1973-74 school year.

Quilting's her thing

by Jean Saile

Hazel Arnold is 70, and a china cabinet displays countless gifts she and her husband, Frank, received for their 50th wedding anniversary last February.

But she's not content to sit and look at them or to relive the years gone by.

Hazel's fingers are flying fingers, turning out a profusion of handmade quilts—all of which she says will go to her grandchildren—and the living room at 5010 Greenview is a busy place.

There it is that Hazel has her quilting frame, set up right in front of the picture window. While Frank gardens and "potters" around in the yard, she's taking thousands of miniscule stitches which bring to life the old familiar pattern names of quilts.

There's a Double Wedding Ring, Ocean Wave, Dresden, Snowball, Flower Garden, Little Red School House, "9's", Double 9's, Star—some of them made, some of them waiting to be made.

"I've got at least four in the trunk waiting to be put on the frame," she reports.

One quilt, for display only, is an Ocean Wave in blue and white which she says her mother quilted in 1896, the year before she was married. Hazel herself still has a Snowball which she quilted in 1922 before she was married.

Hazel's fame spread to the community last year when she offered a Necktie Quilt to the Eastern Star. The quilt helped the organization raise more than $100, she reports proudly.

Frank is retired from the Grand Trunk Western Railroad and Hazel herself was employed for 21 years at Pontiac State Hospital where she had charge of food services in the main dining room.

Some of the material she uses comes from the hospital—leftover material after dresses were made for inmates.

Tiny neat stitches are a must for quilters and Mrs. Arnold plys her hobby diligently.

New pastor named

The Rev. John H. Albrecht will become the new rector of St. Mary's-in-the-Hills Episcopal Church, Orion Township, effective August 1.

He will succeed the Rev. John E. Lee who is retiring this summer.

Rev. Albrecht has been rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Royal Oak, since 1969.

He resigned from St. John's effective May 1. During Rev. Albrecht's three and one-half years as rector, the St. John's Music Festival became a reality, offering cultural events such as concerts to the parish and community.

In addition, his mission church, St. Patrick's Episcopal Church, Madison Heights, became an independent parish.

ST. MARY'S CHURCH is on the grounds of the former William E. Scripps home and originally was the Nina D. Scripps School built in 1924 for the children of his "Wildwood Acres Estate."

The school became St. Mary's-in-the-Hills Episcopal Church, a mission of All Saints Episcopal Church, Pontiac, in 1952, and a parish in 1956. The new church building was completed in 1970, and is located on four and one-half acres. The parishioners come from Lake Orion, Oxford, Pontiac, Madison Heights, Clarkston, Bloomfield Hills, Rochester, Metamora, and Drayton Plains.

Betty visits

A "really big" rummage sale

By Betty Hecker

Now I've been to one of the "really biggie" rummage sales.

It was sheer madness — crowds, confusion, parking — at the Episcopal Churchwomen of Christ Church Cranbrook's semi-annual spring sale last week.

For example:

* A "Women Only" sign in the French room, understandable because women were everywhere in bras and girdles.

* A forlorn looking man reporting, "I've come to this sale for six consecutive years, and for six consecutive years I've lost my wife here."

* A woman testing an electric shaver in the jewelry department. She shaved both legs and her armpits, and then volunteered the razor was dull. She didn't buy.

* A real pro working the linen shop. Fingering a luncheon size hand embroidered linen table cloth, she offered, "Mark it down and I'll take it." They did — from 25 cents to 15 cents.

* A rusty tin pan that nobody knew anything about. "If you can't name it, send it to the jewelry department," said Dorothy Braun. They did and it turned out to be a gold miner's pan from Lapland.

* A call for smelling salts. An elderly lady felt faint.

* A man, his arms loaded, standing outside in the parking lot. "I left my car right here, and it's gone. Do you think the police hauled it away? Lady, did you see my car?"

I hadn't, but I'd seen Bea Robins, chairwoman of the French room, and had my eyes opened when she told me of one family having donated ten furs — nine minks and an ermine.

The Christ Church rummage sale is renowned for the merchandise offered and the prices available. In Bloomfield Hills, it offers many "name" clothes and antiques.

I'd made the mistake of sending the kids off to school before leaving, and when I got there hundreds of people were grouped in a line which encircled the church.

My press pass got me in the back door, after having located a parking place in a "No Parking" zone and some exchange with a policeman. He was tolerant.

More than 200 volunteer workers were needed to handle the press of people. It was now 10 a.m. and in the hour the doors had been open, more than 1,000 people had entered, according to B. J. Smith and Betty Wolf, the chairwomen of the sale.

The French Room had a separate entrance and that's where I headed. I'd been told about the fabulous clothes and furs there and couldn't wait.

Mrs. Robins said, "We hope to make over $9,000 this year. People are making large quantity buys, some over $100, just in clothes."

She pointed out seven girls who came in together and who had shopped for more than an hour. "Just look at the pile of things they are buying," she said.

Leaving that room, I looked for shops where the lines were not too long. Trudi Keener explained, "Last year we had such a mob that people weren't able to shop. This year we are controlling the number of people in each room."

And what did I buy? Nothing.

Furniture stripping can be the messiest part of refinishing wood furniture. It's definitely messy and many times there is a smelly odor.

What to do?

Dick Penman operates one of the Dip 'n Strip shops, at 7615 Highland Road in Waterford Township. Dick said, "If you don't want the mess, or don't want to take the time to strip the paint or varnish off a piece of furniture, come to me."

The Dip 'n Strip shop has large vats of dipping solution. The 1000 gallon hot tank (130 degrees) is used for soaking the finish from solid woods and metal.

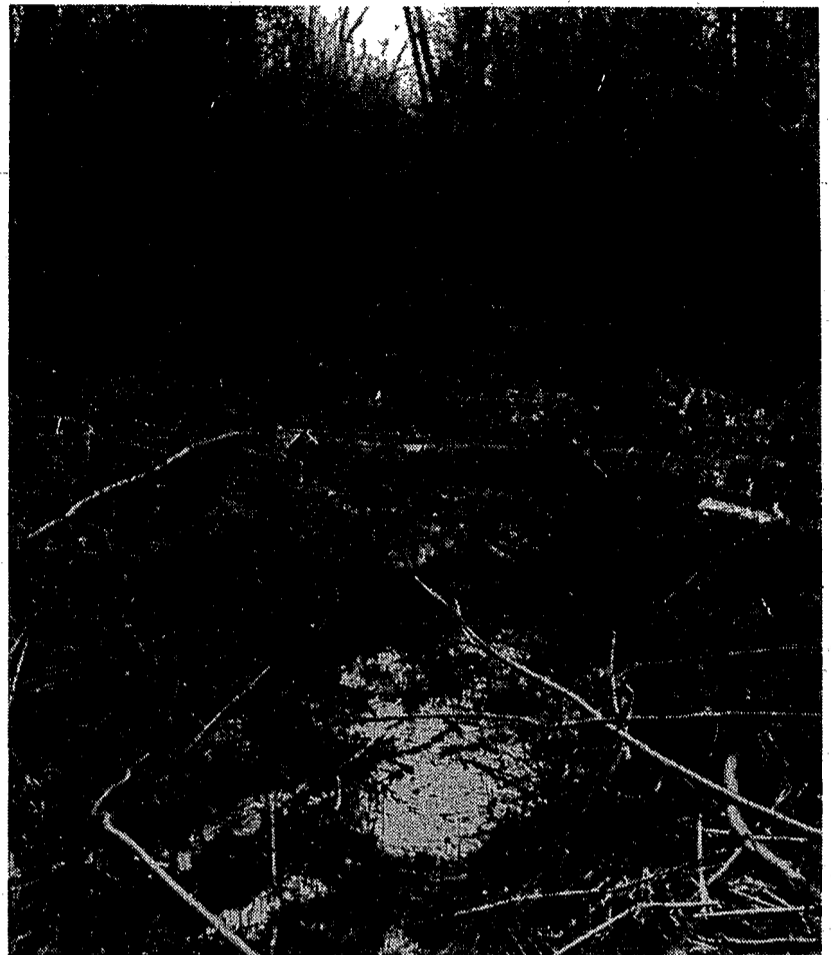

A 500-gal cold tank is used for furniture with a veneer. Dick said, "We can handle anything. Veneers are a little tricky, they tend to lift if you're not careful."

Another 500-gallon tank holds the neutralizing solution. This stops the stripping action of the other formula.

"On some pieces, the finish 'gives up' easier than others. Paints and enamels take longer to dip than varnish," explained Dick. "When the piece comes out, it's soaking wet. I keep the pieces about a week, to allow them to dry completely. Then if the customer is really anxious to start sanding, the wood is dry. You can really wreck a piece if it is sanded when it's wet."

"I do press cane for chair seats, no whole cane, just press cane," he added.

"People helping people help themselves"

By Holly Stephens

A week of helping — independence center is helping people. Last week the center was involved in many areas. Two families who had run out of food were supplied with emergency menus to carry them over for one day. Two other families were provided with furniture from the center — a couch, a bed, and two mattresses. Health needs were fulfilled by providing transportation for two people to the clinic at Pontiac General Hospital. Four families were given clothing from the Clothes Closet.

The agencies who see clients at independence center met with the following people last week — Catholic Social Services and Family and Child Services, who help with family, marriage, alcohol, and drug problems, each saw two clients; Fairlawn Center, who deals with juvenile mental health, saw two clients; the Immunization Clinic served forty-four infants and children.

Groups also meet at the center. There were four Scout troops and two sessions of the Jr. High Peer Group at the center during the week.

Center needs — The center has received a number of toys through donations. They are in various states of disrepair. Is it possible some area Scout or Campfire groups would like to take these on as a project and repair or paint them for next year's Christmas baskets?

Graduate

Kevin Hamaker, sixth grader at Pine Knob School, receives a diploma from Principal Dave Westlund during graduation ceremonies last week at Sashabaw Junior High School. The graduation exercises were sponsored by the PTA.

Ron Tunningley refinishes the stock of his 22 rifle in woodworking classes at Sashabaw Junior High. He's removed the old finish, is now sanding, and about ready to apply a new walnut stain.
